

THE DONLEY COUNTY LEADER

J. C. ESTLACK, Editor and Owner

Published on Tuesday of each week.

Entered as second-class matter March 12, 1929, at the post office at Clarendon, Texas, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

This paper's first duty is to print all the news that's fit to print honestly and fairly to all unbiased by any consideration even including its own editorial opinion.

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm, or corporation which may occur in the columns of THE DONLEY COUNTY LEADER will be gladly corrected upon being brought to the attention of the management.

The Mayos Coming To Texas

News comes from Mineral Wells that one of the Drs. Mayo was there a few weeks ago and made arrangements to add four stories to the new hotel now in course of construction.

The Mayos say that most of their patients now are coming from the Southwest, and that to show their appreciation to Texas they are going to open a big sanitarium in Mineral Wells, and will give the same care and service to their patients as they do in Rochester, Minn.

"A Cottage Small by a Water Fall"—may be good enough for the other fellow, but I'd rather have a home in Palo Duro by a dam site.

KING COTTON

Of all plant life, none is more beneficial to mankind than cotton. Since the dawn of early history in ancient lands, tribesmen have made use of the fleecy staple. King cotton has protected from the elements people of every class from pauper to millionaire. Cotton became known as "king" from the crown-like shape of the boll as the burrs begin to part at bursting time. As King it has made millions for the poor man and paupers out of the rich men. It has driven men to suicide the friend of man it is also a cruel master.

In looking over the field snow white blossoms bid you welcome only to blush to a crimson pink. Later when the crown appears and storms attack the mighty ruler, the dignified survivors of the tempest view a field of slaughter. Pendant caskets are robbed of silken threads and strewn over the stalk by nature's marauder. More effort is necessary. The mighty monarch again adorns himself that the needy may not suffer the chills of the oncoming winter. Undismayed, the process is repeated again and again until the wintry blasts compel a halt.

In the evening of the season thousands of threads are strung upon which play the soft zephyrs making heavenly harmonies on a thousand harps that hang on the edges of the leaves and the branches. Sad gray clouds sometimes hide the view with melancholy shadows, and now they move displaying snow white, fluffy staple and it seems as tho you can hear the whir of a thousand spindles weaving into cloth nature's glorious gift clothing with beauty the inspiration of men, sacred companionship, God's greatest exponent of his handiwork—a woman.

FATHER'S DAY

The big day for the old man has come and gone. Sox and neckties are in evidence. While it is out of the question to for one minute detract in the least from the glorious tribute paid womanhood on Mother's Day, the old man likes to kid himself into believing that he is little more than a semi-permanent fixture around the place.

The family bus may belong to the wife by day, the kids by night and the old man while it is in the garage for repairs without protest, but even at that he likes to be remembered. Here's hoping that all the father's were remembered on "our" day. If you lost out on sox or neckties, perhaps you got a swell feed which helps in a pinch.

A FLOWER FOR DAD

Don't wait to put wreaths on his casket, Then whisper with voice low and sad: "I wish I had told him I loved him And given more flowers to Dad." For then he'll not need them, remember, But now they might make him feel glad; And, so, while honoring others Why not wear a flower for Dad?

MR. FARMER!

If you have been successful with your plans, let us tell others about it. If you have raised a good crop of field or garden crop, let us tell the folks about it. If you have any good stock, milk cow, bull, horse or even an implement of your own improvement or manufacture, let us know about it. If you have tried out a new variety of anything, let us tell the public that too.

The world is a comedy to those who think, a tragedy to those who feel.

CHINESE ELM

Last week a request was made of those knowing where Chinese elm might be found in this locality. Forest Sawyer came in next day and informed the Apostle that he had planted of them in his yard on his farm north of town. He recommends them highly because of their beauty, drought resisting nature and quick growth. Mr. Sawyer also states that two such elms are to be found on the courthouse lawn. Look at them and you will plant out Chinese elm instead of locust next season.

RATES REDUCED

Announcement is made in their ad space of last week that the West Texas Utilities company would materially reduce their rates. This is a volunteer reduction without either request or protest.

