The Memphis Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a Citywide Garage Sale on Saturday June 10 in Memphis.

The maps will be distributed from the Chamber office on the west side of the Square beginning at 7:45 a.m. Each garage sale may have their own hours, but it is suggested that they begin at 8 a.m. and continue until 3 or 4 p.m.

Relay for Life teams are invited to have booths on the west side of the Square for their fundraisers.

Services held for longtime Clarendon merchant

Services were held Tuesday for a longtime Clarendon merchant who had called this community his home and supported it his entire life.

John Thomas "Jack" Clifford died here Friday, June 2, 2006. He was 70 years old.

Services were at 10:00 a.m. on June 6, 2006, in the First Baptist Church in Clarendon with Rev. Terry Tamplen of Midland and Rev. Tom Garmon, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Clarendon, officiating. Burial was in Citizens Cemetery, and services were under the direction of Robertson Funeral Directors, Inc.

Mr. Clifford was born January

22, 1935, in Clarendon to Dewey M. and Walter E. Clifford, the second of three boys. He attended Clarendon High School, graduating in 1953, followed by Clarendon College where he met his future wife, Shirley McAbee. They married March 28, 1954, in Hereford. Jack served in the US Army in 1958 and 1959.

Mr. Clifford and his wife returned to Clarendon in 1959 and went into the family grocery business. He continued in the grocery business and pursued other business opportunities in the community until his retirement in 1998.

The Clifford family opened their grocery store in 1914, and Mr. Clifford reflected during a 1998 interview for the ENTERPRISE on the store's relationship with the community and the values he and his family took from the store upon its closing.

"I've appreciated the friendships and the business over the years," Mr. Clifford said. "I've had a good run...."

He said The Grocery Store taught him the value of hard work and was proud that that work ethic had been passed down to his children.

"They learned to work," he said. "You can't say I didn't have any kids who didn't know how to work."

His greatest joy and pride rested with his children and grandchildren.

He was also very proud of his many loyal friends and customers he had acquired during his many years of living and working in Clarendon.

Mr. Clifford was a member of the First Baptist Church in Clarendon; and he valued faith, loyalty, honesty, and integrity above all other traits. He was an avid supporter of Clarendon and thought it is the greatest place in the world to live.

Mr. Clifford was preceded in death by his wife Shirley, his parents, and a brother, Bob Clifford.

Survivors include his daughter, Virginia Ann Patten and husband Briton of Clarendon; two sons, John Walter Clifford of Fort Worth, and Benjamin Paul Clifford of Little Rock, Ark.; two granddaughters, Abigail Michelle Patten and Annie Marie Patten of Clarendon; two grandsons, John Ray Clifford of Lubbock and Robert James Clifford of Dallas; a brother, Fred Clifford and wife Connie of Clarendon and two sisters-in-law, Carol Cary of Leoti, Kan., and Jean Clifford of Quinlan.

The family requests memorials to be to the church of your choice in Clarendon or to Citizens Cemetery Association, PO Box 983, Clarendon, TX 79226 or to the developing Clarendon Girls Softball League, c/o Stan Shelton, 4603 CR 3, Clarendon, TX 79226.

Trash to Treasures deadline is Friday

Residents are lining up as Friday's deadline approaches for the first ever "Trash To Treasures" citywide garage sale slated for next Saturday, June 17.

More than 20 garage sales are already planned in Clarendon and nearby communities, and more are expected to sign up this week.

The CLARENDON ENTERPRISE and A Fine Feathered Nest, Inc., have teamed up to sponsor "Trash To Treasures," and the organizers say they are pleased with the response so far.

"When we started talking about this idea, we said we would be happy if it got 15 participants the first year," ENTERPRISE publisher Roger Estlack said. "We've surpassed that goal and think it will only get bigger in the years to come."

The event has expanded to include the communities of Howardwick, Hedley, and Lelia Lake. The idea of the event is to coordinate the dozens of garage sales held throughout the year, have them on the same day, and try to draw the biggest possible crowds to the sales.

Residents who wish to participate in "Trash To Treasures" should come by the ENTERPRISE before 5 p.m. on this Friday, June 9, to sign up for the promotion.

For just $20, each household will get 50-word advertisement in the Big-E Classifieds and the exclusive "Trash To Treasures" garage sale kit, which includes tips for holding a successful sale, price stickers, and two yard signs.

In addition, the ENTERPRISE will print a map in next week's edition indicating the location of each sale and will promote the citywide garage sale in area newspapers and with local radio ads.

The sponsors of "Trash To Treasures" intend for the event to be something that not only will help residents earn more money at their garage and yard sales but will also bring people from out of town to Clarendon to spend the day visiting local neighborhoods and doing business with local merchants and restaurants.

Local merchants are encouraged to plan special promotions or sidewalk sales to coincide with the event, and advertising space will be made available on the back of the "Trash To Treasures" map. A Fine Feathered Nest's Chriss Clifford has been visiting local merchants to encourage them join in the event.

