Hello, Pilgrim

Local bank to have new owners

NETEX Bancorporation, parent company for Pilgrim Bank, announced Monday afternoon that it had entered into a definitive agreement to acquire City Bancorp, Inc., the parent company for Community Bank, a Texas banking association with offices in Sulphur Springs, Wellington, and Clarendon.

City Bancorp President and CEO Don Donaldson said he thinks the move will be good for everyone.

"We are pleased to join with Pilgrim Bank," Donaldson said. "Our customers can look forward to an expanded presence in East Texas and the additional products and services that Pilgrim Bank offers."

Under the terms of the agreement, NETEX is to acquire all of the common stock and warrants of City Bancorp for cash. The transaction has been approved by the board of directors of NETEX and City Bancorp. The acquisition is subject to customary conditions, including the approval of the shareholders of City Bancorp as well as bank regulatory authorities.

Ken Pilgrim, Chairman of the Board of Pilgrim Bank and NETEX, said his company is delighted to associate with City Bancorp and to expand its operations.

"This acquisition will expand our presence into Sulphur Springs in East Texas and Clarendon and Wellington in the Texas Panhandle," Pilgrim said. "We expect that their expertise and knowledge of their respective markets will enhance our franchise. We welcome current Community Bank customers into our corporate family."

Community Bank, based in Wellington, was founded in 1910 and expanded its operations into East Texas in 2004,

Grant to fund park upgrade

New playground to be installed

Months of hard work paid off last Thursday when state officials approved a grant that will help fund more than $37,000 worth of improvements in Clarendon's City Park.

The Texas Parks & Wildlife Commission grant will pay $18,982 for new equipment at the park, and the remainder of the project will be covered by donations and city labor.

City Clerk Jeannie Molder wrote the grant and said many people contributed to the application.

"It was really a citywide effort," Molder said. "[City Superintendent] Jim Roberts did a lot. He wanted a park for the little kids, and the city council told us to see if we could get a grant. We also got all kinds of letters of support from local businesses and groups."

Molder said more than 200 irises have already been donated and planted in terraces at the park; and more irises, bluebonnets, and trees that will provide beautiful fall foliage will be added also.

The biggest change will be the creation of a "Tot Park" with playground equipment for little kids on the south side of Seventh Street where there is currently antiquated equipment and an unused volleyball court.

New playground equipment will also be installed in the main City Park, and the grant will also pay for additional picnic tables and barbecue grills.

The old maypole will remain in the new Tot Park, and the old big slide and playground dome will remain in the main park. All playground equipment will have sandboxes installed around them for safety purposes.

Mayor Pro-tem Janice Knorpp commended the effort put forth by Molder and those who helped her.

"I think it's wonderful," she said. "I think Jeannie and everybody did a super job getting the grant."

New playground equipment is expected to cost $10,467.72, and new park equipment will cost another $5,546.46.

Cash donations to the project total $4,290.81, and the city will contribute $9,871.50 worth of in-kind labor.

A start date has not been set for the project, and Molder says the terms of the grant gives the city two years to complete the project.

Clarendon was one of 18 communities across the state that received a share of $797,231 for small community grants.

The Small Community Program provides grants reimbursing 50 percent of the cost, up to a maximum of $50,000, to political subdivisions responsible for providing public recreation services to their citizens. Small communities are classified as communities with a population of 20,000 or less.

The initiative is funded through the Texas Recreation and Parks Account grant program, established in 1993 by the Texas Legislature to direct a portion of the state sales tax collected on sporting goods for basic outdoor recreation.

Molder and other city workers began preparing for this grant last summer to make the application's March 2007 deadline. The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission also provided valuable assistance on this grant, Molder said.

CC Regents approve $7.3 million budget for FY 2008

Clarendon College Regents approved a $7.3 million budget for fiscal year 2007-2008 when they met in regular session last Thursday.

College officials said no citizens showed up for the public hearing prior to Thursday's meeting.

CC Interim President Bill Auvenshine said the college budget is made up of two parts - the instructional budget of $5,397,352 and the auxiliary budget of $1,917,888. The instructional budget is where the impact is felt of the governor's veto of some college funding earlier this year.

"We have $338,000 in there for our employees' health insurance," Auvenshine said. "If you take that figure out, the actual increase in the instructional budget for this year is $79,030, which only amounts to a 0.01 percent increase from last year."

Auvenshine said if efforts are successful to restore funding vetoed by the governor, the college can amend its budget and take care of things such as maintenance that has been deferred and purchases that have been delayed.

Regents are proposing setting the tax rate for the coming year at $0.2193 per $100 valuation. That's up from the current rate of $0.2065 and would increase the tax on a $100,000 home by $12.80 per year.

Regents will hold a public hearing and adopt the tax rate next month. In other college business, Auvenshine reported that a steering committee in Pampa is working to institute a maintenance and operations tax to help finance the CC - Pampa Center.

Gray County Commissioners will meet this week to consider calling an election on the tax, which by law would be limited to five cents per $100 valuation. Gray County Commissioners would review and set the tax rate annually, and Gray County would have no representation on the CC Board of Regents. All money raised by the tax would have to be spent in Gray County.

"Amarillo College has done this in Dumas, and Frank Phillips did this in Perryton," Auvenshine said.

