After this race had been finished Clymer collapsed and then his friends realized that he was badly injured. Paralysis of the legs set in almost immediately and he was rushed to the Greeley hospital, where his father, Dr. J. B. Clymer and Dr. Wood were summoned. The two physicians remained with their patient all night, doing their utmost to restore the use of Clymer's legs without avail.

At 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning an X-ray photograph was made and showed that one of the Denver rider's floating ribs had been fractured and that one of the vertebrae was split and the ligaments torn from the back and ribs. Later Clymer was removed to his father's

The Clarendon News There is quite a rumpus in the ranks of Democracy over whether or not Pres. Wilson should be candidate for a third term. It is not at all certian as yet whether the president is anxious for another term, but right here and now The News wants to say that it don't believe that Wilson will be a candidate, for several reasons, and further, that if he shows willingness that he will not be the nominee of the Democratic party. IC-4 FIRST AIRSHIP OF ANY KIND TO CROSS ATLANTIC REACHES LISBON IN 26 HOURS

Washington, May 27.—Blazing the way of the air trail from the western to the eastern hemisphere, he United States navy seaplane NC-4, under Lieutenant Commander Albert Cushing Read, swept into the harbor at Lisbon, Portugal, today, the first airship of any kind to have crossed the Atlantic ocean under its own power.

ship of any kind to have crossed the Atlantic ocean under its own power and through its natural element.

Taking the air at Ponta Delgada, Azores, at 6:18 a. m., Washington time, on the last leg of the transoceanic portion of the voyage from Rockaway Beach, L. I., to Plymouth, England, the NC-4 covered the 800 miles in 9 hours and 43 minutes, maintaining an average speed of better than 80 miles an hour. The total elapsed flying time from New Foundland to Lisbon was 26 hours and 41 minutes.

At the first opportunity the big plane will continue to Plymouth, 775 nautical miles to the north. Possibly Commander Reed can start tomor-row. To the navy department, how-ever, it makes little difference when he completes the journey. The great object lavished on the undertaking navigation of a seaplane across the Atlantic through the air—has been accomplished, twentieth century transportation has reached a new pinnacle and the United States navy has led the way.

Naval officials emphasized that the long delay at the Azores was due to the weather and to no weak.

the long delay at the Azores was due to the weather and to no weakness of the machine or its daring crew, nor to any failure of the carefully laid plans for the department to guide the flyers to their destination. The 14 destroyers strung from Ponta Delgade to Lisbon reported with machine like precision today as the flight progressed. The plane was the flight progressed. The plane was never off its course and there was no moment when officials in Washington did not know to within a few miles where it was in the air.

To maintain adequate communication for this stake of the journey, the destroyers stuck to their posts after the flying boat had passed, relaying back to Ponta Delgada, reports from ships farther eastward. The chain was not broken until after the plane was safely moored for the the plane was safely moored for the night near the cruiser Rochester at

For the next few hundred miles of his epoch making journey, Com-mander Read and his crew will be in sight of the Portuguese or Spanish coasts in the sweep northward. Skirting the coast of Cape Finisterre, they will head out across the bay of Biscay, to sight Brest, the most western point of France, thence direct to Plymouth. The destroyers which will guide them across the bay were already in position tonight, provided with the flares and bombs that have made the trip safe thus far except for the fog that forced the other two machines of the seaplane division, the NC-1 and NC-3, out of the flight ofter they had safely navigated virtually the entire distance from New Foundland to the Commander Reed had with him on the flight to Lisbon, the same crew as that which left New Foundland on the NC-4 on May 16. Lieut. E. F. Stone, of the coast guard, and W. K. Hinton were the pilots, with Ensign R. C. Rodd, as radio operator and Chief Machinist's Mate E. S. Rhodes as reserve pilot engineer. S. Rhodes as reserve pilot-engineer for the purpose of repairing and pamost of the crew was met at Lisbon by most of the crew of the NC-1 and NC-3 who had proceeded them on a comfort of our congregation. destroyer.

The chart of the flight as shown by the reports of the station ship destroyers on the NC-4's progress today shows how the winds helped her along. At times Commander Read's ship apparently was whirling thru the air at a 90 knot clip; again her speed fell off to less than 60, only to pick up again as she reached the zone of influence of other breezes. Probably the machine overtook and passed winds that had stirred waters about Ponta Delgada the day before, preventing an earlier

COAL FAMINE THIS WINTER

Unless people store their winter coal during the early summer months this country will experience the worst coal famine in its history. The mines have not produced 50 percent of the coal they did up to this period of last year and it will be impossible to supply everyone if we all wait until late summer to put in our coal.

A TALK WITH EDWIN H. DOHENY

street in Los Angeles loaded with dark-brown material. He took a handful. tune, were camping all around the wealth-strewn ground. Riches poured It was tarry and greasy. Instinctively he knew he had found the pot of gold into Doheny's lap by tens of thousands fo dollars. Although only twentyat the end of the rainbow he had chased through incredible hardships. four, he blossomed as an important mine owner and operator. He formed For twenty years he had followed the quest with little to show by way of reward save a terrible scar which marred half his face and a mangled wrist he could discover valuable mines with greater ease and certainty than the which had been crunched in the mouth of a mountain lion one of the thousands of nights he had slept out in the open in wild uninhabited fastnesses.