The same high class service will be maintained. It simply means that better equipment, more efficiently trained employees and better business methods in general make the reduction possible.

It may be further stated that this is one of the very few corporations in the state to make reductions, and this not the first time reductions have been voluntarily made.

AMENDMENTS

The people of Texas are to vote on two amendments July 16th. One calls for an increase in the number of judges of the State Supreme Court to nine in order that cases coming before that body may be disposed of without delay. At present it is claimed that the functions of the court is hampered by the limited number to pass on cases. The state population has outgrown the court.

The other amendment is a proposal to increase the salary of the governor from four up to ten thousand a year. Those favoring the increase state that it is impossible to get the right kind of man for the job on a limited salary.

WHAT IS YOUR OPINION?

The Leader family has grown to such an extent that all the postoffices in the trade territory are represented by a big list. All of these are paid in advance readers. In view of the fact that we have several hundred new readers, we want to repeat a request made in the beginning. That was a request for suggestions as to how we might improve the paper.

You have some idea of your own as to what you would like to see in the Leader. Write us, or come to the office and tell us just what you think about it. This is your paper. The reading public largely shapes the destinies of any paper.

We are proud of the fact that the Leader has the extreme loyalty of its readers. Hundreds of loyal boosters for the county wide paper has helped wonderfully. The fact that we do not cater to any particular section has met with a ready response.

If you have any community problems, and we can help you with publicity, we shall be only too glad to help you. We want you to feel that it is your paper ready to be of real service to you and your section. It is our pleasure to boost for every worthy idea for the betterment of the people of this trade territory.

COTTON

Cotton is the overcoat of a seed that is planted and grown in the Southern States, to keep the producer broke and the buyer crazy. The fiber varies in color and weight, and the man who can guess nearest the length of the fiber is called a cotton man by the public, a fool by the farmer, and a poor business man by his creditors. The price of cotton is determined in New York and goes up when you have sold and down when you have bought. A buyer working for a group of mills was sent to New York to watch the cotton market, and after a few days' deliberations he wired his firm to this effect: "Some think it will go up and some think it will go down. I do, too. Whatever you do will be wrong. Act at once." Cotton is planted in the spring, mortgaged in the summer, and left in the field in the winter. You can and you can't. You will and you won't. You'll be damned if you do, and be damned if you don't.—Hardware Retailer.

ADVERTISING

A hen is not supposed to have much common sense or tact, yet every time she lays an egg she cackles forth the fact.

A rooster hasn't got a lot of common sense to show, but none the less, most roosters have enough good sense to crow.

The mule, the most despised of beasts, has a persistent way of letting folks know he's around by his insistent bray.

The busy little bees they buzz; bulls bellow and cows moo; the watch dog barks; ganders quack; doves and pigeons coo.

The peacock spreads his tail and squawks; pigs squeal and robins sing, and even snakes have got the sense to hiss before they sting.

But man, the greatest masterpiece that nature could devise, will often stop and hesitate before he'll advertise!—California Editor.

Temple of Truth By the Apostle

Speaking of gardens, G. G. Kemp, main ramrod of the big Clarendon Motor company, has about the swellest tomatoes in this section. He states that he has some now as large as a half dollar.

Every man has some hobby, or should have. Blessed is he who has one taking him outdoors. It is a mystery to some of us just why nature demands outdoor exercise, but she does.

A certain garage man in town does beautiful fancy work of the crochet and Mexican drawn work variety. One would never suspect him while dressed for his regular job. He learned it because he admired that finery sort of stuff. Hobbies? Yes, most of us have

New Battle Fleet Head

Vice-admiral L. N. Nulton, former superintendent of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, has just become commander of the United States Battle Fleet.

Here's another one. A certain physician than whom there is no more skilled man in his profession in the Panhandle, and who has an office not a thousand miles from here, has a hobby of playing with toy engines. He likes mechanical toys and informed the writer that he could relax better fooling with a toy than in any other manner.

Some folks think that a physician has no worries other than his collections. That is a mistake if the man is in dead earnest in his work. We all have our problems.