As president of Hill College, Auvenshine was a pioneer in the state in getting maintenance taxes approved to support satellite centers for that college.

CC officials think the tax could raise an estimated $600,000, which would free up money in the college's budget for use on the main campus or for other college functions.

The maintenance and operation tax proposal has several steps to go through before it reaches Gray County voters. Auvenshine said the same tax is being considered to support the new CC - Childress Center.

In personnel issues, Regents accepted the resignation of CC - Pampa Center Associate Dean Dave Bradford. Ray Jaramillo will take Bradford's place with the title of Dean of Administrative Services and Director of the Pampa Center.

Jaramillo will spend one day a week on the Clarendon campus to supervise business operations, and Annette Ferguson will return to CC as comptroller.

Regents also ratified the employment of Linda Rowland as mathematics instructor and Wendy Altman as enrollment services counselor. They also approved the appointment of the following personnel as dorm directors: Rusty Kennedy, Kaylann Titus, Matt Torrez, and Jeremy Vonner.

US should work with the people of Venezuela

By Gustavo Coronel

Contrary to what Americans hear constantly from the media, Venezuelans have a poor opinion of their president, Hugo Chavez, and a positive opinion of Americans and the United States.

As a senior Venezuelan currently living in the U.S. while keeping up-to-date with Venezuelan affairs (I am also a former member of the Venezuelan congress), I have come to accept that Venezuela generally merits little attention from U.S. society, except in three or four areas: baseball players, beautiful women, oil and the antics of Hugo Chavez.

Hugo Chavez' September 2006 UN speech in which he called President Bush a "devil" and spoke aggressively against the United States, helped to push Chavez and Venezuela, even if negatively, onto the American consciousness. Due to this speech, millions of U.S. citizens felt curious enough to do some research on Chavez and learned, for example, that Citgo, the chain of corner gas stations, is really a major oil company owned by the Venezuelan government and being used by Chavez to make inroads into American domestic politics. Americans also learned that Chavez loved Saddam Hussein and now calls Iranian President Ahmadinejad and Zimbabwean dictator Robert Mugabe "brothers." However, few still know that his buddies in the U.S. include: Actor Danny Glover, who received $18 million from Chavez to make a movie. Glover has been known to compare Chavez to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.; Joseph Kennedy Jr., who runs Citgo's distribution of "cheap" Venezuelan fuel oil for Chavez in the northeast; and Jesse Jackson, who was decorated by Chavez in Venezuela; and many others.

The intense propaganda machine installed by Chavez in the U.S. (that costs the Venezuelan Embassy well over a million dollars per year) is trying to sell U.S. public opinion on the idea that Hugo Chavez is universally loved by Venezuelans while the United States is bitterly hated.

In fact, neither of these two claims is correct, judging by all credible polls, both in Venezuela and outside the country. In Venezuela the most professional and respected polling company, Hinterlaces, produced its poll for the month of June, with a 95 percent reliability. Some of the results are quite interesting:

Hugo Chavez is rejected by 43 percent of those polled and approved of by 39 percent;

Attacks against the U.S. by Chavez are rejected by 75 percent of participants and approved of by 14 percent;

To give money away to other countries, as Chavez is doing from the Venezuelan oil largess, received the support of only 9 percent of those polled, while 87 percent rejected it;

The pretense of Chavez to re-elect himself indefinitely by modifying the existing constitution is rejected by 63 percent of those asked and approved of by 19 percent.

81 percent of Venezuelans would generally like to see new political leadership in the country.

According to the survey by Hinterlaces, the political style of Hugo Chavez is starting to rub Venezuelans the wrong way, since he is increasingly being perceived as a dictator. A poll conducted by a reputed Chilean company, Latinobarometro, in January 2007, indicated that Venezuelans clearly prefer democracy to any other political system. This poll also revealed that Hugo Chavez had a very low approval rating in Latin America, only better than Cuba's Fidel Castro and Peru's Alan Garcia. The highest ranked Latin American leader in this poll was Brazil's Lula da Silva, followed by Chile's Michelle Bachelet, Colombia's Alvaro Uribe and Argentina's Nestor Kirchner, while Hugo Chavez, Alan Garcia and Fidel Castro were at the very bottom of the ladder.

Pew Global Attitudes Poll, issued in June 2007, surveyed the views on the U.S. in 47 countries, including Venezuela. While it is true that the U.S. image in Latin America has deteriorated, the clear majority of respondents in countries such as Mexico, Peru and, yes, Venezuela, expressed a positive opinion about their northern neighbor. In fact, it might come as a surprise to many Americans that more Venezuelans (56 percent) thought favorably about the U.S. than did the British (52 percent), the Swedes (46 percent) and the French (39 percent). While 71 percent of Venezuelans enjoyed U.S. music and movies, only 63 percent of the British shared their enthusiasm. At the same time, 76 percent of Venezuelans professed admiration for U.S. science and education, while 74 percent of the British did. Venezuelan opinion of the U.S. was much more favorable than that of most European countries.

The picture Venezuelans have formed of Hugo Chavez and of the U.S., according to these polls, is not the picture Hugo Chavez's propaganda machine in Washington is trying to sell to American public opinion. The positive sentiment that Venezuelans have about the United States appears to be culturally driven, not political.

