Early deadlines set for next week's Enterprise

Due to the July Fourth celebration, early deadlines have been set for next week's ENTERPRISE.

All news, ads, and classifieds must be in the office by noon this Friday, June 29, in order to be printed next week. Items submitted after this deadline will not be printed until the July 12 issue.

The Enterprise will be closed July 3 and 4 as our staff enjoys the Saints' Roost Celebration. Regular office hours will resume July 5, and regular deadlines will resume at that time also.

County will dedicate courthouse marker

Donley County officials have announced they will formally dedicate the state historical marker for the County Courthouse this Friday at 9:30 a.m.

The Courthouse opened for business in 1891 and was the subject of a $4.2 million restoration in 2003. It is the oldest functioning courthouse in the Texas Panhandle.

Handbell choir sets up fund to help Archuleta

A fund has been established by the First United Methodist Church Choir at Donley County State Bank for Pat Archelleta to help defray expenses while she undergoes treatment at MD Anderson.

The United Methodist Church Handbell Choir will also be holding a bake sale during the Sunday school hour on July 1.

Bugbee art added to permanent gallery

Art inspired by the JA Ranch from the vast Bugbee collection now adorns his permanent gallery in the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

Growing up in Massachusetts, Harlold Bugbee wanted to be a cowboy so he came to Texas and earned his way on a ranch. He was often found sketching at the JA and even illustrated a biography of Charles Goodnight with his ranch

Many of Bugbee's paintings graced the walls of the ranch house, and Jack Ritchie commissioned paintings from him.

Bugbee lived most of his adult life in Clarendon.

The Reaugh Gallery is also experiencing a change and will now feature the paintings of natural wonders by the Dean of Texas Painters, Frank Reaugh.

Places like Old Faithful in Yellowstone National Park, Pike's Peak, the Grand Canyon, Enchanted Mesa, and even the Palo Duro Canyon are depicted as Reaugh saw them in his travels in the 1890s.

Economic ties bind America's Interests to EU

The rise of anti-Americanism in Europe is a danger to both American and European pocketbooks, and our collective liberty. Here is why: Europe and America are each other's biggest trading and investment partners, and anything that damages that relationship is harmful to everyone involved.

This past year more than one trillion dollars flowed between the U.S. and the EU. The EU now accounts for 21 percent of U.S. merchandise exports and 19 percent of U.S. merchandise imports, and about 34 percent of U.S. services exports and 37 percent of U.S. services imports.

The U.S. is not only the largest recipient of foreign direct investment, but far and away the world's largest investor elsewhere. Of the more than two trillion dollars the U.S. has invested directly abroad, a little more than half ($1.1 trillion) is invested in Europe. Europeans account for 70 percent ($1.2 trillion) of the direct investment in the U.S.

The bottom line is that the U.S. and Europe are economically joined at the hip, and any actions which damage trade and investment between these two economic giants hurt everyone. The U.S. and EU have a combined population of about 650 million people, and their combined GDP equals 57 percent of the world's

The U.S. has also provided a security umbrella over Europe for almost 65 years. Europe has adopted much of American culture - from movies and music to fast food and dress, and increasingly the English language (the American version). Even France has about a thousand McDonald's restaurants. Given the growing economic and cultural ties, why the rise in anti-Americanism (despite the hopeful signs coming from Sarkozy's election)?

Some Europeans will argue that it is only anti-Bush-ism - in that they dislike the Bush foreign policy and his personal style. And it is generally true that Europeans dislike Bush more than they dislike Americans. But there is more to it. Europe by and large was pro-American when Europe was growing faster than the U.S., and the U.S. was protecting them from the Soviet menace. But over the last two decades, the major European economies have grown more slowly than the U.S., and the Soviet threat has disappeared.

The increasingly globalized world where the U.S. appears to be more aggressive and economically competitive causes fear and resentment. The U.S. success and dominance highlights the weaknesses of the European welfare state. Only the U.S. morass in Iraq and the relatively low level of the dollar (which most likely will soon be reversed) has given the Europeans

If the anti-Americanism were confined to verbal However, it is now leading to destructive policies. The Europeans have been more reluctant to further liberalize global trade than the Americans and, in fact, destructive protectionist forces on both sides of the Atlantic are gathering strength.

Some of the European nations have been concerned about capital out-flows (brought on by their own excessive taxation and regulation), and demanded that other countries help them enforce their tax laws (e.g., the EU Tax Saving Directive). Recently, some of the new Democratic leaders in the U.S. Congress have proposed equally destructive proposals to prevent U.S. monies from flowing into lower tax jurisdictions some of which are in Europe (e.g., Senators Dorgan's and Levin's bills to penalize certain capital outflows).

