tion, without the necessity for levying additional taxes on the farmers, small business men and home owners. Texas, with not only oil, but these many other chemicals, could and ought to be in a much better financial condition than any of the other states.

"I favor a reduction in the number of members of the legislature, and redistricting the State, so as to give West Texas proper and more equitable representation in Austin.

"The strictest economy in government should be observed, but not at the expense of the public schools in Texas. I believe that every effort should be made to not only maintain the present high standard of our public schools, but to enlarge their usefulness, to the extent that every boy and girl who leaves high school will be able to cope with life's problems. Vocational training should be encouraged, and if necessary the per capita apportionment should be increased.

"I believe in law enforcement to the extent that every citizen shall have adequate protection at all times, and am in favor not only of keeping up the present method of training our highway patrolmen and rangers, but favor expanding upon that system, so as to get the best available men for our officers."

Mr. Prescott is conducting an active campaign for the office, and hopes to be able to see every voter in Brown and Coleman counties during the campaign.

VI—ELIZABETH ENGLISH IN TEXAS

It is said that the purest Elizabethan English spoken in America is in the isolated regions of Kentucky, Tennessee, and West Virginia. But many of these tall, raw-boned Anglo-Saxons were among the early emigrants to Texas, and their descendants still retain their pastoral freshness and innocence.

These people are indeed picturesque and colorful in manner and speech, speaking in the quaint idiom of a by-gone day. Their dialect is pure Elizabethan English fused with the rough and ready lexicon of the frontier. Speaking in their homely yet rich vernacular, they say "seed" for "saw," "ort" for "ought," "year for 'ear," "help for "helped," and "hit" for "it." Pure Anglo-Saxon! Our attitude toward them should be tolerant rather than condescending, remembering, as Professor Beatty says, that "the continuity of their culture is unbroken." There in their rough frame cabins, rearing sturdy children and living close to the soil, these people have preserved much of the flavor, vitality and gusto of early pioneer life in Texas.

He called the attention of fishermen to the fact that it is against the law to take any kind of fish from a net except carp and suckers. The law further states that it is illegal to take fish from a trot line or any other line while a net is in the same hole of water.

In this day of extensive and sometimes reckless spending of Federal funds, it is gratifying to observe one project that is infinitely of much greater value to the community and the State than the amount of money required to carry it through. The soil conservation work being conducted under the direction of the soil conservation service and through the CCC camp located in Brownwood, is proving of inestimable value to farmers throughout this section of the State, and by aiding the farmers is proving of value to all business.

Valuable Work

It takes only a casual inspection of any of the work done at any one of the several projects in Brown county to immediately realize the good to come from the work undertaken. The loss of millions of dollars to the farmers of Texas through erosion has been recognized for many years, but until recently little intelligent work has been done to correct this. The construction of check dams, ditches, proper terracing of land, converting unprofitable cultivated areas into pasture land and the planting of erosion control crops are only a few of the ways the soil conservation service is aiding the individual farmer.

The only complaint against the work was the thought that in aiding a few of the farms, through selecting them for demonstration tracts no great percentage of our farms would be benefitted. Time, and the desire of farmers for bettering their conditions, have taken care of this. Every project is a demonstration project in the true sense of the word, and already great benefit can be seen to farmers not directly identified with the work. The many farmers who have visited the work, and who have incorporated upon their own farms many of the ideas they have seen, give evidence of the wisdom of the plan, and the effectiveness with which it is being carried out.

Not only have Brown county farmers been the beneficiaries, but many from adjoining counties and from great distances have visited this county to learn of the work and to carry the ideas back home for practical application to their own eroded acres. Thus the benefits of the work is being spread through a large area.

It is gratifying to note that the work is to be continued. It could be continued indefinitely with increasing benefit to farmers and business interests throughout this section.

Worth The Money

Brownwood business men who underwrote the second annual regatta and speed boat races at Lake Brownwood this year will learn with pleasure that the event was a financial success, and that money advanced is being returned. It is always nice to have an event of this nature prove to be profitable as well as pleasant. Always nice, but not always the case. And while the profit was not large, it was enough to assure that less underwriting will be necessary next year.

It might have been a financial success, although the effort put into the regatta by enthusiastic committees and hard working employees assured a good show and plenty of entertainment for the 25 cent admission charge. But now the regatta is definitely established, it is sure to draw important racers every year, and with two years of experience behind them, the committee members should be able to give an even better show next year.

But even had it not been a success financially, it would have been worth the money to Brownwood business men. They would have profited from the event, even though it were necessary for the committee to retain the money advanced to assure the prize money. Some 8,000 people attended the event, and even the most conservative estimate that at least 3,000 people came from out of town. Any event that will bring 3,000 people into Brownwood, give them a good show for a nominal price and send them home pleased is worth whatever it costs to the city. The regatta did this and more—it showed a profit.

