Primary Elections.

The very unsatisfactory results in the present primary system will doubtless bring about a change by the next legislature. After discussing the cost of various systems in the Fort Worth Record, E. G. Senter says a second primary in which the two leading candidates for each office shall be voted for is talked of, and adds:

"However, it is well to inquire whether a result more accurately reflecting the popular will cannot be reached without the expense and trouble of two primary elections. To get the benefit of actual experience in this direction, we must look to far off New Zealand, which is the author of more successful innovations in political procedure than any other nation in the world. The statesmen at its helm seem to be following the course so successfully pursued by the Japanese and are ever on the alert to better their laws and systems, cleaving to that which produces good results and rejecting that which is fruitful of evil. All of their institutions are thoroughly democratic. The people rule, and their sovereignty is directly expressed in the choice of all officials. In order to avoid two primaries, and to escape the sound objections to the plurality method, they devised a plan of taking first, second and third choice expressions at a single ballot. From this they collect the sentiment of the people with respect to each of the candidates as compared with every other candidate against him, and by a simple mathematical calculation they are able to determine who, on a general average, stands highest in the popular estimate, and he is declared the nominee. It would, perhaps, be too confusing to attempt to reach a result so nicely accurate as this in a state where conditions vary so greatly as in Texas. It might be possible, however, to attain an end approximately just in every case by the adoption of a simplified form of the New Zealand system.

First and second choice expressions could be taken by requiring a cross mark for the first on the left of the name of the candidate and for the second on the right. This system would be easily understood by the voters and would cause no confusion. If the second choice expressions were reduced to their fair valuation by a division by two, and the result thus secured were added to the sum of the first choice, the candidate receiving the largest vote under this test would be in every case a winner in the second primary if one were held. This is so manifest upon reflection that the plan here suggested must commend itself to every one who is unwilling to approve either the plurality or the double primary."

Mr. Senter also says: "It is undeniable that the state campaign is far too costly. At a rough guess it may be said that at least $25,000 is required to give legitimate publicity to a candidacy for governor in Texas, particularly if the candidate has not been long and prominently identified with the politics of the state. This is prohibitive to a poor man, but the fault is not with the blanket primary system. A change from that to the convention plan would increase rather than diminish the expense.

Relief must come not through abandonment, but through the natural evolution of the primary system. Its ultimate result will be to make every campaign one between ideas rather than individuals, and when that time comes the representative of an idea will not be required to make the whole fight before the people, but he will be merely the captain of the host contending for it. From every stump issue will be discussed by men who are not candidates, and candidates will sink or swim according to their relation to such issues. In other words, the people themselves will make the campaign, and the candidate will be merely an incident of it. This is no fanciful picture, but merely calls for an application of the procedure which now obtains in national elections to state affairs. If a candidate for president were required to foot the bills of a campaign of the entire country for the nomination, only a Rockefeller or a Morgan could afford to make the race."

Not A Time To Laugh.

There was a prosperous Iowa farmer, who, by hard work and saving, managed to accumulate $20,000. It is no joke to accumulate $20,000 on a farm. Many a time that farmer pitched hay until after the stars were shining and many a time he had stirred up the family of a humble but high-tempered bee, and many a time the brindle cow had wrapped her unlauded tail about his face in the good old summer time. Many a time he had gone to town and cut out the dinner or possibly had satisfied his hunger with a cent's worth of bologna and two cents' worth of cheese which rose up in its might to meet him.

But he had accumulated $20,000 and sold his farm. He went to the city of Wichita to invest it and was surprised at the number of good things that seemed to be waiting for him. There were chances all around to invest that money and double it in a few months, or years at the outside. He took one of the good things. He invested his $20,000 in a business which he didn't know a thing in the world about, but which the man who sold it to him assured him was the softest snap that ever fell to the lot of a man who had $20,000 to invest.

It was a soft snap—for the man who sold the business. The man who paid the $20,000 found that he had invested in a choice lot of debts which his $20,000 went to pay. The creditors of the late owner of the business were glad because they really never hoped to get ten cents on the dollar, and the $20,000 paid by the Iowa farmer enabled them to collect 75 or 80 cents on the dollar.

When the farmer realized that he had been buncoed he hunted up the man who had inveigled him into the trade, and with tears in his eyes begged him to give him back enough of the $20,000 to keep him and his family from immediate want.

The man who had sold him an interest in the business laughed. It was the wrong time to laugh. The farmer had no money, but he had a revolver in his rear pantaloons pocket which he had saved from the wreck. Several neighbors and relatives gathered at the funeral of the man who laughed when the farmer asked for some of the money back that he had been swindled out of. They said as they passed by the coffin that the corpse looked quite natural.

