Bill Mooring harvests his corn crop

Bill Mooring's hired hand, Don Moss, was driving a combine through the last few acres of Mooring's field of feed corn. As the kernels dropped down one shaft inside the combine, the chaff and stubble flew out another shaft in the rear. Bill Mooring stood near his grain cart, waiting for Moss to fill the combine hopper so that Bill could come in behind him to unload. Mooring hoped he could finish the harvest that evening, and he wondered whether he would bother with corn again next year.

"I raised it last year and made money," Mooring said. "Raised it this year and didn't. It was bringing $4.70 a hundred weight last year. Now it's $3.30."

Most local farmers grew cotton this season, and Mooring believes now that he should have, too. "Last year was a good year for corn," he said, "but we over-produced this year." According to Bill Mooring's son, David, who recently returned from Texas Tech with a degree in industrial management, corn is a less risky crop to grow. "It takes more water," he said, "but you can depend on what you're going to make. Other crops' yields vary from year to year. Also, corn is not as vulnerable to sand storms and hail."

"The only bad thing about it now is the price. Cotton would have been a lot more profitable crop. It costs more to raise corn, but if the price of corn goes back up to about $4 per hundred weight, then it all starts evening out because of the risk factor."

If corn is less profitable this year than cotton, it at least still is a more profitable feed crop than milo. Bill Mooring said. "Corn is 40 cents a hundred weight better than milo," he said, "and the yield potential is 1,500 pounds per acre better than milo."

What the corn-raisers will have to do to overcome the price problem they face, according to David, is to improve their marketing technique. James Hodges, an independent trucker has been carting the Mooring's corn straight from the dryer to Fort Worth. "Within the next few years we'll start storing the corn ourselves," David said.

