

Odds and Ends.

Another Application of Electricity.

The call for an electrical sheep-shearer, made by a New Zealand correspondent in these columns some months ago, has apparently brought forth fruit in an unexpected quarter.

The head of the Hudson Bay Fur Company of England is Sir Curtis Lampson, by birth a Vermonter. It is now announced that he has applied electricity to the trimming of seal skins. The skin is "fed" over a knife-edge bar, above which is stretched a fine platinum wire, which, raised to a white heat by an electrical current, meets the longer hairs which rise above the under fur, and mows them down.

Fall of Meteors.

The master of a ship which arrived at Dundee in June, reported that when his ship was in latitude 51° S. and longitude 80° W. an immense meteor of amazing brilliancy fell into the sea within a few cables' length of the ship. As it plunged into the water it made a roaring, hissing noise, just as a mass of red hot iron would when extinguished. The second officer, Mr. John Veitch, took particular notice of this strange appearance, and of the nocturnal effulgence which the fiery body cast upon a broad expanse of the sky, and supplemented the entry in the log book by saying, "that possibly some ships that had gone amiss may have been struck and sent to the bottom by such meteors."

Since then a similar case has been reported nearer home. On the last night of June a great and brilliant meteor was seen to fall into Muskegon Lake, the harbor of Muskegon, Michigan, near the shore of the lake of the same name. The aerolite struck three or four hundred feet out from the shore, causing a great commotion in the water. The shock was heard through the city, arousing those who had not been startled by the glare.

A Rope From Sheep's Entrails.

A strong and durable article of belting is made at Oakland, California, out of the entrails of sheep.

The entrails, which will average 55 feet in length, are first thoroughly cleaned and then placed in vats of brine, where they remain some days. When thus prepared they are not much thicker than a piece of common cotton twine, and will sustain a weight of about ten pounds. The next stage in the process of manufacture is to wind the prepared material on bobbins, after which the process is the same as in making common rope. This method is used to produce a round belt; but where a wide flat belt is to be made a loom is employed, and the fine strands are woven together, as in ribbon manufacture. The flat belts are made of any size, and the round of sizes varying from one sixteenth up to one and a half inch in diameter. The round belts are made either in the form of a smooth cord, or as ropes with from three to five large strands. The three-quarter inch rope is said to stand a strain of seven tons, and is guaranteed to last ten years.

The Scranton Republican relates that as a Wilkesbarre man took his seat in the barber's chair he asked the barber if he had the razor he had used two days before. Being answered affirmatively, the patient man said, "Then give me chloroform."

The Clarendon News.

Christianity, Temperance, Civilization--Westward.

Vol. 5. Clarendon, Texas, Friday August 4, 1882. No. 10

Three people can keep a secret when two of them are dead.

The man who complains of paying ten dollars a year for pew rent went to the Barnum show last week and took his wife and his five children, paying one dollar each for reserved seats. He is going to take a cheap pew, and is in favor of reducing the salary of the minister.

Adulterated Tobacco.

A pamphlet has been published, showing that in Germany thousands of tons of beet leaves are transformed into tobacco. In some places chicory and cabbage leaves make the fragrant weed. An English chemist found a stuff sold for tobacco to be the leaves of a diaphoretic plant. It had been impossible to sell the plant as a drug, and it had been turned into tobacco to save loss.

Another writer informs everybody, or wants to, that chemists have an important place in tobacco factories. Fifteen factories in New York employ chemists to "flavor" cigars. They cannot do much with the wrapper, but they can "heighten and develop" the fillings. It is a relief to know on the authority of the writer quoted that opium is not used, although it used to be formerly, in England, but stringent laws broke the practice. The substances used to flavor tobacco are numerous. Every manufacturer has his own formula. Vanilla is the most common. This employed in the form of an alcoholic tincture to flavor fillings. It is said that few cigars are free from Vanilla. Its effects are not harmful if not used to excess. The tonka bean and balsam fir are used in the same way and for the same purpose. Cedar oil is also introduced.