Some of the boys are trying to match G. A. Anderson against Ora

Liesberg for a yo yo race. G. A. says he will take on any honest player, but he has played checkers entirely too much with Ora to risk a reputation in a new fangled game.

Had you noticed how Gene Thompson is coming out of it lately? After being down and out for months and months, he took up the study of diet and is back on his feet again. He makes a specialty of green stuff such as lettuce, turnip greens, spinach and alfalfa and announces that he will tackle raw bear grass on July 4th by way of celebration.

The girls are not going soxless—they rool 'em down. Druggists are enjoying a wide sale of fly repeaters. Heelily time is about over, or the worst of it at least, but the small gray cow fly is something awful.

Since this fad struck, dairymen are having a hard time providing fly dope for their herds. Even kresol dip is getting scarce.

And another thing! The Apostle was chagrined, bamboozled and dumbfounded Wednesday when a handsome young lady driving a fancy car paraded up the main street puffing a cigarette. Just what kind of a grandmother she would make is a wide guess. Or are those kind of woman superwoman? Do you suppose they ever have an idea of filling God's highest and holiest station?

Industries Are Trekking Toward the Smaller Towns

CONGESTED quarters, high rents, exorbitant taxes and unsatisfactory labor conditions are slowly but surely driving industries from the larger cities to the country.

THOUSANDS of manufacturers, mill owners and big business men yearly are realizing the advantages of quiet, uncrowded, inexpensive living and excellent labor conditions offered by the small town and are trekking in that direction.

THE majority of the small towns in West Texas can have their share of industrial development because they have the necessary facilities, of which none is more important than ample, uninterrupted, economical electric power.

THE WEST TEXAS UTILITIES COMPANY, with its more than 2,000 miles of transmission lines and 70,000 available horsepower of electrical energy, guarantees the industries the same efficient service they have enjoyed in the great cities of the country.

The TRAIL OF '98

A Northland Romance

by Robert W. Service

ILLUSTRATIONS BY IRWIN MYERS

Probably never again will the world witness an event more romantic, more thrilling, more filled with the spirit of adventure, than the great Klondike gold rush. In point of numbers and the facing of unknown perils, it must have equalled—perhaps eclipsed—the famous rush to California in '49. After that the nineteenth century should close with the strangest and most glittering epic of all—the trek to the frozen valley of the Yukon.

Robert W. Service

The argonauts, men and women, represented every class and occupation—a cross section of society—and naturally there were artists of every description, painters of pictures and writers of prose and poetry. Among the latter none was more gifted or more versatile than the more vivid transcription than Robert W. Service. Perhaps the poetic gift was in him before he encountered the spell of the Northland. In any case, it was not developed; and it was the magic of the country and the thrill of the things he witnessed that aroused him to poetic expression.

After celebrating the epic of '98 in many wonderful poems, Mr. Service now essays to present its tremendous drama and beautifully romantic qualities in prose. The poetic thought is still visible even though the meter has been discarded. In considering the motif of the story the opening lines of one of his famous verses come to mind: "This is the law of the Yukon, and ever she makes it plain: Send not your foolish and feeble: send me your strong and your sane." It is a story which pictures the strong and the steel-nerved in triumph; the weak and the feeble in defeat. In particular, it is a story of one strong man giving of his best to protect a weak woman.

CHAPTER I

AS FAR back as I can remember I have faithfully followed the banner of Romance. It has given color to my life, made me a dreamer of dreams, a player of parts. As a boy, roaming along the wild heather hills, I have heard the glad shouts of the football players on the green, yet never settled to join them. Mine was the richer, rarer joy. The spirit of Romance beckoned to me. I would adventure in the stranger lands, and face their perils and brave their dangers. The joy of the thought excited in my veins, and scarce could I bide the day when the roads of chance and change would be open to my feet.

It is strange that in all these years I conformed in no one. Garry, who was my brother and my dearest friend, would have laughed at me in that affectionate way of his. You would never have taken us for brothers. He was the handsomest boy I have ever seen, frank, fair-skinned and winning, while I was dark, dour and none too well favored. He was clever, practical and ambitious, excelling in all his studies; whereas, except in those which appealed to my imagination, I was a dullard and a dreamer. Yet we loved each other as few brothers do. Not excepting mother. Garry knew me better than any one has ever done, and I loved him for it. It seems overfond to say this, but he did not have a fault; tenderness, humor, enthusiasm, sympathy and the beauty of a young god—all that was manfully endearing was expressed in this brother of mine.

