Around Muleshoe

At presstime Saturday, only sketchy information was available from Lamb County officials concerning a fatal shooting in the Y-L community.

According to officials, the name of the victim is Jerry Wyatt. He was pronounced dead at the farm home by Lamb Co. Justice of the Peace Beulah Newton.

An autopsy was scheduled to be performed Saturday morning in Muleshoe by Childress Pathologist, Dr. Ralph Erdman.

At about 11:45 p.m. on Friday, Muleshoe firemen were called to Bailey County Feeders for a reported explosion and fire in a home.

Firemen found that a hot water heater had exploded, causing a brief fire that had extinguished itself by the time firemen arrived.

They shut off escaping propane.

No injuries were reported in the explosion.

Stand On Gas Deregulation Taken By W.T. Chamber

(Ed. note: The following is a portion of the outline of the position taken by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce on decontrol of prices on natural gas at its mid-year meeting in Fort Worth.)

On November 11, 1982 the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at its mid-year meet adopted a position favoring deregulation of natural gas. The Chamber's position paper on natural gas or a portion of it is published in the following article.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce urges the 98th Congress of the United States to legislate total phased decontrol of prices on natural gas, with prompt decontrol for new supplies and decontrol on old gas by the mid-1980's.

The Congress should permit the oil and gas industry to operate unencumbered in the free market as other businesses do, burdened only with those taxes normally attendant to such operations. Following decontrol, there should be no excise tax as it would dilute the much needed supply response.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce reaffirms this position based on the fact that decontrol of natural gas prices will be one of the most important issues the 98th Congress must consider and act upon early in 1983. With the future welfare of America and Americans in the balance, as well as the health of the domestic oil and gas industry, the Chamber believes the industry must be freed of the only vestiges of price controls still remaining on any segment of American business.

The effect of price controls on natural gas has been the same as price controls on other products or services; that is, a reduction of supplies. Occasional surpluses of natural gas deliverability are cyclical at best, and only temporary. Only through decontrol of prices will producers have the incentive and the capital necessary to explore for and produce the steady supply of natural gas needed in the future. Shortages of natural gas, such as those experienced in the winter of 1976 and 1977 when schools in 11 states were forced to close, should not be repeated.

Further, increased domestic production of this vital commodity and its prudent use will displace consumption of other forms of energy such as oil. As a result, the economy - draining daily import of costly

Final Sign-up Dates Near For Area Farm Producers

Area landowners or their designated representatives are once again reminded by Rusty Williamson, Bailey County ASCS Executive Director that the 1983 Agricultural Conservation Program sign-up period is near and of short duration.

Applications for this program will only be taken during the week of November 29, 1982 through December 3, 1982, which begins Monday. There will be no second chance on this program and those who miss it will not be eligible for any ACP assistance. The ACP program is a cost share assistance which includes such practices as parallel and diversion terraces and underground pipe.

In order to complete an application for the ACP, an applicant needs to know the location of the practice to be performed and the estimated footage required for the practice. Only landowners or their proper designees are eligible to sign for the program. The Bailey County Committee also recommends that each applicant visit with the Soil Conservation service to discuss their plans on this program.

Another deadline which will occur on December 1, Wednesday, is that of returning to the ASCS the advance deficiency payment forms on 1982 crops. Producers who wish to receive their 1982 deficiency payments before the first of the year should be sure to get these forms back into the ASCS office prior to December 1, otherwise full payment will not be made until February for cotton and April for corn and grain sorghum. No 1982 advance payments can be issued unless they are requested.

These rules apply per farm, not per producer. Advance 1982 deficiency payments are based on seventy percent of the projected deficiency rate. Advance payments will be calculated by multiplying the farm yield times the acres for payment times the following rates: 9.7 cents per pound for upland cotton; 10.5 cents per bushel for corn; and 12.6 cents per bushel for grain sorghum.