When members of Congress and others whine about U.S. companies moving abroad, they have no one to blame but themselves, because they have made it uncompetitive for some companies to come to or stay in the U.S. The U.S. used to have one of the lowest corporate tax rates in the world but now it is at the top of the list. The EU has an average maximum corporate income tax rate of 25 percent (with some EU members as low as 10 percent) versus 40 percent in the U.S. Even France and Germany now have lower corporate tax rates than the U.S. The Europeans correctly rely more on consumption taxes (the VAT), which are rebated on exports. There is no rebate for corporate income taxes, putting U.S. firms at a disad-

The EU has brought anti-trust actions against some U.S. multinationals, not because these companies' activities hurt EU consumers, but because they hurt their EU competitors. The EU has also challenged the protection of intellectual property held by some U.S. companies. The EU has attacked the U.S. for not doing enough about climate change, even though EU members have not met the goals of agreements they signed, such as the Kyoto Protocol.

Economic warfare between the EU and U.S. can be averted if officials on both sides will act more responsibly. Many tax disputes would disappear if the U.S. would move to a territorial tax system (like most European nations have) and to a consumption-based tax system, such as a national sales tax, rather than an income tax - which would have the significant side benefit of increasing economic growth in the U.S. The EU needs to move more aggressively towards trade liberalization and deregulation - which would greatly increase economic growth in the EU. The solution to much, but not all, of the tension between the EU and U.S. is to create more economic opportunity on both sides of the Atlantic - but particularly in Europe

Seeking immigration reform that works

By US Sen. John Cornyn

Americans are increasingly frustrated with their federal government and with good reason. Washington has repeatedly demonstrated an inability to fulfill its most basic responsibilities, such as enforcing our laws.

Now late June, Congress is once again attempting to overhaul our battered immigration system. Repair is long overdue. But because of past performance, critics justifiably are asking: Will any new system be enforceable and restore respect for our laws? Or will it be unenforceable and lead to even more illegality in the future?

This is not a minor matter. America has been history's most successful democracy precisely because it is a nation of laws. But we now have a situation in which some laws are routinely ignored. If we approve yet another law that promises reform, yet again fails to deliver on its promises, our precious heritage will be in serious jeopardy.

Recent experience is not reassuring. In 1986, we approved an amnesty for an estimated three million people here illegally, but promised that we would enforce the law in the future. That promise was never honored. Unsurprisingly, we now have at least 12 million here illegally. Millions more are waiting to see how we handle it

Even after 9/11, our record of border enforcement has been sadly lacking. For example, in 2004, demanding better control of our border, Congress approved a Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative that required a U.S. passport starting this spring for anyone visiting Canada, the Caribbean, Bermuda, Mexico, and other parts of Latin

The State and Homeland Security departments had three full years to prepare for an easily foreseeable flood of new passport applications. However, planning and staffing for the new law was woefully inadequate, leading to chaos and confusion. As a result, the new rules were suspended earlier this month.

This has left many people wondering: If the federal government cannot even handle routine passport applications for U.S. citizens, how can it possibly do thorough background checks and issue visas for millions of foreign-born applicants?

An oversight report last year declared that the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) already is overworked and stretched to its breaking point. Under the immigration reform bill being debated, that USCIS workload would be tripled - without any significant increase in

For example, the proposed immigration reform bill gives the USCIS all of 24 hours to review every application for a probationary "Z" visa. If 12 million apply as expected, that means USCIS would have to process an average of 48,000 applications

But the USCIS is being set up for failure. It has only 3,000 staffers to process and review applications, including background checks. The current legislation would add only 100 new adjudicators each year for five years. Law enforcement personnel assure me that there is no way a reliable background check could be conducted within 24 hours even if sufficient personnel were available.

Other aspects are equally troubling. The current Senate legislation must learn from the 1986 bill's mistakes, instead of duplicating its errors.

As I talk with Texans through our state, I find them profoundly skeptical about our national commitment to our legacy as a nation of laws. The federal government in recent years has proven that it is not serious about securing our borders and enforcing our laws. Passing yet another law that cannot be enforced will merely add to our broad disillusionment.

common sense solution to our dysfunctional immigration system. I regret that a closed internal process this time has debate and amend the current bill. Even a rational immigration policy, one that restores integrity and respect for our laws.