Our home was an ideal one; Garry, tall, fair and winsome; myself dark, dreamy, reticent; and between us, linking all three in a perfect bond of love and sympathy, our gentle, delicate mother.

Mother must have worried a good deal over my future. Garry was the young lord, and I was but an idler, a burden on the estate. At last I told her I wanted to go abroad, and then it seemed as if a great difficulty was solved. We remembered of a cousin who was sheep-ranching in the Saskatchewan valley and had done well. It was arranged that I should join him as a pupil, then, when I had learned enough, buy a piece of my own. It may be imagined that while apparently acquiesced in this arrangement, I had already determined that as soon as I reached the new land I would take my destiny in my own hands.

Then as the hour of my departure drew near a shadow fell on us. If I broke down in unmanly grief, it must be remembered I had never before been from home. Mother gave up trying to be brave, and mingled her tears with mine.

"Don't cry, sweetheart mother," I said; "I'll be back again in three years."

"Mind you do, my boy, mind you do."

She looked at me woefully sad, and I had a queer, heartrending prevision; I would never see her more. Garry was pale and quiet, but I could see he was vastly moved.

"Athol," said he, "if ever you need me just send for me. I'll come, no matter how long or how hard the way."

I can see them to this day standing there in the drenching rain. Garry fine and manly, mother small and drooping.

"Good-by, liddle, good-by."

"I forced myself away, and stumbled on board. When I looked back again they were gone, but through the gray shadows there seemed to come back to me a cry of heartache and irremediable loss.

It was on a day of early autumn when I stood knee-deep in the heather of Glengyle, and looked wistfully over the gray sea. 'Twas but a month later when, homeless and friendless, I stood on the beach by the Cliff house of San Francisco, and gazed over the fretful waters of another ocean. Such is the romance of destiny.

Consigned, so to speak, to my cousin, the sheep-raiser of the Saskatchewan, I found myself settling forth on the strange land with but little heart for my new vocation. My mind, ramful of book notions, craved for the larger life. I was valiantly mad for adventure; to fore go forth haphazardly; to come upon naked danger; to feel the bludgeonings of mischance; to tramp, to starve, to sleep under the stars. It was the call of boy-idea perpetuated to the man, and it was to lead me a sorry dance. But I could not overbear it.

The notion of the South Seas was ever in my head. I loafed in the sunshine, sitting on the pier-edge, with eyes fixed on the lazy shipping. These were care-free, irresponsible days, and not, I am convinced, entirely mispent. I came to know the worthies of the wharves, and plunge into an underworld of fascinating repulency. I rubbed shoulders with eager necessity, scrambled for free lunches in frowsy barrooms, and amid the scum and debris of the waterside found much food for sober thought.

I was, too, a seeker of curious experience, and this was to prove my undoing. One foggy midnight, coming up Pacific street with its glut of saloons, I was clouted shrewdly from behind and dropped most neatly in the gutter. When I came to, very sick and dizzy in a side alley, I found I had been robbed of my pocketbook with nearly all my money therein. Fortunately, I had left my watch in the hotel safe, and by selling it was not entirely destitute; but the situation forced me from my citadel of pleasant dreams, and confronted me with the grimmer realities of life.

With some thirty-odd dollars standing between me and starvation, it was obvious I must become a hewer of wood and a drawer of water, and to this end I haunted the employment offices. One morning, on seeking my favorite labor bureau, I found an unusual flutter among the benchwarmers. A big contractor wanted fifty men immediately. With a number of others I pressed forward, was interviewed and accepted. The same day we were marched in a body to the railway depot and herded into a fourth-class car.

Where we were going I knew not; of what we were going to do I had no inkling.