On his fortieth birthday the prospector had not forty dollars. Since then he has waxed rich at the rate of perhaps a million dollars every year.

Now, at sixty-two, he is one of America's foremost multi-millionaires.

More. His fingering of that oozy, sticky, smelly substance led to America's being incalculably strengthened to wage war and gain victory. Joffre stopped the first fierce Teutonic onrush upon Paris by impressing every motor vehicle in the city into service to rush troops to the Marne. Germany's command of superior railroad facilities might have proved fatal to the Allied line at one of many points during the war had not motor transportation gone to the rescue. In the air, too, one essential to supremacy was an abundant supply of liquid fuel, gasoline. And what of the seas? American fuel oil the combined British, French and American fleets could not have "ruled the waves," driving the enemy into his lair and thus keeping the international highways of commerce and travel open for the succoring of the British Isles and the Continent with munitions, materials and man-power. For, by the time the death-grapple of nations came, the examination of that tarry handful had led to the production of oil by this single prospector at the rate of twenty-five million barrels a year, a volume greater than produced by any one Standard Oil company or by any other American concern. The total output of oil in the United States approximates one million barrels a day. This man's properties yield upward of one hundred thousand barrels every times the sun rises. Yet he blithely declares that he has only begun to produce, that the whole oil industry is only in its formative stage, that the motorization of the world has scarce begun, and that ere long oil-driven machinery will enable man to conquer the air, till the soil, utilize the seas, and accelerate communication on land on a scale and with an ease and and speed and economy not even dreamed today by you or me. We are, affirms this man of vision and achievement, about to enter the oil age, the age of motorization. The nineteenth century was the century of coal and steam power; the twentieth is to be the century of oil and motor-power.

To those of us not possessing fortunes, the romance and the glamor of this man's record lie in the fabulous wealth he has earned.

To him money always has meant so little and appealed so weakly that, whenever he discovered a valuable property and had overcome all the diffi-culties incidental to its development into a profitable, smooth-going, moneyearning concern, he quickly gave it up. Once, before he had attained great wealth, he, with a partner, developed one property which was netting him a clear profit of a half-million dollars a year; instead of remaining to scoop in the cash, he promptly sold out. "The difficulties had all been solved. It no longer attracted me", was his simple comment in explanation. Achievement, not money, yields satisfaction."

How this wrestler with difficulties turns even the worst of misfortunes to profitable account may be illustrated by one incident. Once, in his prospecting days, he fell down a 120 foot shaft and broke both legs. While lying on his back in the hospital he threw himself enthusiastically into the study of law, graduated in six months, and was immediately admitted to partnership in a law firm. Again, when his wife and a party of friends expressed a desire to see certain spot in Mexico, the circumstances that there was no road to it did not deter him; he simply gave orders to have a road, fit for the passage of automobiles, cut through the heart of the intervening forest at lightning And it was done.

When the mountain lion sprang upon him as he lay on his open-air bed of twigs and seized his right arm in its mouth, quick as a flash he pulled his hunters' knife from his belt with his left hand and plunged it into the lion's throat. The beast recoiled; then with an angry, frenzied yell, it again sprang at him with its full fury. But, with a presence of mind sharpened by many adventures, the prospector had grabbed his trusted rifle and, though his wrist was torn and crushed, he aimed a bullet which caught the lion during its fateful spring; its paws and head reached him, but they were the paws and head of a dead animal.

This man who, through toil and peril, endurance and adventure, has graduated from a mining prospector to the foremost American oil producer and the creator of uncounted wealth for the benefit of us all-this man who cares nothing for money but everything for adding to the sum total of civilization's resources—this man whose titanic achievements hastened victory in the war and are destined to play an even greater part in the coming victories of peace-this man is Edward L. Doheny.

You never heard of him? That's because he is no self-advertiser, because he never courts the limelight, because he is too busy doing things to find time to talk much about them. I had had to camp on his trail for months to dig information out of him. And time and again as I tried to ferret out his story I likened myself to a prospector; he persisted in describing what others had done, leading me off along a trail I didn't want to follow, and it was only by adroit maneuvering that I occasionally got him to admit his part in the things he described. I could now tell you far more about any one of a half-dozen other prospectors and Western characters than I learned about Mr. Doheny from himself! But others have helped me to piece out the story. It is thrillingly, throbbingly American. Its early chapters are set and steeped in the "wild Westernism" that has succumbed

Edward L. Doheny came of venturesome, pioneer stock, both his father (an Irishman) and his mother's father (an Irish-Canadian) having hunted seals and whales in the icy regions of Labrador. The Doheny family later settled at Fond du Lac, and here Edward was born in 1856. working people, sent him to school almost as soon as he could walk, and although he had to work the greater part of each year as he grew up, graduated from high school at the phenominally early age of fifteen. so many men of mark, his forte was arithmetic, particularly mental arith-Curiously, neither geology nor chemistry, through which he was destined to earn fame and fortune, appealed to him; he studied them because he had to. The nomadic blood in his veins moved him to accept eager ly an opportunity to accompany a governmental party which was to survey Oklahoma. The outdoor, carefree life so charmed him he later proceeded to New Mexico with a government mule buyer. And, although he was not yet seventeen, he encountered exciting experiences with Indians who were conducting very successful scalping expeditions.