The best imitator of the tobacco flavor is valerian. Valerian and vanilla are the most valuable chemicals now in use by tobaccoists. By their use the poorest stems may be converted into fair tobacco. Into cigarettes enter not only valerian and vanilla, but cascarilla bark. To make cigars burn, ammonia is used, and they are soaked in saltpetre. The latter is injurious and it makes young men old with dispatch. The object of its use is to cause the cigar to burn freely. It has been noticed by some smokers that an intoxicating effect has been produced by some cigars. This is produced by dipping the fillings in a solution of sulphuric ether and bromide of potassium. When it is known that New England rum is used with vanilla and valerian, it is nothing to wonder at that the cigars so treated produce intoxication. We do not name the brand that is treated with New England rum. If we did the demand would exceed the supply. To make tobacco, or aid in its adulteration, such other things as sugar, potato leaves, potash, tamarinds, aniseed, gum and various oils not heretofore mentioned are used to a greater or less extent. In New York alone eight hundred and twenty-six millions six hundred and sixty-six thousand cigars are made annually, besides two hundred and twenty-nine million eight hundred thousand cigarettes, and twenty-five thousand persons are employed.

Literary Work.

In writing for the press clearness and simplicity are the great things; but to say what you have to say so that it shall best accomplish its purpose, and that literary ornament shall not obscure the main idea or detract from the strength of its presentation, is an art which requires discipline for its mastery and the sacrifice of vain desires for personal display. But the habit of thinking clearly is the first necessity. Then put your thoughts into the most natural shape, and if they are what a newspaper wants you can sell them for what they are worth in the market. But a man cannot be taught this; he must learn by experience. Of the men who are in demand in the newspaper offices, those that have brains that are capable of initiating or carrying out ideas of value without chattering about them are the surest to find a place. Their work must not be fitful if they expect to be in steady employment. Geniuses who flare up one day and get drunk the next are pretty certain to be out at the elbows. Literary work to be worth much must be pursued industriously, regularly and soberly. If it is, and the man has an aptitude for it, he may make a fair living by writing. What to read? Everything that will feed your mind and stimulate your fancy, if you have any. But reading doesn't make a writer, bear in mind; it is by digesting and assimilating what you read that you strengthen your intellectual muscle, and then you may use it in the skilled labor of composition. To read what fails to interest you is useless. It only clogs the mind; but the habit of study begets the habit of acquirement. History, politics, philosophy, fiction even, may all help you. And whenever you have anything to write, try your hand at it to give it cunning. Then if you grow wise you will be able to write wisely; and if you see things clearly, weigh them properly, describe them pictorially, to draw from them the ideas they suggest, you may become the proficient with the pen that you desire to be. But you must submit to a life of toil; literary work is no child's play.—Waverly Magazine.

Edwin C. Woodbury, of the firm of Woodbury Brothers brushmakers, of No. 103 East Houston street, of this city, is today enjoying his liberty by a verdict of a sheriff's jury (yesterday duly confirmed by the Court) after two years of incarceration in the Bloomingdale Lunatic Asylum for the instance of some of his relatives. He was discharged a fortnight ago, as when reported in THE WORLD, but he refused his freedom because, as he said, "if I was insane when I entered I am insane now." And inasmuch as he had been put in through forms of law he insisted upon coming out only under legal declaration, and hence the verdict. Over the inquiry Dr. James W. Ranney presided as Chief Commissioner, and in his charge to the jury distinctly declared that there was nothing in the testimony of the Bloomingdale doctors nor of the patient (who had been most exhaustively examined) to show that Mr. Woodbury was ever insane. Dr. Ranney (perhaps extrajudicially) expressed his opinion "that it was time to look after the law under which it had been possible thus to deprive a man of his liberty for two years without any testimony against him but the certificate of two physicians. Under such a system," he said "no man could be safe from incarceration." When a parallel case of a sane man imprisoned in an English lunatic asylum was last year presented on the stage, critics and auditors congratulated each other that the imaginary scene (which was acknowledged to be thrilling and harrowing in representation) could not have been copied from real life in this State. Nevertheless, the fidelity of the drama has thus been illustrated in this city. While under examination the unfortunate patient spoke with just resentment of the failure of his attempts to get a hearing during his two years of false imprisonment and challenged his persecutors to describe one action of his throughout that time which indicated insanity. Woodbury was in the asylum while the drama was on the Wallack stage, and therefore he could not have copied from its dialogue. Unfortunately for Mr. Woodbury, he, like the late Mrs. Burr, the millionaire philanthropist, had angered his relatives by what they believed to be indiscriminate benevolence at the expense of his estate and also of their expectations. Perhaps the relatives of Mrs. Burr might have saved their pending will contest had they shut her up in Bloomingdale while she was yet alive under processes of law, which as the pending Obright lunacy case shows, are still effective when they are invoked by family pride or by family avarice.—World, July 15.

