A Donley County Boy Returns To Assist In Local Revival

Has State-Wide Reputation As Song Leader In Baptist Revival Work

Reared in the Chamberlain community, Lee A. Stulce of Ft. Worth returns here next week to lead in the song service during the Shepherd revival that begins February 5th.

Mr. Stulce married the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith near town later entering the Southwestern Seminary at Ft. Worth. He was also a student at Simmons University at Abilene where he served the First Baptist church as choir leader for about ten years.

He was also choir leader of the First Baptist church at San Angelo for some time before entering independent evangelistic work as song leader and choir director. He now makes his headquarters at Ft. Worth.

A large number of local people will be proud to learn of the success of this young man and will not be disappointed in his efforts at the First Baptist church during the coming revival.

The deacons of the church have made all preparations for the success of the revival which will be in charge of the local pastor, Rev. E. N. Shepherd. The new pastor has made many friends since coming to Clarendon who will rejoice in his success in his work here.

Palo Duro Park Matters In Charge Of Lee Satterwhite

Bill Creating Three Parks Will Be Presented At This Called Session

Representatives from each of the areas where state parks are proposed met with Governor Moody Thursday. The matter has the hearty approval of the Governor according to a statement of C. H. Walker of Pampa who represented Palo Duro park interests at a park board meeting at Austin the past week.

Lee Satterwhite, for many years state representative from this district and speaker of the House one session, and who has resided at Odessa for a number of years, is representing the Davis Mountain park located nearest his home.

A bill proposing the creation of the Palo Duro, Davis Mountain and Caddo Lake parks is in process at this time. It will be passed upon by the Attorney General's department before being presented to the legislative body for action.

Mr. Satterwhite will remain in Austin until the matter is disposed of since he is most familiar with both west Texas propositions by reason of long residence.

Mr. Walker is of the opinion that the Legislature will act favorably upon the matter provided a companion bill is presented at the same time providing for a license fee to return to the state moneys expended for the park areas. This auto fee will likely be in the form of an auto driver's license which is calculated to return to the State some five million dollars annually.

Mr. Walker urges that a large number of Panhandle citizens be present at Austin when the committee hearing comes up. It has already been proposed that a delegation from each of the towns contiguous to the Palo Duro canyon attend the meeting in a body.

Mrs. N. B. Hudson has been quite ill the past week.

Arkansas Firm Breaks All Records To Date

The Crossett Mercantile Company of Crossett, Arkansas has apparently broken all records by running a page ad each week in the Observer, their local paper, for a period of 23 years.

The firm contends that it pays and will continue the page ad right on with more vim than when they started.

Rio Rita Packs Pastime Theatre Here Monday Night

Two Native Texans Star In Stupendous Picture Of Awe And Fascination

Never before has the Pastime Theatre been packed to the last limit in two straight shows the same evening, but such was the case Monday night of this week when the great talking picture, "Rio Rita," was shown here for some time.

The picture had been well advertised and no doubt the fact that the two leading stars were native Texans had something more to do with public interest. Bebe Daniels and John Boles, stars in the cast, are well known in this state.

Bebe From Dallas. Bebe Daniels' real name is Phyllis. Her father was of Scotch origin and was an American Consular official in Buenos Aires, while her mother was of a royal Spanish family, her mother's father having been Governor of Colombia. Bebe was born in Dallas in 1901 and began her stage career when she was 4 years old. Her movie career began with Selig and she became leading lady for Harold Lloyd in his "Lonesome Luke" series and then won stardom in "Male and Female." Since then she has played in a multitude of pictures, among them being "Intolerance," "Rio Rita," "Swim, Girl Swim," "The Fifty-Fifty Girl," "She's a Sheik," "The Palm Beach Girl," "Monsieur Beaucaire" and "The Campus Flirt." She is 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 112 pounds and has black hair and brown eyes.

John Boles Was Pitcher. John Boles was born in Greenville in 1898 and was educated as a doctor in the University of Texas. He was a pitcher on the team and has been a singer and a player in musical comedies. He was in the intelligence department in the World War. His movie career began in September, 1926, when he played with Gloria Swanson in "The Love of Sunya." Since then he has played in "Fossil," "Scandal" and "The Desert Song."

Los Angeles Officers Hold Man For Donley County. Acting upon telegraphic advices from Sheriff M. W. Mosley, officers at Los Angeles are holding Virgil Robbins who is charged with giving a number of dry checks in this section just before leaving here about a month ago.

The M store at Hedley and Piggly Wiggly and Stocking Drug store here are said to have accepted checks from this party that were afterward found to be of no value. A complaint was made to the Sheriff's office and the party was traced to California and arrested as stated above.

Robbins will be brought back here as soon as extradition papers can be had.

T. Jones has gone to Glen Rose for eye treatment.

Chamberlain Grad Pupils In Interesting Play

Assisted by Mr. Jimmy Millsap, principal of the school, and Miss Nettie Baker of the primary department, the pupils of the 7th to 10th grades of the Chamberlain school put on a four act play, "He's My Pal" Friday night that is said to have been the best of the season.

Pupils taking part in the play were: Gertrude Dingler, Marie May, Melba Johnston, Louise Hughes and Mrs. Lois Cook. Also Woodrow Millsap, Howard Hughes, Macon Johnston, Lonnie Smith and Chester Brogdon.

The pupils take an active interest in community affairs of this nature and give their teachers every encouragement. The elders also take an active interest in all forms of community betterment, all of which has greatly helped to build for this particular community the name of "the best in the county."

F. M. Griffin, who lives near Hedley on Route 1, was in town Monday and called at the Leader office to have the paper come to him every week. We appreciate the goodwill of these old standby citizens. Come again Mr. Griffin.

Miss Mayme Young of Amarillo spent the week with homefolks, Mr. and Mrs. H. Youngblood and family.

J. E. Enoch and son John of Amarillo visited their daughter and sister, Mrs. O. T. Smith and family, Sunday.

Hedley Man Being Urged For Political Race

The good citizens of Hedley are insisting that Frank Kendall, highly respected citizen of that town for sixteen years, get into the race for County Judge this time. Mr. Kendall was a Clarendon business man before going to Hedley and "spiked" type on the Agitator a publication sponsored by Rev. Henson at the time.

He is serving his people as Justice of the Peace at present and they are so well pleased with his service that they insist that he step up to a higher office. He also has backers at Lelia and in Clarendon who want to see him try his strength in a county campaign.

