PATIENT HEADED FOR HELICOPTER---Bailey County EMS and St. Mary's Flight for Life personnel are rushing a 36-year old woman from Texico, N.M. to the Flight for Life helicopter from St. Mary's Hospital in a night transfer Tuesday night. They were briefly hampered by crowds that had gathered closely around the helicopter, and forcing law enforcement officers and EMS personnel to attempt to clear a pathway to the helicopter. Local officers are expressing concern about the people who are beginning to jam the emergency sites, like when the helicopter comes to fly out a critically ill patient

Helicopters Dangerous Say Police

Tuesday night, a sight that has become a familiar one in Muleshoe took place.

First, you could hear the powerful jet engine, then a helicopter came swooping in over the parking lot behind West Plains Medical Center and landed on the back parking lot.

However, the last two or three times the helicopter has flown in, something different has been happening.

The parking lot has become immediately swarmed with area residents, mostly youngsters, have flocked into the helicopter area.

Tuesday night, it was exceptionally bad. Although Sgt. Richard Bonham, of the Muleshoe Police Department was there, the crowds failed to respond to his requests to move back.

"I don't believe those kids realize how dangerous it is for them to be so close to the helicopter," said the Sgt. "The backlash from the rotor blades could knock them off their feet, or throw rocks into their eyes.

"We need to make every effort to keep those kids away from the landing area for the helicopter."

Sgt. Bonham also mentioned several people who had babies in their arms, and in close proximity to the landing area.

Sgt. Bonham said the police department is asking the public to cooperate at any time the

Youth At Farm Bureau Annual Seminar

Texas Farm Bureau's 26th annual Citizenship Seminar for junior and senior high school students will be June 13-17 on the campus of Angelo State University in San Angelo.

Scheduled to attend from Bailey County are Kelly Conklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Conklin, Muleshoe; Troy Evins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Evins, Muleshoe; Ad Godinez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adelaido Godinez, Muleshoe; Lisa Noble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Noble, Muleshoe and Austin Swint, son of Linda Swint, Muleshoe.

They were chosen to represent Bailey County because of their leadership ability, scholastic achievement and character, said Gary Hooten, County FB president.

The seminar, which runs for three full days, is designed to give these selected high school students a better understanding of the various forms of government and their responsibilities as citizens.

Comparisons of the different kinds of economic systems are outline in lectures, films, and discussions presented by leading authorities in government, history and economics.

Students attending the seminar will be eligible to enter the TFB Young Speakers for Free Enterprise contest.

After failure to gain acceptance of an offer to withdraw its 1984 rate filing and failure to negotiate a settlement concerning tax and expense issues, GTE Southwest has filed updated rate directives of the Public Utility Commission of Texas to update the company's unresolved 1984 filing for $84.8 million of additional revenues, according to Janet Perkins, Public Affairs Manager for GTE Southwest.

Librarians At Conference For Schools

Muleshoe ISD librarians recently attended the Texas Library Association conference in Corpus Christi.

Attending from the Muleshoe schools were Barbara Milburn, high school librarian; Jamie Rudd, Watson Junior High librarian; Pat Graham, DeShazo librarian and Virginia Bowers, Dillman librarian.

While at the conference, they were privileged to hear several authors and other conference leaders who led discussions on many topics.

Jamie Gilson, author of many children's books, spoke about writing books for reading for fun. She pointed out that children must be caught by pleasurable reading and learn to enjoy reading at an early age.

Sid Fleischman, author of the Newbery Award book 'The Whipping Boy,' spoke about his entry in the field of children's literature and how the ideas for books are germinated.

Another conference made use of the essential elements of curriculum for planning a library program to enhance the classroom curriculum.

The librarians said many other helpful and interesting conferences were conducted during the conference.

Exhibits of new materials and equipment were on display during the entire conference.

While attending the conference, the librarians got to watch the fireworks over the bay, which were part of the Buccaneer Days celebration for the city.