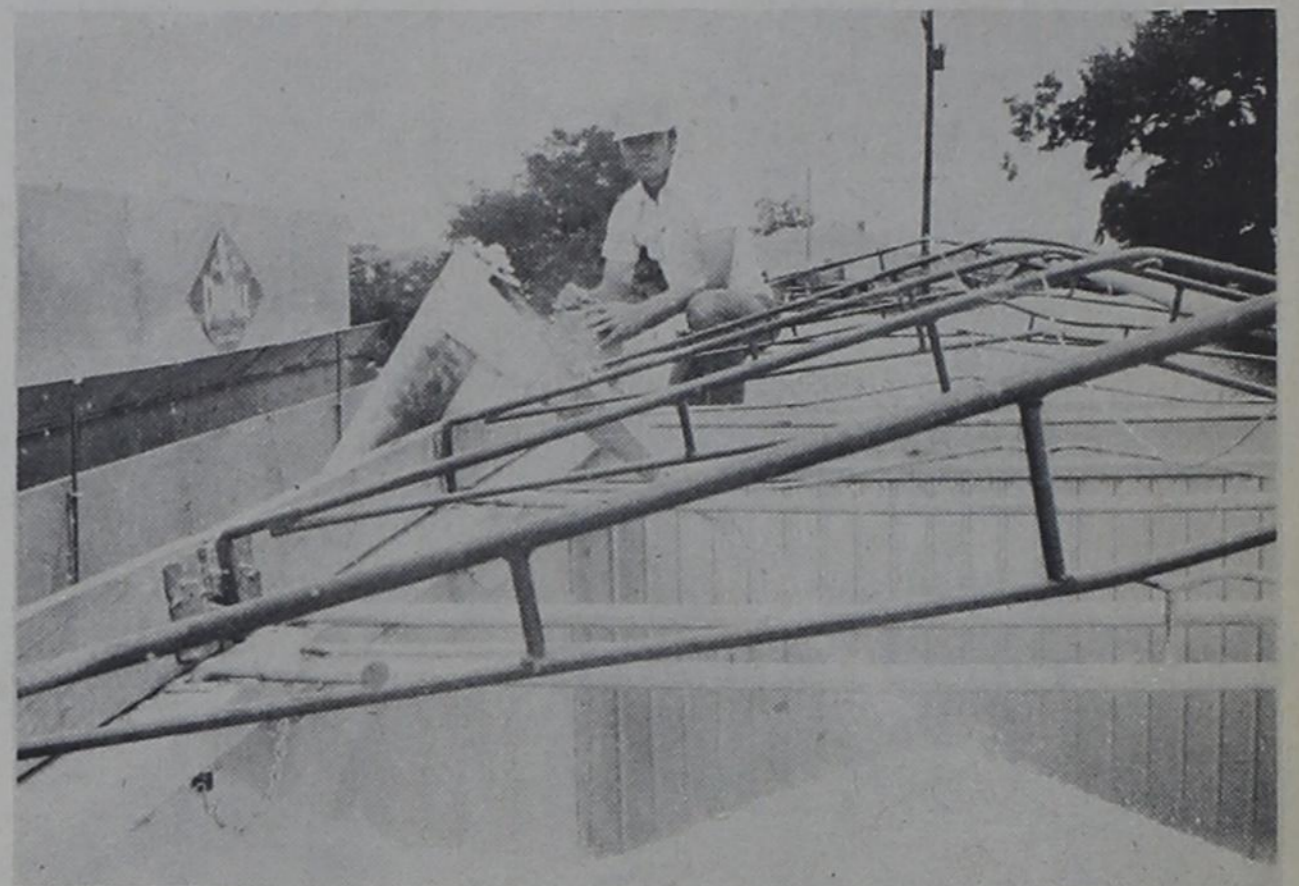

It is not likely that the Mooring's would give up corn entirely, despite the marketing problem they're facing right now, because there are too many positive attributes in the crop. Besides corn's sturdy defense against rough weather and its dependable yield, corn stubble is full of valuable organic matter which, when turned under, revitalizes the soil. Also, the stubble is excellent fodder left right where it is. "I leased out this land for pasture last year," Bill Mooring said. "One hundred head of cattle grazed on it for three months and each of them gained a pound a day."

However, if Bill Mooring plants alfalfa on the ex-corn-field as he intends to do, he won't have time this year to graze cattle on the land. He only has the rest of this month to seed his alfalfa if he expects to start harvesting it on time in the spring. Still, if he had planted cotton instead of corn he would have had to let his field lie fallow for half a year before planting some other crop. "That's another of the good things about corn," Bill Mooring said. "It allows you not to miss a crop."

David Mooring climbed up into the load section of James Hodges' truck to test the DON MOSS drives combine through the last rows of BILL MOORING's corn crop.

Edens growing 'baseball bats'

Jack Edens of 2405 E. Browning has told several persons lately that he is raising "baseball bats" along the fence in his back yard.

A trip out to Jack's house, however, revealed that he has some plants, supposedly dipper gourds, which look like baseball bats. Dipper gourd seeds were planted at the spot, but the Edenses have no idea why the plants have grown as they did.

Jack's wife, Hazel, shown here with a sample of her husband's "bats," said that Jack likes to plant different things "just to see what they would be like."

"He planted a New Zealand bean about three years ago just for kicks," Hazel said.

Jack said he can't imagine any use for the strange dipper gourds. He plans to give them away to people who enjoy curiosities.

Flight ground school offered at CC

Registration is now being held at Clarendon College for those interested in taking the Ground School for Flight Training.

The class will meet each Monday evening at 7:00 p.m. beginning October 3. Classes will be held in room 101 of the academic center of the college.

Instructors for the course will be Jim Hayes and Dr. R.L. Gilkey of Clarendon. Both instructors are highly qualified under FAA.

The course is 30 class hours in length and will cover the necessary material to qualify students to take the exam for private pilot license.

Cost of the course will range from $100 to $150 depending on the number enrolling in the class. Twelve or more students enrolled would cost $100 per student and eight enrolled would cost $150 per student. The course is approved for VA benefits.

Students may enroll during regular office hours at the college, Monday through Friday or from 6-7 P.M. on Monday, October 3.

humidity level of the corn as it flowed through a huge dryer. The heated corn sent out a faint aroma reminiscent of popcorn. "Most feedlots are buying corn at 15 to 15 1/2. This is cutting out at 18 1/2 and drying down to 14 1/2," he said.