I left San Francisco blanketed in gray fog and besombed by a roaring wind; when I opened my eyes I was in a land of spacious sky and broad, clean sunshine. It seemed like a land of promise, of song and sunshine, and, silent and apart I sat to admire and to enjoy.

"Looks pretty swell, don't it?"

I will call him the Prodigal. He was about my own age, but sun-browned and healthy. His eyes twinkled with a humorous light, but his face was shrewd and alert and aggressive.

"Yes," I said soberly, for I have always been backward with strangers.

"Pretty good line. The bananas belt. Eternal summer. Ever been here before?"

"No."

"Neither have I. Glad I came, even if it's to do the horny-handed son of toil stunt."

"Where are we going, have you any idea?" I asked.

"Search me," he said. "Only thing you can bank on, they'll work the Judas out of us. The gentle grafter nestles in our midst. This here's a cinch game and we are the fall guys."

He talked on with a wonderfully vivid manner and an outpouring knowledge of life, so that I was hugely interested. Yet ever and anon an allusion of taste would betray him, and at no time did I fail to see that his roughness was only a veneer. And it turned out that he was better educated by far than I, a Yale boy taking a post-graduate course in the University of Hard Luck.

My reserve once thawed, I told him much of my simple life. He listened, intently, sympathetic.

"Say," said he earnestly when I had finished. "You're green, if you'll excuse me saying it, and maybe I can help you some. Likewise, you're the only one in all the gang of hobos that's my kind. Let's be partners. I felt drawn to him and I agreed."

Hedley Constable Resigns Another Appointed Friday

Walter Ginn, who has been serving as constable in Hedley precinct No. 3, has resigned. The county commissioners Friday appointed George Perdue to the office by request of the citizens of that precinct.

Mr. Perdue has been serving as night watchman since the murder of Mr. Richey several months ago by safe crackers. Two of the three charged with this murder have received sentences of ninety-nine years. The third man has not come to trial.

During the term of Mr. Perdue little has come up except trivial cases, Hedley citizens being a peaceable, law abiding bunch of folks.

PICTURE ADDS TO SCREEN HISTORY

"Redskin's" Tender Romance Is New Revelation of Beauty of Color in Films

A new chapter has been written in the history of the motion picture. A new wonder has been revealed. "Redskin", the new Richard Dix epic of the West, which will be shown at the Pastime Theatre July 1st and 2nd, marks an amazingly wonderful step forward.

Beautiful scenic backgrounds are revealed in all their true color and beauty. The hills and valleys of the Indian country are reproduced for the screen just as the eye sees them in nature. And the powerfully gripping story, true to Indian traditions and customs, unfolds in this native setting.

A master cast enacts this drama

Richard Dix, who made such a tremendous success of his picturization of "The Vanishing American," turns his thoughts to the serious drama again and records a new masterpiece worthy of place with his previous enduring epic.

The power and majesty of music and the cleverly reproduced Sound effects increase the realism of the picture. Here, indeed, Sound can be measured for its true worth and the whole combination of color, Sound and story makes an emotion-stirring picture which will not soon be forgotten.

Facts Relative to The Junior College Movement in Donley County

The citizens of Donley County who are interested in higher education for the boys and girls in this section of the state are at the present time in the middle of a campaign to make Clarendon Municipal College a County Junior College. The plan is as follows: Petitions are being circulated all over the county to get at least ten per cent of the voters to petition the County Board of Education to ask the State Board of Education, which meets July 10, to call an election in Donley County, to be held some time in the first week of August. At this time the voters of the county would then decide whether or not they will vote a tax of 20c on the $100 on state and county valuation to maintain the College and make it so NO TUITION will be charged for students who live in Donley County.

This question has been asked frequently, "What will it cost the taxpayers?" You may figure it yourself. It will cost one dollar on every five hundred dollars of state and county valuation on which you pay taxes at the present time; or, to put it in other words, if you have a home in town which is rendered for three thousand dollars, State and County valuation, then it will cost you six dollars per year, or, if you have one hundred and sixty acres of land that is rendered at eight dollars per acre (and that is about the average for the county) it will cost you about two dollars and forty cents per year.