Each librarian returned to the Muleshoe school libraries with new ideas and more suggestions for how to manage the library to aid the overall learning program of the Muleshoe schools.

She also said the financial information contained in the updated rate filing demonstrates the company has an $81 million revenue deficiency based on a rate of return which is actually lower than the commission's last authorized rate of return.

GTE Southwest President E. L. 'Buddy' Langley said, "The last time the company raised rates was in 1983. We have known with increased expenses and capital investments that eventually we would have to ask for increased revenues."

"With the downturn in the Texas economy, we wanted to delay this as long as possible. However, since we are being required to update the current financials and process the merits of the rate filing, we have decided to seek the rates necessary to cover the revenue deficiency."

(Note: According to rate increase requests, local business access rates would go from $22.15 to $33.65 monthly, an increase of $11.50 per month, or a 51.9 percent increase.

A one-party residence rate, which is $8.55 monthly right now, and would go to $14.45 monthly, raising it by $5.90 per month or 69 percent.

Extended Area Service would be changed very little, dropping from $3.55 to $3.25 for business phones and increasing from $1.35 to $1.40 for residence phones.)

GTE filed a petition early in 1987 to withdraw its 1984 filing, but some participants in the case resisted the move, voicing concern the company could be overearning because of changes in state and federal tax laws. As a result, the company was ordered to prepare the updated information by April 30. An extension was granted to allow for additional negotiation, but the parties to the case were unable to resolve the issues.

In Profile

She's Retired? Don't You Ever Believe It!

(Editor's note: This week's special 'In Profile' personality was rather reluctant to be publicized. "I don't need publicity," she said. "What I do, or have done, doesn't merit publicity.")

We decided to let you, our readers, be the judge of that -- so let's get better acquainted with a very special lady -- Katherine Sanders -- who's one of the busiest ladies in town.)

Katherine Sanders came into this world at Oglesby, TX, which is some 16 miles south of Waco. She started out in that area, growing up with two sisters.

In 1928, she came to Bailey County with her family, and settled in the southwest corner of the county, near Goodland.

After completing her school years at Goodland, she attended West Texas State at Canyon and became a school teacher.

But, she was interrupted after she met Bob Sanders. She and her late husband were married and moved six miles to Maple.

She laughingly says her honeymoon trip was from Goodland to Maple, a distance of six miles. They stopped at a grocery store enroute and purchased supplies for their new home.

From there evolved a long career that is by no means over yet.

Her first teaching position was at Goodland, where she had 17 students her first year.

Then it was to a school at Maple. At the time, she lived in Maple, when it first was established.

At the time, Maple had a cotton gin, then a store, then the residents worked on obtaining a post office, as Maple's mail was brought out from Littlefield.

"Back then, it was easy to get a post office," she said. "All we had to do was petition, and although it usually took a little while, we always got our post office. Now, you can't do that."

After teaching for awhile, Katherine started teaching at DeShazo Elementary in Muleshoe.

In all, she taught school for 42 years, all in Bailey County, before retiring a couple of years ago.

In the meantime, her late husband, Bob, farmed and worked at a cotton gin in the fall, hauling baled cotton to Lehman.

She also said he drove a school bus after the cotton season, converting his truck into a school bus.

It seems that individuals owned the truck body, and the school owned the bus chassis, which was placed on the truck body.

Katherine sparked as she recounted stories of growing up with her two sisters, and cites a lifetime interest in reading.

Her mother encouraged reading, reading, reading.

Once a year, Katherine and her sisters were allowed to choose one book from a catalog. The book was purchased and read over and again as it joined an excellent collection of books.

"Capper's Farmer" magazine was also a sought-after treat for the rural family, along with other farm related publications.

She and Bob became the parents of three children -- Bob of Amarillo, a business owner; Janie Ellen, a physical education teacher at Garland and Mary Elizabeth, lead teacher for the third grade at Arlington.

She is very proud her daughters following in her chosen profession, although she is equally proud of the accomplishments of her son.

At one time, all the local schools were located between West Third and West Fifth and West Avenue C and West Avenue D. Then, Richland Hills Elementary School was built on West 18th Street.

Katherine elected to not move to Richland Hills, now Dillman

Elementary. "I chose to stay at DeShazo with my young friends to help them," she said.

Back in the late 50's and early 60's, Katherine said she saw lots of hungry kids. This was during the years before the free and reduced lunch, and before free breakfasts.

She said she and then principal, Bill Taylor, worked out a system to provide meals for many of the youngsters, so they could have at least one hot meal a day.

This no doubt, led up to her very active participation in the senior citizen 'Meals on Wheels' program today. She has been a driver and deliverer of noon meals since Meals on Wheels started. She only took off during the time Robert (her husband) was critically ill, and before his death.

Sharing with her late husband, a common interest in youth. So other than her teaching duties at DeShazo, she was active in the Muleshoe Youth Activities Committee.

She is active with the local Retired Teachers Association, and once a month, she and Ruby Garner, on a voluntary basis, prepare a noon meal at the Old Depot for the Jennyslippers,

Library News

by Anne Camp

The 1988 Summer Reading Club is going great at the Muleshoe Public Library with 170 boys and girls registered so far, and all are reading up a storm! Several have already read 12 books to get a certificate and to get to "go for it" in the box of treats.

The first activity day was held on Wednesday morning with 49 present. This segment was on Trailblazers, and Stargazers and "Exploring on the Sea". Next week will be "Exploring on Land," and subsequent weeks will be "In the Air" and "Space" to bring them up to date. They were told they could be Trailblazers and Stargazers thru the books they read, and films that are show. A hand-out was given each called "Exploring the Library" which they can work on for the duration of the program. Two summer workers have been assigned by Community Action to help the library. This gives young people a chance to learn as they earn, and we need and appreciate the extra help.

Sponsors so far to furnish treats are: Pizza Hut; Fox Video; Perry's; Ben Franklin; Muleshoe City Swimming Pool; Fry and Cox; Spudnut Shop and Dairy Queen. We appreciate each and everyone.

Judges will judge these garden spots on Wednesday afternoon and select one for the "Garden Spot of the Week". A sign will be erected designating it as the "Garden Spot of the Week".

This garden spot can be either a flower bed, shrubbery, tree or even an especially nice vegetable plant, such as a tomato vine, bean plant, etc.

The "Garden Spot of the Week" is being sponsored by the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture and the Jennyslippers, Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, and will continue on a weekly basis throughout the summer.

The yard of Linda Elder at 314 West 8th was chosen as this week's "Garden Spot of the Week".

Remember to call the CoC office before noon each Wednesday--your garden just could be named "Garden Spot of the Week".

another organization that enjoys her assistance in projects.

She is active in the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP); she is a Sunday School teacher at the First Baptist Church and works every Friday at the Thrift Shop established to help West Plains Medical Center.

Before the hospital re-opened last October, she helped clean the facility; then made shower curtains and hospital gowns to help re-supply the hospital which was opening on a shoestring operation.

She is a volunteer at the Muleshoe schools, even though she is retired and has helped compile information used in the soon to be published "Tales and Trails of Bailey County," the Bailey County history book being put together by the Jenny-slippers.

She is a member of the Muleshoe Chapter of the Eastern Star -- and -- "I go to Jazzercise to maintain my physical fitness," she added.

Katherine Sanders finds that she keeps both her mind and her body in better shape staying involved in all aspects of community life. She is an advocate of staying active, and staying busy.

Because that's not quite all she does. She is also relief manager at the Bailey County Civic Center and Coliseum.

At this time, she is acting manager of the Civic Center, while manager Joyce Holmes is visiting a daughter in Scotland.

How does Katherine Sanders feel about being 'relief manager of the Civic Center'?

"This job of 'relief manager' for the Bailey County Civic Center is the largest project I have attempted in quite awhile," she said. "To follow Joyce Holmes around is one big effort. She is quite a terrific manager.

"The county government is lucky to have someone like Joyce to care for this large facility," she concluded.

To listen to Katherine Sanders, to watch her energetically move around and tackle everything she does, is an inspiration in itself. Meet Katherine Sanders -- maybe some of her youthful attitude will rub off on you -- it's a very good feeling.

Carelessness Leads To Mower Accidents

'Carelessness' is the main factor in the more than 50,000 people injured each year in accidents involving power lawn mowers.

Proper mower servicing, observing standard operating precautions, and picking up rocks and other objects from the lawn prior to mowing will eliminate most accidents, said Spencer Tanksley, county agent with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

The lawn mower should be routinely serviced before each use. A properly operating mower is safer to use and cuts grass better than one in poor shape.

Routine service includes the checking of the blade for nicks or cracks, checking the blade to be sure it is securely attached to the shaft, checking the crankcase oil level in 4-cycle engines, and filling the fuel tank with fresh regular gasoline.

Always disconnect the spark plug wire before examining the blade, said Tanksley. The condition of the blade is critical to the mower's operation and safety. Remove, sharpen and balance the blade several times during the mowing season. Replace damaged blades.

Service the carburetor air cleaner and change the crankcase oil after every 25 hours of operation.

GTE...

Langley said the four-year delay in the rate proceeding illustrates the complexities caused by deregulation and other major changes affecting the telecommunications industry in the 1980s.

GTE'sW initially filed for $84.8 million in additional revenues in February 1984. Prior to hearings, the case was suspended to await a decision in another commission proceeding concerning changes brought about by the AT&T divestiture and competition in long-distance service. Due to the many complexities associated with these issues, explained Langley, a final order was not issued in this proceeding until September 1986.

"Our updated financials show we are not overearning," Langley said. "We have factored in all the changes affecting the company, both positive and negative, and the result is that the company still has an $81 million revenue deficiency.

"The reduced expenses, such as the reduction in both state and federal taxes, have been more than offset by increases in other expenses and in our investment in providing service in the state," he said.

The company now expects the administrative law judge in charge of the company's filing will set a schedule of dates to allow other parties in the case to file appropriate testimony and data, and set hearing dates to consider the new proposed ideas.

Notice To Taxpayers

Taxpayers in the Bailey County Appraisal District have an opportunity to protest values proposed for their property for local taxes. The property owner must file a written "notice of protest" with the Appraisal Review Board (ARB) before June 21, 1988. The district's Appraisal Review Board will begin hearing taxpayer protests on July 11, 1988.

Official forms for a notice of protest are available at the Bailey County Appraisal District office, 104 E. Avenue C, Muleshoe. A letter from the taxpayer is also acceptable as long as it identifies the property owner, the property which is the subject of protest, and indicates dissatisfaction with some decision or action of the appraisal office.

Each protesting taxpayer may offer evidence or argument either in person or by filing an affidavit with the ARB. Taxpayers should be aware that the ARB has no authority over tax rates or taxing unit spending and will not hear protests of those matters.

The ARB will schedule hearings as property owners file protests and will inform them of the time, date, and place of their individual hearings.

The State Property Tax Board has issued a pamphlet called "Taxpayer's Rights, Remedies, Responsibilities" available at the Bailey County Appraisal District office, 104 E. Avenue C, Muleshoe, which explains how to prepare and present an appeal to the ARB.

Selecting Correct

Wood For Landscape

Wood used for landscape structures should be selected on the basis of end-use, rather than appearance or lower cost, said Charles Stayton, wood products specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

Landscape structures, such as fences and decks, are usually fully exposed and have much horizontally positioned wood with attachment joints.

"These joints trap rain or other applied water and are slow to dry out, allowing the wood to exceed the 20 percent moisture content needed for decay," Stayton said.

In addition, many landscape structures will have wood in ground contact, which will decay unless redwood, cedar and cypress heartwood or treated pine is used. "Treated pine is always the best economic choice," Stayton said.

A good preservative choice, he said, is chromated copper arsenate (CCA). This is the "green colored wood" sold under several trade names such as Wolman CCA, Osmose K33 and Boliden CCA, Stayton said.

"CCA treated pine should have a quality mark stamp or a plastic tag stapled to it, showing it has been treated in accordance with established standards. It is important that these stamps or tags show the initials of the American Wood Preservers Bureau (AWPB) and the Southern Pine Inspection Bureau (SPIB) or Timber Products Inspection (TP) to certify proper treatment," Stayton said.

Quality marks or tags will indicate whether the wood can be used for ground contact or above ground use, and may include the symbols LP-22 for ground contact and LP-2 for above ground use. They also will show whether the treated wood was redried after treatment by using the symbols "KD" (kiln dried) or "KDAT" (kiln dried after treatment).

"CCA treated pine lumber used for landscape fences, decks and gazebos should be redried to prevent warpage and other defects caused by excessive shrinkage once fastened in place," Stayton said.

Many landscape fences and decks use a combination of treated pine and cedar, redwood or cypress. The treated pine is used for ground contact purposes and the naturally resistant woods are used for trim, fence and deck boards. Cedar is the most common wood used in such combinations in Texas.

"This works well as long as the cedar is all heartwood. In many cases it is not, and when it is used as fence boards in ground contact, it can deteriorate quickly due to decay. Even without ground contact, the exposed joints can trap rain and soon become decay sources," Stayton said.

"If a home owner prefers cedar or other naturally resistant species and is unable to purchase all heartwood, he can periodically apply a pigmented wood preservative to the boards, and prevent ground contact to double the expected service life," Stayton said.

Lackey was among 29 students and teachers, representing several schools throughout the Panhandle and South Plains of Texas, sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS).

The symposium is an annual event sponsored by the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation (TAERF). The foundation is composed of 10 electric utilities in Texas, including SPS. Although SPS does not own or operate a nuclear power plant, the Company's membership in TAERF reflects its commitment to many kinds of energy research.

The four-day Texas Energy Science Symposium was packed with tours, special demonstrations and presentations on such subjects as nuclear power, air quality, high-voltage transmission lines and excavation technologies for the superconducting super collider (SSC).

Survivors include her husband, W.R.; two sons, Hardy Shackelford of Tupelo, Miss., and J.B. Shackelford of Senatobia, Miss.;

a daughter, June Dollarhide of Mesquite; two stepsons, Mike of Tucson, Ariz., and Pat of Lubbock; two stepdaughters, Coleta Bruce of Graham and Frances Pitts of Butler, Mo.; four sisters, Margie Copley of Muleshoe, Mary Bonine of San Antonio, and Ina Grush and Retha Vetha, both of Dallas; and three grandchildren.

In Fashion

Denim continues to hold the spotlight in sportswear. The stone-washed cotton overalls shape a popular mini-jumper that is worn with a crew-neck sweater and cotton shirt.

For a casual date or shopping, one might choose a softly colored denim suit. Both the cropped bolero jacket and mini-skirt feature zippered front closings.

Denim jeans are ultra-lean or boxy contoured. The western influence is still a part of the denim scene.

God Bless...

God bless Mommie, Daddie, and all my-friends at church...

"Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God."

God's word has a great deal to say about prayer, for prayer is our means to communicate with God. Through prayer we can give thanks, petition for our friends, and seek God's wisdom for our daily living.

Make prayer a daily practice in your life.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

Texas wine makes debut in Italy

(AUSTIN)—Over 79,000 fairgoers enjoyed their first "Taste of Texas Wines" at "Vin Italy," the largest wine show in the world between April 8-13. Representatives of five Texas wineries, the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA), and Texas Tech University participated in the annual show in Verona, Italy.

Llano Estacado Winery and Pheasant Ridge Winery, both of Lubbock; Messina-Hoff of Bryan; Fall Creek Vineyards of Tow; and Eluebonnet Hill Winery of Ballinger represented Texas wines at the United States exhibit at "Vin Italy." The Texas Group shared the U.S. booth space with wine producers from California, New Mexico, Washington and Pennsylvania.

According to Danny Presnal, marketing specialist with TDA, premium Texas wines can compete with the best-quality wines anywhere in the world. "That's what we wanted to show people at 'Vin Italy,'" Presnal said.

Presnal helped represent the Texas wine industry at the show, along with staff members of the Texas Wine Marketing Research Institute at Texas Tech. The U.S. exhibit is a joint effort of the Foreign Agricultural Service, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Texas Tech University, TDA and the participating Texas wineries.

Texas boasts 22 commercial wineries, as compared to 13 facilities in 1983 and just one commercial winery in 1975. Commercial wine production in Texas this year is estimated at 1 million gallons, with a retail value of $30 million and a total economic impact on the state of over $100 million.

"Grapes continue to be one of the most important alternative crops for Texas agriculture, and wine-making is pumping much-needed cash money to our state's farm economy," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower. "New production is developing every year, but just as important is the superb quality of these Texas wines. Texas wines are just now coming of age, and as predicted, they were a hit at 'Vin Italy.'"

Hunter's clearinghouse bagging the big bucks

(DALLAS)—"The Texas Hunter's Clearinghouse, in only its second year of operation, helped rural Texans bag a record number of new dollars from hunting leases last year and with turkey season already under way, the prospects for 1988 look even better, Deputy State Agriculture Commissioner Mike Moeller reported here.

"The Clearinghouse helped generate an estimated $3.9 million in new economic activity in rural Texas communities during 1987, compared to a total of $1.3 million in new activity in 1986, according to the results of a survey conducted by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"We are very pleased with the performance of the program in its second year, and we are excited that it is providing this kind of economic boost in rural Texas," Moeller said in a news conference at TDA's Dallas district office. Joining the Number Two official at TDA was Mrs. Walter Connor of Fort Worth, who lists property with the Clearinghouse.

"The total dollar amount represents direct spending on hunting leases, expenditures by hunters in rural communities, and indirect expenditures generated by new income coming into rural areas through the program.

"A total of 7,130 hunters called the Clearinghouse for hunting lease information in 1987, up from a total of 3,312 calls in 1986, the survey showed. Nearly 400 of those hunters called from the Dallas-Fort Worth area alone.

"The increase in call volume is a strong indication of the growing demand for hunting leases in the state," Moeller said.

"For further information on the Texas Hunter's Clearinghouse, please write to: Office of Farmer Assistance Programs, Texas Department of Agriculture, P. O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.

have land available for hunting. TDA publishes a directory of leases listed by region, type of game available, and amenities provided by hunters.

"The Clearinghouse currently lists 6.1 million acres available for lease on nearly 900 Texas farms and ranches.

"The directory service is provided free to hunters and to farmers and ranchers both as a conservation program and a rural economic development program.

"The Clearinghouse is intended to create additional sources of non-farming income for hard-pressed farmers and ranchers and to generate economic activity in small farm-dependent communities. The program is also intended to open new hunting opportunities for the state's sportsmen."

The 1988 edition of the Hunter's Clearinghouse Directory will be published in late April by TDA.

"Average season expenditures per hunter doubled between 1986 and 1987, survey results showed. In 1986, the average participating hunter spent a total of $989 on hunting leases and related expenses, such as food, lodging and transportation. In 1987, the average total per hunter rose to $1,889.

"Likewise, the number of days hunters spent on their leases nearly doubled between 1986 and 1987, from an average of 12 days to an average of 21 days.

"These numbers indicate that we are getting very serious hunters involved in the program, the kind of people who are willing to spend significant amounts of time and money on a good lease," Moeller said.

Resolving The School Finance Issue

Is Up To The Legislature, Not The Courts

By Governor William P. Clements Jr.

In 1975, the U.S. Supreme Court responded to San Antonio ISD vs. Rodriguez with a majority opinion that found the Texas education system to be rationally based. In its decision, the high court also held that public education policy and finance are issues for the Legislature to oversee, not the courts. The justices stated that:

"The consideration and initiation of fundamental reforms with respect to state taxation and education are matters reserved for the legislative process of the various states..."

"...The ultimate solution must come from the lawmakers and from the democratic pressures of those who elect them."

That ruling is especially appropriate today as Texans weigh the possible consequences of Edgewood vs. Kirby.

In that case, state District Judge Harley Clark declared the state's public school system unconstitutional. What's more, the Austin judge gave us a Sept. 1, 1989, deadline for changes—otherwise, Judge Clark says he'll do it himself.

In effect, the judge is assuming the Legislature's responsibilities. And that is just what Texans will not tolerate.

Texans do not want state courts dictating what their children's education should be. Yet, Judge Clark suggests that he can intervene and set the terms for education reform. Texans believe that is wrong, and the highest court in the land says it's wrong.

Without a doubt, education is the basic foundation of our society and an essential part of our state's economic progress. It is the key to a bright future for our children—the next generation of Texas leaders.

But Judge Clark's decision has the potential to endanger our education system. The ruling, if upheld as written, threatens to consolidate the state's more than 1,100 school districts into a handful of mega-districts, with centralized control from Austin. It threatens the local input or control we now enjoy over our children's education. And, yes, it threatens to create a public school system that drags its pupils into a bureaucratic mass of mediocrity.

Make no mistake about it, there are inequities in our public school system, but they must be corrected by the Legislature, not by a state court. And, yes, additional funding is part of the needed legislative action.

To ensure that Judge Clark's court, or any court for that matter, stays out of the Legislature's domain, I support a constitutional amendment reaffirming the responsibility of legislators and local school districts to provide for public education in Texas.

The constitutional amendment does not solve the inequities in the current system, but certainly it will keep the courts from directing the Legislature's business.

The people of Texas have had expensive and, yes, painful experiences with federal court intervention in the state's prison system. Texans will not stand for any intervention by the state courts in the education of their children.

In fact, our legislators, working with Texas governors, have a long record of achievement in education reform. In this decade alone, several major education-reform packages have been passed, including the "Back to Basics" package in 1981 and the reforms under House Bill 72 in 1984.

Examining legislative action on funding through the years reveals a steady and consistent increase in tax dollars for public education. For example, during the 1978-79 biennium, total funding for public education was $1.59 billion. In the current biennium, 1988-89, it has almost tripled and now stands at $12.9 billion.

Has the Legislature solved every problem? No. Has the Legislature removed all the inequities? No. Has progress been made? Yes. Has quality of public education statewide constantly improved? Yes. Should lawmakers continue to carry out their responsibility to provide for quality education? Yes. That's what the people of Texas want.

In our state, the local, independent school district runs its schools. Parents, teachers and the community all have direct roles in shaping their schools and the education their youngsters receive.

School board members are elected locally. The board is then charged with assessing property taxes. Texans do not want that taxing authority removed and centralized in a bureaucracy in Austin.

We need a renewed commitment to the basics in education. Teachers must be adequately compensated and their morale must be boosted. Parents and families must get involved in their children's education. School boards must focus sharply on performance and achievement. The higher education community must train the best possible teachers. The Legislature must consider funding inequities and constantly monitor the entire system.

The answers lie within the school districts, school boards and our homes, with parents, PTAs, teachers and guidance counselors, concerned state legislators, the speaker of the Texas House, the lieutenant governor and governor—all working side-by-side for quality education.

The answers do not lie within our state courts.