James Hodges leaned against his 70,000 pound capacity truck and smiled. "All the local corn goes to feedlots and feed stores, but 99 per cent of the corn in the Hereford area goes to Frito-Lay."

Teacher clarifies special education purpose

Clarendon is in its sixth year of having a special education program in the public school, yet many citizens here still think of the program as one for either the mentally retarded or the emotionally disturbed child. Yet this is not the case, according to one of the teachers certified for the program here. "Special education is for the exceptional child," the teacher said. "That includes the gifted child as well as the retarded, the physically handicapped as well as the emotionally disturbed. "It also includes persons, not necessarily retarded, who are having some difficulty in learning because of some perceptual or expressive malfunction. Such conditions can usually be corrected," she said. And special education is also meant for the homebound students such as those who are pregnant or so physically handicapped as to be unable to go to the school. If time, personnel and facilities permitted, everyone could benefit from a

"special" education. "Every person has a manner in which he learns," the teacher said, "either visual, auditory, tactile, kinesthetic, or multisensory...and each of us has some kind of learning disability, but we learn to compensate." Clarendon is the Eastern Panhandle special education co-op which is headquartered in Shamrock. The co-op staffs a vocational adjustment coordinator, educational diagnosticians and counselors. The Clarendon school system itself has five special education teachers and two aides. Teachers for special education must have a special education endorsement above a bachelor's degree. All units of the special education program in the public schools stress each student's strengths and work with the student with these strengths in mind. Generally, there are seven programs available under the special education aegis. However, one, the Satellite program for those with a severe learning disability has been discontinued in Clarendon for lack of enrollment. Under the Satellite program students are taught social skills and basic needs skills and are trained for menial jobs.

The six other programs, which are available in Clarendon, are Early Childhood, Level I, Level II, Level III, Homebound and LLD (Language or Learning Disability). "The Early Childhood program is in its fourth year at Clarendon," the teacher said. "It is designed for pre-school children who have a potential learning disability and is meant to prepare them for the public school."

The teacher said that Levels I, II and III are respectively for elementary, middle and high schools. "The vocational program is the focal point in Level III special ed," she said. "In it students are prepared for job placement. Thus far, Clarendon has achieved 100 per cent job placement for this group."

The Homebound program -- for the orthopedic, the pregnant or the physically immobilized student -- involves the teacher coming into the home.

The language and/or language (LLD) students, when their disability has been repaired, can be moved into the regular academic program. Where applicable this program is in existence throughout all grades in Clarendon. The teacher, out of her own experience, has developed a fervent admiration for what special education can do in the schools. "There are cases where, if the child had begun the program at 4- or 5-years-old, and had they had the program to work with the child right on up through the grades, by the time the student reached junior or senior high he would be in what we call the 'mainstream,' -- mainstream is, of course, without special help."

Since all the various parts of the special education program require one-to-one instruction, the teacher said that the maximum number of students a teacher can work with at any one time is about 10. "You've got all these students on an individual basis," she said, "and they're at all different levels, and their disabilities are different; so you're working with them individually. You can work with them that way because you're trained to do so. You have them working in different areas, and you know from their folders exactly where they are and what they're doing individually. You work with things like tape recorders, film projectors, listening stations, special disability handout sheets of various kinds. Attention spans depend upon what the disability is, but attention spans are short. However, the students are, as a whole, cooperative. After you establish the relationship which you're naturally going to establish in your classroom, they begin to want to work with you. Naturally, some students are more active than others, but this is just something you have to learn to work with."

"It takes a little more patience, yes, and a little more training, yes, but when you finally get a concept over -- when they finally master it -- that's a terrific feeling, your feeling for them and then your feeling for yourself, too."

PBL organized at CC

Students of the Division of Business at Clarendon College have applied for national charter to organize a Phi Beta Lambda Chapter for students enrolled in Business courses. Phi Beta Lambda is a national vocational student organization with over 160,000 members nationwide. The organization which is approved and recommended by the U.S. office of Education operates as the post-secondary division of Future Business Leaders of America. The Clarendon College Chapter will join 25 other chapters in annual competition in business skills and competencies in March. The 1st place winners in these events will go on to represent Clarendon College at an Annual National Leadership Conference in July. This year to be held in San Francisco, CA.