A publicity item came to this desk a few days ago, as publicity items do. But it was one that attracted our attention and interest. "An all-time record was set," so a publicity writer for the National Park Service informs us, "at Yosemite National Park, Sunday, May 21, in the matter of visitors." Yosemite is some thousands of miles away, in California, but the news was significant. The record was established, we learn, in spite of the fact that both afternoon and night were cold and rainy, and the season at Yosemite has just begun.

People are visiting again. They are going to the California parks, they are visiting Colorado, and in greater numbers than ever before, they are coming to Texas. American people have always been travelers, but for a number of years, that desire to travel has been curbed by lack of funds. The desire remained, to be loosed again as times begin to get better.

Brownwood is fortunate, in that during these depression years we have been building toward improved facilities for visitors. Lake Brownwood and the Brownwood State Park have come into being, both major attractions for tourists and our own people. They will be a means of permitting Brownwood to cash in on the profits from tourist travel.

In an appeal for funds with which to carry on welfare work in this county the Brown County Welfare Board last week urged that every citizen pledge the amount he was willing to contribute to the fund. To date there has been little response to that appeal.

A Personal Obligation

This week the board is completing plans for a county-wide drive for funds, and contributions will be solicited from every citizen in the county. It is to be hoped that the lack of response to the first appeal is no indication of the unwillingness of our community to aid those who are unable to help themselves.

For several years now the state and federal governments have been for the most part, shouldering the responsibility of caring for the needy in the various communities. But the time has now come when the members of each community must again take care of their own, and we must again get into the habit of looking after those unfortunates who cannot care for themselves.

Surely no right thinking citizen will let the appeal go unheeded. Many small contributions would make possible the continuation of the relief work here, but those contributions must be forthcoming. It is the personal obligation of every member of the community and should be met as such.

Firemen Are Fast But Miss Winning By Split Second

Brownwood Volunteer Fire Department's pumper and drill team returned last week from the Texas State Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Convention in Fort Worth with a $200 cash prize awarded them for winning second place in the state contests. Their time in laying 100 feet of hose was 19 2-5 seconds, just one second slower than the time of the Yorktown team, which won first place.

Members of the Brownwood team are: Ivan Hays, captain; Pryor Martin, and Walker Swinney, hose-men; Charlie Alford and Vernon Taylor, pluggers; and Olaf Gill and Modie Wells, coupling men.

More than 35 Brownwood people attended one or more days of the convention, which closed Thursday.

PEEP SHOW For Ladies Only

BY MIGNON

By Lois Farris— (Pinch-hitting for Mignon)

The gals in Philadelphia Have nothing much on me, I've been in those conventions To hear, be heard and see, But though they know their voices They'll all try to agree And we can all be happy When they choose old Franklin D.

What would be a better treat, than to be in Philadelphia with that great gathering of the Democrats in their convention? Don't you know there are words flying fast and it would be grand to be in the merry-mix-up? Harmony seemed to be the theme of the convention before the opening . . . now if these folk can just keep the good word going until the convention is over. Just think of what a brand new lady news reporter could do, were she covering that story . . . there would plenty of story alright.

The women folk seem to have their cares . . . when a woman does a little preaching she wants to be tactful and do it well . . . and yet there is another worry . . . some preaching is ruined by an affected style of speech.

Girls . . . you ought to be mighty glad you were born thirty years later . . . for an ideal young woman today is chosen because she is beautiful, has brains and personality . . . most of the emphasis is put on the personality and intelligence today and this is something that can be developed . . . thirty years ago, girls had only to be beautiful to be an ideal woman which would have been a mighty ordeal for some of us gals, and, too, a goodly number of us might have been holding a blank.

The one thing that was brought greatest back to my mind on Father's Day was this . . . when you were small, how many times did you quarrel with your best friend about whose dad had the most money or whose dad could lick if he had 'er to do . . . This prudence has grown in each of our hearts until we just wouldn't give up today if we knew our daddy could not whip.

If you are a blonde, you have about 140,000 hairs in your scalp. If you are a brunette you have about 120,000, and if you're a redhead, you have only about 90,000. Or, maybe, in your case it should be put into the past tense.

This is the best time of the season to entertain visitors . . . while it is cool, pallets are just the stuff . . . put them all over the house, yard or anywhere it is cool . . . feed the visitors sandwiches and drinks . . . such snappy lunches and what fun one has in just doing as little as possible and yet enjoying your visit with the folk.

In the literary field we have a new friend whom you would like so much to meet . . . this lady is none other than Bonnie D. Elkin of Wichita Falls, Texas, and her new volume of verse is "Outside Eden." This attractive volume is printed in her own home town. Mrs. Luther Hoffman is an artist and her paintings are illustrated in Mrs. Elkin's book.

Mrs. Elkin, graduate of Wichita Falls High School and Wichita Falls Junior College, looked no farther than the scenes of her own environment for her inspiration.