Balloting for Community Committee Elections has been taking place and Williamson urges every producer to be sure and vote for the candidate of their choice. The voting is important to the ASCS system because the men who are elected are the ones who

A Santa Paula, California Ford Dealer who started giving away helium filled balloons to his customers couldn't have possibly guessed that one of them would end up in a Texas cotton field. That however, is exactly what happened.

Five Inches Of Snow Helps Wheat Crops

While farmers needing moisture for winter wheat crops viewed the falling snow with gladness on Wednesday, those who still lacked having their crops fully out of the fields were wishing that it could have held off just a few days longer.

Late Friday and early Saturday morning, the Muleshoe area received three more inches of snow and about .70 of moisture, bringing the last three days total to slightly over an inch of rain and about six inches of snow.

The light falling white stuff left a three to five inch blanket of Thanksgiving snow across Bailey County and the South Plains, causing holiday travel to be slowed somewhat due to the hazardous driving conditions late Wednesday and early Thursday morning. At least two accidents were reported in the Muleshoe area attributed to icy road conditions. By Thursday noon most of the snow had begun to melt and roads once again became passable. A few icy patches remained on area highways after noon on Thursday, but generally travel had resumed.

Farmers in Bailey County with wheat seeded were glad to see the much needed moisture - the first in some months. However, cotton pulling will come to a standstill for at least a week unless the wet weather continues and then a longer drying-out period will be necessary. Most of the feed grain crops in the county have already been harvested, but a check of several local gins indicate that only slightly more than half of the area cotton crop has been harvested. Most gin managers expect to be through the season by Christmas if the weather holds good. Some even expect that within ten days after the field dry out, most of the cotton will be off the stalks and ready to be ginned.

At Clay's Corner Gin, an office employee told the Journal that about 1500-1600 bales had been ginned at that facility with approximately 500 more bales yet to be ginned. Most of the remaining 500 is already in modules and off the stalk.

Windbreak Seedling Applications Available

Applications are now being accepted for windbreak seedlings from the Texas Forest Service.

These seedlings, grown from seed collected in West Texas and eastern New Mexico, are produced in the Service's greenhouse in Lubbock and in a field nursery near Halfway.

Conifer species available this season include Austrian pine, ponderosa pine, Arizona cypress, redcedar and Scotch pine. These containerized seedlings cost $1 each but are sold only in multiples of 30 seedlings.

Hardwood species include bur oak, green ash, honeylocust, mulberry, native plum and Russian olive. These bare root seedlings are priced at $25 per hundred. Minimum orders of 100 seedlings will be accepted, but applicants may order 50 of one species and 50 of another. Applicants must also add a four percent state sales tax to the purchase price.

Seedlings ordered now will be ready for pickup and planting in March 1983. Tree seedlings sold by the Texas Forest Service may not be used for landscaping or ornamental purposes.

COOLING TOWERS--A dozen giant fans pull air up through one of the two "cooling towers" at Southwestern Public Service Company's Tolk Station Unit No. 1. Each cooling tower works just as an evaporative cooler at a home does. The towers lower the temperature of water, which is used--and reused as many as five times--in the electricity generating process at the coal-fired plant. (SPS PHOTO)

Boy Scout Members Growing This Fall

The Boy Scouts South Plains Council, headquartered in Lubbock, is experiencing outstanding growth this fall. The character development organization has gained a record membership increase for the second month of their annual fall enrollment period.

"Last month Scouting on the South Plains had nearly a 5% increase over last year at the same time. October's report showed a 14.1% growth. At this rate the council is expected to reach a 20% growth at year end," said South Plains Council President, Dr. Roy C. McClung. McClung went on to say these growth figures didn't count the Scouting organization's new Tiger Cub program for second grade boys and their adult friend. There are nearly 200 Tiger Cub families in the area.