It has been some time since so many citizens have urged a man to get into a race, and if he decides to start, there will be plenty of fun during the campaign as his friends from the "forks of the creek" are for him first, last and all the time.

When interviewed on the subject while in the Leader office Monday, Mr. Kendall was noncommittal not having made up his mind just yet.

Mr. and Mrs. McHenry Lane, and sister, Miss Lottie Lane, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dean at Dimmitt.

Old Resident Is Improving From Illness

The many friends of O. C. Hill were alarmed some days ago when it became known that he had suffered a heart attack. With a bit of rest and proper attention, he is again showing symptoms of his old self and is able to be out of bed again.

While climbing the windmill tower the first of the week, Claude Hill fell from the tower and was seriously injured but had improved enough to be taken home Saturday. He has been staying at his father's home during the old gentleman's illness, and was attempting to grease the mill when the accident happened.

Panhandle Will Be Hot Battle Ground Say Politicians

Wellington And Lamesa Men Are To Oppose Jones In Congressional Race

Following closely on the heels of the announcement of a Lamesa lawyer's word from those in authority that State Senator C. C. Small will not be a hot contender for the seat of Congressman Marvin Jones who is serving his fourteenth year, having succeeded the Hon. John H. Stephens.

Senator Small has long been identified with Panhandle politics having come up from the ranks of the beginner as a law student choosing to begin his career in Wellington where he grew to manhood.

Senator Small has served home county both as County Attorney and County Judge, and his home town of Wellington as Mayor. He also served this the 10th Judicial District as District Judge and is making a record in the State Senate at the present time, he having sponsored the Small law validating the title to stream beds in west Texas possibly saving millions of dollars to the old time ranchman of the oil belt.

Although serving the Panhandle efficiently during the entire fourteen years since going to Washington, Congressman Jones' name did not become a familiar word in the thousands of households of the cotton belt until after he had become a member of the House Agricultural Committee.

Mr. Jones has been zealous in his efforts to serve the agricultural class as a member of this committee whose chief object is to find more uses for cotton in an effort to create a greater demand for the home grown staple. An article written by Mr. Jones as published in the Southern Planter, appears in this issue of the Leader giving the reader some idea of the scope of his efforts to be of real service to the people.

The subject for Sunday will be equally interesting. Rev. Marler has a penchant for handling his subjects in a manner that all may understand at the same time driving home lessons that are most profitable.

Mrs. L. S. Bagby, delegate from the local Episcopal church to the Episcopal Convocation held at Amarillo last week, returned home Saturday.

Misses Coy Latson and Isabel Bale, teachers in the McLean schools, spent the week end with home folks in Clarendon.

Mrs. Bill Bently and son Bobbie of Alanreed spent Sunday in this city in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Latson.

Security State Bank Of Hedley Talks Up Feed Growing

More Feed A n d Greater Diversification Is Advice Offered

The management of the Security State bank of Hedley stated at the season to advise farmers of that section to plant more feed.

"We are faced with a problem of paying cash from priced cotton crop for feed. We need another low-priced cotton crop" is the statement of one of the bank officials who wants to see his bank help the farmer who is willing to help himself.

J. G. McDougal is president of the bank, J. W. Noel is active vice president, C. L. Johnson is cashier assisted by Ansil Adamson. Misses Alice Noel and Verda Gilliam are bookkeepers for the bank.

The Board of Directors is composed of T. R. Moreman, A. N. Wood, J. W. Noel, J. G. McDougal and W. B. Quigley.

The bank has enjoyed an era of good business this year, have plenty of funds to handle the business and meet all demands of legitimate banking. It is likely that many farmers will act upon the suggestion of this financial institution and raise more feed and increase their poultry and cream outputs this season.

Woman Is Charged With Murder In Death Of Local Painter

Body Is Held Pending A Search For Relatives In Kansas

Shortly after one o'clock Friday afternoon Sheriff M. W. Mosley received an urgent phone call to come at once to the apartment of Mrs. Helen Bates in the Lon Rundel house where she had been occupying an apartment for some three years. Upon reaching the front door, the sheriff found the lifeless body of H. M. (Hank) Christianson in the front room with three bullet holes in his body.

Mrs. Bates is said to have readily admitted having fired the fatal shots and gave her reasons which the officers refuse to disclose at this time. She was immediately placed in jail where she is being held pending the arrival of her mother who is expected to arrive tonight or tomorrow. It is probable that she will be given a sanity hearing Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

Christianson had made preparations to go to Childress Friday afternoon to secure advertising to complete a scenic curtain and was eating his noon lunch in the Morris brothers cafe when informed by Lee Morrison that Mrs. Bates had instructed him by phone to tell Christianson to come to the house. It is said that the shooting followed soon after he reached the house.

The American Legion, of which Christianson was a member, is making a diligent search for relatives but none have been located up to this time. The body is being held at the Bunin mortuary.

OVERHEAD EXPENSE.

Our idea of useless overhead expense is a ball-headed guy buying a shampoo.

NO KIN.

Professor Osborn, the noted scientist, says that man is fifty million years old and is no kin to the ape. We have been in a dickens of a suspense a long time.

POLITICAL YEAR.

The first real reminder that this is a political year is the petition campaign on wherein hundreds of signers are asking Jim Ferguson to make the race for governor. Mi gosh! Haven't the other boys any friends?

CHAIN STORES.

The first noticeable effect of Henderson's chain store campaign in the Panhandle is found in a single line at the top of the grocery ads in the Amarillo News which read: "A home owned store."

SOME SMASH!

"If all the politicians who voted dry were laid end to end, there would be an awful bunch of flasks broken." That is our candid opinion after reading speeches of the leading debaters on the prohibition question in the national congress the past week.

BANQUETS.

There appears to be an epidemic of banquets just at this time, mostly chamber of commerce variety. A banquet is a showy sort of meal where the speaker eats a lot of stuff he does not want, and then proceeds to talk about something that he does not understand to a crowd of people who care nothing about hearing him.

SOME APPETITE.

Dan Moody is a glutton for legislative disappointments. This is his fourth called session which has been dubbed the "cold check" session by the public because of the alleged fact that the session was called on a credit, will perform on a credit, make appropriations on a credit. But if it is like the other sessions, the actions of the body will be of no credit to the state.

NEW TYPE DRESS.

Readers of the staid old-Dallas News are well pleased with the new type dress. It will also enable the erudite State Press, who claims to have never drank anything stronger than potliker, to direct poignant remarks at the erratum of the Fourth Estate. State Press is the only writer of the newspaper fraternity to whom went the black-bordered, funeral announcement.