Donley County has about seven million dollars State and County valuation and this tax would bring in about fourteen thousand dollars. The College can be maintained as a first class grade A-1 college on this amount. This is possible because the Clarendon Independent School District has already bought the buildings and equipment, worth at least two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and, as a result, the fourteen thousand dollars which this twenty per cent tax would bring in would all be used for operating expenses and NOT A CENT of it would be used for interest and sinking fund since there is no interest and sinking fund, and, furthermore the operating expenses are made still lighter due to the fact that the Clarendon Independent School District maintains the ninth, tenth and eleventh grade high school work in the same buildings and, therefore, will pay for their pro-rata share of the lights, water, heat, etc. Also, the teachers who teach College work can do teach some high school subjects and the salaries of the teachers are partly paid out of the public school money of the Clarendon Independent School District and partly out of the College funds on a pro-rata basis, depending on the number of classes taught in each.

Another question which is frequently asked is: "Who will have charge of the College?" According to the Junior College Bill passed by the recent legislature, there will be one trustee elected by popular vote out of each precinct and one at large. This is the same as the County Board of Education is elected or in other words there will be four men elected from the four precincts and one at large, making five in all.

Another question of importance is whether or not the work done in Clarendon College is affiliated. Yes the work in Clarendon Junior College is recognized by the State Department of Education and also by the Texas Association of Junior and Senior Colleges. The two years work done in Clarendon College is accepted for the first two years work in Texas University, A. & M. College or any other College in the state of Texas and the work is also accepted by the State Department of Education for Teachers certificates.

Do we need a County Junior College in Donley County? Perhaps this can best be answered by quoting some figures gathered by Honorable A. A. Allison, farmer and layman of Corsicana, Texas, as to the number of students attending high schools and Colleges. "Enrollment in High Schools in the United States in the thirty four years generation 1890-1924, increased in round numbers from 203,000 to 3,500,000 or 1700 per cent against an increase in population of only 80 per cent." "High School enrollment, if not now, will undoubtedly reach 5,000,000 in the nation by 1930. Following this astounding increase in High School enrollment, and as a natural sequence to it, enrollment in Colleges, Normals, and Universities by men only, in the period 1910-1915 increased 35,000 over the previous five year period. This increase was followed by another 70,000 men in the five year period 1915-20 over the previous five years. But this is not all. In the two year period 1920-22 the increase in enrollment in higher educational institutions by men only reached 50,000 above the previous five year period. Then the heart of the American youth literally burst in its yearning for higher educational attainment and the enrollment in the two year period 1922-24 towered by 185,000 men and 105,000 women above the previous two year enrollment for higher educational pursuit. From 1900 to 1925 there was an increase of 700 per cent against an increase in population of 50 per cent.

In view of the above facts, and in view of the fact that hundreds of people are coming to the Panhandle and many to Donley county every year, and the added fact, that Clarendon College is the only public Junior College in the entire Panhandle and that only four more can possible be established in the Panhandle at the present time under the Junior College Law out of the possible eighty two that can be established in the State, I ask you fellow citizen, Does Donley County Need a Junior College?

One more question. Will more of our boys and girls go to school if we have a College nearby? The answer is "Yes." Quoting again from Mr. Allison, "Eight Texas Colleges get more than 25 per cent, one more than 50 per cent, of their attendance from the counties of their respective locations, and in all instances preponderance of enrollment in college from the County of location or counties nearby." The reason: Increased educational interest, intensified desire for educational attainments, and reduced cost of educational pursuit.

The children of Donley County and the surrounding counties deserve the very best. Your children and my children must have the very best educational advantages. Let's do the big thing for them while we have the opportunity. Talk the County Junior College movement with every one you meet and come out on election day and help put it over with your vote.

AMARILLO WOMAN HAD BEEN BED FAST SEVEN WEEKS WITH NERVOUS BREAK-DOWN BUT ORGATONE IS NOW RESTORING HER HEALTH

"I certainly believe Orgatone is the most wonderful treatment I ever heard of as it is improving my condition after I had been in bed seven weeks and I am on my first bottle," was the remarkable statement made by Miss Mary Gilbert, of 400 Houston St., Amarillo, Texas.