I have worked for years to find a prevented several of my ideas from being considered and has stopped the U.S. Senate from having a full and fair opportunity to so, I will continue to do my best to pursue

"...THEY COULD JUST ENFORCE EXISTING IMMIGRATION LAWS, BUT I GUESS THAT'S ONE OF THOSE JOBS AMERICANS DON'T WANT TO DO!...

Congress misses opportunity on energy

High energy costs have a tremendously adverse impact on our economy and our daily lives. Studies have shown that each time oil prices rise by 10 percent, the negative effect on our national economy results in the loss of 150,000 American jobs. In addition, the U.S. Department of Energy estimates that by 2030, the United States will consume 28 percent more oil than we do today. Unfortunately, the U.S. Senate recently missed an opportunity to confront our growing dependence on foreign oil by passing an energy bill which does nothing to ease high gas prices or increase our energy supply.

The high cost of foreign oil is the largest single contributor to the record gasoline prices we are experiencing this summer. Over 60 percent of our petroleum comes from overseas - almost all of it from members of the OPEC cartel or third-world nations ruled by dictators who are hostile to America and collude with state sponsors of terrorism. Common sense says that we must control our own energy supply and not leave it to the whims of foreign despots who seek to harm us.

Thankfully, there is a way out of this trap. America is a land of abundant natural resources and immeasurable ingenuity. We must be willing to tap both these assets to increase energy production within our own borders. The Alaskan National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR), for example, could potentially provide 1 million barrels of oil per day - a 20 percent increase over current domestic production - but shortsighted policies have blocked exploration there for decades.

And, even though the Outer Continental Shelf has enough natural gas to heat 100 million homes for 60 years and enough oil to drive 85 million cars for 35 years, the Senate voted down amendments to end a 25-year ban on expanded production there. Some Senators cited environmental concerns, but neglected to mention that ANWR is the size of South Carolina and the area that would be explored is smaller than DFW Airport. In addition, advances in modern technology allow us to explore for the very minimal ecological impact. This bill also energy we need with capitol comment by sen. kay bailey hutchison failed to address a dangerous lack of refining capacity in the United States. A new refinery has not been built in America in 30 years, but our demand for gasoline and petrochemicals continues to rise. As we painfully experienced in the aftermath of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, refinery setbacks can inflate energy prices enormously. The notoriously bureaucratic federal licensing process has dissuaded many companies from building new facilities, yet the Senate voted down an amendment I co-sponsored to remove these regulatory roadblocks.

Rather than encourage domestic energy production, some Senators attempted to amend the energy bill with provisions that would have burdened our oil and gas industry with approximately $29 billion in new taxes. The last thing we should be doing is discouraging domestic exploration with tax hikes and over regulation. When Congress passed "windfall profits" taxes such as these in 1980, domestic oil production dropped; and oil imports increased by as much as 13 percent. Some of my colleagues are quick to make promises about lowering gas prices by taxing big oil companies. In reality, these taxes would be passed on to consumers in the form of higher prices at the pump. Fortunately, a group of my colleagues and I were able to block this tax hike amendment. The continued failure by Congress to confront our core energy challenges will hurt America's families and jeopardize our national security. With our oil imports in the hands of foreign rulers and our domestic industry undercut by misguided policies, it is likely that energy costs will continue to rise. It is time to get serious about energy. Unfortunately, with the passage of this energy bill, the Senate has squandered an opportunity to do so.

FSA committee still seeking nominations

Donley County FSA Committee nominations are underway and will continue through August 1.

The election of responsible agricultural producers to FSA county committees is important to farmers and ranchers with large or small operations. It is crucial that every eligible producer take part in this election because county committees are a direct link between the farm community and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Committee members are a critical component of the day-to-day operations of FSA. They help deliver FSA programs at the local level. Farmers who serve on committees help decide the kind of programs their counties will offer. Donley County will elect a member from the western side of the county (west of Hwy 70) of this December.

"One of life's greatest treasures is God's blessing of grandchildren." - MB Nelson

While visiting my daughter in a nearby city, her energetic daughter arrived home from work just as I was leaving. After an enthusiastic greeting of hugs, she thrust her left hand forward displaying her engagement ring. So lovely, young, and vibrant, her exuberance promoted not only expectancy of a promising future, but it stirred a special nostalgia for a granddaughter from a grandmother's heart.

During my journey home, imprinted happiness on her face remained in my memory. Thoughts drifted back to hers and four other granddaughters' childhoods. Before too many more years, they would possibly greet me with the same exciting news. This created feasibility of future cherished remembrances. How did the years pass so quickly?