The U.S. should consider taking the initiative to work with the Venezuelan people, through organizations of civil society, to promote the conversion of more Venezuelans into productive citizens. The Venezuelan population is highly dependent on a paternalistic, authoritarian state and cannot prosper without a critical mass of self-starting citizens. Such an initiative could create new good will for the U.S. in my country.

Gustavo Coronel was elected to the Venezuelan Congress in 1998 before it was dissolved in 1999 following the election of Hugo Chavez as president. Coronel is currently designated as an "enemy" of the Chavez regime.

First responders show volunteer spirit

By US Sen. John Cornyn

Texas's earliest settlers appreciated the wide open spaces of our vast landscape, but they were quick to band together for the common good when an emergency arose. Nothing brought out that cooperative spirit more rapidly than the specter of fire.

In the smallest communities, citizens organized bucket brigades on a moment's notice. In those days, firefighting equipment might consist only of shovels, water containers and anything handy to smother the flames.

In 1845, a fire in San Augustine enveloped several buildings, but the hotel "was saved by the indefatigable exertions of the citizens who covered the roof with carpets and blankets and kept the front deluged with water thrown from windows."

In Houston, during the same era, authorities organized a paid company of firemen. But any major fire brought out an eager corps of civilian volunteers nonetheless.

Today, that spirit of volunteerism still thrives across Texas. Of 1,800 fire departments in the state, some 1,450 are all-volunteer, and another 250 combine paid and volunteer staff. These citizen-run operations cover the vast majority of Texas's 261,797 square miles.

Put another way, two-thirds of the 60,000 firefighters in Texas are men and women willing to volunteer their time and risk the dangers of emergency service to help their neighbors.

Recently, rural firefighters have been busy fighting fast-moving grassfires. Texas State Forester James Hull believes we have just passed the midpoint of a 30-year dry or drought cycle, vastly increasing fire risk across the state, especially in rural areas, where the dry conditions of 2006 were particularly perilous.

With a few other central U.S. states, Texas has had above-average rainfall so far in 2007 — reducing fire risk in many areas. But, as residents of East Texas were reminded again this summer, danger is a constant companion for firefighters at all times.

Earlier this month, two volunteer firemen from Noonday, Texas — Captain Kevin Williams and Austin Cheek — made the ultimate sacrifice while battling a house fire in Flint, Texas. Two other volunteers were injured while trying to save their lives.

In June, Nacogdoches Fire Captain Joe Ed Ivy, a career fireman, died in Houston during a high-rise training exercise. Capt. Ivy's brother and cousin also work for the Nacogdoches Fire Department.

While their communities were shocked by these losses, it should be some small comfort to their families that these men died serving others.

In recent years, and especially since

Sept. 11, 2001, the federal government has assumed a greater role in local emergency preparedness. Although the danger of terrorism is likely greater in urban areas, we have learned from Katrina and other disasters that after-effects often spill over into suburban and rural areas. Emergency personnel in all regions must be prepared and up to date.

In 2001, Congress created the Assistance to Firefighters Grant (AFG) program aimed at assisting rural emergency organizations to maintain readiness. These grants help firefighters and other first responders obtain equipment, protective gear, emergency vehicles, training, and other resources needed for fires and related hazards.

Over the past six years, the program has made 1,437 grants to Texas, totaling $123.6 million. These funds have helped most state fire departments keep up with potential problems that seem to multiply with increased population, weather cycles, human mistakes, and both domestic and international threats.

A byproduct of 9-11 has been increased appreciation for the role that first responders — police, fire and emergency personnel — take on the front lines. They are often the pillars of our communities, and they earn our respect and gratitude every day. It is well deserved.

Texans answer the call to serve America

Meeting the people who help make Texas so special is the greatest privilege of serving as your Senator. I particularly treasure the opportunities I have to speak with our veterans and active duty personnel and thank them personally for their tremendous service to our country. This month, I've traveled all across Texas and met some of the brave men and women who answered the call to defend our freedom and way of life.

In San Antonio, I had the honor to present Private First Class Sonny Weldon with a Purple Heart decoration in 1782. I am inspired by PFC Weldon's strong convictions and dedication to his mission.

Then, in Houston, I met Marine Corporal Paul Gardner and his wife Ashley. Corporal Gardner was shot and paralyzed during a firefight with insurgents in the opening weeks of Operation Iraqi Freedom. I was deeply moved by his courage and determination both on and off the battlefield. He once wrote, "I can do anything if I want it bad enough. It just takes a little more effort sometimes." That day I participated in a ceremony to give the Gardners the keys to a brand new home, custom built by the Wounded Hero Home Program to fit Paul's special needs.

The Wounded Hero Home Program is a compassionate partnership of 57 Houston-area Rotary Clubs, the Coalition to Salute America's Heroes, and corporate donors such as Gallery Furniture, H-E-B grocery stores, and Phoenix Blinds. In addition, Perry Homes and the Riverstone Development Company each gave about $50,000 to the project. The Gardners' home is the first of 14 that this ambitious venture aims to provide for wounded veterans of Iraq and Afghanistan by the end of this year.

