Congressional, Senate And Sheriff-Collector Races Are Most Closely Contested

By DICK COOKE

Crop conditions and the European War were crowded into the background of conversations this week as approximately 2,300 Donley County citizens were making final decisions for their choice of local and state candidates before mary Saturday morning at 8

The "election" which has been termed the quietest in recent history, gained momentum rapidly last week-end and is expected to be rolling with full force before the county's ninteen voting stations close at seven o'clock Saturday evening.

Large Vote Expected
With around 150 absentee votes already cast, election experts believe an exceptionally large vote will be cast. Judges and clerks throughout the county are preparing to tabulate at least 2,300 ballots to equal the 1936 primary. The county's poll tax list reaches 2,089 and political observers deets. The exempted class include those who have just reached 21 and all those over 60 years of age. It is quite possible, they said, this figure may reach a much higher total.

Of most interest on the local with twelve candidates; the state senate with three; state representative also with three; sheriff and tax collector; county treasurer and county commissioners.
O'Daniel a Cinch

Governor Lee O'Daniel who piled up a record vote here two years ago is certain to again receive the same support. The banjo strumming flour salesman has not in anyway hurt himself with his local backers and will probably reap a larger vote harvest than before.

Too close to be predicted is the congressional race which will see either Gene Worley, E. T. (Dusty) Miller or Deck Wells have a small local lead. Worley, the youthful state representative from Shamrock, has always been a favorite with Donley voters. Miller has many staunch supporters carried over from his days of district attorney, and Wells, the Wellington newspaper man, has much of the sectional press behind him.

Platform Planks Main vote getting points in the three candidates' planks are: Worley, an ambitious youth who has worked up from the bottom, and wants an opportunity to serve the people. He contends it takes time to train a congressman and he is now the age at which as district attorney.

Douglass Speaks Here Saturday

August 16th SENATORIAL CANDIDATE IS FREQUENTLY APPLAUDED DURING HIS ADDRESS

> A large number of supporters of Judge Douglass made it a point to hear the man who, in a race against Sen. Clint Small four years ago, was defeated by a narrow margin in the 26 counties of the district.

They apparently have gathered strength during this campaign. Local supporters of Douglass said during his visit Saturday he emphasized his unequivocal stand for immediate payment of oldage pensions, teachers' retirement and aid to the blind and dependents, and assured them of his diligent efforts to raise the truck load limit and fight for the rights of landowners and royalty owners in oil and gas matters at Austin.

LEGISLATURE

Eugene Worley of Wheeler County, who waited on tables and sold advertising in school newspapers to earn his way through Texas A&M College and the University of Texas is a candidate for Congress to succeed Hon. Marvin Jones. The young Shamrock legislator, who is in his early 30's, has already experienced six years of law-making as a member of the state legislature.

Worley announced at the start of his campaign two months ago he did not have the money to buy expensive radio time, billboard advertising and printed literature but would have to depend on hard work and personal contacts. Without aid of paid workers or press agents, he launched a fast-stepping tour of the Panhandle which has caused astute political observers to sit up and take notice.

"The good people of Wheeler, Gray, Collingsworth and Donley counties were kind enough to send me down to Austin as their state representative when I was studying law at the University of Texas six years ago," says Worley. "I finished my studies and my neighbors and friends in those four Panhandle counties have twice sent me back to Austin as their representative. I have tried to make them an honest employee and it was a source of pride to me that ao one in the four counties had indicated he would oppose me if I saw fit to announce for the same office for a fourth term. Instead, I decided to make the race for Congress and I appreciate the words of encouragement my home people have given me.

experience at Austin will be helpful to me." As a member of the legislature for three terms, Worley worked for more liberalized oldage assistance, and for help to the crippled and the blind. He tried in vain to get more state aid for our schools of the Panhandle instead of seeing it go to those South and East Texas regions where the scholastics are made up largely of Negroes and Mexicans, many of whom never enter a classroom.

He helped pass the Panhandle Water Conservation Authority and went down the line for the independent oil and gas operator and for the small royalty and land owner. He voted to protect organized labor against exploitation.

We hope that you will take the trouble to examine his record at Austin. We believe that his record on important legislation will bear the closest scrutiny.

We feel that he has the necessary background to serve as our national representative with credit to the people of the Panhandle, and that he is the most competent and best qualified of all the candidates offering their services.

We sincerely commend him to all the voters of Gray County and the 18th Congressional district.

WORLEY IS SHORT ON MONEY BUT LONG ON EXPERIENCE

Gene Worley of Shamrock told crowd at North Amarillo Park last evening he was the first man to announce as a candidate to succeed Marvin Jones as congressman from the 18th Texas district. He is 31 years old. Worley said he had been carrying on a single-handed campaign the past four months. He traced his career in politics since he and five other University of Texas law students campaigned successfully for places in the legislature in 1934. "We believed politics needed new and young blood," he said.

"All candidates in this race are swell fellows in every respect," and we all subscribe to virtually the same program. The only issues are whether the people desire to elect a man who has had the same type legislative experience as present day national leaders such as Sam Rayburn, United States Sen. Tom Connally, Vice President Garner, and other leaders who secured their original training in the same place I secured mine-the Texas Legisla-

CAREFUL SHOPPER type tells you:

"I'm driving the car all day while my husband's at work, so I really buy most of the family gasoline out of my own budget. If I can get even 2 or 3 miles more to a gallon I want to know it. That's why I went to a Conoco station for my Mile-Dial-not just because it's free, but because it really lets you know your true mileage, exactly as a woman wants to really know about anything she pays for. I like buying tested things-the same as any up-to-date consumer -and this certified Mile-Dial is like giving us consumers our own easy way of testing Conoco Bronz-z-z for mileage.

"Anyway, it's almost like a game, dialing your correct mileage on the Mile-Dial-awfully clever. My husband says so, too. By the way, my driving is just as economical as his, the way it proves out on our Mile-Dial. Isn't that interesting? And we're keeping on dialing to make sure of our average in all different driving. Right now, after 61 gallons of Bronz-z-z in all, we're a good 200 miles ahead of what we used to expect from that much gasoline."

"DIDN'T CARE" type of driver says:

"I didn't much care what gasoline I bought as I went along. But this Mile-Dial being free, and really daring you to keep your own close tabs on Conoco Bronz-z-z gasoline, I went for it. And now I know why they've got the gimp to let the Mile-Dial tell all. For you can see by my Mile-Dial right on the dash that I've gone 633 miles on 37 gallons of Conoco Bronz-z-z.

"Now if you'll watch this smart Mile-Dial work-next to automatic-you'll see it giving the answer: . . . above 17 miles to the gallon of Bronz-z-z in this big eight, around town here. But I'm leaving for about a 700-mile tripmostly open country. So don't be surprised if I even get better mileage. And don't say that's a brag, because you can't help believing the Mile-Dial. Besides settling the economy of Conoco Bronz-z-z it's sort of swell fun dialing your honest mileage. The Conoco boys must know what their gasoline's got, to give you a Mile-Dial free. I'll bet you would like one yourself and they're free as air, around a Conoco station. You ought to go quick and get yours."