The government troops, having captured many steeds from marauding Indians, announced a sale of them and young Doheny saw a chance to undertake his first business venture. He had saved enough to buy ninety-two head at $5.35 each. The next job was to tame the horses, not one of which had been broken. He became so expert at handling ponies that he attained quite a reputation as a jockey at the horse races which the pioneers of those days delighted in getting up. When he sold out his profits exceeded $2,000.

Unlike the dare-devil Westerners portrayed by writers of juvenile stories, young Donehy did not drink, did not play cards, did not even smoke early realized that only the fittest could survive the life he planned to lead in rugged, unsettled regions overrun with wild animals and wilder men. The wilderness, the mountainside, the forest kept calling to him, holding out prospects of untold gold. When a famous fortune-seeker, Charlie Quidero, organized a party to invade the Black Hills district of Dakota to prospect for placer gold, Ed. Donehy gladly enrolled. Black Hills was destined to become famous, but not through his expedition. The government created a reservation for Blackfeet Sioux, ordered all prospectors out, and soldiers confiscated the whole Quidero outfit.

But this inglorious end to his first gold-seeking vesture did not daunt Donehy. An ambitious expedition was being organized by several notable prospectors, well financed, and, as it was considered lucky to take a tenderfoot along, Ed. Donehy was picked. Their activities were rich in exciting experiences, but poor in fortune. The tenderfoot decided to become something more than a rule-of-thumb prospector. He procured books on metallurgy and geology, and, when snowed in, devoured their contents until he had learned them almost by heart. His early smattering of chemistry and geology and his aptitude for mathematics stood him in good stead. His mental activities were of benefit to him in other ways. For example, he and a companion undertook a journey of 800 miles to Arizona and met during the entire trip only one white man who, having married a squaw, had settled at Navaha, in the Red Desert. On this long trail life had to be sustained by vigilant use of the gun to bring down deer, wild turkeys, elks, jack rabbits, etc.

In Arizona, Doheny, by then a keen-eyed, trained prospector who could spot a likely stain on a rock with the best of the veterans, struck his first rich find. By building a crude stone mill to crush the ore, he won gold in paying quantities. But the wanderlust shortly repossessed him, and off he went to blaze new trails and seek other El Dorados. Affter much wandering, not a little hunger, and more than one hair-raising escapade, he finally, in 1880, discovered the Black Range mining district in what is now Sierra County, New Mexico, and in less than three months a town of 5,000 people sprang up, a railroad was run in, telegraphic communication was established, and Ed. Doheny became a bonanza king.

Once again, however, having set things in motion, instead of remaining to pile up a huge fortune, he pulled up stakes and moved on. He was then worth about $30,000, but he had made a vow that he would clean up $100,000 as a prospector or leave his bones on the mountains—several others had de that amount and Bill Greene (subsequently of Greene-Cananea fame) made nearer $1,000,000. His next strike was a unique silver placer-mine on the spot which, htank's to Doheny's enterprise, developed into Kingston, N. M. Stories of the strike and of how chunks of silver could be picked up with little trouble

'A stranded mining prospector one day noticed a wagon going along a spread like wildfire, and soon 6,000 people, mostly daring gentlemen of for- gions and no known oil properties whatsoever." With his associate, a partnership with C. A. Canfield, who had such a keen "mining sense" that much business) and accompanied by an expert cook and porter—both expert diviner can locate water with his rod. For a number of years all went well. Then came the leg-breaking incident already mentioned and his spell as a lawyer. His next mining venture, the shipping of rich fluxions. spell as a lawyer. His next mining venture, the shipping of rich fluxing ore

Again into strange, unpeopled regions, this time the Mojave desert. Here Doheny and Canfield operated mines rich in gold, but with ore so refractory that it was virtually impossible to work it. From South Africa had come reports of a wonderful cyanide process which had been installed on the Witwatersrand mines with revolutionary success. Doheny hied himself to Denver, where a demonstration was to be given, analyzed the process, found it satisfactory, bought from its Scottish inventors the right to use it. and set up the first cyanide plant in that part of the world.

Days and years of up and downs followed. Rarely did Prospector Doheny sleep under other ceiling than the wide heavens. Each night he lay down with his faithful rifle at his side, his six shooter ready for action and a hunter's knife at his belt.

Wasn't it sometimes eerie when you know wild animals were prowling around? And wasn't it cold in the winter?" I asked.

"There is no more comfortable feeling imaginable than to wake up at night and feel your well-tried rifle snuggling warmly at your side," he replied. "The warmest bed I ever slept in was under a foot of snow. It took me a long time to become used to beds and bedrooms—I felt choked. No feather-bed can compare with one made of leafy branches and pliant twigs." The recollection of them brought a gleam to his eyes. "Of course, you often at a price slightly in excess of one dollar per barrel. But again bitter d flirt with death when leading such a life—but I have seen persons run over in the streets of New York. I still prefer the habitations of Nature to the habitation of men.'