Annually Phi Beta Lambda Members participate in a national project for the March of Dimes. In 1976 the organization presented a check for almost one million dollars to the M.O.D. as a Bicentennial Gift. Pictured above is Roy Monroe, of Clarendon, one of the charter members of the organization introducing the National M.O.D. Youth Symbol at the 1st PBL meeting. The theme of the meeting was a rendition of KORN news from "Hee Haw".

Future Phi Beta Lambda Charter members from Clarendon include: Brenda Shields, Larry Shields, Lahoma Sator, Mike Skinner, George Howard, Roy Monroe, Sandra Veal, and Sam Jones.

Howardwick Partyline

Approximately 35 guests and members attended the Lions Club meeting and supper which was held Saturday evening. Lion Doty gave the report on the Zone meeting held at 2:00 p.m. Saturday at Howardwick. Lion Alton Landrum is to be commended for driving from Childress for the meeting. Lion Landrum is the Deputy District Governor and the Lions feel fortunate in having him. Howardwick has a good year going under the guidance of Boss Lion Reed. It is reported this Club already has 1600 plus points in this two-month period. The program was presented by two very talented young ladies, Norma Corgill and Polly Sarich. The ladies sang "On Top of Old Spaghetti" which kept every one laughing and Norma sang a song she had written several years ago about "Her Bill". It was a very entertaining program.

The Wise Old Owl

Hedley High School

Here at HHS things are booming. Monday Sept. 5th, we had a Pep! Club! meeting and raised the roof off old HHS. We also had senior and school day pictures taken. Nobody broke the camera, but the glare off Kim W's braces almost blinded everyone. Joe L. should take up mountain climbing; it's safer. Bob W., how is diaper duty coming along? Thumbs off to Paul D. Brenda S., why are you always late for the first period class? Did you have another date last night? How many dates is that this week? Kelly W., how are you and Mark W. getting along? Lynne M. needs to get some more platforms and vitamins; her car is growing more than she is. Mr. DeBord and Becki J. have a new formula for figuring out who your boyfriend is. Mark B., have any more F.B.I. agents come around lately? Kim W., who have you been pinching in the hall? Lynn S., what did you say to Jerry J.? Hey! 3000 IN ONE DAY

That glorious day on which Christ's church or kingdom had its beginning is fully and plainly described in the second chapter of Acts, the fifth book in the New Testament.

That single day in history — on Pentecost in Jerusalem exactly 50 days after the crucifixion of Christ — was filled with marvelous demonstrations of the power of God and the fulfillment of divine prophecy and promise.

And, significantly, in fulfillment of Christ's promise, it was Peter who first announced terms of admission into the kingdom. To those hearers convicted of Christ and their own sins, the apostle commanded:

"Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:38).

And a few sentences later, we read of the results:

"Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls" (Acts 2:41).

Yes, three thousand conversions on that first day! How were they converted? It was simple, not mysterious. They heard the gospel preached in its purity to have faith, they were convicted of their need to be saved, they repented of their sins, and they were baptized into Christ for the remission of sins. They then began growing in grace and knowledge.