Again, the deadline for joining the "Trash To Treasures" promotion is this Friday, June 9, at 5 p.m. For more information, call the ENTERPRISE today at 874-2259.

Nanny state makes poor babysitter

By Radley Balko

Recently, the Economist ran a cover story on what the magazine called "soft paternalism." The article focused on the emerging idea among some public policy thinkers that too many Americans make "bad" decisions. Thus, we need government to nudge us in the right direction, be it through sin or vice taxes, public relations campaigns, or in some cases, outright prohibitions.

The New York Times columnist David Brooks recently added to the discussion, noting that today's Republican party has abandoned the allegiance to freedom and liberty it forged in the Goldwater-Reagan era, and instead embraced a kind of moral and order-imposing authoritarianism aimed at providing moral guardrails for an unsteady populace – a trend that Brooks, incidentally, embraces.

It's largely the Republicans who have vamped up the Drug War, and who have regretfully expanded it even into doctor's offices, where drug warriors now decide what courses of treatment are and aren't acceptable. Attorney General Alberto Gonzales recently stated that under his watch, eradicating pornography will be a priority on par with fighting terrorism. And several members of Congress are now pushing to expand FCC regulation to include cable TV, satellite radio, and perhaps even the Internet, all in an effort to protect Americans from bad words and dirty pictures.

Nanny Statism is commonly thought to be the province of the left. And with good reason. The public health movement that has taken on obesity and alcohol and given us seat belt laws and smoking bans has always carried with it whiffs of socialism. But the right is no better. If leftists don't trust Americans to make our own decisions about what we eat, what we drink, or whether or not to smoke tobacco, conservatives don't trust us to make up our own minds about what transpires in our bedrooms, what music we listen to, what television we watch, what we consume from the Internet, and whether or not we should smoke marijuana.

I've discussed before why I think the left's constant cries of looming healthcare catastrophes caused by our bad habits are misguided: We're healthier than we've ever been. Though our bellies may sag a bit over our beltlines, life expectancy is at an all-time high in America, and our two biggest killers – heart disease and cancer – are in swift decline.

But what about those Nanny Statists on the right? Is the "coarsening" of American culture really having all of the ill social effects conservatives say it is? The data overwhelmingly suggests not. Nearly every social indicator is trending in a direction we ought to find comforting.

For example: Teen pregnancy is down. According to the Department of Justice, juvenile crime, crimes against children, the incidence of rape, as well as overall crime, is down.

Divorce is down. Teens are waiting longer to have sex. High school dropout rates are down. Unemployment remains low. Over the past decade, the overall rate of abortion has largely declined.

If Janet Jackson's "wardrobe malfunction," Internet porn, and violent video games are indeed inducing a nationwide slouch toward Gomorrah, it's difficult to discern from those statistics.

What's most intriguing is that all of these trends have been taking place since at least the mid-1990s – a time period during which technology has given us more freedom to indulge in sin and vice than ever before, and an era in which Americans have become markedly less judgmental.

I'm not arguing that all of this so-called trash culture caused the positive trends I pointed out earlier (though some have made that case). Rather, I think it shows that when given maximum personal freedom and abundance of options – even options others seem to believe are "bad" for us – most of us do just fine. We don't need all-knowing politicians and lifestyle cops guiding our hand.

Where large numbers of Americans have historically made bad decisions, those decisions tend to have been influenced by government. The dramatic, 30-year rise in fatherless babies among the poor, for example, corresponded with a social welfare system that inadvertently incentivized single motherhood. The current methamphetamine trend would likely have never happened had Americans had access to safer, more conventional amphetamines.

In 2004, the conservative magazine CITY JOURNAL reported on a series of polls showing that when it comes to issues of vice, personal behavior, and morality, Americans aged 30 and under are more conservative than several prior generations. Yet they're also more tolerant of other lifestyles, less judgmental, and heavy consumers of the pop culture conservative opinion leaders tell us is so corrupting.

If you believe that Americans are incapable of making good decisions for themselves, and that government must consequently police our lives to make sure we're on a firm moral foundation, you'll probably find that dichotomy troubling. For those of us who believe in putting a premium on personal freedom, it's no dichotomy at all. It makes perfect sense.

Radley Balko, policy analyst, specializes in "nanny state" and consumer choice issues, including alcohol and tobacco control, drug prohibition, obesity, and civil liberties.

Compromise clear way to end conflicts

I moved into my own apartment so I could be the Queen of My Castle. I have intruders in my kingdom. Or quendum.

Ants. I was at the kitchen sink one morning washing out my orange juice glass when I saw the trail. It went behind the sink, under the microwave, up the wall, and behind my art project I devised to hide the breaker box. That's when I lost visual.

I squished as many as I could and disoriented the rest. Where did they come from? Where were they going? What were they eating? I don't even have food in the house yet.