After twenty years' search for Ophir, he found himself, in the fall of 1892, in Los Angeles, minus more than $99,000 of the $100,000 he had set as his goal. But although his pockets were empty, his heart was still full of hope, his body was full of health and his spirit was full of fight. The rainbow's end would not always elude him.

He discovered it where he least expected to find it-right where he was in Los Angeles. The pot of gold had been blindly passed and repassed by thousands, including learned geologists. The dramatic incident which opened the portals of millionairedom to the dogged prospector is worth recounting in his own words.

"I was living," he asserts, "at a small hotel in the western part of Los Angeles. One day I noticed a wagon-load of brown material that looked like the manganese ores I used to mine in New Mexico. I took a handful' and found it was tarry and greasy. I asked the negro driver what it was. 'It is breer,' the Spanish word for pitch—yes I had of course learned Spanish. 'Where does it come from?' I asked. 'From near West Lake Park,' he told me.

"Immediately I jumped on a street car. I found the place without difficulty. Examining it, I discovered tar exudes which, mixing with the soil on the surface, made a tarry product, which I learned, was being used in lieu of coal in several small manufacturing plants.

"My heart beat fast. I had found gold and I had found silver and I had found lead, but this ugly looking substance, I felt, was the key to something more valuable than any of these metals. Domestic coal sold in California at $20 a ton. No more ideal place could be found to develop a substitute for coal. Without ever having seen an oil district or an oil derrick, as I had never been east of Chicago in my life, my natural prospecting instinct told me that these tar exudes bore the same relation to the petroleum below that the resin on the autside of a pine tree bears to the more limpid sap within. I felt sure that by drilling to the source of these exudes I would develop a supply of petroleum. The only damper on my feeling of elation over my discovery was the reflection that these exudes were in the midst of a city of 100,000 population and less than thirty miles from where successful oil wells were being worked by three well-known companies. It was almost incredible that the possibilities of this spot had not been recognized by people connected with these nearby companies. The whole thing seemed too good to be true. Yet I felt it was true.

"I hurriedly hunted up my associate, Mr. Canfield, and took him to the place. We spent several days tracing out the different oil exudes in and near Los Angeles with a view to selecting the most likely spot to make an experimental development. We finally selected a spot more than a mile from the first one and bought the plot for $400, a price which taxed our joint cash resources. Engaging one man and a boy and a horse, we started to sink a shaft five feet wide by seven feet long through the shale formation, this being the only way we knew of to prospect for oil, so ignorant were we of the oil business. Never did men work as we two worked digging and shoveling the stuff into the buckets to be hoisted to the surface and carted away. In thirty-eight days we had sunk the shaft 155 feet, an almost superhuman achievement cossidering our ridiculous crude appliance.

Through great good fortune we did not reach oil." I looked at him puzzled. We began to realize the danger. Dimly recollecting having seen etsian wells being sunk in Wisconsin during my boyhood days, I cut down a eucalyptus tree sixty feet high and made a pole and began laboriously to worm its point down through the bottom of the shaft. The process would have discouraged anyone not possessing the sublime faith that we possessed that a few inches or a few feet more at the most would tap for us incalculable wealth. "Suddenly gas spewed out and oil flooded the shaft to a depth of ten or fifteen feet in a few moments.

"I arranged for the building of a wooden tank to hold about 100 barels, and found by baling that the well yielded about seven barrels a day.

I felt like a millionaire." Alas, the thick fluid was not salable. Its like was not being used any where in the state. Doheny succeeded in inducing a pipe manufacturer to dip his pipes in the oil to coat them. For eighteen months Doheny and Canfield labored heroically in developing other small wells by crude methods. Then Doheny recalled an old-time friend who had drilled oil wells in Pennsylvania and Ohio, brought him to Los Angeles, purchased the up-todate machinery he recommended, and in ten days the new plant drilled well 600 feet deep which yielded forty-five barrels a day.

He won converts to the use of his product by guaranteeing a saving of wenty-five percent in fuel bills by its use as a substitute for coal in factores, etc., and began to roll up wealth. Each barrel brought $1.78. Meanwhile, these exploits became known, and within five years more than 200 companies were organized and 2,300 wells were drilled within the city limits of Los Angeles, notwithstanding that houses had to be knocked down on many of the plots utilized. From an area of about 300 acres, over 75,000,000 barrels of oil were extracted-many of the wells drilled a quarter of a century ago are still producing.

The price of oil tumbled to thirty cents a barrel and Doheny, with his customary faith, contracted to buy up every barrel produced. Then he went ahead and made contracts to supply thousands of barrels a month to consumers. Again, fortune dealt Doheny a body blow. The producers failed to furnish the quantities agreed upon, and Doheny had to buy additional supplies from other sources at much higher prices to fill his contracts. This obliged him to obtain bank loans. When Bryan started his bi-metalism campaign, in 1896, Doheny energetically supported the movement, was cautioned by the bankers that it would be a very bad thing for him and everybody else if free silver were introduced, and as Doheny would not recant his political convictions, he promptly, to avert involuntary bankruptcy through the calling of his loans, prepared a plan to turn over all his property to a trustee. On the tenth of August, 1896, Doheny's fortieth birthday, he remarked to his friends that he had not forty dollars to his name.