Later that week, I welcomed the crowd at the Freedom Concert held in Grand Prairie. Featuring country music stars Montgomery Gentry, Lee Greenwood, and Colin Raye, the benefit concert was organized by the Freedom Alliance and radio and television commentator Sean Hannity to provide college scholarships for the children of soldiers slain in combat. Several thousand Dallas area residents filled NOKIA Theatre to thank our troops and their families.

This month I also received the results of a study I requested to assess the health care needs of our veterans living in the Rio Grande Valley. Currently South Texas veterans are forced to endure 500 mile, ten-hour roundtrip treks to the San Antonio VA hospital for even basic procedures and routine check-ups. This is simply unacceptable. The study calls for an expanded, 158,000-square foot VA facility specializing in services like cancer treatment and outpatient surgery that will eliminate 95 percent of the arduous trips to San Antonio. Last week, local leaders joined me in Harlingen to welcome the results of this study, and I will continue to work with my colleagues in Congress to secure funding to build this vital center.

Throughout my travels, I was proud to see Texans supporting the troops. Our current conflict in the Middle East has challenged our nation's fortitude, but I am always touched by your pride and patriotism. While some of my colleagues in Congress would like to ignore the threat of radical Islam, Texans know the high stakes of the Global War on Terror. If we walk away from our commitments in Iraq and Afghanistan, the terrorists will not be appeased—they will follow us home. Many of our friends and loved ones are serving bravely in our armed forces, and some have made the ultimate sacrifice in the defense of liberty. As I have said on the Senate, and as you have expressed to me time and time again, we cannot allow their efforts to have been in vain.

I am always inspired to meet the service members and veterans who give of themselves to preserve our nation's bedrock principles and most cherished ideals. When given the chance, I urge you to give these brave Americans your deepest thanks. They are true heroes, deserving of our highest respect and steadfast support.

Graham was city's 'one of a kind hero'

Clarendon has lost a one of a kind hero. I read the obituary for Mutt Graham knowing it was going to be one that could in no way tell what a great guy he really was. Don't get me wrong, it was good, but there was not enough room on the page to tell what a great person Mutt actually was.

Although my time with him was pretty much with the ambulance service, it was enough to realize what a dedicated man he was. It didn't matter whether it was freezing cold and snowing or hotter than a pistol, Mutt was always there.

Mutt wasn't even an EMT. He was just a nice guy who bailed out the service and drove the ambulance when needed. That used to be a regular thing. The best part about him was the way he would smile whenever you were around him. He never got caught up in the politics; he just did his job and kept smiling.

I remember picking him up one time in the ambulance when he had some kind of illness and the way he apologized for "putting us out," as he called it. In fact I think he was smiling then as well.

To his family who sacrificed while he was away caring for the people of Donley County, I want to say thank you and tell you that he was greatly appreciated. He was a great guy and will be surely missed.

Thanks again, Mutt, for all you've done.

Hospital district to add beds to MCNH

The Donley County Hospital Board is taking bids to expand the Medical Center Nursing Home in a project they hope to have completed by next February.

MCNH officials say the expansion will add four semi-private rooms and a shower room to the facility's west wing. The district's architect has estimated that the project will cost between $250,000 and $300,000.

The hospital district will pay for part of the project with money it has on hand and will borrow the rest. The eight new beds should pay for construction and generate more revenue for the nursing home.

A walk-through for potential bidders will be held on September 7, and a pre-bid conference will be held on September 11. The district will award a contract later that month, and construction is expected to take about four months.

A groundbreaking for the project will take place in October.

MCNH officials also say that work will begin next week on replacing the facility's roof. That job is expected to take two to four weeks.

In other hospital district news, the board met in regular session August 21, and Administrator Vicky Robertson reported a nursing home census of 52 residents and said the ambulance service had received 78 calls in July.

Robertson also said the nursing home had completed its annual survey with only two deficiencies from the health team in the dietary department and three minor deficiencies in the life safety code.

A second architect's payment in the amount of $20,080.02 was reported as being due as was a legal bill from the Underwood Law firm in the amount of $2,168.32.

Holly Eads reported two applications for indigent care from Northwest Texas Hospital had been received, processed and approved. One of those clients will likely qualify for SSI at some point. NWTH has also notified the district of another potential client. One bill has been received from NWTH for $2,334.37. One current client has returned to work and is no longer eligible for benefits. Indigent care expenses for the month were $615.06.

The board discussed and approved personnel policy changes.

A bid for tax delinquent property in Howardwick was accepted as presented by the Donley Appraisal District.

The board met in closed session for 28 minutes regarding the possible sale or lease of the nursing home. No action was taken after the closed session.

Clarendon Church of Christ It's Getting Hot

This time of the year in the Panhandle, the heat is legendary. Keeping cool is a priority, especially for the elderly among us. We are to remember our pets and to check on our neighbors when the heat climbs. There is something else that needs to be checked, and that is our apparel. What clothing do we wear (or not wear) during this hot time of the year? Does heat or any reason allow us, in God's eyes, to go about partially unclothed or almost naked?