The old Meeting-House.

Uneasy girls and mischievous boys think it hard that they should be compelled to remain quiet during the one hour and a half of the modern church service. Their complaints may be moderated by reading the following description of church services in New England, two hundred years ago, when the prayer was almost an hour long, and all stood:

On foot, on horseback, singly, or on pillions (some of the old women and little children in ox-carts perhaps) they come. Some tie their beasts to the railings, others under houses they have had leave to build near by.

Entering the meeting-house they take their allotted places—all the married men and women, the elderly people, and civil and military dignitaries in the seats and pews below, according to rule; the unmarried of both sexes in the galleries, with a high railing between them; the boys under sixteen on the gallery stairs, if the latter are not removed to the tower; otherwise in "hind seats," or corner pews in the galleries always with tything-men, "to keep them from playing or sleeping."

The younger children on little benches in the aisles by the side of the pews or seats, into which they often creep to huddle round the mother's foot-stove. Those who are too young to sit alone are in little cages in the pews close to their mothers.

The negroes, slaves or free,—every town has several of both,—are on wall benches in the gallery—men and women apart of course; in the upper one, if there are two tiers of galleries; or perhaps their dark faces are peering out from those two queer cranies opening upon the gallery from the tower.

These are two square pews built for them at the head of each staircase in the tower, from which they are entered. They are sufficiently elevated above the gallery-pews to be very conspicuous from below.

They are arched over the top, balustrades in front, and so arranged as to prevent any communication with the other seats in the gallery. The boys call them "swallows' nest."

Very near the pulpit on either side sit the aged, deaf—the men on the right, the women on the left; adjoining the pulpit in front, the elders, if there be any; a step lower down, the two deacons in their respective seats. The most elderly man of most distinguished birth or service in the community is honored with a seat at the communion table—he, as well as the elders and deacons, facing the congregation.

About the doorways the guard is seated, each man with his bandoleer slung over his shoulders, his matchlock close at hand.

There is a rustle at the door. It is the minister? No—two constables leading in a culprit! He wears a white paper cap on which his sin is written, and is placed conspicuously on the stool of repentance.

Why He Didn't Sign.

In every community there are men who frequently find themselves in a strait. They wish to stand well with their fellow citizens, and would like to be thought public-spirited. But they are reluctant to lessen their balance at the bank. When a subscription-paper is handed them, whose object is some public benefit, then begins the struggle between their love of money.

A certain Georgia judge belongs to this class, and among the anecdotes told of his ingenuity in extricating himself from the grasp of a subscription-paper is the following:

A religious society was trying to build a new house of worship in the town where the judge was holding court. The clergyman waited on the judge, one day, just after the adjournment of the court.

"We are endeavoring to build a new house of worship," said the clergyman, handing the judge the subscription-list. "Perhaps this paper will inform you of my object better than I can tell you."

The judge examined the list with professional eye, and then, turning to the expectant minister with his blandest smile, "That will bind them sir; no doubt about it."