Removing hats and placing of flowers on graves is an old custom. In this more enlightened age, we should do more than remove hats to the living. We should give our flowers when they are most needed.

WHY A PANIC?

The basis of our national prosperity is not speculation. It is not made up of paper securities. The basis of national prosperity is composed of human labor, human intelligence, raw material, tools, working capital and a great mass of people who want to live according to a high standard of civilization, comfort, happiness and progress.

The stock market, in regard to margin speculation, is being discounted as a pivotal factor in our economic life. No longer are we to be dragged up and down, in senseless fashion, by a force which is so dark and mysterious that no man is able to make a rational explanation of it. Business is to go ahead faster and better than ever. Civilization has progressed over the days of 1920. The American people are justifying their reputation for good sense. Aside from crop calamities, Donley county knows nothing of Wall street panics.

WHAT NEXT!

The recent ruling of the Post-office Department that the publication of advertisements of the old-fashioned box socials, as given by rural schools, churches, etc. is illegal when chances are sold because they are a "game of chance" makes us wonder what will be ruled out of the home weekly next by some nut at the head of the department.

Reports of weddings should be cut out because that is a lottery. We should cut out the crop estimates sent out by a free space grafting governmental department because the worms, hailstorms and speculators may get the crop, and such information is merely a guess or game of chance.

So far as the box social is concerned, nobody pays any more than they want to donate to a good cause and if the lucky number draws a fancy piece of cake along with a modern flapper, it's nobody's business. On the other hand if some wise bird bids in a handsome box containing a hunk of tasteless cake along with a bowlegged gal of advanced age, he's not going to howl to the post-office department about it just because he got gypped.

It is our guess that the guy who made that ruling drew his wife at a box social along with some of the punk cake produced by her first efforts, and he's still sore about it. Anyway, we sell 'em by bid and not by chance in good old Donley county.

ROBBERS OF THE FARM

Over 1 1/2 tons of soil is annually carried off by water from the average acre of the farms of the United States.

Nearly 1,500 million tons of good crop producing earth is annually washed from the farm fields and deposited in the great river beds or in the ocean.

Soil is washed away from the sloping land as surely as soil from hilly land.

One experimental station found that the 7 inch soil from the ground sloping only 3 1/2 feet in 100 feet washed away in 24 years.

It has been estimated that 1-5 of the water now flowing into our rivers can be prevented from doing so by proper terracing and sodding.

Soil erosion often works so quietly that the danger of barren land is not realized until crops fail.

Soil erosion takes each year 200 million dollars from the farmer's pockets.

Life, I challenge you to try me,

Still my unbound soul defies you,
I'll withstand you—and, alone!

And yet—the top has just been scratched!

Numberless small communities, and countless individual farmers and ranchers are just awakening to a realization of the extreme economy of electrical service.

They have come to realize that Electricity can perform the tasks at which they have been toiling in a fraction of the time, and at a fraction of the expense of old-time, old-fashioned methods.

Have you fully investigated the many electrical time and labor-saving devices which you can install at small expense, and operate for practically nothing? Come in, and let us talk things over—you will be surprised at the extreme economy of complete electrical equipment.

Marvin Jones Gives Farm Views In Recent Article

Facts Are Outlined By Our Congressman In Plain Language

The following article taken from the Southern Planter published at Richmond Virginia, the South's oldest agricultural journal, will no doubt be of interest to a great number of our readers. Mr. Jones is a member of the House Agricultural Committee and is doing some very effective work, more of which we will tell our readers in the near future.

Farming and stock raising are the oldest of human occupations. Since the days of Abraham, those engaged in these activities have been the producers of the raw materials for all industries. The basic nature of farm and ranch production is recognized by all.

For several years agriculture has held the center of national attention. Its status has been known. But the question of the improvement of that status has caused wide division of opinion.

No thinking man advocates that the United States government should give anything to any group of citizens. However, the government can hold the scale of justice evenly balanced and give every American an even chance.

The Heart of the Problem

This is the heart of the farm situation in America today. Certain selfish groups have for years been benefited by discriminatory legislation and practices in their favor, and against others who live in the same common country. The greatest fundamental of any free government is equality in the application of its laws. Without such equality, no government can permanently prosper.

For many years the manufacturing interests of America have been laboring under the banner of protection. Behind the tariff wall, they have prospered through the medium of increased prices. During all these years the farmer and ranchman have had very little protection. On certain commodities, which they produce in surplus quantities, no direct schedule can be given equality in any tariff system.

Nonpartisan

Both major political parties have promised to place agriculture on a basis of equality with industry. This takes the primary question out of the realm of politics and makes the issue one of economic remedies.

So long as we have a tariff system, and in spite of doubts and dogmas and tears and fears we still have it—that system should cover the raw and basic products of the farm just the same as the manufactured articles are on the dutiable list.

Where the Hitch Comes

Here, however, is where the hitch comes, and I am reasoning not from the political but from the economic viewpoint. We produce a surplus of cotton, a surplus of wheat, and a surplus of some other major farm commodities. No direct tariff can place these commodities on a basis of equality with other tariff-laden articles.

For these reasons, many students of political economy are advocating the export premium or debenture as a part of our tariff system.

The Purpose of the Debenture
Stated in simple terms, the effect of the debenture is to take a part of what Uncle Sam collects in tariff duties on foreign goods brought into this country and to pay an export premium bounty on wheat and other surplus commodities which are shipped out of this country. Its purpose is to make the tariff effective on products of the farm and ranch, just as it is now effective on manufactured articles.

For illustration, let us assume the existence of a surplus of wheat which must be shipped abroad. The exporter, whether farmer, cooperative association or other person, would receive from the United States Treasury a certificate showing the amount of the surplus wheat which must be shipped abroad. The certificate would be accepted by Uncle Sam in payment of any import duty on any commodity whatever coming into this country. The value of the certificate would be twenty-one cents for every bushel of wheat exported. It would be negotiable and could be sold to an importer of jewels or other products, who could use the debenture at its full face value in payment of the customs duties on any goods which he brings from the outside into America. The plan would operate in a similar manner on all other surplus farm commodities.

Its Effects

So much for the plan. How about its actual results? It would mean practically $10 per bale in increased prices to the cotton growers of the South. Similar advantages would accrue to other surplus crops.

This has been the effect in every country that has tried it. The whole domestic price level of the commodity immediately rises the amount of the debenture.