"My stomach got into such an awful condition that everything I would eat caused me to feeling very miserable and gas would form. I was very nervous and I had no energy, felt tired and worn out all the time.

"But I am picking up something wonderful on my first bottle of Orgatone, my digestion improved and I soon got to eating everything I wanted. I have taken one bottle so far and will tell you frankly it is doing me worlds of good. I am getting better every day and I intend to keep on taking this wonderful medicine until I am completely like my old self again."

Genuine Orgatone may be obtained in Clarendon at the Stocking's Drug Store.

THE LOVER'S RETURN

Lift me, oh, love, into your arms once more,
And I will be content.
I didn't know—how could I know—before,
How—much you meant—
Until—you went.

Lift me, oh, love, into your arms and say
What once I might despise,
Your going showed me to my own dismay
How—much I prize
Your arms—your eyes.

Lift me, oh, love into your arms ah, so!

And never let me go!
—Mary Carolyn Davies' in the Saturday Evening Post.

WEST INDIES TRIP

visitor in that the guests were met at the landing and each presented with an invitation inviting them to become guests of a ball to be held in their honor.

The ladies were the guests of Governor and Mrs. Towner at the Mansion where they had tea and enjoyed excellent music furnished by the crack band of the town. Mrs. Towner proved a delightful hostess and furnished much valuable information about this American owned island which was purchased from Spain at the end of the war of '98. The natives are quite unlike those of the other islands, cleaner, better dressed and have been schooled in the main to where they gladly announce the fact that they are proud to be numbered among the Americans tho strayed way off down there among a bunch of renegade islands.

The girls were shown the bed used by Lindy on his visit and heard the natives praise him as a great friend and builder of fellowship between peoples of the Latin district. The Rotary club furnished cars and conducted the visitors over the city. A large tubercular sanitarium is maintained at San Juan, sugar mills, Presbyterian hospital, Trinity academy and seminary rapidly passed into view as the trip continued. The A. & M. college was found modern and the biggest surprise of all was the massive structure of granite and marble with playing foundations and palms would be a strong inducement to students from any section to attend an institution already known for excellent work over a wide area. Flowers and other plant life were used in harmonious ornament in making the grounds as attractive as the buildings.

The trip over the city further included Munoz Rivera, Carnegie library, a large "Y" building in operation, the shrine where it is said the remains of Ponce De Leon are resting. This city also has its own Morro castle of ancient make and like a number of buildings in the older part of town, was crumbling. The custom house was the last item on the list. Here a feast of meats, cheese, cake and fruits were served and pineapple juice served as the beverage. The men in the party were provided with smokes of real cigars, a product of the local cigar factory.

St. Thomas on the Virgin Islands was next visited. This too belongs to our country and was found much like the city of San Juan. Here natives were a more inviting sight and many peddlers plied their trade in disposing of ornamental boxes constructed from valuable wood, pottery, basket and coral beads. Many smaller items were offered. Fruits were confined to the market places and included an entire tropical list.

San Domingo the next port is much like Haiti so far as social life is concerned. The populace in ninety percent negroes of French decent. When the French first took over the island, negro slaves were brot and later freed only to mix with the white race until at the present there are few white or blacks—just most any color except the original. The people appear lifeless and listless, however it is believed that in time they may become educated under the constructive agency now at work in the islands.

The natives live on natural products with as little effort as possible. Fish, fruits and nuts make up the principal diet. It was noted here that cocoa nuts were more numerous and the trees appeared to be more vigorous. The return trip was begun from San Domingo, five days being required to reach Beaumont. Miss Thompson was and is disgusted with the ladies who smoked on the boat, and the men who drank openly. She feels that since her return Friday, she has much to be thankful for in the big west and her interesting work in the Panhandle. She accumulated a vast fund of information for the club work of Donley county. When asked by the Leader as to just what impressed her most on the trip, she replied, "the gullibility of the Americans." When asked to elaborate on the statement she explained that the average American in a foreign country would buy any thing and pay any price asked. Drink and eat anything and everything as a class and come home and pay the penalty for their indiscretions.
