Cotton and Its Growing Beauty Cotton is not only the greatest staple in the south but it is also one of the most beautiful plants. First, it is a rich, deep green, standing out between the dull soil and the blue sky, refreshing to the eye of the passerby, like an oasis in a des ert. Then comes the fragrant blossoms which in surrendering their life for the fruit to come, turn a pretty pink. Then next is the fibre, as white as the driven snow. If the season is propitious there are the blooms and the round bolls and the open cotton all on the same stalk. It is wonderful how beautiful nature is in her bounty. Ungrateful man often overlooks the most exquisite bits of nature's wonderful handiwork. He mechanically gathers the downy fibre from the boll, takes it to the gin, puts it in a bale, and marks it with. out giving a single thought to the glorious green, the pretty blossoms and the marvelous lint that is wov ff R. Human nature is about the same the world over. For one, The Statesman is persuaded the country is coming to the compulsory system of public education, and moreover, we are convinced that it should do so.

In saying this we are fully aware that the hob gob-lin of paternalism is to be interposed as an objection to compulsory education.

We are altogether free to admit, too, that it does seem somewhat paternalistic for the government to call for a handsome structure of say to a parent that his child must be sent to school so many days, or weeks or months per year for so many years.

But the public school system is predicted on the theory that enlightenment is essential to the perpetuity of our free institutions.

It smacks of paternalism for the government to force Jones (who has no children) to pay a tax to school the children of Smith and others. Still this is done for the protection and promotion of the public welfare. Now, if it is permissible for the state to compel Jones (who has no children) to pay a tax to educate the children of Smith and others on the theory that the weltare of society demands it, Jones has the right to expect and to demand that since the children shall, for the good of society, be the joint and equal ben eficiaries of it. As a factor of society this is Jones' right.

It is good to educate some of the children; it is better to educate

ROAD EXPERIMENT.

Containing Asphalt to Be Used With Sand at Cape Cod.

The Massachusetts highway commission is to conduct an interesting experiment in road building on Cape Cod, where there is no stone to speak of. A heavy grade of Texas crude oil containing a large percentage of asphalt will be used with the sand. The road machine, and heated oil will be of oil will be sprinkled on when the first coat has been on for two weeks. The surface will then be cut up with disk harrow so as to mix the sand and oil to a depth of four inches. After this has been done the road will be rolled and the surface sprinkled with a thin layer of sand to absorb the surface oil. A little work of this sort was done under the highway commission's supervision about two years ago, which has resulted satisfactorily.

Importance of Good Roads. The Gaffney (S. C.) Ledger gives the following fact and comment, which afford a practical argument on the subject of highway improvement in a nutshell: Some Cherokee county land sold the other day at public outcry and brought from $16 to $37.50 per acre. This land was twelve miles from the county seat at that. If we had macadam roads this same land would have brought $50 to $100 per acre. Half a million dollars spent in building good roads in Cherokee would mean an increase of a million dollars in the value of our farm lands alone. Will people never awake to their own interests and begin doing something for themselves, or will they continue to abide in the Good Roads Movement Progressing. Postoffice department officials are enthusiastic over the movement in some of the larger states of the Union for the improvement of the highways, and it is claimed that the liberal appropriations for the rural free delivery service have stimulated this movement. From information being received at the department, it is believed by the officials that highway improvement will be stimulated in all the more thickly settled states as rapidly as the rural delivery is extended, and one of the conditions for establishing a new J. L. Wilson, editor Collinsville route is that the roads must be in good condition. It is claimed also that the service is enhancing greatly the value of farm property.

Will Lay Three Grades of Gravel Roads In order to get the greatest possible benefits at the least possible expense gravel roads in Grand Rapids, Mich., will hereafter be divided into three classes-those designed to carry the heaviest traffic for which gravel roads are considered as suitable, those of medium traffic and the little used roads for a time, and the stranger finally of the outlying districts. For these asked: streets three grades of gravel will be used, varying in the percentage of stone which they carry and the care with which the material is screened.

Opposing counsel met the justice and talked in the same strain. A couple of days later they went together to the justice's office. He was out, but his docket lay open. Opposite the pig case was the entry, "Disagreed."-Indianap-

Bishop Mad Higher Aim.
It is the man who looks for trouble who generally finds it. When the late Bishop Dudley was about to transfer the field of his labors to Kentucky some of his friends were inclined to remonstrate. "So you are really going to Ken tucky?" said one of the "Yes, indeed," replied the bishop

"But do you know what kind of state that is?" inquired the anxious "Why, I saw in the paper that in a Kentucky town one man killed another for just treading on a dog. What are you going to do in a place like

"Well," replied the bishop calmly, "I am not going to tread on a dog."

IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME

While you're waiting for the fields of golden grain to ripen, then's the time to put cribs and granaries into shape for the coming harvest. You know how hard it is to find time to attend to these things after harvest sets in. Then its hustle day and night. So, if you are going to build new cribs and granaries, or fix up the old ones, right now's the time to get busy and attend to it. We call your attention to this just now, because we are making special prices on crib and granary bills. We've got the lumber—you want it. You've got the money—we want that. So why not swap and both be satisfied? Let us make you an estimate on any bill of lumber that you want. Perhaps we can save you some dollars-if that's any Lumber and Goal Gompany

Intensive Farming.

An agricultural paper tells of an agricultural expert's trip to several countries in Europe in search of information. He reports that in Holland, the most remarkable of all dairy countries, the farmers support an astonishing number of cows superintendent of the capitol building on a very small area. In some that the new senate office building will cases the land is made to carry two or three cows to the acre. For the entire country the land will carry a half to whole cow to the acre. The ordinary 20 acre farm carries 10 to about $35,000. Everything about the 20 cows, with the horses necessary huge stone pile is to be on a large to do the farm work, and three sheep to each cow.

On the best soil the 20-acre farm will carry 20 cows, three to four horses and 60 sheep, with the usual flocks of poultry. This means pas- tees undoubtedly will retain their presturage and soiling for the animals in the summer and grains, roots, hay and roughage in the winter. the most part the committees will be The cows are known there as Friesian and here as Holstein-Friesian cows, and their average production for the country over is 9,000 pounds of fine milk per head. Evidently the Hollanders must practice extensive farming and gilt edge breeding of the most intense stripe. At all events, such farming by will be placed in charge of arrange figures as these quoted cast a lurid ments for the new building, as was light on the American 150 acre farm that carries at a loss 15 to 20 cows, several horses and no sheep or poultry.

The Holland land sells at $600 to $2,000 per acre, while the American land is rated at $5 to $30 per acre. The tenant farmer in Hol land pays a rent of $50 to $100 per acre, and by intensive culture and Concorde, Paris, while the pavilions great yield his cows make a living, du Louvre. President Worst reports his visit creamery. That creamery recives milk from 2,000 cows and makes cheese and butter and sells milk In a year ending May 12, 1906, the creamery made 373,544 pounds of butter that was sold for $85,726, with 257,521 pounds of cheese that sold for $25,512, a total of $161,446 column is twenty-nine feet high, three for the year. The farmers, who feet five inches in diameter and rests are the shareholders of the cream ery, received $143.318 for their milk. That meant an income of $71.16 per cow for milk, while the fertilizer produced by the cows, and the value of their calves either to sell or to rear swelled the average earnings of their cows considerably.

Holland may be small, and the Dutch may be few in numbers, but American farmers could learn the ABC of agriculture in general, and of dairying in particular, of that diminutive country and its remarkable people.

Then again, John DeHough, a farmer of Sloux City, Ia., has dem onstrated what can be done by farm dairying in a practical way that shows the immense profits in the business when it is properly handled. On 75 acres of land and nine grade cows, with blood of dairy breeds predominating, Mr. Mc-Hough made his start. From the beginning he recorded the milk flows of each cow, and wherever he found one that was falling short, it was replaced by a better milker. At present his farm contains 60 head of high-grade and pure bred Holstein cattle, six brood sows and four horses. Last year's product from the 25 cows which are in milk sold for $3,675; the hogs brought in $700, and the total gross receipts was $4,375. This does not include the amount the young bulls and veal calves sold for. How can this much stock be kept on 75 acres? Intensified farming is practiced. Thirty acres of corn is raised for silage; about eight acres of barley and eight acres of alfalfa are raised annually. The remaining few acres are used for calf pasture, barn and barn yard, garden spot, etc. On 15 acres of the pasture the 25 cows in milk are kept the year around. On the remaining 15 acres of grass land the several dry cows and about 30 head of young cattle and the hogs are kept. There is always

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.] Much to the delight of the senators who have been compelled to find offices in the dark, dungeon-like rooms of the capitol building terrace and in the senate annex, the Maltby building, the announcement has been made by the be ready for use of the senators when congress convenes next December.

niture, costing about $65,000, and for the electric light fixtures, costing scale, and when the building is completed it will have cost the government about $4,500.000.