Within two years he had regained all his Los Angeles property and was making hundreds of dollars a day from a new property he developed in the now-famous Fullerton District of California. As usual, he sold out (for $156,000) when he had got the thing running, and released activities he had already begun in the rich Bakersfield district until he was netting there an income of fully $500,000 a year. Then he sold when there was nothing to do but count the receipts. This renunciation of the income of an emperor proved a new turning point in Edward L. Doheny's career. His greatest fame, his greates achievements, his greatest wealth have sprung from the daring step he then took. The urge of the pioneer, the prospector, the explorer, coursed strong as ever through his blood. Conquest, not money, was his dominating aim had had a hand in every big oil strike throughout the West; but the West at the opening of the twentieth century had become a different land from what it was when young Ed. Doheny hunted Indians, rode bareback at horse races, trekked 800 miles without meeting more than one white human being and had to depend on his marksmanship for his daily food. He must needs find other worlds to conquer.

He has not had a single dull day, a single hour of ennui, a moment's dearth of difficulties ever since! At the moment I write there stares from the morning newspaper headlines, proclaiming that the wrangles between oil producers and the Carranza government are waxing warm, and that a meet ing was held in New York the previous day under the presidency of E. L. Doheny to seek a solution of the dispute concerning the right of the Mexican government to impose confiscatory legislation upon owners of oil properties south of the Rio Grande.

What lured Doheny to Mexico? "I knew," he answered me, "that it had no intensely developed coal re Canfield, he set out on a novel prospecting trip of several thousand not driving a burro with crosstree packsaddle and rawhide alforpas, bu a private car furnished by the Atchison Railway (with whom he had d in Mr. Donehy's employment. Through deserts and mountains and val

At Tampico, nine miles from the gulf, their prospecting sense war from Mexico into the United States, rolled up riches until it was knocked on the head by the McKinley tariff bill, which imposed half-a-cent a pound duty to a dense jungle, and lo! they discovered what looked like the crater of active volcano, filled with thick tar, through which great bubbles of were creeping, giving it the appearance of an immense boiling cauldi Instantly, the prospectors visioned oceans of oil, the erection of huge pla the creation of a new city, the winning of millions upon millions of barr of oil and, ultimately, a vast export trade to all parts of the world. For with they purchased 280,000 acres and arranged to acquire a total of alm half-a-million acres.

The Indian conducted them to another place ten miles away, and he they found a boiling spring of lighter oil. The owner of this land repeated raised his price $25,000 each time the Americans agreed to his figure, but nally a deal for 280,000 acres was consumated. Through jungle paths horseback, up shallow waters in canoes, and along larger rivers by steam Doheny and Canfield explored for several months, adding constantly to the holdings until they had acquired a mineature empire.

The Mexican Petroleum Company, capitalized at $10,000,000, was for ed in the fall (1900), drilling machinery was hurriedly shipped from Piburg to Tampico, thence by rail and finally hauled through the jungle. two weeks a well was sunk which began to produce fifty barrels of v heavy oil daily. This confirmed their already confident hopes of giant s cess. The Mexican Central Railway agreed to use the oil for fuel purpo agreement, thus leaving the Yankees high and dry without a single custon for their product.

"Nil desperandum," was Doheny's motto. He went ahead developi more and more wells, built a refining plant, formed an asphalt compar which did a large business and is still in existence, finally convinced Mexican Central Railway that it could not afford to operate without fuel, and established a thriving profitable business. Then, as always, D heny looked for something new and bigger to tackle. He bought a who region some seventy-five miles south of Tampico. The fact that the nea est railroad was seventy miles distant from the property did not daunt him without a guitar he expert of 1500 and in builting. without a quiver, he spent $1,500,000 in building a pipe line, with fipumping stations, before any oil to transport had been tapped, so sure w he of his ground. Just before the pipe line was completed the initial we was finished and gushed forth 14,000 barrels a day.

Edward L. Doheny thus became the oil king of Mexico and the large producer of oil in any country. The assets of the Mexican Petroleum Con apny, of which he is the president and the controlling spirit, exceed $83 000,000. From a single property 122,000,000 barrels of oil have been ma keted. Investors have clamored for the $100 shares at prices ranging from $150 to $200 each. In addition Mr. Doneny formed and controls the Par American Petroleum & Transport Company, which owns among other thing a large fleet of tank steamers of which no fewer than twelve were devoted to the service of the British and American governments in the war zone The Doheny interests embrace gigantic storage plants in Mexico, refinin plants, distributing stations at a half-a-score of ports in the United States in Panama and Brazil.

"Success is not to be measured in money," Mr. Doheny replied very emphatically to my questions on this subject. "Success is to be measured by worthy achievements, achievements which add to the wealth of the work provide employment at good wages, help the onward march of civilization and make the world a better place to live in. How can a young man succeed? Why that is the simplest question in the world to answer. He shoul make himself so necessary to his business that his employers will give him a share in it or anything else to keep him.