The jury who heard the evidence against the Iowa farmer brought in a verdict of not guilty. They said that he was suffering from temporary insanity when he perforated the person of the man who laughed. When a jury wants to acquit a man they can generally find a way to do it.

In that case the verdict of the jury was generally satisfactory. The people said that the man who would laugh at a man he had robbed of $20,000 deserved to die on general principles, and temporary insanity was as good an excuse for the farmer who did the business as anything else.

STATE NEWS.

The steel gang of the Wichita Valley road reached Haskell Thursday, and but a few days will elapse before trains are running regularly to that place.

W. D. Jackson, a resident of Waco for nearly half a century, and who was the prohibition nominee for governor of Texas two years ago died Saturday.

Friday afternoon the 12-year-old daughter of Charles Mandell of near Malone, Hill county, was drowned while swimming in a tank near her parents' home.

A contract has been closed for the building of an interurban line of railway between Bryan and the Agricultural and Mechanical College. Work is to begin in sixty days and the cars must be in actual operation inside of a year.

At Paris Friday night Mrs. Katie McGuire, a young married woman, borrowed a revolver, entered a vacant house and shot herself through the heart. She leaves one child. The motive is unknown.

John Jacobs, a Virginian, suffering with malaria, at Morrisonville, took a whole dram of quinine at a dose. He was found next morning unconscious, writhing in agony. Physicians were hurried to the scene, but they arrived too late. Jacobs' lungs eyes, and the drums of his ears had burst.

On a certain occasion a boy's father bought a bottle of assafoetida and accidentally broke it in his pocket coming home in the evening after dark. His son came to meet him, but turned back to the house and reaching his mother's side, whispered excitedly "Ma, papa's dead and don't know it."

"For goodness' sake! What's that noise?" "The girl next door is having her voice cultivated." "Huh! Apparently the process of cultivation has reached the harrowing season."—Philadelphia Ledger.

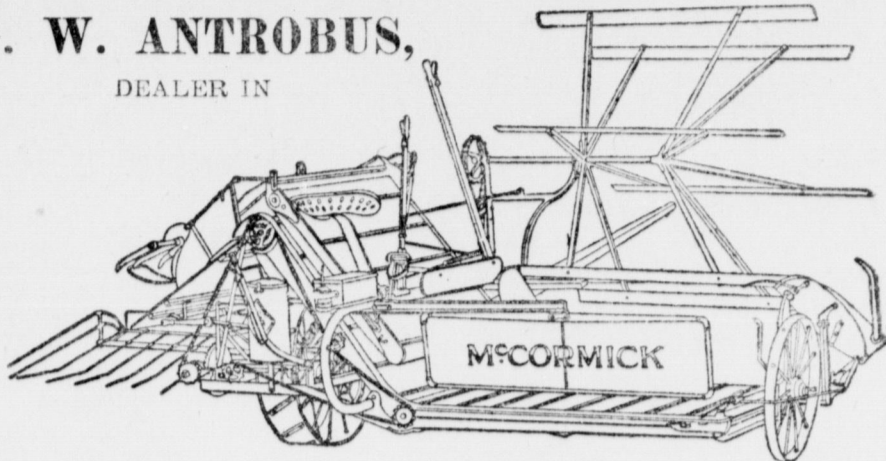

Virginia Baptists are preparing to make a fine exhibit at the Jamestown Exposition.

"I think that every young woman should learn to play the piano before she is married."

"That's right. And forget it afterward."—Cleveland Leader.

Advertising a City.

The city of Boston has appropriated $50,000 to be used for advertising purposes to advance the industrial and commercial interests of the city. This notable recognition of the value of advertising was suggested by Mayor Fitzgerald, who insistently urged the board of aldermen to take such action, promising that an equal amount would be raised by private subscription for the same purpose.

Mayor Fitzgerald is the editor and publisher of a successful weekly newspaper, and his plans for making a "bigger, better and busier Boston" are based on practical experience of what newspaper advertising can accomplish.—Scranton (Pa.) Truth.

CLARENDON, TEX., AUG 8 1906.

Several exchanges are commenting on the new daily paper at Amarillo. It has not yet put in an appearance at the Clarendon offices.

The Hall County Herald has been changed from a 7-col. folio to a 5-col. quarto. Editor Johnson is enjoying a good advertising patronage.