Not A Subsidy

This is not a subsidy. As an independent proposition no one would advocate it. But as a part of a system no one can deny its logic and justice. It is merely restoring to the farmer what is now taken away from him by force of law in the form of increased prices on tariff-laden articles.

Since the farmer, because of the tariff, must pay an increased price for the article he buys, is it unfair to furnish him a correspondingly increased price tied on to the same system for the commodities he has for sale? If so, what becomes of the doctrine of equal rights to all?

Let any farmer compare the prices he now pays for his farm wagon, his cultivator, his clothing, his furniture and his supplies generally with the prices he paid for the same commodities in 1914.

Freight Rates

Another discrimination is the practice of allowing reduced railway rates on certain manufactured articles when shipped abroad. For instance, when iron and steel are shipped from Pittsburgh to New York for domestic use the rate is thirty-four and one-half cents per hundred. When intended for shipment abroad the rate between the same points is twenty cents per hundred. On fertilizer shipped from St. Louis to Galveston, the domestic rate is thirty-six cents per hundred; when intended for export the rate is reduced to twenty-three cents per hundred. On farm implements shipped from Chicago to New Orleans, for domestic use, the rate is seventy-three cents per hundred; when intended for export the rate to New Orleans is reduced to forty-seven cents per hundred. These are but examples of many reductions.

Cotton is the greatest export commodity in America. It is responsible for one-half of our balance of trade. If it is right to encourage the exportation of iron and steel, automobiles and farm implements by reducing railway rates on exportation, why would it not also be wise to make these reductions apply to cotton and to wheat?

The Real Solution

But if all of these discriminations were removed, the problem would be only half solved. In the meantime, our economical problems must be wrought out by ourselves.

Relief legislation may be of temporary aid, but the final solution must come in a different fashion. In the development of our own resources must come our ultimate prosperity.

In an effort to aid in this program, I had the privilege of being the author of a measure which provided for the permanent investigation by the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Commerce into new uses of cotton—the placing of cotton in channels into which it had not heretofore gone. The departments have done wonderful work in connection with the search for new uses for cotton, and also in promoting the use of waste products of the farm. In my judgment, this is more important than any of the forms of farm relief which have been presented.

South. Factories are drifting to the Southland. We are developing our industries as well as our agriculture. In the blending of the two will be found a prosperity that can come in no other way. The South has emerged from the chrysalis. With the products of her own soil, in the loom of her own genius, and with the industry of her own hands, she is weaving the garments of her future glory.

New Processes

An economic revolution is on in America. A new process has been discovered, by means of which cotton linters and low-grade cotton are being transformed to a commodity that looks, feels and wears like silk. At Elizabethton, Tennessee; Cumberland, West Virginia; and Hopewell, Virginia, are three great factories aggregating investments of more than $50,000,000 that are manufacturing these silk like commodities out of pure cotton. One of these commodities is known as Bemberg, another as Celanese, and another as Tubize. All of these commodities are manufactured of cotton.

Other Factories

In addition there are more than $100,000,000 invested in rayon plants in the South. These manufacture a commodity known as rayon, which is made of wood pulp, plant fiber and some cotton. In the public mind frequently the term rayon is used to cover all these commodities. I think the men and women of the South especially so far as is practicable, should use these commodities that are made of cotton. In many instances they take the place of silk, having all the beauty of that age-old commodity. By our using them we help to solve our own problems.

U. S. CAVALRY HORSES YIELDING TO MOTOR AGE

General Crosby Reports on Progress of Motorization in the Army.

Washington.—Further evidence of the cavalry's gradual exchange of hooves for wheels and caterpillar tractors is contained in the annual report of Maj. Gen. H. B. Crosby, chief of cavalry, recently made public by the War department.

Motorization and mechanization for cavalry purposes still are in the experimental stage, Crosby reported to the Department of War, but a platoon of a second armored car squadron was organized this year. The first such squadron, organized in 1928, now is an integral part of the First cavalry division stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Experimentation is being continued with light armored cars and with Christie type armored cars. The latter are capable of 40 miles an hour speed over meadow land and operate either with wheels or tractors. Crosby's report indicates the belief that cavalry in future wars will be in direct contact with enemy tanks, and with this in mind anti-tank weapons are being developed for experimental issue to cavalry units.

The personnel of the new armored car platoon is being instructed at the Infantry tank school, Fort George G. Meade, Md. In addition Crosby this year organized a tactical development section to study developments resulting from changes in organization, armament, equipment, combat methods, and methods of transportation.

In keeping with the present trend toward motorization, Crosby said, the section has given special attention to the foregoing subjects.

For the first time in United States army history armored cars and anti-tank wagons were included in material for First cavalry division maneuvers along the Mexican border last month.

Feel Nature's Wrath in West, Red Cross Says

St. Louis.—Mother nature seems to find the states between the Mississippi river and the Rockies particularly attractive ground over which to spread destruction. Exclusive of the Mississippi valley flood of 1927-28, 164 calamities visited this region from July 1, 1922, to June 30, 1929, according to a report recently issued by the midwestern area headquarters of the American Red Cross.

The greater number of the calamities were tornadoes which numbered 94. Floods totaled 36. These calamities claimed 1,012 lives and injured 3,530 persons, according to the report.

W. M. Baxter, Jr., manager of the midwestern area, said that the number of disasters requiring organized relief showed no sign of abatement.

Baxter quoted figures showing that the Red Cross assisted 21,379 families, representing 106,804 people, in this area.

Outstanding among the many serious disasters in the Middle West since 1922 was the Missouri-Illinois-Indiana tornado, which began in Shannon county, Missouri, sweeping over a track of nearly 400 miles long and ending its havoc wrecking journey near Princeton, Ind. Eight hundred persons were killed, more than 3,000 were seriously injured and thousands of others received first aid treatment.

Another Mystery of Sea Baffles Mariners

Sidney, N. S. W.—The steamer Junee has returned to port here, 'unsuccessful in three months' attempt to unlock another mystery of the sea—the disappearance of the Danish endot ship Kobenhavn with its crew of 70 naval students. The Kobenhavn vanished January 21, last, on a voyage from Buenos Aires to Australia.

For 80 days the Junee, chartered to search for the missing sailing vessel, traversed the sea lanes and sometimes the uncharted areas of the vast great southern ocean. But the sea held its secret.

Capt. R. D. Fletcher, master of the Junee, said on his return that there could be no doubt but that the Kobenhavn and its youthful crew had fallen victim of drifting ice.