"Don't put money-making first. Devote yourself and all that is in yo to doing what you set your hand to do and when you have succeeded, the monetary reward will take care of itself."

All through the years of uprisings and shootings in Mexico, the Dohen operties were shown exceptional good-will by the Mexican people. Mr Doheny from the start had treated everyone, from the humblest and most illiterate peon to the highest government ocicials, with scrupulous fairness and consideration. Not only so, but the Mexiacns realized that he had been one of their real benefactors in that he had turned his attention to a vas area of unhealthy, uninhabited jungle and had transformed it into a sanitary, industrial area, giving well-paid employment to many thousands and bringing about a transformation in living conditions in Tampico and elsewhere. They saw in Mr. Doheny therefore, a genuine friend and an invaluable contributor to their welfare and progress.

Mr. Doheny's outstanding characteristics are his out-and-out honesty, super-human industry, his illimitable courage, his perennial cheerfulness and optimism, his breadth of vision, his untrumpeted generosity, and his modesty. His knowledge of oil is matched by his knowledge of literature. I know no business man who uses better conversational English or who habitually coins more brilliant metaphors.

When I asked him if he could single out one thing more than any other to which he owes his success, he smiled very broadly as he replied, let's go through to the other room, and I'll show you." And he introduced me to Mrs. Doheny! "This," he said with a characteristic touch of knightly gallantry, "is the greatest find I ever made"-B. C. Forbes, in Commercial Review.

The Texas Almanac, published by the Dallas News in 1919 says: "The Mineral deposits of Ward county have never been exploited, but it is known that there are deposits of various chemicals, including gypsum, sulphate and sulphide of soda. There are also traces of oil and gas.

Since March 8th, 1919, when the first drilling spot was selected, 8 pro ducing wells have been brought in in this country-and over 75 wells are to be drilled this year. This is a chance for a man with small means to'lay up something for the future. The lease carries free rental for two years.

Jim Sherman

Clarendon, Texas

Wildcatters and big producers have been attracted to the Pecos district since announcement has been made that merchants and stockmen of Pecos and Reeves Counties have organized a company for the purpose of drilling

This announcement caused several big concerns to send scouts into the field and make an investigation of former geological reports. Former geological reports on the structure in that section have been most favorable. The Pecos and Reeves County wildcatters have not gone into the game blindfolded as many would think. They first secured the services of an expert petroleum geologist, who also referred to the reports of his predecessors. This geologist made a personal survey of the field and selected the sites where the first drill will pierce the earth.

The section where the tests will be made resemble the structure found in the oil region around Tampico, Mexico. It lies at the base of the historical Rustler hills and east of them. It extends into Culberson and El Paso Counties. The surface shows a great anticline and while there is a chance of a fall down, that chance is small.

From 1902 to 1904 several geological surveys were made in this section by the United States Geological Survey as part of the general survey of the country. In all these reports reference was made that indications were good for petroleum. The price of crude oil at that time was not enough to make any one take any interest in the matter, because then other fields were furnishing an ample supply and the general cry was over-production. New conditions are different, and oil is needed all over the world.

Dr. W. B. Phillips of the University of Texas, also made a favorable report on that immediate section of the country. He reported the outcrop to be carboniferous sandstones and limestones, which is good.

Dealing fully with that section of the country, he wrote: ical series seem to have, primarily a great thickness of indurated carbon uos limestone at the base; then a series of sands and bituminous shale, then another thickness of upper carboniferous, (Pennsylvania) and Permian limestones; then shales and clay of Permian age. He reported the structure along the Guadalupe-Sacramento range, eastward toward the Pecos River to be on an anticline and one of the best formations in the country. In that section oil, asphaltum and sulphur, have been found in apparents wills that section oil, asphaltum and sulphur have been found in numerous wells that have been sunk

George Burr Richardson of the United States Geological Survey, wrote a report on that section of Texas. He said: "The presence of petroleum in commercial quantities in part of trans-Pecos, Texas—in Reeves and Eastern El Paso (now Culberson) Counties, has been suspected for several years. Indications are numerous. Bituminous limestones, sandstones and shales that give a strong odor on being struck with a hammer, outcrop is many places. The occurrence of globules of oil in the water from various wells, of a few oil seeps, and especially small quantities of peroleum in oil prospects, tend to confirm the suspicion that oil in paying quantities actually exists here."

"Dear Mr. Nixon: "By reason of the excellent work shown by the Y. M. C. A. assigned to the Ninetieth division throughout the period September 12-19, I ask that in behalf of this division you express to all members concerned my sincerest thanks for the highly important services rendered by them. Through these trying days, from your headquarters at Griscourt, where a canteen, ware house and dormitory were established your valuable activities were at all times in evidence up to the assaulting battalions and back from those advanced elements with the wounded through the various medical stations

"Nine secretaries were with the infantry battalion, and two secretaries (F. A. Daves and B. F. I specially desire to commend the zeal and fortitude of these two gentlemen, and to thank the Y. M. C. A. for having sent such excellent representatives to us,

"Very truly yours, (Signed) "HENRY T. ALLEN, "Major General."