"But, judge, you don't understand me," answered the parson, taken a little aback; "I want you to help us. We are going to raise"—

"Ah! going to have a raising—a house raising, are you? Well, let me know the day, and I will send up three or four hands with pleasure."

"Why, judge it's a brick house we want," answered the minister, bewildered at the judge's stupidity.

"A brick house, is it? Won't a log house do as well? Several years ago we built a log house in our community for religious purposes,—some cut the logs; some hewed them;—some raised the house, and some covered it. And the Lord has never made any complaint against it yet. If you build a log house, and the Lord complains, I'll head the subscription-list for a brick one."

The parson left then and there.

Hair Turning white in a Single Night.

About fifteen years ago a young man named Henry Richards, who lived at Terre Haute, Ind., was going home one evening about dark from a visit to a friend, and was walking along the railroad track. Some little distance from town was a very high trestle over a creek, there being no planks placed across for walking, so that people had to go over on the ties.

Richards was walking along at a lively rate, and when he arrived at the bridge he did not stop to think that a train coming in was then due but, being in a hurry to get home, he started to walk across on the cross-ties. He had gotten nearly half way across the bridge when the train came slipping around a curve at a lively rate. He saw the train at once and started to run, but saw it was useless as it would certainly overtake him before he could get off the bridge.

He was now in a terrible plight. To jump off was certain death, and if he remained on the track the train would crush him to pieces. There was no woodwork beneath the bridge for him to hang on to, so he saw that his only chance was to swing on to a small iron rod that passed under the cross ties. No time was to be lost, as the train was nearly on the end of the bridge. So he swung himself under the ties, and in a few moments was hanging on for dear life. The engineer had seen him just before he swung under the bridge, and tried to stop the train, but did more harm than good, as he only succeeded in checking the speed of the train, and made it a longer time in passing over the form of Richards. As the engine passed over the coils of fire from the ash pan dropped on his hands, burning the flesh to the bone, as he could not shake them off, and to have let go would have been certain death. The trial was over, and nearly dead from fright and exhaustion, with his hands burned in a terrible manner, Richards swung himself upon the bridge again and ran home. When he reached there his hair had not turned, but in a short time afterward it began to get gray, and by morning it was almost perfectly white.

He Forgot the Bullet.

It is but seldom that the comic element enters into attempts at suicide. A diverting exception to this general rule is afforded by the suicide enterprise of a Hungarian engineer, resident at Temesvar, who being a steadfast votary of Bacchus, had drank himself into so unsatisfactory a state of mind that a few days ago he determined to put an end to his existence. Having provided himself with a pistol and locking himself up in a private room of a hotel in the town, which apartment he had hired for the purpose, he pressed the muzzle of the pistol against his left breast and pulled the trigger. The usual explosion followed, and the would-be suicide fell to the ground, where he lay patiently for several minutes, waiting for death. Dissolution, however, failing to set in as promptly as he expected, he presently arose, left the hotel, and walked home, with a view to dying comfortably in his own apartment. Later on, perplexed by his unaccountable vitality, he sent for a surgeon to examine the wound. Beyond a slight scorching of the skin, no injury could be detected; and while the surgeon was vainly searching for a mortal wound, his patient anxiously inquired where the bullet had lodged.

"I fancy," was the reply, "that you must have forgotten to put the bullet in the pistol."

"Give me my waistcoat," said the intended self-slayer; and, sure enough safely ensconced in the watch-pocket of that garment, was found the missile with which he had designed to take his own life. Since this discovery he has quitted Temesvar, in which town he found that his rash attempt to kill himself with a charge of powder and a wad had rendered him the object of more public notice, attended by uncontrollable hilarity, than was altogether agreeable to him.

Stopped His Paper.

Nowaday when a subscriber gets so mad because an editor differs with him on some trivial question that he discontinues his paper, we remind him of a good anecdote of the late Horace Greeley, the well-known editor of the New York Tribune. Passing down Newspaper row in New York city one of his readers, met him who exclaimed,—

"Mr. Greeley, after the article you published this morning, I intend to stop your paper."