In Gen. 3:7, Adam and Eve realize they are naked after eating the forbidden fruit. They sew fig leaves together and made themselves coverings or "loincloths." Verse 8, they hear God walking in the Garden and hide themselves. Why? Verse 9 tells us that God calls out to them and in verse 10, Adam answers God by saying, "I heard thy sound of you in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked and I hid myself." Wait a minute! I thought they had made some clothing, not much but some. Many places in the Bible, the word "naked" can mean: totally nude, poorly clad, or without an outer garment (Gen. 3:7, 3:10; Job 22:16; 1 Cor. 4:11; John 21:7).

We understand a few things from our passages from Gen. 3: 1. They were at one point completely nude. 2. They made coverings for their loins from fig leaves, yet, still referred to themselves as being naked. 3. God, from animal skins, made them coverings. Some translations say coats or tunics. The point is, just covering one's bottom is not to be considered properly clothed. Obviously God's new clothes also covered one's breast also. Logic dictates that God doesn't approve of the public wearing of clothing that just covers our bottoms and breasts, such as bikinis, plunging necklines on upper garments that expose the breast, slits on garments that expose flesh up to the rear, short shorts, etc. If God saw fit to dress Adam and Eve appropriately, shouldn't we dress the same? New book keeps alive the spirit of old Tascosa

In the late 1880s and early 1900s, Tascosa, Texas, was a boom town dominated by big cattle ranchers and bigger-than-life outlaws. Today, one has to look hard to find any trace of the cow town.

But its history is alive and well in a new book, Tascosa: Its Life and Gaudy Times, by Frederick Nolan. In the book, published by Texas Tech University Press, Nolan turns his exhaustive historical research into a readable story of one of the most colorful and violent towns of the Old West.

"Tascosa in its own way is the perfect paradigm of the Old West; yet only one book, published in 1946, has been written about it," said Nolan, an authority on Billy the Kid and the American West. "It sprang up out of the prairie about 1876 and disappeared around 1915. I wanted to give the people who lived and fought and died there the love song nobody had ever written for them. It's a fabulous story, and I'm proud to have had the chance to tell it."

Nolan traces the history of Tascosa, which was located just northwest of present-day Amarillo, from its rise in the vast, virtually uninhabited Texas Panhandle, to sleepy cow town, to booming cowboy capital of the Texas Panhandle, to ghost town.

The stories of Billy the Kid and Pat Garrett are here, as is the war between the big cattle companies and the rustlers. There are dozens of pictures of key players and locations, including from the author's collection, a copy of what is believed to be the only authentic picture of Billy the Kid. The book closes with the death of Elizabeth "Frenchy" McCormick, legendary saloon-girl and the last resident of Tascosa in 1941.

It is Billy the Kid's connection to Tascosa that first drew Nolan to the project. Nolan, born and raised in England, became enamored of the outlaw as a kid reading Walter Noble Burns' "Saga of Billy the Kid."

In his mid-20s he discovered in the archives of the British Foreign Office a substantial file of original correspondence between the British and American governments regarding the murder of John H. Tunstall. Tunstall was a British citizen who found his way to Lincoln, New Mexico, in the 1800s. He hired Billy the Kid to help him settle a vicious business war with a rival. That discovery produced the book The Life and Death of John Henry Tunstall. Nolan later went on to write The Lincoln County War: A Documentary History, followed by Bad Blood: The Life and Times of the Horrell Brothers, The West of Billy the Kid, and an annotated edition of Pat F. Garrett's The Authentic Life of Billy the Kid.

'First Ladies' looks at 36 presidents' wives

For readers fascinated by lives of U.S. Presidents' wives, but do not have time to read their complete biographies, Burton Memorial Library offers two copies, one in large print, of First Ladies' portraits from Martha Washington to Nancy Reagan. Surprising facts and unexpected events supply background, marriage, ambitions, and accomplishments, or non-accomplishments, of these remarkably diverse women.

In her book, First Ladies, author Betty Boyd Caroli relates "an intimate look at how 36 women handle what may be the most demanding, unpaid, unelected job in America." She conveys the story of "evolution of the First Lady's role from ceremonial backdrop of substantive world figure."

As Martha Washington stepped ashore in Manhattan that May morning in 1789 with her husband, uncertainty still surrounded the new government's activity. The ritual, ceremonial aspects of the presidency, marked the presidential spouse's first public role.

George was the one who hired the household staff and selected guest lists for social functions. Martha, content to play the hostess role, was never requested to do more. However, she resolved to return visits within three days, of women who left calling cards, a required custom of gracious ladies. Her characteristic of meekness never allowed involvement in political debates of the day.

Martha's successor, Abigail Adams, with sharp tongue and strong views, was quite opposite. Accused of playing politics, she stepped beyond proper bounds for women. Her husband, John, discussed many important problems with her. When those who favored opinionated women desired the President's approval, they occasionally went to his wife first.

Even though a few of the First Ladies were outspoken through the early nineteenth century, most lived a domestic role. Some of them made themselves almost invisible in Washington, pleading poor health and often sending substitutes to preside over social gatherings. But not lovely, popular Washington hostess, Molly Madison, who exerted an unusual influence. During her husband's two terms, she demonstrated "an uncanny ability to use social occasions to his political advantage."

She helped the widowed Thomas Jefferson entertain during his Presidential term and, unofficially, tutored young White House hostesses. Incidentally, during a White House social function, she introduced ice cream in America, aren't we glad?