The search for the Kobenhavn, extended over 12,200 miles of which 4,950 were zig-zagged off the charted courses.

Although he patrols a "hard police beat" Wise never has resorted to firearms, and has become known as the "two-fisted cop."

Dimples Sues Hubby for Admiring Dimples

Milwaukee.—Dimples Bibb Cole has sued Arthur Cole for divorce here because Arthur admired the dimples of another woman. Dimples is Dimples' literal name. It was given her, she said, because parents and neighbors thought her dimples should be memorialized by a name when she was a dimpled baby.

SALES RESISTANCE OVERCOME

A recent survey by a retail store research organization showed that 82 per cent of the sales of a certain grocery store consisted of nationally advertised products. It must have been easier to sell these products.

Salespeople must have found that they had less difficulty in persuading customers to accept these goods. The sales resistance that lies in the minds of our questioning public when they have money to spend was overcome by the publicity given these products through advertising.

The goods were half sold before the salesman mentioned them. All he had to do was to speak of them, and at once the previous conception in the mind of the customer reinforced what the salesman had to say and he decided to take these brands.

Advertising prepares people for buying. It gives them a preliminary impression favorable to certain goods, so that they do not feel the same doubts as they do with unknown products. They feel that anything that is advertised so thoroughly must be as good as anything that can be produced.

The same principle works to help advertised stores win out. The questioning spirit which is in the minds of all our people is overcome by this publicity. Having seen a store constantly advertised, having often been impressed by its announcements of good values and the descriptions of goods which it has printed, the people are in a mood to go to such a store when they want anything in that line.

Their sales resistance is overcome, and it is very easy for such stores to please them. They feel that such a store must have good goods, or it would not advertise them so confidently.

Professor Slick Naylor was over from Panhandle for the week end. He reports having killed one hundred and ten rabbits within three hours near Panhandle during the snow, and cashed in on them at the rate of five cents each which is the county bounty paid.

Mrs. J. M. O'Neal of Ft. Worth returned home Thursday after a short visit with her father, Judge J. C. Killough and other relatives here.

SEEK BODIES OF 1,200 U. S. VETS

Heroes of World War Lie in Unmarked Graves in France.

Paris.—Twelve hundred American doughboys still lie in unmarked graves scattered across the cold hills of France from the channel to the Vosges. Identification parties are still searching these lost graves, and hardly a week passes without one or more bodies being found.

Of the 130,285 men in the armed forces of the United States who died during the World War 30,794 are now buried in the American military cemeteries abroad. Thirty-seven bodies, found in lost graves during the summer by searching parties, have been transferred to the war cemeteries for burial in the alignment of white crosses.

Every Grave Marked.

In the eight war-cemeteries the number of American soldiers dead buried today follows:

Musee-Arbonne, Romagne	14,181
One-Ame, Serinnes	4,018
St. Mihiel, Thicourt	4,381
St. Marie, Belleau	2,270
Romme, Bony	1,829
Buresnes, Paris	1,824
Brookwood, England	1,824
Flanders Field, Belgium	166

Every grave is marked now with a permanent marker, either a cross or a star of David in white Carrara marble. The graves of unidentified soldiers, numbering about one-half of 1 per cent of the total burials, are marked with stone bearing the inscription: "Here lies in honored glory an American soldier known but to God."

The work of finding lost graves is growing more difficult with time. In the first few years after the war bodies were found in woods or turned up by plows of farmers as they reclaimed the battlefields for their crops.

Searching parties continued their work, however, except during the harvest season. These workers possess complete charts, which enable them to identify bodies even though they have been buried more than eleven years.

Information relative to unlocated dead is generally received voluntarily through some comrade in arms who recalls, perhaps, from a magazine or newspaper article, after several years, the approximate spot at which a soldier was killed or where he was buried. The work is carried out under the investigation and research branch of this service, which obtains all information possible from relatives and from other sources, generally sending to the person giving the information a contour map and requesting that the location in which the missing soldier is thought to have been killed be indicated thereon, and then a diligent search is made, generally with success. No definite identification is made unless it is positive, and this is done finally from the office of the quartermaster general in Washington.

A complete system of forms and charts is kept, both in this office and in Washington, and positive identification (after preliminary identification by means of parts of uniform, personal belongings, identification tag, and so forth) is generally made from tooth charts or from certain peculiarities known to have existed, such as broken or fractured bones and so forth.

Identification and searching parties are working at present, principally in the Meuse-Arbonne sector and in the Chateau Thierry-Soissons sector, but are moved to other sectors whenever information is received. Helpful information is received from French, British and German authorities. The bodies of unidentified soldiers, when found, are kept in the morgue at the nearest military cemetery until every means of identification has been exhausted. If identification is finally unsuccessful the body is buried as an unknown soldier. No cases are known to exist where there has been any doubt as to the identification as an American soldier.

Occasionally cases have occurred where the body of a soldier buried as an unknown has subsequently been identified through additional information furnished by relatives, friends or comrades after a lapse of several years. When identification is positively established in this way a grave marker bearing the customary inscription is substituted for the unknown marker.

Dollar Back After 45 Years
St. Paul.—Forty-five years ago Larry Krouse, now a prosperous merchant of Red Wing, Minn., carved his initials on a silver dollar before spending it. He kept a lookout for the dollar but never saw it until recently, when a customer bought some goods from him. The initials were considerably worn but still readable.

HEDLEY

Mr. Ralph Moreman who was hurt in a car accident and is in the hospital in Clarendon is reported doing nicely under the conditions.

Mr. O. C. Hill who was taken ill quite suddenly one day last week is slowly improving.

It seems as tho the snow and cold weather has brought trouble in several ways. There has been lots of sickness since the bad weather started, almost half of the people have been without water. The pipes are all frozen and the trouble can't be located, so the supply of water comes from a tank put on the fire truck, which makes its daily rounds. It is hoped that old man sunshine will eliminate this trouble by putting forth some warmth and melting out the frozen pipes.

Mrs. B. E. Harris is reported as being able to be up after several days of having the flu.

Mrs. O'Neal is reported as being quite sick, she had this same trouble about one year ago, but has been doing nicely, until the past few days, we hope that she will again be in good health.

Club Notes

Lelia Lake Home Demonstration Club girls met Tuesday morning at school. Seven were present for the demonstration on correct table service. This demonstration included not only attractive ways of setting the table and serving the food but simple and beautiful mannerisms which should be observed in regard to the family gathering at meal time. The girls took recipes for required home cooking, so that they might be using them when they help with family meals this winter.