The poems are divided into three groups. "Love's Lost Country," "Drouth," and "Rain." The first group includes offerings in which there are notes of heartbreak, frustration, and hope. The second depicts the grim aspects of the land where it sometimes doesn't rain often enough. In the third are verses of a lighter, more cheerful quality. In nearly all of the verses there are wistful, poignant notes, deftly played.

"Like Sarah," one of the poems in the third group, exemplifies the lyric quality and the emotional depth that characterize the little volume as a whole.

We thought the tree too old to bear, But somehow left it standing there; Now, like a woman late in life, A graying, old and childless wife

Troop 16 Winner In Scout Contest

Badges were awarded to eight Scouts at a court of honor held at the close of a rally for the Central Section of the Comanche Trail Council Thursday night, June 18, on Howard Payne campus. A program of contests preceded the court of honor.

In the contests Troop 16 was first place winner, Troop 2 was second place winner, Troop 43 won third place and Troop 3 fourth. Boys receiving badges were Coolidge Cornelius, Second Class; Arcene Clayton, First Class; Jack Tipton, First Class; Raymond Blagg, First Class; Merit badges were awarded to Vernon Cornelius, dairying; Aubrey Ferguson, bookbinding, and Jimmy Sligar, radio.

Whose pregnancy has crowned her head Renewing hopes that had been dead, It bears good fruit from worn-out sod; Revealing there the hand of God.

Mrs. Elkins not only devotes her talent to poetry, but is a student of dramatic art, has written several one-act plays and has made the most of her vocal training.

Folk of Wichita Falls and neighbors take genuine pride in the offering of Mrs. Elkins' "Outside Eden."

J. Frank Dobie says this about Outside Eden: "Poetry is life sublimated, reality distilled into an essence that is spiritual. In the first part of 'Outside Eden' which concerns a love that brings pain but not dross, this definition of poetry is realized. The second part of the volume, which treats of sandstorms and other phenomena common to Northwestern Texas, as well as of matters of common to sensitive human beings, is also poetry in another key."

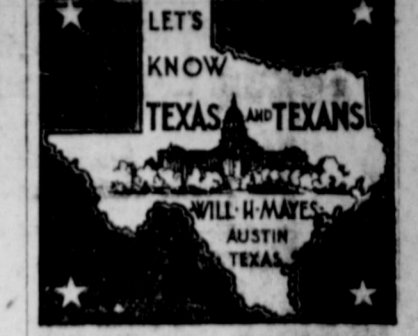

Members of the Brownwood Fire Department elected officers for the coming year at a meeting held last week. M. J. Flowers was elected president.

Miss Malone Returns From Visit in East

Miss Mayes Malone, Brown county home demonstration agent, returned to Brownwood Friday after a three weeks absence during which she attended the third triennial Conference of Associated Country Women of the World in Washington, D. C., May 31 to June 30 and visited different points in North Carolina and several eastern states.

During her stay in the East she visited in the Philadelphia home of Misses Hallie and Katharine Wear, formerly of Brownwood, and spent some time in New York City.

Miss Malone was accompanied on her trip, made by motor, by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Malone, a brother, L. R. Malone, and Mrs. Frankie Bradford. Mrs. Malone and her son remained in High Point, North Carolina, for a visit with relatives while Miss Malone and Mrs. Bradford were in the East.

WILL H. MAYES, AUSTIN, TEXAS

Q. Was Elgin, Texas, named for the Illinois city of the same name? E. J. Smithville.

A. No, for Robert M. Elgin, who surveyed the Southern Pacific railroad through the town.

Q. Just how old is the town of Ysleta, said to be the oldest town in Texas? D. A. Courtney.

A. Marcos de Niza discovered an Indian settlement there in 1537 and Coronado took possession of the settlement, which was then on an island. In 1540, later, the river shifted and Ysleta was thrown into Texas territory. The present town site is traced to 1682.

Q. Did the protestant churches in Texas ever have a "Vigilance" committee? A. R. T. Galveston.

A. On May 8, 1837, a group of ministers of several protestant denominations met at Houston and organized "The Ecclesiastical Committee of Vigilance for Texas." It grew out of the fact that imposters were coming into Texas, representing themselves as ministers and soliciting funds for various purposes. The organization was given wide publicity but did not last long.

Q. What was the first text book used in Texas and for what purpose was it used? L. E. Donna.

A. It was a book of questions to be used by missionaries in teaching the Indians, was compiled and translated by a missionary at the Espada mission and was printed in Mexico in 1763. The questions were intended to improve the religious and moral habits of the Indians.

The facts essential to this understanding are briefly set forth in a 32 page booklet entitled "Texas Empire Builders of '36" telling of the stirring days which all Texans, native and adopted, are celebrating in 1936.

The booklet will be mailed postpaid for 10 cents. Send all orders to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.