McClung added the fact that the South Plains Council was ranked number four among the 46 councils of the five state South Central Region in membership growth. The first three growth councils are headquartered in Lake

Researchers study pre-hurricane event

COLLEGE STATION — As Gulf Coast residents prepare for another hurricane season, Texas A&M University researchers are studying a phenomenon in which ocean water levels are elevated several days before an actual storm forms.

Information gathered from the study being conducted for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers may aid in design of structures such as seawalls that can withstand the massive storms.

Hurricane season traditionally runs from early June through mid-October along the Gulf Coast, with September historically accounting for almost as many hurricanes and tropical storms that affect Texas shores as all other months combined, say climatologists.

Council. "These young people and their family are starting a great adventure together. Our recent Scout-O-Rama was an all time record for attendance and participation. This has been a great year for Scouting and 1983 looks even better."

Bouse went on to say that ambitious plans have been made for Scout camping next summer. The Explorers will have an area Olympics at Texas Tech and the Cub Scouts will have five day camps to attend.

Dr. McClung and Bouse joined in their praise for local unit leaders and the job training teams are doing educating all the new Scout leaders.

Producing more energy from less ... makes the difference.

Their discovery would shake the worlds of communication, medicine and defense, but Charles Townes and Arthur Schawlow knew only that they had discovered an entirely new source of light. They called it an "optical maser." Today we know it as the "laser."

Their discovery was a light beam so concentrated it could produce power densities millions of times as intense as those on the surface of the sun — a light source so dense, the energy produced was greater than the energy required to produce it.

Arthur Schawlow and Charles Townes

This principle of more energy from less applies to the High-Efficiency Add-On Heat Pump — more units of heat than units of electricity needed to produce that heat. And while the Add-On Heat Pump works with your existing furnace to heat your home during the winter, the Add-On Heat Pump functions with the same efficiency to cool your home during warm weather.

As partners, Townes and Schawlow made a significant difference in our world with their work on the laser. As partners, you, Southwestern Public Service Company and the Add-On Heat Pump can make the difference managing electricity in your home. Call SPS to see what your savings could be.

Get Maximum, Exercise Vigorously And Regularly

If you want to get the maximum benefit out of exercise, do it vigorously and regularly, advises a Baylor College of Medicine heart disease researcher.

Josef R. Patsch, M. D., research associate professor of medicine at Baylor, found that people who exercise heavily, such as long distance runners, get rid of fats in their blood at a faster rate than those who don't exercise. If a runner stops exercising for as little as three weeks, however, that good effect disappears.

His study also suggests that the current method used to determine fat levels in the blood be revised.

Patsch reported on these findings today at the 55th scientific sessions of the American Heart Association (AHA) in Dallas.

A person with high levels of blood fats, after eating a fat-laden meal, has an increased chance of developing heart disease. However Patsch said, heavy exercise raises the level of "good" blood cholesterol, which clears out fats and therefore reduces an individual's chance of developing heart disease.

"But exercise should not be used as a medication taken only when you feel you need it," Patsch said. "It should be a lifelong habit."

He also cautions that two weeks of exercise won't produce results. It can take nine months before good cholesterol levels rise, but a conditioned individual who returns to exercise after a brief respite can build up good cholesterol levels again in only two months.

The standard test for measuring blood fat levels requires patients to fast for several hours before blood samples are taken. The participants in Patsch's study were first tested this way, then later had blood samples taken after eating a meal containing the amount of fats in a typical American diet.

"This test given after eating a normal meal is a better indicator of blood fat levels since people don't fast as a rule," Patsch said.

He found that blood fat levels were low in individuals who had high levels of good cholesterol. The plasma, or liquid portion of their blood was clear after they ate a meal high in fats. People with low levels of good cholesterol had "very milky, cloudy, ugly plasma," he said.

One male participant had milky plasma at the beginning of the study. But one and one half years later he was running more than 20 miles a week. His good cholesterol level was very high and his plasma had begun to clear.