Everyday I monitored the situation. I squished and disoriented. I sprayed and powdered. I wiped and cleaned. Everyday the ants came back.

I was mystified. I couldn't figure out how they survived. I was doing my best to destroy them, and I wasn't feeding them. The only food in the house was a collection of condiments in the fridge and some boxes of macaroni in the pantry. But they weren't at all interested in the pantry.

It must have been the art project. I had painted a piece of a broken shelf and hung it with twine on a single screw. The ants had to be living behind it, eating off the masking tape that was holding it together, because a few days ago at about 5:30 in the morning, it fell with a colossal crash to the kitchen floor.

And that's when the ants disappeared. Then another intruder appeared in their place: my obsessive-compulsive boyfriend, Jay.

I admit I invited him over. It was my birthday. We'd just gotten back from a really great weekend at the lake with friends. The next day I was starting my new job. I felt like celebrating and being romantic. So I threw myself a romantic celebration.

I ordered Chinese food and made us a cute little candlelight picnic in the living room floor. I turned on the music and laid out my nice plates, complete with matching linen napkins and tiny bowls for the sweet and sour sauce.

He walks in the front door without knocking. "Aww, how cute," he says. "Isn't it dark in here?" he says and flips on the light, making the romance of my candles obsolete.

"I got your favorite. Sweet and sour chicken and cheese wontons!" I say, about to scoop rice onto his plate. "No!" he says, taking the box to the bar and sitting on a stool. "I'll eat out of the styrofoam. It's the only way to eat take out. Where are the plastic forks?"

I had thrown the plastic forks away with the take-out bags and the yucky duck sauce. Apparently I had thrown my good sense away with it, too.

The romance was ruined, so I directed him to the box in the pantry. He opened the pantry door and proceeded to rearrange everything on the shelves.

"What are you doing?" I asked. "Getting a fork," he said.

"No, you're arranging my pantry. You don't live here. You can't arrange my pantry."

"But it's so disorganized," he said, alphabetically arranging the boxes of Hamburger Helper.

"First you come in, and you wreck my romantic birthday dinner," I said throwing down my fork with a clang, "which I had to throw myself because it wouldn't have occurred to you to be romantic..."

"So I'm not a romantic," he says, putting the extra candles in order by height.

"I know. That's why I did all the work for you. All you had to do was come in and sit down nicely and eat your chicken on my plates with my silverware and take all the credit for being sweet and not touch my macaroni. I don't think that's too much to ask."

"Fine, I'll sit in the floor even though it's stupid," he said, "but I'm not turning off the lights, and I am going to finish this pantry whether you like it or not."

Then we both laughed and ate our rice out of the containers. The dinner ended in a brief egg roll fight (which of course, brought my ants out of hiding) and a quiet, romantic evening watching baseball and cuddling on the couch.

I don't know how to get rid of ants or OCD, but the only way to get rid of conflict is compromise. There is nothing more romantic than just being with someone you love. Candles and metal forks won't make you love each other any more, and plastic ones won't make you love each other any less.

Compromise. I give him baseball, and he gives me John Cusack movies. I give him plastic forks, and he gives me the world's most organized pantry. Compromise. See?

Honor American values this Flag Day

In the summer of 1776, George Washington approached his seamstress, Betsy Ross, with sketches that inspired the creation of the first American flag. Though this flag looked very different from the flag that proudly waves today, the ideals represented both then and now are what America stands for. Wherever our flag flies, it signals to lands far and wide that America remains the cradle of liberty.

Every year on June 14, we observe Flag Day, when Americans everywhere celebrate the history and symbolism of our national flag. On this day in 1777, the Second Continental Congress resolved that our new national flag would have "13 stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." Today, in neighborhoods across the country, Americans proudly pay their respects to Old Glory by hanging flags outside their homes and places of business.

The earliest Flag Day celebration took place in Hartford, Conn., in 1861 during the most divisive time in our history – the Civil War. Even in this time of turmoil, our flag's unifying spirit persevered and reminded citizens that we were one nation under God.

Over the latter half of the 19th century, the celebration of our flag grew in popularity, with mayors and governors issuing proclamations in their jurisdictions commemorating the event. In 1916, President Woodrow Wilson issued the first nationwide proclamation of Flag Day.

Our flag has waved during defining moments of our nation's history. It was at Fort McHenry in 1814, when Francis Scott Key wrote our national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner." It was there at Iwo Jima, when the sight of Old Glory waving atop Mount Suribachi inspired American soldiers fighting in World War II. And it was there on September 11, 2001, when rescue workers rose above the rubble of the World Trade Center and raised our flag as a symbol of our fortitude in the aftermath of tragedy.