"Oh, no!" said Mr. Greeley—"don't do that."

"Yes, sir, my mind is made up. I intend to stop the paper."

The angry subscriber was not to be appeased, and they separated. Late in the afternoon the two met again, and Mr. Greeley remarked,—

"Mr. Thomson I am very glad that you did not carry out your threat this morning."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, you said you were going to stop my paper didn't you?"

"And so I did. I went to the office and had my paper stopped."

"You are surely mistaken; I have just come from there and the press was running and business was booming."

"Sir," said Thomson very pompously, "I meant I intended to stop my subscription to your paper."

"Oh, thunder!" rejoined Greeley; "I thought you were going to stop the running of my paper, and knock me out of a living. My friend let me tell you something: One man is just one drop of water in the ocean. You didn't set the machinery of this world in motion, and you can't stop it; and when you're underneath the ground things on the surface will wag on the same as ever."

August 4, 1882.

Col. D. J. Hynes, of Fort Worth, came up from Henrietta with Judge Brown, and remained here until Thursday morning when he left by stage for Mobeetie, where he goes to take charge of the Panhandle.

Col. Hynes is a practical printer and a news paper man, and will give fresh vigor and tone to the Panhandle. We welcome him the more heartily to this region, inasmuch as he is a Wisconsin man. He was formerly Mayor of the city of Kenosha in that state.

We have never had the good fortune to meet Mr. Edwards, the retiring editor; but we wish him all possible success in any field of labor in which he may engage. We have had occasion to give the paper a "diff," now and then, but have never intended any personal reflection. Mr. Edwards has our warmest wishes for success.

Mobeetie Dots.

Mobeetie, August 1st 1882.

Mobeetie is lively and everything is assuming an air of prosperity; our merchants are doing a good business. There promises to be a boom in the building line here this fall. Thomas Riley is building a costly dwelling on his property, B. F. Clappitt's new house is about completed and when finished will be one of the finest dwellings in town.

Bert Clappitt has returned from Kansas and brings one of Missouri's fair daughters to grace his domicile. Her mother Mrs. Giland accompanied them to Mobeetie to remain a short time.

Judge Patten intends erecting a fine dwelling, also Mr. Wm. Anderson contemplates building, and several others are talking of building.

Altogether this promises to be a prosperous year for our town.

Crops promise to be the best the Panhandle was ever blessed with.

A good many Cow men have been in town the past week and all seem to be very happy.

Messrs. Grooms and Spiller returned from their trip to the plains yesterday and expressed themselves as highly pleased with the country over which they passed.

Captain Armington, of the Texas Rangers, came down from Tascosa yesterday, bringing one prisoner and capturing another here yesterday. Captain is a justice loving man but he will play pool.

Our friends of the legal fraternity are busy getting ready for court, as also is every body else.

Judge Willis and Sheriff Fleming are expected home this week.

An enjoyable little hop at Richardson's Hotel last night. Quite a number of our best citizens were in attendance.

Mobeetie is to have a brass Band. Subscriptions are in circulation to raise the amount required to purchase the instruments.

Every thing quiet, and every body wants to be Sheriff. We think a black horse will be the lucky man.

Our friend Houston longs for a fresh draught of Clarendon water.

Suicide.

A clear case of self disgust and a broken heart, a regular Catiode: for several days and memorable nights of late, there has been a regular "Cat-awampus" in and about a huge stack of fencing posts near a certain well, a serious and comical mingling of ser- ches screams and caresses finally terminating in a fatal plunge yesterday a. m. about daylight, and tabby was over in a dangerous and critical situation. Mr. K. was first at the well, and discovered the catastrophe. A basket and sundry buckets were lowered but in vain. The injured, outraged feline would have none of their kind overtures; and soon ended her existence, adding yet another to the long and heartrending catalogue of tragic death's. Hereby hangs a tail.