Around 1861, Mary Lincoln, Sarah Polk, and Julia Grant instigated a turning point when they willingly obliged reporters and photographers with information and pictures.

During twentieth century beginning, evidence revealed gradual change in the First Lady's job. Separate staffs were hired; participation in public policy and reform movements began.

After Woodrow Wilson's stroke during his 1915-1921 administration, his wife, Edith, controlled flow of communication between him and everyone else. She was criticized for exercising a "petticoat government". Eleanor Roosevelt and Bess Truman were named among the most powerful people in Washington. Until well into the twentieth century, women's campaigning was considered inappropriate, but Rosalyn Carter went off on her own in a quest for Jimmy's votes fourteen months before the 1976 nomination.

Early First Lady hairstyles never made the "Colonial Gazette". However, some readers might remember the dominant influence of Mamie Eisenhower's "bangs" in beauty salons during Ike's administration during the 1950's.

According to author, John Kennedy recognized what a great asset his internationally popular wife, Jackie, could be. "Ideas for promoting her glamour and sophistication as part of the administration's glitter originated with the President himself".

Each wife, several superior to their husbands socially and economically, left her own mark. In 1986, Nancy Reagan was credited with elevating the First Lady's job to "Associate Presidency".

While appearing before U.S. Congress at the 1985 Geneva Summit Conference, President Ronald Reagan acclaimed Nancy's prestigious position, and thanked her for being "an outstanding ambassador of good will for us all."

Which First Lady broke precedent by inviting noticeably pregnant women to stand with her in receiving lines? Who engineered her husband's run for the presidency despite his own reluctance? Whose prominence resulted in cartoons calling for her impeachment? Whose prayed her husband would lose the election? Unexpected answers to these and other interesting questions are in the book. Extension offers 15 tips for new college students

By MaryRuth Bishop, County Agent

Going to college is an awesome experience, but a few money tips can help college students as well as those in the community to get more for their money. Experts agree that careful planning and wise spending can stretch the bucks.

1. Budget your money to last. Know what you can spend and know when you've spent too much. It may sound difficult but it is not impossible.

Keep records of what you spend and compare your spending to what you planned to spend. Keep your checkbook balanced so you don't go overboard. Remember to set a little money aside for emergencies.

2. Be price sensitive. Comparison shop to save money. Know the community and what it has to offer. Check Consumer Reports or other online versions for comparisons and recommendations.

3. Use a debit card or check card instead of credit card to keep you from overspending. But don't forget to write down what you spend in your check register or online system.

4. If you have subscribed to a full or partial meal plan at school, use it! Don't leave money on the table by not using what you've paid for. The average cost per meal on your meal plan is likely to be less than what you would spend "eating out." But only if you use it.

5. Be careful about how much money you spend eating out. Remember that regular tap water with ice and lemon/lime to accompany your meal and you will save a lot of money in the long-run.

6. Beware of "sales". There is no savings if you buy things you would not have purchased unless on sale!

7. Watch cell phone use. Do you really know what your plan is costing? Text-messaging can increase your costs, so be sure to select a plan that meets your needs and budget. If you are having regular phone service connected, remember that it is not required for you to sign up for long-distance service. You could use a phone card instead. Comparison shop for the lowest per-minute card cost.

8. Staying connected. In college being connected is important. Make sure you are getting the best deal for your money. Watch for hidden fees and sign-ups.

9. Buy used text books if you can. Sell them at the end of the semester unless you are building a professional library. Remember you can find most information online if you are researching for work.

10. Get information from your financial aid office even if you do not have a student loan. The offices usually stock information on budgeting, economizing, and managing credit.

11. Pay your credit card in full every month. Don't charge everything. Set rules for yourself. People who use their credit card for "everything" tend to spend more money and often it is money that they do not have.

12. Be wary of credit card solicitations. You only need one credit card. Some will give you gifts or other premiums. Too much open credit damages your credit history. Comparison shop for a credit card if you don't presently have one. They are not all the same. Look for a low APR, no annual fees and low/no extra fees and charges. Pay special attention to how your interest rate will charge if you are late in making a payment. Pay credit card bills on time in order the avoid late fees - paying online may speed up payments.

13. Avoid identity fraud by being careful with your personal financial records and numbers. Avoid losing your personal belongings. Keep vital information away from prying eyes. Get a free copy of your credit report at the official website, www.annualcreditreport.com. Beware of imposter websites when requesting a copy of your credit report.

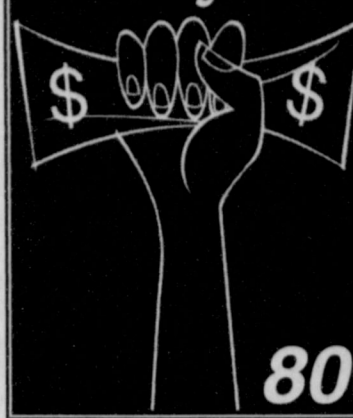

14. Avoid wracking up extra costs needlessly. Library late fines cost money. Traffic violations and parking tickets cost money, too, and damage your record. Remember that hourly and daily fees to park in some convenient campus facilities cost much more than contracting parking. Plan for extra time to save on parking.