The flag that inspired Francis Scott Key still exists to this day. It currently hangs at the Smithsonian National Museum of American History, where a significant restoration effort began in 1998 to save the original flag. It has aged, but it remains a beautiful sight to behold. I am delighted that visitors who come to Washington, D.C., have an opportunity to see one of our country's national treasures, one that has inspired so many over the past several hundred years.

When I see the American flag, I think of the sacrifices made for our country by capitol comment

by sen. kay bailey hutchison

previous generations and by the heroes of today. I think of our troops who have defended freedom across the globe, especially those currently deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan. The flag also stands as a reminder that one of my missions as a United States Senator – and also as a citizen of this nation – is to strive for a more perfect union.

On Flag Day, we celebrate much more than just a piece of cloth. Our flag is a symbol of the values our forefathers fought for and envisioned for our fledgling democracy. The red stripes stand for bravery and honesty, the white stripes for freedom for all, and the blue field for faith and loyalty.

Throughout our history, men and women have defended those values both in war and peace. Whether they were rich or poor, famous or anonymous, strong or weak, young or old, they were all American.

I have to admit, I always get a catch in my throat when the original version of "The Star-Spangled Banner" is played so that I can sing it. I also admit I am always disappointed when someone performs a rendition of our national anthem that seems to feature the voice of the singer – and excludes the people from participating.

This month on Flag Day, I encourage you to fly your flag outside your home in support of our troops and in support of the ideals Americans hold so dear.

Clarendon makes good impression on Follett

My name is Rob Buffa, and I'm the athletic director and head baseball coach for Follett ISD.

I would like to thank the people and businesses of Clarendon for the way we have been treated. The Best Western Red River Inn and Western Skies Motel treated us in a first class manner. Restaurants like the Clarendon Steak House and Sam Hill BBQ fed us and allowed us to stay within our budget. The Lowe's grocery store kept us supplied with ice and always made sure we had everything we needed.

We also want to express a huge thank you to Coach Vanderburg and Clarendon College for hosting three of our playoff series. What a beautiful baseball park you have here, and Coach Vanderburg made us feel right at home and encouraged our players. We also want to thank the great people of your town who constantly stopped and wished us good luck. It was really amazing the way Clarendon adopted us. We hope that our playoff success will lead to our second trip to the state tournament in three years, and not only will we brag on our town but also the Panhandle friendly people of Clarendon.

We know that every chance to stop in your city we will do so. You all epitomize the Panhandle friendly slogan of our area. May God bless all of you.

Flaxseed oil is derived from the seeds of the flax plant. Flaxseed oil is rich in healthful omega-3 and omega-6 fatty acids. Adequate intake of these important fatty acids, especially omega-3 fatty acids, helps to ensure a balanced cholesterol level as well as good cardiovascular health. Thyroid disease affects millions across US

By MaryRuth Bishop, County FCS Agent

Diseases of the thyroid gland are very common, affecting millions of Americans. In fact, 27 million Americans have overactive or underactive thyroid glands, but more than half remain undiagnosed. Of those that are diagnosed, 80 percent are women. The incidence of underactive thyroid increases with age; by age 60, as many as 17 percent of women and nine percent of men have an underactive thyroid.

The thyroid gland is one of the endocrine glands which make hormones to regulate body function. It is a small, butterfly-shaped gland found just below the Adam's apple. The thyroid gland manufactures thyroid hormone, which influences essentially every organ, tissue, and cell in the body. In short, if the thyroid does not work properly, neither do you. If left untreated, thyroid disease may cause elevated cholesterol levels and subsequent heart disease, infertility, muscle weakness, osteoporosis, and, in extreme cases, coma or death, among other things.

The most common diseases are an over- or under-active gland. These conditions are called hyperthyroidism (overactive) and hypothyroidism (underactive). The thyroid's activity level is related to the amount of thyroid hormone it produces. Sometimes the thyroid gland can become enlarged from either hyper- or hypothyroidism. An enlarged thyroid gland is often called a "goiter." Additionally, patients may develop lumps or masses in their thyroid glands, which may appear gradually or very rapidly. A health care professional should evaluate all lumps or masses associated with the thyroid gland.

The following symptoms are commonly associated with hyper- and hypothyroidism:

Common Symptoms of Hyperthyroidism: Heat intolerance, Sweating, Weight loss, Altered appetite, Frequent bowel movements, Changes in vision, Fatigue and muscle weakness, Sleep disturbances, and Tremors.

Common Symptoms of Hypothyroidism: Fatigue, Forgetfulness, Depression, Dry and coarse hair, Mood swings, Weight gain, Hoarse voice, Dry and coarse skin, and Constipation.

While thyroid disorders are fairly easy to diagnose, often signs and symptoms of a thyroid disorder are overlooked because they resemble so many other conditions. Remind your health provider to check your thyroid on your next office visit.