Short-Term Antibiotics for Lyme Disease

New guidelines for treatment of Lyme Disease were published recently by the American Academy of Neurology. Health experts analyzed existing treatment regimens and reported that the standard treatment for this condition continues to be intravenous and oral antibiotics (examples include amoxicillin, cefotaxime, and doxycycline). The antibiotics are highly effective against the bacteria that causes Lyme Disease. The highlight of the new guidelines, however, is that antibiotic treatment beyond two to four weeks may not provide additional benefit to the person withthis condition. Unfortunately, symptoms often continue for some persons.

Lyme disease was first described in Old Lyme, Connecticut in 1975. Classic symptoms of the condition include a skin rash, inflammation of the joints, stiff neck, and flu-like symptoms. It is caused by bacteria called Borrelia burgdorferi, which is transmitted from the bite of blacklegged ticks. Prevention of the infection involves use of insect repellants before going into tall grass or wooded areas and removing ticks immediately when they attach to the skin.

Proposed Facility for Donley County Activity Center

Friends of Donley County have announced their goals and funding progress for the Donley County Activity Center. This will be a multi-purpose center for activities for youth and adult education, civic, church, school, public, and private functions. This could also be used as a disaster relief center.

The facility will cover about 17,000 sq. ft. It will house a multi-purpose kitchen, meeting room for 20 to 30 people, and a 9,000 sq. ft. activity room. The Donley County Extension offices will also be in this building. This office area will generate enough income to pay most of the annual expenses.

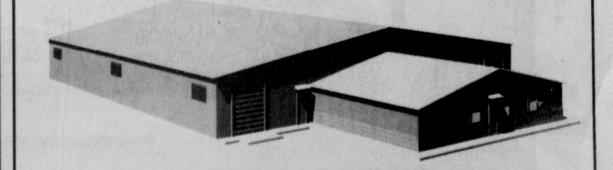

At the present time, the board has about $40,000 in hand, and 4 acres of land on Hwy. 70 North and about $5,000 in other assets. We are applying for multiple grants to help fund this project, but local support and donations will be needed.

The committee plans to honor the donors in the following way.

Bronze $1,000 donation $2,500 donation Silver $5,000 donation Gold Platinum $10,000 donation

The building will be named in honor of the family or individual donating $100,000. All bronze donors and above will be permanently displayed in the facility. Any donations will be appreciated. With the board's 501-C tax status all donations will be tax deductible.

Friends of Donley County Board of Directors: President Larry Gray, Treasurer/ Secretary Lon Adams, Leonard Haynes, Don Hillis, Danny Bennett, Otis Farris, Dan Hall, James Potts, and Robert Tolbert. Send all correspondence to: Larry Gray, P.O. Box 166, Clarendon, TX 79226. If you have any questions, contact Larry Gray at 806-874-2059, Lon Adams at 806-856-5363, or the Donley County Extension Office at 806-874-2141.

To learn about future public meetings (concerning your drinking water), or to request schedule one, please call us.

Where do we get our drinking water? Our drinking water is obtained from SURFACE water sources. It comes from the following Lake/River/Reservoir/Aquifer: GREENBELT RESERVOIR. A Source Water Susceptibility Assessment for your drinking water sources(s) is currently being updated by the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality and will be provided to us this year. The report will describe the susceptibility and types of stituents that may come into contact with your drinking water source based on human activities and natural conditions. The information contained in the assessment will allow us and/or the system(s) from which we receive water to focus on source water protection strategies. For more information on source water assessments and protection efforts at our system, please contact us

ALL drinking water may contain contaminants.

When drinking water meets federal standards purchasing bottled water or point of use devices. Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (1-800-426-4791).

Secondary Constituents

Many constituents (such as calcium, sodium, or iron) which are often found in drinking water, can cause taste, color, and odor problems. The taste and odor constituents are called secondary constituents and are regulated by the State of Texas, not the EPA. These constituents are not causes for health concern. Therefore, secondaries are not required to be reported in this document but they may greatly affect the appearance and taste of your water.

Our Drinking Water Meets or Exceeds All Federal (EPA) Drinking Water Requirements This report is a summary of the quality of the water we provide our customers. The analysis was made by using the data from the most recent U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), required tests and is presented in the attached pages. We hope this information helps you become more knowledgeable about what's in your drinking water.

WATER SOURCES: The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals, and in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. Contaminants that may be present in source water before treatment include: microbes, inorganic contaminants, pesticides, herbicides, radioactive contaminants, and organ chemical contaminants

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle
