A Good Parlor Magic Trick. Announce that you are about to cook an omelet: then you break four eggs in a hat, place the hat for a short time over the flame of a candle, and completely cooked and quite hot. Some persons will be credulous enough to believe that by the help of certain ingredients you have been enabled to cook the omelet without fire, but the secret of the trick is that the omelet had been previously cooked and placed in the hat, but could not be seen. because the operator, when breaking the eggs, placed it too high.

May that Judge's Tribe Increase. of general sessions has put the stamp I had at last it is wise for a woman to marry a criminal for the purpose of reforming him. The judge was asked to suspend sentence on a young man convicted of larceny because the accused was engaged to "an estimable young lady." His honor refused, saying he had investigated the fellow's record and found it bad. He added a hope that the young woman would also investigate and take back her promise to marry.

A Reminder of Cruelty. The Paris papers report a gruesome discovery which has been made recently by some military engineers who have been exploring the dungeon at the chateau of Brest, where at one time a battalion of the 19th Infantry was quartered. A door has been forced, and a skeleton with the skull broken discovered. Round the wrists Address Dr. Hartman, President of The was an iron chain, which was fastened with a padlock. At the feet was another chain, to which was hanging a bullet. The dungeon had not been opened since 1650. Thus was human progress hewn out