The new office building for the senate will bring about a rearrangement of many of the committee rooms. Some of the most important commitent quarters in the capitol, since they are more convenient than the rooms in the new office building. But for transferred to the new building. This will result in giving much more space in the capitol proper for those who remain there

Suits For Senators. The distribution of the suits, for each senator is to be given a suit consisting of two rooms and a private bath, will be made after congress has convened and probably will be determined by lot. A committee probathe case in the new house office building last session.

All the drawings for the senate office building were made in the office of Elliott Woods, superintendent of the capitol, subject to the criticism of the consulting architect, John M. Carrere.

Classic In Design. The exterior of the senate office building is classical in design. It suggests in its general division of parts the Garde Mauble, on the Place de la are modeled on those of the Colonnade

Elsewhere on the pavilions there are thirty-four additional columns, a total of sixty-eight. Each on a base or pedestal three feet high.

Barracks Scene In Wax.

Two interesting cases have been added to the museum of the quartermaster general's office, in the war department, state, war and navy build

One of the cases and by far the more interesting of the two depicts the interior of a regular army barracks. Two privates are seated at a table playing checkers. It is the black man's move, and the player is sitting with head thrown back, abstractedly puffing at a cigarette. At the right corner of his side of the table is an ash tray, on which is heaped a small pile of cigarette ashes. The other fellow is resting both hands on the table as if to say, "I've got you now." Everything in the scene indicates the scrupulous neatness of the barracks.

The other case represents three soldiers standing together-a sergeant of artillery, a sergeant of cavalry and a corporal of artillery. The figures in both cases are of waxlike composi-

powerful enemy of the elm leaf beetle, the pest which has threatened many of the city's beautiful shade trees, has been found by Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of ento mology, department of agriculture, who has for several seasons sought some parasite to make headway against the depredations of the beetle.

Six hundred of the parasités were bred by the department and liberated in the elm trees of the city. So destructive did they prove to the elm leaf beetle that the latter has practically disappeared. The parasite feeds upon the eggs of the beetle.

Fort Myer Improvements.

When the work of improvement at Fort Myer which is now under way is completed this fall, that post will, it is believed, rival in attractiveness, as far as its buildings are concerned, the recently improved Washington bar-racks. #### NEED OF GOOD ROADS.

Part of a Transporting Machine-Their Neglect Mars the Whole.

"To appreciate the necessity for good roads in America one should consider the road as part of a transporting machine. The machine is composed by a horse, a wagon and a road. If any one of the three is poor, the machine is poor and ineffective. Only a small load can be drawn, and that slowly. We have been spending thousands of dollars building up the breed of horses and improving wagons and have allowed the roads to run down and offset our costly upbreeding. Is it not time we stopped and considered the common sense course, to build up all three simultaneously?"

This unique presentation of the ne cessity of good roads was offered by Horatio S. Earle, the candidate for governor of Michigan on the Republican ticket, to the autoists, roadmakers and farmers which recently held a convention at Buffalo, and it aptly fits the case, making a profound impression on the farmers present. "The same situation exists when the motive power of the vehicle is furnished by an engine." he continued, "so that autoists and farmers are at one on the good roads question. The automobile needs a perfect road to accomplish all it is capable of accomplishing. Then let us be sensible and provide the possibility of getting the best out of it.

"The antagonism of the farmer to the automobilist is entirely unwarrant-There are some farmers who are offensive as some automobilists. The product of the automobile factories of Michigan sold for $18,000,000 in a year, and 75 per cent came from outside the state from the rich and well to do. It went to stockholders and employees and through them to the stores and farmers. The industry made possible by the users of automobiles meant a great deal to the farmers of Michigan, and it means as much to the farmers of many other states."

MANKATO'S GOOD ROAD.

Minnesota City Has Made a Mudless and Dustless Pavement.

Mankato, Minn., has solved the probsmall expense and one that can be used on steep grades as readily as on a level surface

First the driveway was narrowed to thirty feet, curbed, guttered and boulevarded. Then it was excavated to the depth of six inches and surfaced. Five inches of dry crushed limestone one and a half to two inches in diameter was put on and rolled down with a ten ton roller.

Boiling tar from the local gas works was applied until the entire surface was covered. Then, says the Cement Age, a layer of broken stone an inch to an inch and a quarter in diameter, mixed with coarse gravel, was applied on the surface in proportion of three parts of stone to one of gravel. This was first mixed dry on a platform and then thoroughly mixed with hot tar and applied on the surface two inches thick and tamped into place to conform with the surface of the street.

Dry domestic cement was then applied to the surface, and the street was again rolled. Then a coating of sand was applied and the roller again used. The pavement was allowed to stand for two weeks before the street was thrown open to travel.