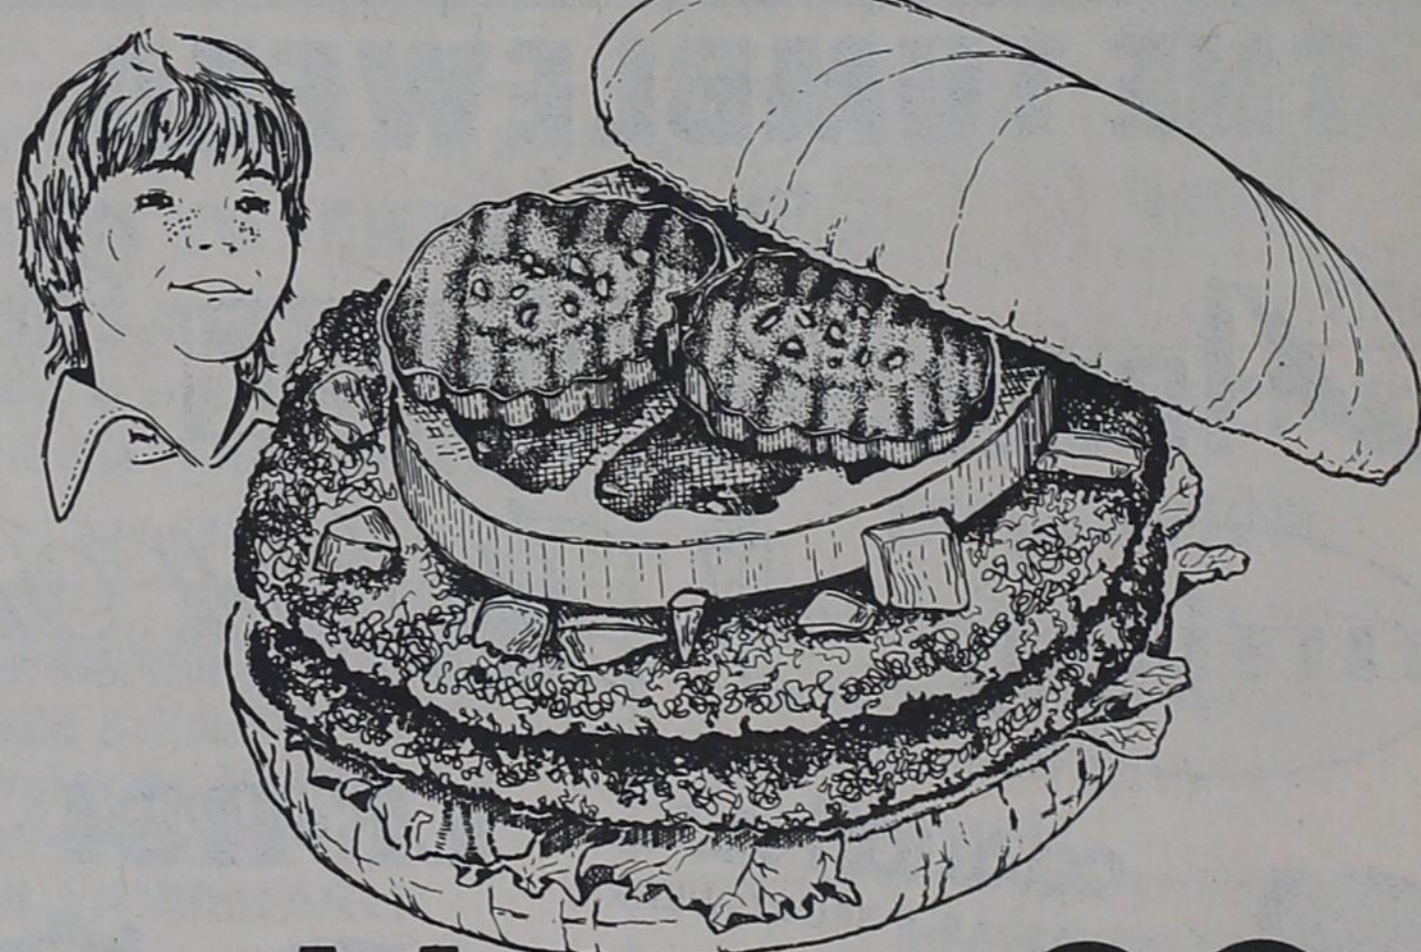

Times have changed, but man's need for a Saviour is just as great today as it was for the multitudes of Jews gathered in Jerusalem on that day long ago. If you are convicted of Christ as the Son of God, and if you are also convicted of your own sins, the same divine instruction applies to you today — no more, no less. When you are converted to Christ, the Lord in the same process adds you to his church (Acts 2:47). By becoming obedient to the same teaching, you will be added by the Lord to the same church.

It's surely one that they will cherish the rest of their lives."

One of the Society's guiding principles is to "promote both academic and civic achievement on the high school level by recognizing students in its Membership Registry. The Society of Distinguished American High School Students, which is published annually.

Early Bird H.D. C. news

Sept. 7, 1977 the Early Bird H.D.C. met in the home of Shirley Clifford. We had not met since June 1; it was good to be together again and to resume our programs.