An injury stopped his running for four weeks, during which his good cholesterol level dropped and his plasma became milky. Six weeks after he resumed running, his good cholesterol level was very high and his plasma was clear.

Patsch also said that women under the age of 50 have good cholesterol levels that are about three times higher than those of men, which probably reduces their chance of developing heart disease. However, after menopause a woman's good cholesterol level drops.

"If a woman begins exercising regularly before age 50 then she is ahead of the game," Patsch said. "It's harder to start exercise when they are past that age -- the time they need it most."

For his work in the study Patsch, 40, received the AHA 1982 Irvine H. Page Arteriosclerosis Research Prize for Young Investigators. The study was funded by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute in Bethesda, Md.

Truth Seekers Breakfast Social Hold

The Truth Seekers Sunday School Class of the Muleshoe First Baptist Church met Monday, Nov. 22, at the Corral Restaurant for a breakfast social.

tributed to the members present.

A short business meeting was held and the upcoming Christmas party was discussed. It is to be held in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Homer Allgood on Friday night, December 3, at 8 p.m. and husbands are invited to attend.

Following the business meeting, presided over by Lindy Schuster, the meeting was adjourned.

Those members attending were Pat Black, Sandi Chitwood, Vicki Black, Cindy Purdy, Joy Glover, Lindy Schuster, Brenda Black, Janna St. Clair, Anita Allgood, Linda Marr, Gayla Toombs, Rickie Warren, Judy Wilbanks and Jean Treadwell.

Ruffled blouses and skirts have really caught-on, in a big way, this fall and will carry on through winter styles. Advance spring collections show that this romantic and feminine look is continued in spring fashions.

Influenza Season Not Expected To Be Severe

The state's 1982-83 influenza season is not expected to be severe. But Texans by the thousands will once again rush to the drugstore--seeking relief from sneezes, coughs and fevers--only to be confused by the number of over-the-counter (OTC) medications.

Flu and drug experts at Baylor College of Medicine have a few pointers on how to avoid the emotional trauma.

Deciding what to choose begins with thinking about the symptoms you have, and treating only the serious symptoms. Robert Couch, M.D., director of Baylor's Influenza Research Center, said. Ingredients are listed on the packages of OTC medications.

If you are "stopped up", or congested, look for a decongestant, such as phenylpropanolamine hydro-chloride or pseudoephedrine.

A runny nose can be controlled by an antihistamine, which dries up fluids, but it is recommended only for a very runny nose. One of the popular ones is chlorpheniramine.

Coughs can be helped by suppressants, such as those containing dextromethophan. A dry cough may require an expectorant--one is guaifenesin--to loosen lung fluids.

Most OTC Medications for colds and flu are combinations of ingredients to treat a number of symptoms, but in this case more is not necessarily better.

"Many concoctions that contain three or more drugs will probably have something unnecessary in them," Couch said. "And the more drugs you take the more likely you are to have reactions to one of them."

He also said the amount of one or more of the combined ingredients may be too little.

The aspirin in some medications may not be enough to control your headache. It might be better to use a medication with two ingredients, such as a decongestant and cough suppressant, and then take aspirin or an aspirin substitute.

The form medications are in--nose spray, nose drops, liquid, tablet or capsule--should be considered.

Frank Bennett, a registered pharmacist and Baylor graduate student, said that decongestant nose sprays and drops are effective for short term use.

"They have a fairly quick action because they are administered at the site where needed," he said. "But people can develop a tolerance to these in a matter of days, and get what is known as "rebound congestion."

Liquids usually act faster than tablets or capsules and the elderly and children seem to tolerate them better.

Bennett said that there are some individuals who should be careful about cold and flu OTC medications.

People with glaucoma, an increased pressure in eye fluids, should not take antihistamines. They tend to increase fluid pressure.

Decongestants may cause problems for diabetics and those with high blood pressure. They can increase blood sugar levels, and interact with blood pressure medications.