The cost was 80 cents a lineal foot to the property owners on each side of the street or, rather, would have been had the entire cost been assessed against them. The street has a practically waterproof pavement six inches thick, and it is impossible for the elements to attack the surface. The pavement has now stood two winters and shows not the slightest wear. It gives off no dust in summer, although it is not sprinkled.

Automobiles and Good Roads.

The automobile has become the most important factor in the upbuilding of our public highways and has led to the reconstruction of more miles of good roads than any other conveyance ever introduced. While it may be true that it is more destructive of highways than any other vehicle, it is equally true that automobiling is only pleasurable upon the best roads man can construct. Thus it must and shall be that the more automobiles we use the better will our roads become for all classes of vehicles and traffic.

How Oil Saved the Rock Roads.

How China Fights Opium. China's efforts to stamp out the smoking of oplum reach picturesque extremes at times, as witness the following from the North China Daily News: "Recently a noncommissioned officer belonging to the Sixth division of the Luchun was found by a detective smoking opium in a hotel in the capftal. The officer was reported to Gen eral Wang Yin Kai, who at once asked the ministry of war for permission to decapitate the offender. This was granted. The condemned man was carried forth to the execution ground, and when he was about to be beheaded the whole division of troops knelt down before the general, asking pardon for the officer.

"The soldiers stated that the officer was not addicted to the opium smoking habit at all and that he was only using opium as a medicine when seen by the detective. The general replied that opium smoking was strictly prohibited among the military and that the officer had treated the opium regulations with unbecoming levity, so that if he should be punished it was only what he deserved. "General Wang continued that, as the fficer was not addicted to the habit, e would be sentenced to 8,600 blows and dismissed from the service as a warning to others. The general then informed the whole body of troops that from henceforth if any soldier should be found smoking opium he would be beheaded without fail."

Elephants and Locomotives. Railroading in the orient is fraught with some difficulties unknown here. In Siam recently a train struck a big white elephant and was instantly con verted into a scrap heap. The engine was hurled twenty feet from the track. This seems to be a case where, in a sense different from the proverbial one, the railroad company "had a white elephant on its hands. We recall one incident of this kind in America, the killing of Barnum's fa mous Jumbo at a railroad crossing s quarter of a century ago. The animals were being driven across the track when the baby elephant got in the way of an express. Jumbo rushed to the rescue, hurled the baby to safety with his trunk and then turned to fight the steam monster. One of his tusks was driven into his brain. In that case, however, the result was not so serious to the train. But, then, there's a difference between Siames and American trains.

Jewish Prizefighters.

The Hebrew Standard in commenting on the establishment by the Jewish Chronicle of London of a department of "Sports and Pastimes" says that it must be regarded as a sign of the times and of the abiding love of the Jew for all forms of athletic sport. "England." says the writer, "is the stamping ground of Jewish artists with the fists. In the old days-centering around the first years of the nineteenth century-there were Dan Mendoza, Abe, Sam and Israel Belasand Barney Aaron. You may read all about them in Sir A. Conan Doyle's stirring tale of action, 'Rodney Stone. In this country we can at this moment name only Joe Bernstein, Joe Choynski, Abe Attell, Tommy Ryan and the rising young east side pugilistic star, Leach Cross, among the Jewish prizefighters."

At 6 o'clock the breeze will make your hatband whistle. At 8 it will slap your tie in your face, and if you are wearing a soft hat and glasses the brim of your hat will beat against the rim of your glasses and make deep red marks on your cheek. By 10 o'clock the breeze is no longer a breeze, but moans and whistles round the corners like a March zephyr in Missouri. And if you stay up until blood red Aldebaran rises in the east and Vega dips low in the west the wind comes in enormous sighs, as if the very world must have been shaken to give them vent.-Shawnee Herald.

Sleeping In Tents. Since it became generally known that sleeping in the open air is a good rem edy for tuberculosis many people have adopted the practice of sleeping in tents in the summer. But sleeping in a tent is far different from sleeping in the open air. In fact, many people who sleep in houses come nearer being in the open air than those who occup; tents. A canvas room 8 by 10 feet, with sides close to the ground and the front closed, is not as airy a place as an ordinary bedroom twelve or fifteen feet square and with doors and windows open. It may be all right to sleep in a closed tent, but don't de-ceive yourself into believing that you are sleeping in the open air when you do it.—Portland Oregonian.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder curing a large per cent. of catarrhai cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhai dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous) farrhas, bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections. It is often successful in affecting cures.

The Favorite Prescription is advise tor the cure of one class of diseases—from the cure of one class of diseases—from the cure of one only of the cure of the cure peculiar weaknesses derangements and irregularities incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak wornout, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulæ of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-profess' and testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.