The diagnosis of a thyroid abnormality is made, in part, by taking a medical history and a physical examination. Specifically, your health provider will examine your neck and ask you to lift up your chin to make your thyroid gland more prominent. You may be asked to swallow during the examination, which helps the doctor to feel the thyroid and any mass that may be in it. Other tests your health provider may order include, but are not limited to, an ultrasound examination of your neck and thyroid, blood tests to determine the level of thyroid hormone in the blood, and a radioactive thyroid scan.

If a lump in your thyroid is diagnosed, your health provider may recommend a fine needle aspiration biopsy. This is a safe, relatively painless procedure. This test gives the health provider more information on the nature of the lump in your thyroid gland and specifically will help to differentiate a benign from a malignant thyroid mass.

Abnormalities of thyroid function (hyper- or hypothyroidism) are usually treated with prescription medications. If there is insufficient production of thyroid hormone, you may be directed by your health provider to take a pill to supplement your thyroid hormone production. Hyperthyroidism is treated mostly by medical means, but occasionally it may require the surgical removal of the thyroid gland or inactivation of the gland using radioactive iodine.

PBS features Donley County Courthouse

HOUSTON – The Texas Foundation for the Arts announced last week that the final episode of its three-part series titled The Golden Age of Texas Courthouses – featuring the 1890 Donley County Courthouse – will premiere on KUHT-TV HoustonPBS Ch. 8 on Thursday, June 29 at 7:00 p.m. and will be rebroadcast on Saturday, July 1 at 7:00 p.m.

Produced by Houston-based Texas Foundation for the Arts in association with Sunset Productions, Vol. 3 of The Golden Age of Texas Courthouses continues its cinematic journey into the history of Texas' restored Victorian era county courthouses.

Donley County's Romanesque Revival style courthouse is featured in the new 60-minute piece, which showcases historic courthouses built between the 1850s and 1910s. A camera crew visited from Houston to interview Donley County Judge Jack Hall and Donley County Historical Commission member Jean Stavenhagen, who talked about the history of the building and the recent restoration. Both appear in the finished program. Scenes include exterior and interior views of the courthouse as well as archive photos. It is the only Panhandle-area courthouse featured in the program.

Other county courthouses featured in the program include Denton, Wise, Parker, Grimes, Caldwell, Fort Bend, Lampasas, Wharton, Fayette and Navarro.

Texas has more historic courthouses than any other state and one of the largest collections of Victorian architecture in the country. A total of 102 Texas courthouses are listed in the National Register of Historic Places, 111 are Recorded Texas Historic Landmarks and 91 are State Archeological Landmarks.

Vol. 3 was underwritten by the Albert & Ethel Herzstein Charitable Foundation and Fulbright & Jaworski, LLP.

After airing on HoustonPBS, the film will be made available to all PBS stations in Texas. The program is available for purchase at www.houstonpbs.org or by calling HoustonPBS at 1-800-364-8200.

Texas ag production worth $18 billion

COLLEGE STATION — Texas agriculture production for 2005 was valued at $18.5 billion — up from $18 billion in 2004, according to a Texas Cooperative Extension study.

Dr. Carl Anderson, professor emeritus and Extension economist, said total value was calculated by surveying production by each Texas county.

"Prices were mostly lower for crops from a year earlier and higher for livestock, but the production value has increased about 33 percent since 1995," Anderson said.

Estimated value includes crop season values and some on-farm use of commodities, which is typically higher than cash receipts, he said.

One example of on-farm use of a commodity is hay produced on the farm, then fed to livestock instead of selling for a cash price.

The largest growth in the last 10 years has come in aquaculture, horses used for recreation, and hunting and fishing leases, according to the study.

"For a longer period, since 1988, the value of these activities, along with outdoor recreation, timber and Christmas trees, have almost tripled and now account for nearly $2 billion in gross value," Anderson said. Rural land as an investment is increasing, he said. Uses include weekend retreats, recreation, and part-time agricultural operations, according to the study.

In the crop sector, the biggest gain since 1995 was in horticulture plants. Growth was also supported by cotton, ensilage, sunflowers, wheat, watermelons, grapefruit, oranges, and blueberries. Overall, the estimated value of these crops in 2005 was $6 billion, according to the report. Horticulture specialty crop sales in Texas have more than doubled to an estimated value of $1.8 billion, Anderson said.

"Only cattle and cotton are greater," Anderson said. "Horticulture crop sales trend higher as production of bedding plants, foliage plants, sod, and woody landscape plants increase. Plants are placed in office buildings, shopping malls, (and) public buildings as well as homes."

Livestock production value exceeded $10 billion. Primary growth was in the production of broilers, eggs, milk, beef cattle, goats, hogs, and honey, according to the report.

Income to landowners from hunting leases exceeded $525 million in 2005 — up 166 percent in the last decade. Fishing income, estimated at $78 million, has tripled since 1995, Anderson said.

Wildlife management as an economic enterprise generates "substantial income," Anderson said, "especially in South Texas, the Edwards Plateau, Rolling Plains and East Texas regions. And as urban population expands, the demand for rural areas with hunting and fishing activities continues to increase."