It is held that the issuance of free transportation to delegates to political conventions is violative of the Terrell election law, by Alex W. Acheson of the reorganized Republicans, if influence be used to procure the transportation.

A fine of from $200 to $500 shall be assessed against every candidate who fails to file an itemized statement of campaign expenses with the county judge within ten days after the primary election. This is to include his traveling expenses, hotel bills and money paid to newspapers, and he must make affidavit to the correctness of such account, showing to whom paid or promised.

Congressman John H. Stephens of Wilbarger has been appointed one of the Committee to receive William J. Bryan at New York on his return to America from around the world. He is the only congressman from Texas who has been so honored.—Hornet.

The parties holding the primary election in Childress last Saturday say they will never hold another election under the Terrell election law. The persons give various reasons, but all unite in saying there are too many unnecessary little things to look after that take up so much time.—Index.

At a sawmill on the Washita river in Indian Territory, 2,500 logs and a gasoline launch were swept away by a sudden rise in the river Friday.

Temple Houston, Jr., a brakeman on the Santa Fe, and son of the late Temple Houston of Woodward, Ok., was badly beat and cut up in a saloon row at Amarillo last week.

After many varying reports, it is at last confirmed that Jno. W. Veale is considerably in the lead for state senator and Judge Browning leads Judge Webster for district judge.

McAdams, a brakeman at work six days only, was killed in the Denver yards at Amarillo Sunday night. His body was torn to pieces. The head was found fourteen car lengths from the body. The legs and arms were torn off. His wife and children are at Childress.

Foreigners Coming.

F. M. Welch, immigration agent at New Orleans for the Gould system, states that a large influx of European emigrants is expected through New Orleans this fall, many of whom will be brought to Texas to populate and build up the western section of the state. The Gould roads, said Mr. Welch, are expending large sums of money in Europe to attract a good class of emigrants from Norway, Sweden, Germany, Russia, Northern Italy and Belgium, which people are largely of the agricultural class and the results of this work are beginning to be realized.

Mr. Welch expects soon to make a 400-mile buggy trip across the Staked Plains of Texas for the purpose of more closely acquainting himself with the conditions existing there and the inducements which the climate and soil offer to farmers.

The remains of Harvey Carmichael were found in the Plato and Timmerman pasture, two miles south of Rowena, last week and an investigation made by the proper authorities disclosed the fact that he had accidentally shot himself in the leg and in attempting to get to the nearest neighbor's house he bled to death. His remains were shipped to Fort Worth.

No $75,000 Offer.

ZULU, Tex., July 28.

DEAR BROTHER BLAKE:—I see by THE CHRONICLE that it has been reported that I have been offered $75,000 for my four sections. The land is better than some land that sells for twice that amount, but I have had no such offer. I hasten to correct the report before I am asked to endow some college or build a meeting house. Such land as mine sells for about $5 per acre. Your friend,

S. H. HUNT.

F. A. Gage, a son of former Secretary of the Treasury Gage, shot himself through the heart at the Tourist hotel in Seattle, Wash., Thursday.

An exchange tells of a newspaper reporter who interviewed thirty successful business men and found that all of them when boys had been governed strictly, and frequently thrashed. He also interviewed thirty loafers and learned that twenty-seven of them had been "mamma's darling," and the other three had been reared by their grandmothers.

The board of health in Philadelphia has closed during the last two weeks twenty slaughter houses as unsanitary and ordered immediate improvements in sixteen others. All the tainted meat was not in Chicago.—Ex.

The administration has concluded to allow John D. Rockefeller to make an appearance in court to answer a criminal charge without being personally present. That is according to Rockefeller some of the attributes of royalty of which he ought to be very proud. Such a courtesy was never extended to a criminal in the United States before.—The Investigator.

Whistler Saved Him.

A certain famous English poet whose name the reader must be left to fill in for himself was once threatened with expulsion from a swell London club for darning a fandango upon the silk hats of other members. James MacNeill Whistler, however, interposed and saved him with his eloquence. One man of genius, Mr. Whistler urged, was worth any number of silk hats, seeing that silk hats could be replaced and men of genius could not. Then and not till then the irate committee reconsidered its decision and accepted the apology which was tendered.

A Clerical Pun.

A complaint was brought before an eminent English bishop that a clergyman in his diocese was wearing an Oxford master's hood when, in fact, he had no such degree. "I call it, my lord," said the complainant, "wearing a lie on his back." "We need not use quite so strong a word, Mr. Smith," the bishop replied in his blandest manner. "Call it a false hood."

Before and After.