"There is probably little difference between brands of over-the-counter medications for colds and flu," Bennett said, "if they have the same ingredients in the same dosage level."

had ginned around 850 bales of cotton and still expected around 650 more before the season ends. Farmers in that area received about five inches of snow on Wednesday and Thursday, with a slow drizzle or rain falling most of the day Friday.

Charles Moraw, manager of the Muleshoe Coop Gins stated that with only one plant of their two running, they had ginned about 1700 bales of cotton and expected to gin possibly 1200 more bales, with most of that still being in the fields. "We have only run in the daytime this season, and with just the one gin crew," Moraw stated. Most of this is due to the short cotton crop in the area caused by the wipe-outs in early June.

At Needmore Cooperative Gin, about 350 bales have been ginned and approximately 100 more are expected before the season will be completed. Needmore also had about five inches of snow and a drizzle all day on Friday, slowing field work to a standstill.

The North Lazbuddie Gin reported a ginned bale count of 1800 so far with about 700 more bales expected to be brought in. Some of that amount is in modules and some on trailers, while some is still in the fields on stalks. That area reported six inches of snow and rain on Friday.

Bennie Claunch of the Claunch Gin at Bula reported about 500 bales ginned there with not over 500 remaining in the fields to be brought in. The Bula area received about four inches of snow on Wednesday and reported light rain throughout the day on Friday.

Although there are several more gins in the area operating on a limited basis, the ones surveyed are in fairly centrally located areas and should provide a good example of the cotton situation in Bailey County.

The estimated acreage from the Bailey County Agent of cotton that remained after the devastating hail and wind storms in early June, left about 2500 acres of cotton to be harvested countywide. After the first estimate, a second look was taken and an even lower number of acres of cotton was estimated to have remained growing in the county.

Feed grain turnouts or yields were fairly good, with lines of trucks being constant at most area elevators. The largest majority of the grain in the county has already been harvested.

Texans Rate State Law Enforcement Agencies

Texas residents, in general, are satisfied with the courteousness and fairness of police officers, while those arrested for misdemeanor crimes are not.

These were among the results of a recent study of "Public Perceptions of the Police in Texas," conducted by the Survey Research Program of the Criminal Justice Center at Sam Houston State University.

Responses came from 1,345 individuals from 181 Texas counties, selected at random and questioned earlier this year on their experiences during 1981.

"At no time in the history of Texas have the police been under greater public scrutiny," said Dr. Raymond H. C. Teske, Jr., director of the Survey Research Program. "The press, the judicial system, public officials and others consistently make reference to the role of the police." Another survey topic which Teske said has not received adequate study is the extent and types of contact Texans have with the police.

"Most law-abiding citizens are pleased with their police," said Teske. "Highest marks went to the Department of Public Safety, followed by local police and sheriff's departments."

The DPS was rated professional or very professional by 82 percent of those surveyed. Local police and sheriff's departments got 65 percent positive ratings in those categories.

Ratings on fairness in administering the law were 80 percent for DPS, either very fair or fair; 65 percent for sheriff's departments; 64 percent for local police.

Among those who had been arrested for misdemeanor offenses (29 of the 1,345 respondents, 34 total arrests), fairness ratings were understandably lower. A total of 52 percent of those arrested said they had been treated unfairly (38 percent) or very unfairly (14 percent).

Only two respondents had been arrested for felony violations.

Ratings on competency, dedication, and courteousness were high among all surveyed, with least positive perceptions being reported in the category of honesty.

The DPS was rated as very competent (24 percent) or competent (56 percent), for a total of 80 percent. The local police earned 64 percent and sheriff's departments 61 percent total ratings in these categories.

The DPS was rated as very dedicated or dedicated by 73 percent, as compared to 59 percent for local police and 55 percent for sheriff's departments. The DPS received 77 percent ratings as very courteous or courteous, with the local police totaling 65 percent and sheriff's departments 61 percent.