Land with quail, dove, turkey, pheasant, waterfowl, deer, wild hogs, and wildlife for watching is in strong demand from non-farm owners, Anderson said.

"There's a growing interest in wildlife practices to improve the amount and quality of wildlife," he said. "Many ranchers have reduced or removed cows in favor of increasing the amount of wildlife. Besides, most wildlife survives drought periods much better than cattle."

Texas ranks second behind California in farm receipts. Livestock account for well over half of total sales, Anderson said.

"The large amount of pasture and rangeland provides forage for grazing cows, and producing feeder and stocker calves," he said. "A large area of productive soils and excellent export and transportation facilities favor farming and ranching operations."

Texas is first in the U.S. in sales of cattle and calves, sheep and wool, goats and mohair, and cotton. It also leads in value of farm real estate and number of farms and ranches.

The value of farm assets, which includes land, buildings, livestock, machinery, crops and livestock, is estimated to exceed $115 billion in 2006.

"With total debt around $13.3 billion, the debt-to-asset ratio remains low," Anderson noted.

Competition in producing main crops, such as cotton, wheat, corn and rice, will intensify globally, Anderson said.

"The competition forces commercial agricultural operations to use new technology to become more productive and economically efficient," he said.

"The result will assure a food and fiber system that provides consumers with an assortment of clothing, and food to eat for a reasonable price, and to feed a growing world population."

Drugs in the News

Drug in a Skin Patch Approved for ADHD

In the early part of April, the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved the first skin-patch delivery system for drug that is commonly used to treat attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). The drug is methylphenidate, the same active ingredient in Ritalin, a well-known prescription drug in an oral tablet formulation that has been used for many years for children with ADHD. The brand name for the skin patch form of the drug is called Daytrana. The advantage of this new drug is that it is designed for once-a-day application.

According to news releases, Daytrana will be available in four sizes (10mg, 15mg, 20mg, and 30mg). News reports also indicate that physicians prescribing Daytrana can manage the effect the drug is having and any attending side effects by having their patients wear the patch for shorter periods of time than the recommended 9 hours, on a given day. In clinical trials, wearing the patch for 9 hours provided a therapeutic effect for a full 12 hours. One report indicates that ADHD affects almost 8% of all school-age children.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF APPLICATION OF
MUTUAL ENERGY SPP FOR AUTHORITY TO RECONCILE FUEL COSTS AND
NOTICE OF PROPOSED TRANSFER OF CUSTOMERS FROM MUTUAL ENERGY SPP TO SOUTHWESTERN ELECTRIC POWER COMPANY

On March 31, 2006, Mutual Energy SWEPCO doing business as Mutual Energy SPP ("ME SPP") filed its application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("Commission") to reconcile its eligible fuel factor expenses incurred during 2005 ("Reconciliation Period"). This filing was made pursuant to Section 36.203 of the Texas Utilities Code and has been assigned Docket No. 32579.

ME SPP's total under-recovery balance for the Reconciliation Period is $3,331,739 (including interest). ME SPP is seeking authority to collect that balance through a surcharge to be collected over a 30-month period, effective with the January 2007 billing month.

MS SPP's fuel reconciliation filing does not affect its base rates that are currently in effect. All of ME SPP's customers are affected by ME SPP's application in Docket No. 32579. The average effect on Residential Service customer using 1,000 kWh would be an increase of $11.20 per month, or an 8.8% increase in total billings for the year.

On May 1, 2006, AEP Texas North Company (TNC), Southwestern Electric Power Company (SWEPCO), and ME SPP filed a joint application with the Commission regarding the transfer of certificated service area and related electric utility facilities from TNC to SWEPCO in parts of the Counties of Childress, Collingsworth, Donley, Hall and Wheeler. Each of the three applicants is a wholly owned subsidiary of American Electric Power Company. All customers in the service area being transferred are currently provided retail electric service by ME SPP through facilities owned and operated by TNC. If the transfer of certificated service area and facilities is approved by the Commission, all retail customers in the area will become retail customers of SWEPCO and will receive electric utility service from SWEPCO, which currently serves approximately 452,000 customers in Texas, Louisiana, and Arkansas. SWEPCO will own and be responsible for the operation of all electric utility facilities in the affected area and will provide billing services to all customers in the affected area. The number of affected customers is approximately 7,000. The joint application has been docketed by the Commission as Docket No. 32672.

In Docket No. 32672, TNC, ME SPP and SWEPCO have requested that, in addition to approving the transfer of certificated service area from TNC to SWEPCO, the Commission find that the transfer of facilities within the area is in the public interest and that a rate plan be approved which will establish the rates that SWEPCO will apply to the transferred customers. ME SPP and TNC have also requested that they no longer have an obligation to serve customers in the area.