The next meeting of this club will be held Feb. 4th at which time sewing instructions will be resumed.

The Giles Girl's Home Demonstration club met at school Jan. 22nd, and eight girls were given the demonstration on table service as written up for the above club meeting. This girls club was cheated out of the first meeting of the month when the heavy snow came, but they are willing workers and can make up the lost meeting. They will do clothing work at the first meeting in February which will be the 14th.

Mrs. John Gerner, Mrs. W. V. McCauley, Mrs. Clark Latimer, Mrs. R. C. Blanks, Mrs. M. L. Wood, Miss Mary Lovell and Miss Mayme Dingler have had their living rooms scored as to: I Sanitation; II Lighting; III Heating facilities; IV Interior Finish of walls, ceiling and wood work; V Floors and floor coverings; VI Furnishings; VII General appearance; VIII Suitability to needs of particular family. Mrs. J. D. Stockings and Mrs. M. T. Crabtree assisted Miss Thompson as her County Judging Committee. These rooms are to be judged by the same score card at the end of the contest, April 15th and the women making the most improvement according to the money spent will be the winners in both class I and class II. However those in class I are limited to $50 expenditure. Those who spend more than $50 will be judged in class II where the expenditure is not limited.

The above clubs were represented at Council Saturday at 2 p. m. when the meeting was called to order by Mrs. H. M. Reid, Vice-Chairman. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Under old business, the council voted to assume the debt for Janitor service rendered at the November Rally and as no money was in the treasury the women assessed each club $10. When new business was taken up so many of the secretaries of clubs were absent that it was found impossible for the council treasurer to collect for the 100 year books which have been bought this month by the Home Demonstration club members. The clubs are urged to attend to this matter and see that the council treasurer has the funds for settling this bill the fourth Saturday in February.

The goals and records for 1930 were explained and discussed by Miss Thompson. Mrs. J. A. Thompson of Lelia Lake started a movement for H. D. Club women to plant cherry trees this year and keep adding plantings to these as the years go by as a monument to club work as well as for the value of the fruit. The suggestion was made that each club study the State prize list for Home Demonstration clubs as listed on page 5 of the year books and be ready to offer their choice of the articles listed for a county Fair Prize List, at the meeting to be held 4th Saturday in February.

This completing the business, the meeting adjourned at 3:15 p. m.

Former Traer Man Is Impressed by Endless Resources

(By George P. Collins)

By and large, Germany has every indication of being prosperous today. There appeared to be little unemployment there early last summer. Wages are not up to the American standard but are as good as in any other country of Europe and far above those prevailing in most continental cities.

In something like 2,000 miles of travel in Germany we were mainly impressed with the wonderful resources of the nation and better than ever before realized what had it possible for Germany to hold out so long against the allies in the recent war. When our train left Cologne for Berlin we first went north along the Rhine river, later heading east to the capital. In this region it seemed like a solid view of factory chimneys clear to the horizon.

Your train dashes out of one big city only to enter the suburbs of the next. Back two and three miles from the rails runs another row of factory buildings, appearing from your train to be located out in the country. This region is an intensive manufacturing one, much like Pittsburg and other eastern cities in our own country. We did not go far enough north on the trip to reach Essen, Dusseldorf, and those other industrial titans that comprise the region known as the Ruhr and which is the most highly developed manufacturing area in the Fatherland.

Except in limited areas that were strictly rural we found all German cities to be manufacturing centers. Many of these factories were recognized by name, producing products familiar to every American. This was especially true of such items as pencils, mouth organs, etc. On account of access to cheaper coal and transportation the Rhine area is mostly highly developed but every German city may be said to be a manufacturing one. The only city we visited where this is not true was Heidelberg, which retains its scholastic atmosphere but which is just now opening up a restricted district to one side of the city where manufacturing will be permitted.

As to wages in Germany, we find we did not get as comprehensive a fund of information as we should. In Berlin we were told carpenter, stone masons and such mechanics were paid $2.50 to $3 a day. As Berlin is a city of over 4,000,000 people and as a result the cost of living is higher there, naturally wages would be somewhat less in smaller cities.

Shop girls, we found, got only fifty to sixty marks a month—little more than $11 to $14. Hotel and restaurant help depends on the tip of ten per cent, which is always added to your bill, for their remuneration. Unskilled and farm labor works for sums that would be considered insignificant in the United States.

At Cologne we were told that last winter 54,000 people received help from the public treasury, being unemployed. Considering that Cologne is a city of three-quarters of a million people it is doubtful if the percentage of winter unemployment was much heavier there than it was in industrial cities in the United States of comparable size.

Rural Germany was very interesting. For three or four hours before reaching Berlin (traveling east through northern Germany) we found a very poor soil. It was sandy and light and great areas of it were not fit for crops. That soil which was cultivated was farmed in large tracts and it was this feature that gave to it an appearance not unlike that of North Dakota.

Great stretches were level to swampy. Where this large scale farming takes place the farmer lives out on his land you see groups of farm buildings dotting the landscape just as you do in our own Middle West and in contrast to the prevailing custom of Europe where farmers live in villages and go out from these to their farms.

Wheat was being raised extensively in the poorer part of Germany as well as rye, oats and barley. Even though the soil is not first class the fields are intensively cultivated and made to yield every kernel of grain possible.

Some things strike an American as unusual. At many places we found loose straw and barnyard manure being pitched loose onto open railway cars for shipment. In every instance that we recall, women were doing this work.

Doubtless the railway hauls were to be very short as in the United States the freight charge would more than offset the value of such items. Also, the German railways are nearly all government-owned and it is possible that the farmers are given exceptionally low rates to make shipments of such products possible.

Not a spear of straw or the twig of a tree goes to waste. We traveled through hundreds of thousands of acres of pine forest. Such land as can not profitably produce crops in Germany is used for the planting of pine trees and the Berlin area this is a goodly proportion of the total.

The forests are wonderfully cared for and scientifically used. Not a twig can be found on the ground. When a tree has reached a development where it can be used for lumber it is felled, but even the small branches are saved, bound up into bundles and deposited at the edge of the forest for shipment and use elsewhere. You can see more wasted trees at a single glance in many of the cutover areas of the United States and Canada than you can see in all of Germany, I really believe.