In the honesty category, DPS got marks of 70 percent as very honest or honest and local police and sheriff's departments 61 percent each.

More than half of all Texans (57 percent), according to survey projections, had at least one contact with police during 1981 and of these, 58 percent were with local police, 13 percent DPS troopers, 12 percent police of another city, and seven percent a sheriff's department.

Of those reporting contacts, 29 percent were for traffic violations. Almost half (49 percent) of these were for speeding and 17 percent were for out-of-date license or inspection sticker violations. Of those stopped 62 percent were given tickets, and 72 percent said they were treated fairly.

Of those surveyed, 221 (16 percent) said they had been victims of crime during the previous year which they had reported to the police. Of those, only 43 percent were satisfied with the overall job done by the police, 35 percent dissatisfied, and 22 percent gave no opinion.

The most frequent types of victimization reported were burglary (6.6 percent of all respondents) and vandalism (5.1 percent) of all respondents. In only one half (53 percent) of the incidents did the complainant actually sign a complaint or report form for the police, someone was arrested in only 15 percent of the crimes reported, and in only five percent of the cases was someone convicted. If property was stolen, in only 15 percent of the cases was the property recovered.

General questions relating to crime were also included on the survey. Over one half of the respondents (54 percent) felt that crime in their community had gotten worse in the past three years, and 52 percent expect it to get worse in the next three years.

Over three fourths of those surveyed (77 percent) said that court rulings on law enforcement had somewhat hindered (36 percent) or severely hindered (41 percent) police in their efforts to control crime.

Survey participants were asked about their use of police services during the past year and their lifetime and a total of 161 (12 percent) had participated in one such program during 1981 and 234 (17 percent) during their lifetime.

The most frequent included "The Neighborhood Watch" program (6.1 percent in 1981, 7.6 percent lifetime) and "Crime Stoppers" (2.3 percent in 1981, 2.8 percent lifetime.) Only 1.3 percent had participated in gun training during their lifetime and 1.9 percent in a rape self-defense program. A total of 103 (8 percent) had requested a home or business security check during 1981.

Dr. Larry T. Hoover, who teaches in the area of law enforcement and police science and who participated in the study, said that the number of citizens reporting contact with the police during the year studied (1981) was surprisingly high.

However, Hoover noted that a relatively low proportion of the population has taken part in police crime prevention programs, calling into question the effectiveness of such programs.

Gas Deregulation

Given the fact that natural gas controls have been in place for almost three decades, the problems these controls have created cannot be resolved overnight.

First imposed on the interstate market in 1954, these controls were expanded to the now inefficient intrastate system in the form of the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978. Initially spawned by misguided attempts to stimulate demand controls in the latter case were designed to force states with adequate supplies to share resources with states where controls had generated shortages. A "solution" that failed to produce the desired results in a portion of the nation became the "solution" for the rest of the country. Its awkward result was two dozen pricing categories for natural gas, indiscernible except for a paper trail that still adds to the consumer's cost.

Consumers in some states with access to artificially low-priced gas can afford to pay almost any price for supplemental, rolled-in supplies. That results in others like the West Texas intrastate pipeline customers whose supplies consist primarily of higher-priced gas being excluded from competing for those new supplies. No amount of fine-tuning of existing legislation which has caused this inequity can make controls workable. The longer this situation continues unaddressed, the higher the price will be for Texas consumers and the greater the potential for regionalized shortages.

Equally important, and hereby urged by the West Texas Chamber, is repeal of the prohibition under the Fuel Use Act against use of natural gas by some consumers. Such artificial demand restraints preclude the most efficient use of the resource and competing fuels.

The so-called incremental pricing provision of the Natural Gas Policy Act, whereby large-volume users pay a disproportionate share of higher prices, should also be repealed. It is counter to free-market determination of the most efficient use of the resource.