K. C. STOCK MARKET

Kansas City Stock Yards, June 2, 1919.—Trade in cattle today was extremely dull at unevenly lower prices. Hogs were quoted up 15 to 25 cents and sheep down 25 to 40 cents. The cattle market suffered because of continued liberal receipts, and hog prices went higher, notwithstanding liberal supplies.

Cattle receipts today were 14,000 hogs 15,000, and sheep 14,000, a decrease of 3,000 cattle, an increase of 4,000 sheep, and the same number of hogs compared to a week ago. Cattle came from nearly all western states, and the bulk of the sheep and lambs from Arizona, Texas and Cali-ing of last week's decline in prices, and today there were nearly as many cattle at the five western markets as a week ago. Prices were unevenly In most cases steers were down 15 to 25 cents with trade dull. Western steers are selling at $10.00 to $14.75, and native steers $9.50 to $15.50. Prime corn fat steers are quoted as high as $16.00, cows and heifers are selling at $7.00 to $14.25, and yearling steers and mixed grades at $9.00 to $14.50, bulls $7.00 to $10. In the past seven days, declines will amount to $1.50 to $2.00. Veal calves are steady at $9.00 to $14.50.

Prices for thin cattle show about the same decline as fat grades. The market today was 10 to 25 cents lower and dull. Feeders are quoted at $10 to $14.50. Those above $13.50 carry considerable flesh. Stockers are selling at $9.00 to $13.00, stock cows $7.50 to $13.00, and stock calves $8.00 to $13.00. Though hog prices were depressed 50 to 60 cents from the high level a week ago, and Wednesday was the low day last week, the market has rallied 25 to 35 cents. Today 15 to 25 cents was added and trade was active. The top price was $20.75, and the bulk of the hogs sold at $20.20 to $20.60. Demand showed considerable urgency. Pigs are quoted at $15.50 to $19.50.

"Probably the most interesting deelopment in the North Texas oil fields at the present time is the Iowa Park district", says Max Strumpf. "The field is as yet comparatively new, but oil in large quantities is being discovered and the field broadening out in all directions until it begins to look as though the country surrounding the town of Iowa Park was destined to become one of the real oil centers of North Central

"Numerous wells in this particular field are now producing upward of more than a hundred barrels of oil a day from the different sands, ranging in depth from 160 to 1,300 ft. and many of the drilling wells are now nearing the oil sands and each day new wells are being drilled in until increase in production in this field has gone far beyond the hopes of the most optimistic.

"The percentage of dry holes in this district is far below the average and in almost every instance oil is encountered in large quantities.

"I have been engaged in the contracting and drilling end of the game for a considerable time and have had occasion to visit the various oil fields of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, but nowhere, in my judgment, have I found anything which offers so great an opportunity for the conservative investor as does the Iowa Park district at this time.

"Many companies are interested and drilling on their holdings is now going forward at a rapid rate of progress. And in almost every instance they have been richly rewarded for their labors."—Fort Worth Record, Friday, April 11th.

PERSHING VISITS "Y" HEADQUARTERS

General John J. Pershing, American expeditionary force commander, leaving Y. M. C. A., Palais du Glace, Paris, where he congratulated every woman

General Pershing's inspection of the Y. M. C. A. canteen, which was unannounced, took up an entire morning and he expressed himself satisfied with the results. At several places he surprised the men at their luncheon. At the Palais du Glace, where 25,000 Americans eat daily, the first intimation that the diners had of his presence was when the orchestra played the "Star-Spangled Banner," and they looked about to find the commander in chief of A. E. F standing at attention.

He interrogated a number of the soldiers about the food and the prices, and exhibited the most minute interest in everything pertaining to their welfare. At the Hotel Rochester, a Y. M. C. A. hostelry on the Boulevard Courelles, he learned with surprise that any private soldier could get two eggs for his breakfast. This was something generals frequently had experinced difficulty in doing.

To the American women workers at the Palais du Glace he said: "I want to tell you that I appreciate what the American women are doing over here. It means a great deal to the army to have the right kind of American women here doing the work you are doing. Not only is it good for the soldiers, but for you, too. Secretary of the Navy Nonplused at Criticism of Y. M. C. A .- Proved Heroism.

The war work of men in the uniform of the Red Triangle who followtheir heroism and devotion on the battle front and were always present to serve and comfort the American fighting men, says Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, will remain an enduring monument to the Y. M. C. A. "It is unthinkable," he declared in a letter to the "Y" war work council, "that criticism of minor defects here and there should be allowed to cloud for a moment the splendid record made by this great association."

His letter, recently made public by the Y. M. C. A., follows in part:

"Only those who were brought in intimate contact with it, and could survey the whole field, are able to appreclate fully the great extent and value of the Y. M. C. A.'s work for our soldiers and sailors. In camps and training stations, at home and abroad, at the fighting front, on transports and at naval bases, it cheered and aided our fighting forces. Its halls and huts were not only social centers, furnishing wholesale recreation and amusement, but were places for mental improvement and moral refreshment. They were bits of America set on foreign soil, reminding the boys of the

$16,000 For Every $100 Invested

Is what the Fowler Farm Oil Company paid its stockholders. The Fowler was a Rank WILDCAT with only 300 acres, yet when the Golden Sands were tapped every stockholder was made immensely wealthy; from this lonely Wild Cat has sprung the wonder Pool of the World—BURKBURNETT.