Cynthia Manning, our H.D. agent presented the program on "The Metrics Are Coming". Cynthia assures us we need not be so frightened of the Metrics but we should learn the terms and acquaint ourselves with them since they really are coming. Cynthia demonstrated "Cooking With Metric Measures" by making Orange Blossom Muffins, part of our refreshments.

The business meeting was called to order by our president Shirley Clifford. The club will have a fabric sale in October to help raise money for the Council. The bazaar our club will sponsor in November was discussed and planned. Gay Cole reported on program planning for next year.

Our next meeting will be with Clara Hodge. We will have a work time program. Bring felt, yarn and embroidery needles so we can make Christmas tree ornaments for our bazaar. Lovely refreshments of Orange Blossom Muffins, whole wheat muffins, assorted jams and jellies, fruit, coffee and ice tea were served to ten members.

LELIA LAKE 4-H WILL MEET

The Lelia Lake Chapter of Donley County 4-H Club will have their first meeting Monday, September 19, at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center.

Anyone 9-18 years old is welcomed to join the club, choose its name and participate in its activities.

Third annual CC golf invitational expects 100

Over 100 college golfers will participate in the 3rd Annual Clarendon College Invitational Golf Tournament this week, September 16-17.

The 54 hole tourney will be held at Clarendon Country Club and will include outstanding golfers from the senior and junior college ranks. Participants will play 36 holes on Friday and 18 holes on Saturday. The tournament will feature a Senior college and a Junior college Division.

Colleges already entered are Texas Tech University, West Texas State University, Eastern New Mexico University, Hardin-Simmons

University, Cameron University (OK), Texas Wesleyan College, McMurry University, Texas Western, Odessa College, Midland College, New Mexico Jr. College, New Mexico Military Institute, Frank Phillips College, Vernon Regional College, Cisco Jr. College, and Clarendon College.

Under the direction of Loyd Waters, Dean of Students and Golf Coach at Clarendon College, the tournament has grown each year and is becoming one of the largest college golf tournaments in the area.

The tournament is sponsored each year by Clarendon College and is funded through contributions from area merchants and golf enthusiasts.

Waters stated that 30 teams were invited including teams from New Mexico University, New Mexico State, University of Kansas, Oklahoma University and Oklahoma State.

Waters received letters from Oklahoma State, Oklahoma University and New Mexico University saying they would be unable to attend this year due to having a full schedule but would plan on attending next year. If we get these teams to join the already great field of teams in our tourney, we will have a super tourney next year. Waters went on to say, "This would bring great golf recognition to the Panhandle area and Clarendon. We hope to build it as one of the best tournaments in the Southwest."

The teams will be treated to a noon buffet on Friday at the Clarendon Country Club and a barbecue at the Howardwick Community Center on Friday evening.

Tee-off will be at 8:00 a.m. on Friday and Saturday mornings. The public is welcome to come and watch the tournament.

4-H helps youth mature

Activities in 4-H are not programs constructed to help youngsters pass the time, but to mold adults. 4-H is the youth phase of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service educational programs.

In 4-H, working together for a common goal prepares today's young people for working relationships in the business world. These community efforts also establish the brotherhood that many Americans are striving for all over the world.

The challenges 4-H youngsters face give them a chance to place new ideas into the lives of their families and communities. 4-H'ers also learn through their experiences and gain wisdom that will benefit them in later years.

Whether 4-H members are competing in food or livestock shows, method demonstrations, or county fairs, they are working toward the maturity they find in their adult leaders and county Extension agents.

To start the journey that can lead to fun-filled as well as rewarding experiences, contact the county Extension office to learn all about the 4-H program.

4-H clubs in Donley County have been reorganized for the current school year. If you are interested in joining one of the following 4-H clubs, contact the leader for that club or the county Extension office.

1. Lucky Leaf 4-H - 2nd Monday night, 7:30 p.m. Room 102 of College Classroom Bldg. Leaders - Mr. & Mrs. Jack Moreman.
2. Good Luck 4-H - 4th Monday, 4:00 p.m. 4-H Room Old College Building. Leaders - Connie Robinson and Linda Bell.