That pluming party looked rather disconsolate. One small, lily-white hand full was all they had to show.

Announcements.

We are authorized to announce H. S. Melven, Seymour, Baylor Co. as candidate for Representative of the 43rd Rep. District, subject to the action of the Democratic Convention should one be called.

We are authorized to announce J. N. Browning, of Wheeler County as a candidate for Representative of this, the 43rd representative District in the next legislature of Texas.

We are authorized to announce S. W. T. Lanham of Weatherford as a candidate for Congress from the Eleventh District at the coming election.

Skinny Men.

"Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia, Impotence, Sexual Debility. $1.

Lyon & Gribble, the wide awake Lumber men, whose card appears in our paper, announce themselves at Henrietta with a full line of Lumber, 500,000 feet bone dry, and three car loads of Glidden, Gollette & Fren-tress fencing wire, and every thing required in the building line. We have dealt with them for years at Sherman and Gainesville, and commend this old and staunch firm to all concerned.

An enricher of the blood and purifier of the system; cures lassitude and lack of energy; such is Brown's Iron Bitters.

It is reported by some of the boys, whom we trust are good authority, that E. J. Simpson, on Pease River, has in his possession a fine pack of long-eared fox hounds with which he proposes to run cattle. He thinks that every one of the boys who ride signs ought to have at least one pair of these beautiful hounds and offers them, we think, at the reasonable figure of $100 a pair.

Take notice boys, now is your chance, take a spin down to the ranch and secure a pair of these beautiful creatures.

Dyspepsia, the insidious foe to health, Disappears by using Dr. Acker's Dyspepsia Tablets. At Druggists.

Johnathan Burwell, Esq., of Dallas, Texas, formerly President of the Sabine Pass and Northern Railway Co., and actively connected with the building up of the town of Lawrence in Kaffman Co., is expected very soon.

Mr. Burwell comes with an eye to stock growing and will probably become identified with stock affairs in the Panhandle. We speak for him a cordial welcome in advance.

The St. Louis Illustrated Magazine for August is received. This number presents an interesting Table of Contents. In point of literary merit it surpasses any previous numbers that we have seen. The first article "Living in Germany," and the Poetry, are worth the price of the Magazine. The fashion plates are elaborate and elegant. Send two three cent Postage stamps for a sample copy. Address T. J. Gilmore, 213 N. Eighth street, St. Louis, Mo.

"Rough on Rats."

Clears out rats, mice, roaches, flies ants, bed-bugs, skunks, chipmunks gophers. 15c. Druggists.

On Wednesday evening of next week, another literary entertainment will be given, at the house of one of our citizens. Music, reading and recitations will be the order of the evening.

The author of "Clarendon Dots" in the Panhandle wishes to know where he can get "Benzine" in Mobeetie. We suggest that he read the Advs. in the Panhandle. He knows all about the snake-bite remedy himself and could not go amis of it in Mobeetie. Mobeetie would be a nice little town, if there were not so many cases of snake-bite there. The Panhandle has it, bad.

HOME NEWS

J. Duke is on the sick list.

Osborn had a tooth extracted.

B. H. White is complaining.

T. S. McClelland has a hard cold.

J. S. Rockwell was in town on Tuesday.

William Ross is in town again from the brakes.

Mr. Frank Houston and wife were at the White House on Monday.

Friend Hawkins is again in town, this week.

J. S. Rockwell registered at the White House this week.

Goonight's men are rounding up on the head of Mulberry.

The boys had quite a blow-off at the Barber Shop on Monday night.

Wednesday was one of the hottest days of the season. It was an old smoker.

Mr. Murch, one of the proprietors of the ruby brand, is in town this week.

Prof. Randall is some-what under the weather, after his return from Mobeetie.

Judge Brown left Henrietta on Friday night last and reached here Tuesday noon.

The Panhandle has run short of reading matter. Draw on the News, neighbor. We have a surplus.

Henry Hamburg, of Mobeetie was in town on Sunday, and pulled for Mobeetie on Monday morning.