Likewise, Congress should not attempt to abrogate the terms and conditions of private contracts. Contract problems can be identified and resolved through voluntary buyer-seller negotiation. Adjustments being made now to new contracts are evidence this voluntary negotiation is a viable solution.

Texas consumers - not only the industry - must be particularly concerned about the natural gas situation. The Chamber urges the U. S. Congressional delegation from West Texas to foster decontrol actions because of several additional factors. Chief among them is the fact that Texans consume one-sixth of the nation's gas utility sales, and about one-fourth of the nation's industrial supply. A secure and adequate supply of natural gas critical to every segment of the economy, is necessary for the future of Texans as well as the rest of the nation. Certainly, natural gas price decontrol will result in greater exploration for and production of natural gas and the attendant direct and indirect creation of new jobs in Texas.

Decontrol will encourage development of other energy sources, including one especially important to Texas. Texas contains some 3.2 billion tons of proven coal reserves for which there is now limited demand because consumers opt to use other cheaper energy sources. These valuable coal reserves will become more viable when natural gas supplies become more competitively priced through decontrol.

Texas A&M recruits record number of nation's top scholars

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M University, which last year ranked second only to Harvard in attracting new National Merit Scholars, has added even more of the nation's top high school graduates this year.

University officials announced that 190 new National Merit Scholars enrolled at Texas A&M this fall. With 134 new National Merit Scholars last year, Texas A&M tied with Princeton — second only to Harvard/Radcliffe — in the number of top-ranked students it recruited.

With the addition of 190 new National Merit Scholars this fall Texas A&M is expected to have about 400 of the top students, administrators said.

"We expect to move up from 13th nationally to about eighth place among all colleges and universities in the total number of National Merit Scholars enrolled," said Vice President for Academic Affairs Dr. Charles McCandless.

Texas Farm Bureau Convention In Dallas

Dean Kleckner, president of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, will be the keynote speaker for the 49th annual Texas Farm Bureau convention in Dallas Nov. 28-Dec. 1.

Kleckner will speak the morning of Nov. 29 at the convention's general session at the Hilton Hotel. Also speaking that morning will be TFB President Carol Chaloupka who will deliver his annual address and TFB Secretary-Treasurer Wayne Cranfill who will give his annual report.

TFB Executive Director Warren Newberry will present his administrative report on Nov. 30, kicking off the organization's business meeting.

Some 1,200 voting delegates representing 216 county Farm Bureaus will adopt state policies which the organization will follow in 1983. The delegates will also approve resolutions on national issues to be forwarded to the AFBF convention Jan. 9-13, also in Dallas.

Kleckner, who was elected Iowa FB president in 1975 after serving nine years as that organization's vice president, has been a member of the American Farm Bureau Federation Board of Directors since 1976. Kleckner farms 600 acres, and produces corn, soybeans and hogs.

Seven special conferences will be conducted Nov. 29. The first -- directed to the Young Farmers/Ranchers -- will begin with a 6:30 a.m. breakfast at the Dallas Hilton. Vernie Glasson, AFBF field representative from San Antonio, will give the program.

The program will consist of several other keynote speakers covering such topics as livestock, transportation, field crops, natural resources, taxes and labor.

On Nov. 28, the speech and talent find winners will be chosen. On Nov. 29, the queen will be selected and the Young Farmer/Rancher winner announced.

The TFB Meritorious Service Award will be presented along with recognition for safety, public relations and member acquisition during the convention.

Individuals, like successful generals, have to be bold enough to take some chances--if they wish to become successful.

Preparing for the future

We parents are very careful to teach our children thrift and industry so that like this little girl they begin early in life preparing for the future. We sometimes are not so careful though to point out that there is a great deal more to the future than "a penny saved is a penny earned" or "early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise."

We need the Church to remind us about the real values of life and to help us teach our children what life is really all about. Your nearby Church will be glad to answer any questions, religious or otherwise, you have about your child's spiritual training. The Sunday School is maintained to help you help your children.