Under the proposed rate plan, all transferred customers within ME SPP's service area will be charged the same non-fuel electric rates that they are currently paying as customers of ME SPP. These customers will be charged SWEPCO fuel costs on a going-forward basis and will be responsible for fuel cost over-recoveries or under-recoveries incurred by ME SPP prior to the transfer to SWEPCO, including the under-recovery being sought in Docket No. 32579. TNC, ME SPP and SWEPCO have also proposed that the Commission allow them to update the 2005 reconciliation surcharge balance to include all fuel costs accumulated in 2006 up to the date of the transfer of ME SPP customers to SWEPCO. In addition, SWEPCO has requested that it be permitted to recover all costs incurred in the transfer of customers from ME SPP to SWEPCO by means of a tariff provision that will recover those costs over an 18-month period from all customers in the transferred area. The anticipated costs related to the transfer of customers is $ 1.4 million.

TNC, ME SPP and SWEPCO estimate that the proposed rate plan, including the under-recovery sought in Docket No. 32579 described above, will result in a reduction in overall charges for most current ME SPP residential and commercial customers. Specific information about the rate impact of the plan is contained in the joint application filed in Docket No. 32672.

The applications in both Docket No. 32579 and Docket No. 32672 will be available in two locations for public review. One copy of each will be available in Childress, Texas, at the following address:

American Electric Power Company
Childress Operations Center
1700 Avenue G NW

One copy of each will be available in Austin, Texas, at the following address:

Jay E. Toungate
American Electric Power Company
Suite 1520
400 West 15th Street
Austin, Texas 78701

All documents filed in either docket, including the application, are available electronically via the Commission's website at www.puc.state.tx.us through the "filings, interchange" link. Persons with questions about the applications should contact Jay E. Toungate at (214) 777-1055.

If you wish to participate in these proceedings by becoming a party or to comment upon action sought, you should contact the Commission at 1701 North Congress Avenue, Post Office Box 13326, Austin, Texas 78711-3326 or call the PUCT at (512) 936-7120 or toll free at (888) 782-8477. Greenbelt Electric joins Touchstone Greenbelt Electric Cooperative has joined the ranks of consumer-owned electric utilities across the country as a Touchstone Energy cooperative.

Touchstone Energy is a nationwide branding alliance that complements the local connection cooperatives have with their member-owners while providing the resources of a vast, integrated network of cooperatives. Touchstone Energy represents more than 600 cooperatives in 44 states that collectively deliver power and energy solutions to more than 16 million customers every day.

The Touchstone program communicates the unique qualities of cooperatives to business and residential consumers, reinforcing the dedication that co-ops have to serving member-owners with integrity, accountability, innovation, and commitment to community.

By overseeing national marketing and communications campaigns, employee education programs, and numerous events and projects that help co-ops strengthen and cultivate relationships with business and residential customers nationwide, Touchstone Energy ensures the benefits of consumer-owned electric utilities are recognized.

"The Touchstone Energy brand will provide a distinctive symbol for those members to identify with, to feel a part of, and to take pride in," said Stan McClendon, General Manager of Greenbelt Electric Cooperative, Inc.

"It's much more than a graphic addition to our name and logo. It's a commitment to our members that they can count on, as a locally based and controlled utility to deliver them with innovative, reliable, affordable energy services and to be an advocate for their energy and community needs," McClendon said.

"The dictionary definition of touchstone is a test of genuineness. Touchstone Energy symbolizes everything that electric cooperatives represent today: electric power, human connections, and the strength of co-op's commitment to the communities and the consumers they serve," McClendon said.

Greenbelt Electric Cooperative, Inc., is headquartered in Wellington and serves portions of Donley, Armstrong, Childress, Collingsworth, Gray, Hemphill, Randall, Roberts, and Wheeler Counties.

"We'll help our consumers cut through all the clutter," McClendon said. "We'll be here for our members for the long haul. If its accountability, service and commitment to community you want, look no further than Greenbelt Electric Cooperative."

You're free to worship GOD, ALLAH, BUDDHA, JEHOVAH, VISHNU or MICHAEL JORDAN.

AMEN TO THAT.

Freedom of religion is so fundamentally important to the American way of life that the very first sentence of the Bill of Rights guarantees it explicitly. In 1776, that was a pretty radical concept. (Actually, in some parts of the world, it still is.)

Some said that without state-sponsored religion we would become a Godless society with no moral fabric. Fortunately, quite the opposite has proven true. In America today we have more Christians than Italy, Germany, France and the United Kingdom combined. More Jews than Israel. More Muslims than the entire country of Jordan. And healthy communities of everyone from Buddhists to Zoroastrians. And, because we're free to find religion on our own terms (if we choose to at all), many of us are able to create a deeper, stronger and more personal relationship with our faith than would otherwise be possible.

So whether you worship in a church, temple, mosque or courtside seats at the arena, take a moment to thank the deity of your choice for freedom.