15. Weigh the costs and benefits of employment while you are going to school. Working more hours may provide more money but can increase the number of years and the cost of going to school. On the other hand, working can provide you with valuable experience related to your interests, major, or future profession.

Aldermen meet with sheriff regarding contract

Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn offered "no excuses" and "no promises" when Clarendon Aldermen quizzed him about the performance of his office during a budget workshop last Tuesday night.

The city pays the sheriff's department $130,000 per year for police protection and ordinance enforcement, and aldermen have expressed concern that the department has not been doing enough to control traffic on US 287 through Clarendon.

But Blackburn noted that his office has worked some big cases and made 310 arrests in the 13-month period from July 2006 through July 2007.

"We're not sitting over there doing nothing," Blackburn said.

The sheriff reminded the board that his office was busy for five days 24 hours per day when a young boy drowned earlier this year and said that he is still dealing with issues in that case. He also said forgeries and sexual assaults take up a lot of time.

"I think working a sex offense is more important to this town than writing a ticket," the sheriff said.

Blackburn presented an arrest tally for the last 13 months showing seven arrests under the charge of sexual assault of a child. Also among those 310 total arrests were 42 thefts, 14 vandalism charges, 16 possession of marijuana charges, 30 burglaries, two attempted sexual assaults, 11 assaults on a family member, and 29 driving while intoxicated charges.

Aldermen pressured Blackburn on traffic enforcement with Alderman Janice Knorpp expressing concern for people's safety.

"I am scared to death that someone is going to get on Hwy. 287 and get killed," she said.

Blackburn acknowledged that ticket numbers were up earlier in the year when then Deputy Tony Sellers was writing citations. Sellers was later off the job for a time with an injury and then was appointed to the position of constable. Deputy Anthony Albas now works traffic.

"Since March, he's done nine (in the city)," Knorpp said. "That's not acceptable."

Aldermen also asked the sheriff about cracking down on drug dealers. Blackburn said there is no quick fix. He said his officers are watching known drug dealers and that it takes time to be able to indict someone.

"We're doing our best and will do our best," the sheriff said.

Alderman Ann Huey inquired about known sex offenders who take their children to school and pick them up from school. Blackburn said he thinks there is a stipulation in the couple's probation that they can do that but said he would double-check that.

Blackburn concluded by saying the county wanted him to ask the city for an additional $10,000 this year and that he would put his department up against any other in the country.

"I know some of this has got y'all ill," Blackburn said. "I think we need to get together and work it out. I'm not going to make fake promises. I can't stand a cut."

The board took no action last week and was scheduled to discuss the budget again at its regular meeting August 28.

Broncos scrimmage two powerhouses

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos took on powerhouse Nazareth and San Jacinto in a double scrimmage at home Thursday.

According to head coach Gary Jack, the Broncos made a great showing and not only competed with the other teams, but dominated them at times.

"We were very strong against San Jacinto the entire time," Jack said. "We dominated Nazareth for most of the scrimmage until the end. We played back to back and were tired at the end while Nazareth had a break. Even though, we played great. It was a really good scrimmage."

The Bronco frontline has taken control of the tempo in the scrimmages and are expected to continue that level of play.

"Our big guys up front did well," Jack said. "A team like Nazareth is always good, and we stepped up our level of play. We're also working hard at conditioning so that we can get up to game-playing conditioning."

The junior varsity scrimmaged as well with favorable results.

"The JV did very well," Jack said. "We were very pleased with what we saw from the younger guys."

Jack said the injuries from the scrimmages were limited to bumps and bruises but nothing serious.

The Broncos will travel to Boys Ranch August 31 beginning at 7:30 p.m.

"Boys Ranch has a brand new field, and it will be fun to play there," Jack said. "They are bigger up front than us. They have five players at 250 plus. But we feel like we'll match up pretty good against them. It will be a competitive game for us."

The JV and junior high will have their first game September 6 at home against Memphis beginning at 5:00 p.m.

Survival Has Increased with Better Breast Cancer Drugs

According to the American Cancer Society, breast cancer is the second most common cancer among women. More than 175,000 new cases of invasive breast cancer are predicted to occur in 2007. The good news, however, is that the Society now reports that the death rate from breast cancer continues to decline. Health experts believe this decline can be attributed to earlier detection through screening and increased awareness, as well as the use of better drugs to treat this type of cancer.

A recent study of breast cancer treatment conducted by cancer specialists at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver evaluated women in 4 different groups. Survival was significantly longer in women who were treated either from 1997 to 1998 or from 1999 to 2001. The research group reported that the improvement in survival appeared to be caused by newer, more effective drugs. Some of the newest cancer drugs include Abraxane, Arimidex, Faslodex, Femara, Herceptin, Nolvadex, Tykerb, Xeloda, and Zoladex.

Expert: Security freeze can help chill identity theft

COLLEGE STATION – Beginning Sept. 1, Texans will have another layer of protection for their personal identities, said a Texas Cooperative Extension expert.

As of that date, all residents of the Lone Star State will be able to request a security freeze on their credit reports, said Dr. Joyce Cavanagh, Extension family economics specialist. Until that date, only victims of identity theft can request that protection.

A security freeze on your personal credit report prevents creditors from accessing your information as long as the freeze is in effect, she said.