In France and Belgium we had been impressed with the number of cattle found grazing in pastures, but we had no more than reached the German frontier than cattle became conspicuous by their absence. At the same time we began to see bottles of milk featured at the railway refreshment stands and in all the cities we found milk stores as numerous, almost, as those selling any other product. Inquiry revealed that the German farmer does not turn his cows out to graze except on the stubble after harvest. He believes he can produce more feed in the same area.

Down in southern Germany, hops are a great and dominating crop and the slim poles that support the hop vines add much to the picturesqueness of this area. In this region, also, much fruit is raised and throughout all Germany you are impressed by the number of small patches devoted to growing vegetables. Along the Rhine is the famous grape country.

It is doubtless a survival of the war era but all over Germany a thing was conspicuous that was seen in no other country. This was hundreds and thousands of small garden plots in the cities. Usually they utilized the land along railway yards that everywhere else seems to deteriorate into unsightly areas.

On each of these little plots of garden, say 50x50 feet or smaller, the renter erects a little shelter house. At times it is only large enough for one person to stand under during a rain; others have built shacks of one room that appear to be usable as homes the year round. It can readily be seen that the many thousands of such garden plots throughout the nation must raise enough vegetables to supply a few millions of people.

Mrs. Garner Says
It's Worth More Than
$1,000 To Her

HAD SUFFERED WITH LIVER AND NERVOUS TROUBLE NINE YEARS UNTIL SHE TOOK ORGATONE

"I wouldn't take a thousand dollars cash for the good Orgatone has done me," said Mrs. D. F. Garner, who resides at 413 1/2 Pierce Street, Amarillo, Texas, and is the owner of the well known apartments known as the Garner Place.

"It may sound strange, but I had suffered with stomach trouble, abscessed liver and nervousness until I got to the point where I felt like nothing on earth would ever do me any good. Everything I ate soured on my stomach and made trouble for me and in addition to the nervousness at times I would have a hard lump form in my side that felt like a rock and pained me terribly. I just lived in misery all the time and couldn't get any relief."

"I am just finishing my second bottle of Orgatone, and it's surprising the way I have improved, considering that I haven't been entirely well before for nine years. The nervousness and hard lump is gone from my side, and my stomach is all right and I can eat anything I want and digest it. I have gained some in weight, and am able to do my housework and feel good all the time. I want everybody to know what Orgatone did for me."

Genuine Orgatone (Argotane) may be bought in Clarendon at the Stocking's Drug Store.

Mrs. Tommie Shields of Clinton, Oklahoma is visiting her sister, Mrs. T. W. Welch.

HOUSEWIFE

Many a devoted mother ties herself down to her home and children so much that her own health is impaired. If you are cross, nervous and "jumpy" beware, a danger signal. It is Mother Nature's warning that you need relaxation and a mental change. It is not normal to be irritable.

Plan to treat yourself to at least an hour of recreation each day—a time set apart just for you when you do exactly as you please without interruption. Then do only the things you enjoy.

Rest and relaxation means something different to all of us. It may mean taking a nap, reading, working in the garden, following a hobby, visiting a friend, attending a concert, lecture or "movie", going for a walk or ride, etc. But it must be enjoyable to you and give you a change from routine.

It is not selfishness to insist on this time for yourself. It is absolutely necessary if you wish to remain healthy, and an efficient home-maker.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S HOME NEWSPAPER IS DELIVERED TO THE WHITE HOUSE DAILY

The Palo Alto (Cal.) Times is President Hoover's home town newspaper.

A copy of it is mailed to the White House every day. There, presumably, the wrapper is torn off by Mrs. Hoover, or Mr. Hoover whichever happens first to lay eyes upon it.

To home folks temporarily removed from the home town, nothing quite takes the place of the home newspaper, no matter how famous they may become. And the Hoovers are very much home folks and very much interested in the welfare of their home town in Palo Alto.

Orders Paper Delivered Regularly
Morning after election came. A phone call to the Palo Alto Times office caused a bit of a flutter in the circulation department. Orders were to again deliver the paper regularly to the Herbert Hoover home on San Juan Hill, Stanford University campus. Subscription price would be forthcoming.

The Hoovers had been away from home a good deal. The subscription had lapsed, and being a newspaper which demands actual money for subscriptions, the Palo Alto Times had temporarily ceased being thrown off afternoons at the Hoover's front doorstep.

After the Hoovers went to Washington, the paper was continued for a time at the old address on San Juan Hill, where the second son, Allen Hoover, continued to receive it. Later the Hoover paper was placed on the mailing list. Anyone with a lively imagination can picture the Hoovers nightly, after the chickens have gone to roost, and supper is done, dividing the home paper between them and handing parts of it across the reading table to one another.

Mrs. Hoover Claims Society Page

Mrs. Hoover claims the society page to start off with, while Mr. Hoover looks over editorials and the front page. He sees there that the Bay Shore Highway is to be extended down to Palo Alto from San Francisco and San Mateo in the near future, that the Hetch Hetchy development will not only afford an inexhaustible water supply for San Francisco but that Palo Alto and other Bay cities have been offered an opportunity to share in its benefits.

The City Council has just raised the appropriation for garbage collection, $500 a year. And the Southern Pacific railroad is about in the notion of building a new depot at Palo Alto. Already the street paving has been widened near the station and $1,500 is being spent on landscaping the adjacent grounds.

And now Mrs. Hoover looks up from her portion of the paper to announce that some ladies' raincoats are advertised by the Hink's department store in Palo Alto, exactly as featured in Washington this week, at $1.02 less per coat.

E. F. Bryan of Amarillo visited relatives and friends here over Sunday.

Miss Mayme Price spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. L. E. Breckenridge of Amarillo.

Mrs. M. S. Parsons and son Homer returned Sunday night from a visit with relatives and friends in Dallas and Ft. Worth.

Judge Link's office is being worked over with a new ceiling and otherwise made more presentable. This is one of the most convenient offices of the better class in town.

Novel Thawing Machine Works Successfully

Homemade Device Is Proving Great Success In Breaking Ice Jams In Frozen Pipes

A novel idea to thaw out Shamrock frozen water pipes and main was introduced here Saturday through the ingenuity of electrical engineers employed here by the West Texas Utilities company. The original machine evolved by the engineers involves two 25 kw transformers, tied in on the primary side, three watt fuses and a bundle of No. 4 copper wire. It worked, and now the city has employed a crew of two men to operate the machine.

The movable plant, erected on a truck, has been started at the task of thawing mains along First street and will cover the entire city. The residences are being included where badly frozen pipes are found. A minute and a half to three minutes are required to start water through the most badly frozen pipes.—Shamrock, Texan.