FREEDOM. APPRECIATE IT. CHERISH IT. PROTECT IT.

Betts to suit up for Childress' Greenbelt Bowl

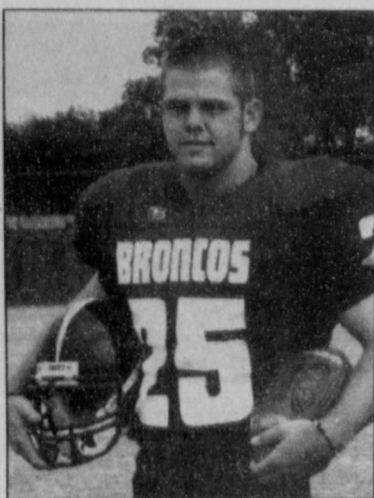

By Sandy Anderberg

The 57th Annual Greenbelt Bowl Classic All-Star Football game will be played Saturday, June 10 at the Childress High School Bobcat Stadium, and a Clarendon High School graduate will be on the field.

Former Bronco Will Betts will participate in the game playing for the North team and will be number 87. Betts, who graduated last month, was nominated for the honor by athletic director Gary Jack and was chosen by the All-Star Committee representing the Greenbelt Bowl.

Being selected to play in the game is a great honor, and many scholarships will be awarded to several players.

While at CHS, Betts has been a leader on the field and a quality player for the Bronco football team.

Will Betts

His determination and perseverance have been a great asset to the entire Bronco program. Betts plans to continue his football career in college as he will attend West Texas A&M and play for the Buffs under head coach Don Carthel.

The Greenbelt Bowl will begin at 7:00 p.m. and tickets are $6 at the gate.

Bronco Speed Camp to begin Monday

The Bronco and Lady Bronco summer speed camp will be held June 12 through July 27 according to CISD athletic director Gary Jack.

The camp is not only beneficial in the areas of agility and conditioning; but will be valuable in speed work and weight lifting for strength.

"Those students entering high school next fall through twelfth grade are encouraged to attend our speed camp," Jack said. "It is a great time to work on conditioning no matter what sport you participate in whether on the field or on the court. We do not work on fundamentals of a particular sport; we work on things that will build speed, agility, and endurance."

The camp is free to grades 9-12 and will be held in the Weight Room at Bronco Stadium Monday through Thursday from 7 a.m. until 9 a.m.

the lion's tale by allen estlack

The Clarendon Lions Club held their regular Tuesday noon meeting June 6, 2006, with Boss Lion Mark C. White in charge.

We had 16 members and five guests: Shelia White, guest of the Boss Lion; Phil Fletcher, prospective member and guest of Lion Jerry Woodard; Scarlet and Nathan Estlack, guest of Lion Russell Estlack; and Ashlee Estlack, guest of Lion Roger Estlack.

The college has started summer classes, and the hot weather was the topic of most discussion. We decided to install two large window coolers until the new central system is installed this fall. The flag schedule was also discussed for Flag Day next week.

There being no further business, we were adjourned.

Three-Person Scramble draws twenty teams

By Sandy Anderberg

Chris Linquist, Kelly Linquist and Steve Williams put together two great rounds to win the Three-Person Scramble held June 3-4 at the Clarendon Country Club. Their thirty-six hole score of 119 gave them the five-stroke victory over 19 other three-person teams. Taking second place in the championship flight was the team of Lee Garcia, Anthony Tiedt, and Jon East which turned in a 124.

The first flight winners were Ross and Melissa Donahue and B. Beck with a 125, and second place went to the threesome of Ruth and Steve Jackson and Scott Stevens with a 127. There was a two-team tie in the second flight with a total of 128, and the winner was determined on the card. First place went to PJ Lemons, Chris Davenport, and Ed Bills. Jerry Allison, Earl Jolly, and Buddy Winks took second place.

The first and second teams of the third flight tied with a 133 and decided to split first place. Those teams were Robert and Camilla Maddox, and Ferguson and Jamie, Ryan, and Suzanne Esch. Dan Ashford was closest to the pin on number 15 at 14'0", and the longest putt on number nine went to Robert Maddox at 19'10 1/2".

Slick Johnston won the weekly men's game with a 67. Bill Spier and RO Johnson tied for second with a 69, and Jesse Lincycomb was third shooting a 70. Sandy Anderberg shot a 69 to win the weekly women's game, and Dorothy Breedlove shot a 70 for second place. Sherol Johnston finished with a 73 for third place. The team of Sandy Anderberg, Al Ramsey, Maxine McLaughlin, Bobbie Kidd, and Wendol Miller took the Friday night scramble at five under par.

The nine-hole scrambles will be held each Friday at 6:00 pm and the CCC is offering free green fees on Friday with a paid price of a cart. For more information on the CCC, call the Pro Shop at 874-2166.