Hill Rice, beef buyer, is stopping in town for a few days. He has been looking over fat steers in this vicinity.

Prof. W. T. Randall was very sick last night. He is suffering from congestion of the brain.

J. L. Fisher came into town from Mobeetie Thursday evening, loaded with goods for Van Horn.

J. J. Stanton is still actively engaged in the hay business. He finds the grass plentiful in many localities.

We enjoyed a pleasant call, yesterday from Mr. McKinney, Sen. He is not looking very robust.

Floy Brown also made us a pleasant call this week. He is quite inclined to catch horses by the hind leg.

Wheeler County Court convenes on Monday next. Judge Brown expects to be present.

Ante-fat, in over doses. That's what ails the Panhandle. Anti-fat, did we say? or is it the "jimjams" that ails us?

A stranger came into town a few days since and rode up to the school house and ordered dinner for two. He supposed it was the White House.

Jimmy Glenn has been buying certain articles of furniture and it is hinted that he intends to set up for himself soon as he can find some one to cook and keep the house for him.

Mr. Agee, who came to town on Wednesday with the crippled man from the Bridle Bit range, says we have the finest water of any place he has seen in Texas, and he has traveled extensively through the state. This testimony is given by many others.

Mr. J. E. Hoffman, who came to our town from the North last April, and remained a few days and in company with his friend Biles went to Little Red Canon to work, returned on Saturday, quite sick, and has been under the Dr's care ever since. He is better and expects to return next week.

T. W. Morrison walked down to the Barber shop this morning. His friends were glad to see him on the street again.

Hasser was in town again this week. He is pushing the fence business. His contract covers about twenty two miles of fence.

T. W. Morrison, who has been under the Dostor's care for some time, is improving. His nephew is out on the street again and doing well.

J. E. Huffman, who has been here a week, under the Dr's care, is so far recovered that he hopes to return on Monday morning.

Blinds have been put upon the School House, and it has been treated to a new coat of paint with dark trimmings, which improves its appearance very materially.

Continual additions are being made to the stock at the Barber Shop. Mr. Osborn states that he has something useful for the ladies. He keeps only the best.

Prof. W. T. Randall returned from Mobeetie on Monday night, and has been quite unwell ever since. He is very favorably impressed with Mobeetie, and anxious to return.

Mr. Richards, of the firm of Sacre and Richards, came to town last Saturday. He is here to receive the cattle bought of Wilson Brothers & Thomas, about ten thousand head.

We have wondered for some time what ailed the Panhandle but it is now plain; viz:—

"J. H. Richardson Saloon;"

"Palace Saloon;"

"Cattle Exchange Saloon"

"Pendeleton & Co., Liquor Dealers."

"Benson & Harris; Imported & Domestic Liquors."

"G. M. Hoover, whole sale dealers in Wines, Liquors and Cigars."

The above advertise in the Panhandle, and if the Panhandle receives pay in kind its idiosyncrasies are accounted for, and it will not need any more Ante-fat. "O my leanness!"

The good young man, who got the cow tail job, left town last week, in high spirits. He is still inquiring for "George," and wishes to know where he got "that thing." He will be a success in any cow pen.

A. R. Carhart is expected here with herd of cattle, on Monday next. Rev. W. A. Allan and family, Prof. Combs and wife and Geo. W. Bradford and wife accompany them. They will camp at Worly Lakes on Sabbath.

Hiram Straight pulled in from Mobeetie, Thursday. He was loaded with goods for VanHorn. His absence was occasioned by his being engaged to haul the family and goods of J. Wright to Mobeetie.

D. L. Lee called on us this week, and subscribed for the News. He came to the Panhandle with Mr. F. Houston, sen., and has been in his employ for a time. He contemplates remaining hereabouts.

C. F. Lanter, of Teepe City, is camped on south side of Salt Fork, with twenty-four head of horses for sale. Parties wishing horses would do well to consult him.

Ross and Ezra pulled in from the brakes of Mulberry this week.