Hundreds of Millions of Dollars have changed hands, thousands of men have been made rich, Burkburnett, ten months ago, a little country town of less than 1000 inhabitants is today the center of the oil world, with a population of 20,000. It seems so like a fairy story, yet we know it is true. It is but the history of an oil field, following a big discovery. If in your mind you are able to calculate the immense wealth developed in Wichita County in the past ten months, please remember it is all but the fruits of the lonely Wild Cat out among the sand hills of Red River near Burkburnett. To W. L. Fowler, and his Wild Cat, must be given the credit of bringing to Wichita County, those hundreds of thousands of investors and those hundreds of millions of dollars.

The Buck Creek Oil Company is another Wild Cat. We claim nothing else. But in our wildest Wild Cat dreams, we can be no WILDER than was the Fowler Farm Wild Cat ten months ago. Yet how much greater the opportunity for gain.

The Buck Creek Company with its 10,000 acres surrounding its deep test together with large acreage near several other deep tests now drilling, offers to the public the BIGGEST, the BEST and the RICHEST WILD CAT opportunity ever placed before the investing public. How often in your minds have you said "If I could have had the opportunity to put a hundred dollars in FOW-LER". But when a better opportunity seeks you—is knocking at your door, you hesitate.

Here are some of the facts as to WHO, WHERE AND WHAT the Buck Creek Oil Company is: Our capital is $100,000 divided into 10,000 shares at $10.00 each. Experience, observation and common sense teaches us that a large majority of the Wild Cat Oil Company's blow up, and accomplish absolutely nothing, on account of not having sufficient capital with which to do the work. They must either pull up pegs and quit, or else sell off the company's holdings in order to meet the necessary expenses. We have chosen a better way. We have made our capital sufficiently large to enable us to give our stockholders a sure enough deep test. We are going to the bottom.

We have bought and will own our own machinery. A new heavy Standard outfit complete. Ours will be the biggest and best drilling outfit in North Texas. The derrick timbers are on the ground, awaiting the rig iron which has been shipped with the other machinery, and should be here within the next few days.

We have secured acreage near all other deep tests now drilling in our country, and will endeavor to secure acreage near other deep tests to be put down, just as soon as their locations are made.

It is our intention to make the Buck Creek one of the biggest companies in the state, and we shall take advantage of every opportunity to safeguard against any possibility of loss. By this method, we are not only offering our stockholders the benefits of our own deep test, but we are giving them advantage of these other deep tests. It would be foolish indeed for us, even with the very best of prospects for oil to hold our entire 10,000 acres surrounding our own deep test, risking all in a dry hole. It is our plan therefore, to sell part of our acreage, while we are drilling, at what we consider the most opportune time, and at the very highest price possible. This money obtained from the sale of acreage will be placed in the treasury for the stockholders and subject to their wishes. By this means we feel reasonably sure that every possibility of loss can be eliminated.

The management of our Company is vested in a board of five directors, elected annually by the stockholders, as clearly set forth in the Articles of the Association, filed and recorded in deeds of record in Donley County, Texas. The Directors for the first year are:

C. A. CROW, Memphis, Texas
C. D. AKERS, Clarendon, Texas
E. H. WATT, Giles, Texas
P. H. WILLIAMS, Hedley, Texas
W. D. UTTS, Burkburnett, Texas.

Our well will be drilled always under the close and careful supervision of Mr. Williams, our Manager. Mr. Williams has had 20 years experience in Deep well drilling in this country and in Old Mexico. He has brought in some deep wells and some big wells. He is well known throughout this country as a man, strictly honest and dependable in every way, and we feel sure that in securing his services as General Manager, that we are giving to our stockholders one of the biggest assets possible in a Wild Cat Oil Co. After having read about our plans and purposes, just who and what we are, and having convinced yourself that we are the only and original Buck Creek Oil Company, that we are all we claim to be, and that we mean business, come in with us, get a hold on this Wild Cat, and be one of the boys WHEN THE WELL COMES IN. Remember the stock is open to the public for only a few days. It is going fast and will soon be sold out. Our books will be closed after June 21.

THIS IS YOUR GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY:

You will never have another half as good, and we need you to help us tame our Wild Cat. But you must act quick, if you want to be with us, when we find the liquid gold. We are going to find it, and we want you to help share the good fortune due us all, when we do. ACT NOW. A little delay now may mean a small fortune to you. CAN YOU AFFORD to miss a chance like this one. You cannot, however rich ,or however poor you may be at present. YOU CANNOT AFFORD to let this opportunity slip by you.

If there is no agent where you are, don't wait for one, but fill out the blank NOW and mail it into the office and receive your certificate. It is impossible to tell how much one share will be worth when we hit oil, but remember we have 3,000 acres in our biggest tract. The Fowler Farm had only 300. You missed that BIG CHANCE. But here is another even bigger. DON'T MISS IT.