Putting Over A "Fast One"

Speculators, brokers, merchants and others who take their toll from the cotton crop of the country, and who collectively term themselves "the cotton trade," are becoming a bit worried over the new interest in co-operative marketing. The editor of the Cotton Digest, published in Houston, Texas, in a recent issue said:

"It is slowly dawning upon the cotton trade that something in the nature of a fast one was put over in the passage of the Agricultural Act. And one cannot help wondering why the leaders in the trade remained unconscious of the fact or made absolutely no effort to block legislation which will certainly eventually ripple this branch of the industry unless steps are taken to protect existing business methods.

The only change which the so-called cotton trade has ever made in its methods of doing business is to make it more complicated and to throw a smoke screen around its movement in order to keep the producers from seeing how easy it is to make a profit out of cotton without the labor of growing and picking it.

The cotton trade will do well to confine its energies to improvement in its own business instead of spending any of it in an effort to break up or make ineffective any organized movement on the part of producers to market their own product.

Farm and Ranch gives credit to the "cotton trade" for services rendered, but does not retract anything it has ever said regarding buying methods which do not take quality and staple into consideration. Nor does it make apologies for condemning the manipulation of the futures markets to the detriment of those who produce the cotton. It will now suggest that in this open declaration of war contained in the Cotton Digest, we see an aid to the co-operative movement. Such opposition as the "cotton trade" may take to the efforts of producers to have something to say regarding the distribution of their cotton will strengthen the cooperative cause.

The producers of cotton are beginning to learn that it is within their combined power to assemble, grade and class their cotton and to control the market. With the aid of the government working through the Federal Farm Board, farmers are about to make a supreme effort to merchandise their cotton. Community organization around gins will be formed. These in turn will be federated in county organizations and they in regional associations which will be represented in a central corporation or marketing association with a capital stock of $30,000,000. This great corporation will be backed by the United States Government.

That is what the Cotton Digest calls a great experiment, which according to the opinion of the Digest editor will probably fail. At least that is the published opinion of that editor, but it must be that down deep in his heart he has a fear that it won't fail and that the marketing of cotton, to a very large extent, will pass from brokers, merchants and speculators who support the exchanges, into the hands of the farmers. That is why the Digest editor says:

"It is time for action on the part of the cotton trade. The co-operative associations are now well organized and will shortly have perfected their gigantic sales corporations which will give the business world the greatest selling organizations ever formed to handle a single commodity. Deliveries to the co-operatives are increasing. It is entirely possible that their ambition to handle 30 per cent of the American crop may be realized. Therein lies the danger to established methods of handling cotton."

We think the Digest editor is entirely right when he speaks of the danger to the established methods of doing business, but Mr. Digest editor, don't you think that the time is ripe for changing those methods. This is a day of progressive action. We have changed methods of doing business in many lines. Why not make a few changes in the methods of merchandising cotton in order that producers will be given an even chance of making cost of production?—Farm and Ranch.

E. J. Chenault, who spent the ginning season in the employ of the Farmers Co-operative gin at Quail, has moved back to Lelia.

Monty R. Garrison, of the Utilities company with headquarters at Childress, will spend the front end of the week here on business in connection with his company.

Brother Of C. F. Bogard Dies At Timpson

The following account of the death of Hon. J. T. Bogard, brother of our fellowtownsman, C. F. Bogard, is taken from the Timpson Daily Times, published at Timpson, Texas:

"Shelby county and East Texas today mourns the loss of one of her best beloved citizens—Hon. J. T. Bogard of this city. Mr. Bogard died Thursday morning at one o'clock at his home in this city following an illness of sometime. Members of the family and loved ones were at his bedside when the end came."

"Mr. Bogard was active in politics for a number of years. He was first appointed Commissioner in 1896, and served the county in this capacity several years, being elected with large majorities to the office. He served this county as a member of the Texas legislature in 1906 and was elected again in 1908—filling the office with credit to himself, to his county and to his State."

Father Of Mrs. Elmer Jones Dies Near Clovis

W. H. Bryant of Clovis, N. M., died at his home south of Clovis, after a long illness of seven months. Age 76 years, 9 months, 18 days.

He is survived by his wife, six daughters, Mrs. J. R. Montgomery, Temple, Texas; Mrs. Ed Womach, Colorado, Texas; Mrs. Elmer Jones, of this city; Mrs. Clarence Carroll, Tatum, N. M.; and Marzelle Bryant of Clovis, and sons, 3 of whom are living, Therman, Horace and Herbert all of Clovis, and one sister, Mrs. Harrit Arnold living in Tenn.

AMERICAN ANCIENT CIVILIZATION

The oldest city on the American continent—built a few years after the birth of Christ—now stands buried in the jungles of northwestern Guatemala. It was inhabited for 600 years by a population numbering hundreds of thousands.

In this city—100 years after the birth of Christ—was built the oldest known astronomical observatory.

For centuries before the building of the observatory, careful records were made of the movements of the planets.

Monuments then were so established in the observatory that they accurately marked the sunrise at the Summer and Winter Solstices and at the Spring and Autumn Equinoxes.

In another great city of the Maya people, 2 stone monuments were established on the hills forming the sides of a valley 4 1-2 miles wide.

The day that the setting sun was sighted across these 2 monuments marked the Maya New Year.

The Maya priests invented a calendar that allowed an extra day in certain years as is done by the leap year of our calendar. They developed a position system of arithmetic more than 1200 years before a position system was used in Europe.

The priests of the Maya people were scientists.

They also were great builders.

The Mayans built cement roads in and around their great cities. Their greatest road yet discovered is of stone and cement—32 feet wide and 50 miles long. It lies absolutely straight and connects the principal city of the East with the great religious capital of the nation.

It is thought to have been the via sacra on which the gorgeous processions of priests led the nation's most beautiful maids to sacrifice.

In the center of the great Maya cities stood lofty temples and public buildings of a style of architecture that is being followed today in the design of our great city sky scrapers.

Their public buildings were decorated in all of the colors of the rainbow.

The dress of the priests and members of the ruling class was gorgeous beyond anything known today.

The Maya people recorded their history on innumerable stone monuments in a system of writing that modern scientists have not yet learned to read.

As mysteriously as they came, the Maya people suddenly left their great cities and the records of their highly developed sciences to be buried by the jungles.

A nine pound girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Lowe Sunday night. The little lady will bear the name of Rita Jenell.