"If (identity thieves) have your name and Social Security number, and you have a security freeze on your account, they will be unable to open any accounts in your name," Cavanagh said.

Establishing a security freeze on personal information takes a little time and money, but could be worth the effort, she said.

According to Consumers Union, as of Sept. 1, "Any consumer in Texas may request a security freeze in writing by certified mail to the credit reporting agency."

The certified letter should contain: name (including middle initial and any designation such as Sr., Jr. or III), address, Social Security number, date of birth, residential addresses for the past five years, proof of current address (such as a utility or phone bill), photocopy of a government-issued identification card such as driver's license or military identification.

A $10 fee payable to each of the credit reporting bureaus – for a total of $30 – is payable by check, money order or credit card.

The fee is waived for victims of identity theft, who should also enclose a copy of a report of the incident.

The addresses of the three credit reporting bureaus are: Equifax Security Freeze: P.O. Box 105788, Atlanta, Ga. 30348; Experian Security Freeze: P.O. Box 9554, Allen, Texas 75013; Trans Union Security Freeze: P.O. Box 6790, Fullerton, Calif. 92834-6790.

"The freeze takes effect five business days from when the credit bureau receives your request," Cavanagh said.

"Within 10 days you will get a confirmation letter with an identification number or password. Keep this safe where you know where it is. In order to have the security freeze lifted, you need to know your identification number or password."

The request needs to be sent to each of the three bureaus, she said, not just to one of them. That means a total of $30 and three letters.

While the freeze is in effect, your credit report "can still be released to your existing creditors or to collection agencies acting on their own behalf," according to Consumers Union. But any new creditors will "only get a message or code indicating that the file is frozen."

If you want to open a new account, you can elect to lift the freeze for one specific creditor at a cost of $12; lifting a freeze for all creditors costs $10 at each agency, Cavanagh said.

Lifting a security freeze takes three business days from when the credit reporting agency receives your request.

A security freeze has no time limit, she said. It will remain in effect until you choose to remove it.

"The best way to prevent identification theft is to safeguard your personal information," Cavanagh said, and a security freeze is one way to do that.

"If you suspect an account has been tampered with, close that account, report unauthorized charges and review your credit report on a regular basis," she said.

Further, the Commission will only grant a hearing on issues raised by you or others during the public comment period and not withdrawn.

A person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the facility is entitled to request a hearing. Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works:
 Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

CC welcomes several new employees

Clarendon College has several new faces on its faculty, staff, and administration as the fall semester gets underway this week.

Some employees are new to CC, and others have been with the college but are in new positions.

Doug Kidd of Clarendon is CC's new Motor Pool Specialist. He is married to Nancy Kidd, who also works at CC; and the couple has three children - Aaron, 24, Ashlee, 22, and Anndria, 19 - and one grandson, Benjamin.

Wendy Altman of Memphis joins the staff as CC's Enrollment Services Counselor.

Andy McLatchy of Pampa will be teaching government and history. He's married to Elizabeth, and they have one son, Scott, who is three years old. McLatchy graduated from Tarleton State University with his master's in history in 2005.

Joyce Davis has returned to CC and taken the position of Bookstore Manager.

Wendy Pachas of Pampa is the new Enrollment Services Counselor for the CC - Pampa Center. She graduated from Pennsylvania State University with a degree in Agribusiness Management in 2005 and hopes to increase Pampa enrollment.

Rusty Kennedy has returned to Clarendon College to coach the Lady Bulldogs basketball team.

Kaylann DaNae Titus of Clarendon is the assistant women's basketball coach and will also be a dorm director. She graduated from McMurry University with a BS in Exercise and Sports Studies in 2007. Her goal for this upcoming year is to win basketball games and to help CC's students become successful in all their endeavors.

Sheila Moore is a new custodian for CC.

Candra McKee has taken the positions of softball coach and Student Life Coordinator.

Former Dean of Instruction Tex Buckhaults is now the Acting Dean of Students.

Some of the new and familiar faces who are working at Clarendon College this year as the fall semester gets underway are Raymond Jaramillo, Wendy Altman, Doug Kidd, Joyce Davis, Rusty Kennedy, Whitney Halsell, Candra McKee, Michael McLatchy, Kaylann Titus, Dr. Debra Kuhl, Tex Buckhaults, Wendy Pachas, Steven Williams, Dr. Bill Auvenshine, Linda Rowland, and Sheila Moore.

Steven Williams of Amarillo will be teaching English composition and literature. He's married to Catherine, and they have one daughter, Faye, who is eight months old, and another baby is on the way. Williams holds degrees from Amarillo College and Stephen F. Austin State University. He previously taught at Borger High School and hopes to help non-traditional students realize they can make it at the college level.

Former Hedley teacher Linda Rowland of Howardwick will be teaching math at CC this year. She's married to Mike and has three kids, Brad Mills, 27; Lisle Rowland, 22; and Treva Rowland, 21. She graduated from West Texas A&M University with a master's in curriculum and educational strategies with a focus in mathematics in 2007. She's been teaching for 18 years and hopes to help students to love math as much as she does and to bring more high school students in to the college math program.

Raymond Jaramillo returned to CC earlier this year as Dean of Administrative Services and last week added Director of the CC - Pampa Center to his title.