Bill goes to Mobeetie for supplies, and then pulls for Running Water, to fill contracts for timber. Bill expects to live on buffalo steaks and the fat of the land generally.

Geo. Osborn was attacked by an antelope, last Sunday, and obliged to kill the antelope, in self-defense. The Sunday before, he was attacked by two and killed them both. They have an old grudge against George.

L. E. McKinney and his son M. C. McKinney, of Bloomington, Ind., reached their sheep camp on Tuesday night. They have with them a young man by the name of Browning. They intend to move their camp and flock of sheep south, in about two weeks.

Wilson Brothers & Thomas have rounded up their whole range and are now turning over their cattle to Sacre & Richards.

The boys are looking out for water melons, and have "marked and branded" every one of any size, in this vicinity. It is hinted that some of these melons are loaded. Be careful boys, when you touch them off.

The displayed advertisement of the Clarendon News which appeared in the Panhandle last week is not a paid Adv. A portion of the reading matter on the first page of the Panhandle was a paid advertisement. Interesting reading for intelligent people.

An invaluable strengthener of the nerves, muscles, and digestive organs, producing strength and appetite, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

On Wednesday a young man from the Bridle Bit range, by the name of S. E. Tomlison was brought to town in a crippled condition. He was thrown from his horse and the clavicle (collar bone) broken. The fracture was reduced and held adjusted by the usual figure 8 bandage. He is doing well, and is accompanied by John Agee, of the same ranch.

Republican Cell.

The citizens of Clarendon and vicinity are invited to meet in convention on Monday at 6 o. c. P. M. at the School House for the purpose of electing one or more delegates to State Republican Convention at Austin, August 23d.

Committee.

Notice.

The Patrons of the Public School are requested to meet at the School House on Wednesday evening Aug. 9th at 8 o'clock, to elect three Trustees for School Community No. 1, and transact such other business as shall properly come before the meeting.

A New Round-Up.

The Medicine Lodge Cresset refers to a new system of round-up, which will prove successful:

This meeting was something of a new departure in the method of gathering and handling strays on the range, and like all experiments, there was considerable doubt as to its success.—The idea of rounding up by neighborhoods and then bringing in the strays from each locality to some central point, was suggested, we understand, by our friend Jim Wilson of the Medicine river and Kiowa Pool, and if so, to him belongs the credit of originating the best system of gathering strays that was ever practiced in Barbour county. On Thursday morning, right on the heels of what was supposed to be a tolerably clean round-up, it was announced that somewhere in the neighborhood of 900 strays had been driven into Mr. Paynes pasture from the different parts of the country, which shows that general round-ups are not to be entirely depended upon for gathering stock, and it is admitted even by those who have been the most skeptical, that the plan of last Thursday was the least expensive and the most thorough ever tried here.

A number of cattle dealers at Independence contemplate fencing a tract of land twenty miles square in the Nation, and which will accommodate 40,000 cattle. Independence claims more cattle men with larger interests than any other town in Southern Kansas, and that they are all doing well.

Two year old cattle are selling in Barbour county at from twenty-five to twenty-eight dollars per head, and cows at about the same figure.

—Dodge City Times.

Pleuro Pneumonia.

The stock breeders of this country from poultry to horses ought to cultivate a sentiment of active opposition to all contagious diseases among animals, so that the raisers may be united in case special action is necessary in particular cases. We do not believe that pleuro-pneumonia has yet become a native American disease, but there is no telling how soon it may. What is needed most now is, to purchase no animals from infected localities until a year after every case of it there has been passed. Our stock dealers cannot be too careful. Test every case by the most rigid scrutiny. Our Kansas breeders are raising native stock of pure and crossed breeds, and there is little necessity for going beyond the limits of our own state for good stock. We would advise the purchase of no cattle east of the Ohio, as long as there is any doubt; and for our own part, if we could be supplied in Kansas we would not cross the line for any animal of the cow kind.—Kansas Farmer.
