LIVING FLOWERS.

The woman posing as a 'clinging vine' fifty years ago now has a granddaughter who is a rambler.

VETERINARY PANACEAS.

Our pet billy goat becoming seriously ill after eating the combined works of Shakespeare bound in one volume, was suddenly relieved by swallowing a Literary Digest.

SUCCESS IS ASSURED.

The Mexico City man who rented a room on the fourteenth floor of a hotel, then took poison, sat on a rail of the balcony and shot himself through the head falling to the street below, believed in thoroughness.

CHANGING CUSTOMS.

There was time when a motion to the hip pocket meant a threat, but today it is a favor. Neither are we taught that 'honesty is the best policy' in this good day, because that a twenty-pay life cuts some figure as a policy when the young widow again looks over the crowd of eligibles.

CRASHING THE GATE.

A book agent working here last week asked to see a manager of a business firm. His card was returned with the notation, "too busy." The agent immediately wrote beneath, "that's why I called. I've no time to waste on loafers." He sold the busy man the books.

POLITICAL PULL.

When a game warden caught a San Francisco boy for illegal trout fishing, the boy said, "You can't arrest me, my father is a state senator."

"You'll have to go higher than that," the warden replied. "My brother is president of the United States." Strange as it may seem, both were telling the truth.

HENRY NEEDS IT.

Under the new tariff law, tractors made in the Ford plant in Ireland are admitted duty free. This is said to have been occasioned by a loophole overlooked by those framing the law. These tractors are made for considerably less in Ireland than they could have been manufactured in the United States, but they retail at the same old price.

TEXAS' SHOOTIN' LAWS.

To casually shoot a fellow just for the fun of it under the laws of this state entails a penalty not to exceed five years because no 'malice aforethought' may be considered.

To miss the same guy would justify an 'assault to murder charge' which carries a maximum penalty of fifteen years. These laws were no doubt so arranged to train our younger generation in marksmanship without the expense of sending them to a military training camp.

THE INSULATED LIFE.

The insulated life is selfish, self-centered, narrow and sooner or later results in an embittered life. There is no contact with the outer world—the world in which other people live.

There are no currents of force, of vitality or of imagination that can possibly be employed to connect this life with real living—living in fellowship with the class of folks whom the author had in mind who said, "let us live by the way."

HIP POCKET AUTOS.

The Austin car, said to be manufactured in England, invaded the American market the past week. It has a five inch wheel base and stands waist high to the average man.

It is also speedy. One is said to have turned over on a highway in the Ozarks and dropped into the hip pocket of a Dallasite. Speed? Oh boy!

THIS ENDURANCE BUSINESS.

Youngsters seeking to mimic their elders of flag pole fame, have started an endurance business all their own. Most of them have taken to the trees where it is cool and shady. Amarillo has several for which rain and lightning held no terrors.

The only mishap noted so far was in the case of a back porch swing sitter of Denton who was forced down because of parental trouble.

EDUCATED MAHEMERY.

Not that it is any of our business, but a student jumped on the running board of a car driven by the president of South Park College at Beaumont last week and bit off his ear. Perhaps he was practicing a football stunt for the fall campaign.

The absent minded youth paid a fine of $19.25 whereas the uneducated ordinary fellow would probably have been held to answer to a charge of mayhem.

Dalhart Newspaper Service. Within thirty minutes after the lamentable death of the sheriff of Dallam county last week, the Dalhart Texan, a semi-weekly paper of Dalhart, had a special edition on the street.

MEXICO AND MEXICANS.

Natives in Sianola are again having trouble getting their public schools started. More funds are needed to build more schoolhouses. Over two thousand have been constructed during the past two years.

Suffering natives in a land where darkest antiquity touches elbows with Twentieth century ideas, and nature has been most generous with her natural resources want to learn—want to live.

The land where was cradled the earliest American civilization. The land where natives exhibit their best and worst moods. Only two classes live there—conquerors and the conquered. The latter have been robbed of the fruits of their toil for centuries. They are now coming into their own with the enlightenment of public education.

NEWSPAPER PARASITES.

The press syndicate bunk, operated by space grafters who are paid by politicians, corporations and the like for what they write stirs the indignation of every newspaper man who has any pride in his work and for that reason heartily endorses the following from the Stewart-Webster Journal: "The politicians, the railroads, the colleges, construction companies and others who prefer paying their money to the space grafting parasites rather than deal with us directly, may learn sometimes that such publicity not only hurts them but places them in the same class with the space grafting parasites, that is—a class which wants the cream of the pot without paying for it. We are out and open for all good news that may interest our readers, even though it be about a politician, a railroad, or college or a construction company—but please deliver to us by some other source than by the way of newspaper parasites, the space grafters."

OLD SCHOOL DAYS.

The Stephenville Empire-Tribune belates the loss of the old cupola from the school house, it having been dispensed with under the plans of a repair job recently. "Gone are the days when the old school bell pealed out the hours" is the way the editor reminisces with a touch of pathos.

Perhaps he recalls the days of long ago when he trudged along armed with a double slate in red felt in answer to the call of the old bell. Yes, those were great times and the memories of old school days brings to memory faces that have long since passed in review before the Principal of the universe.

Along with the old school bell passed the blue back Elementary speller, McGuffey readers and the habit of spitting on the slate and using the fist or coat sleeve as an eraser. Dunce caps and practice of standing on one foot by the hour for slight infractions of a long list of rules have also become a memory.

The old dinner bucket containing boiled eggs and piece of our favorite pie are no more. Hot dog has taken the place of those old-time delicacies but what a time we had in the shade of the little old country school house eating at the noon hour.

And remember the little book in which were written verses by pupils of your class? Do you ever look through the "album" and recall scenes of younger days? Many a writer imposed on the "rose is red, etc." but the fragrance of childhood's happy laughter still lives in the memory of many boys and girls whose hair has become snow-white, and will continue until the final roll call.

Overproduction of Rags.

We hear much these days about overproduction of cotton while thousands go ragged. There is a great hue and cry about overproduction of wheat, and thousands hunger for the very wheat but it is denied them.

There is an overproduction—an overproduction of middle men due to a faulty system of distribution that is a disgrace to any so-called civilized nation. When the ragged are clothed and the hungry fed and a large surplus to spare over a year's supply ahead, then, and only then, is there an overproduction and that has never come in the history of this nation.

When farmers raise a big cotton crop, they go ragged because they have produced too much clothing material we are told. These cotton growers are suffering from the actions of greedy speculators and not an overproduction of cotton.

When farmers hear the cry of overproduction and learn of thousands of hungry consumers in the same state and nation, he knows it is a lie. The speculator hides behind a smoke screen of "overproduction" and makes more money off the individual crop than the producer who assumed all the risk in bringing the crop to maturity.

Cutting down production is advised. Why? Simply because there is no other remedy to offer. Speculators might have less to operate on and raise the price in a competitive bid, but it is doubtful.

Looking at the matter from a common sense standpoint, there is only one remedy—get it out of the hands of the speculator. Our farmers have the clothing material and food values to sell. Thousands in this good old United States are eager to buy if they can get hold of the price.

Overproduction as it is now termed, is simply a condition. That condition has handicapped the consumer until he has no money with which to buy. Cut production? No! Shut up about overproduction and tackle the "underconsumption" condition and make it possible for the consumer to consume.

Potter County Candidates Have Close Races

Because of his having made an excellent record in this district both as District Attorney years ago, and more recently as District Judge, the many friends of Judge Henry S. Bishop in Donley county will be glad to learn that he is in the lead for that office in the primary of Potter county.

The race for the sheriff's is between Bill Thompson and H. L. Gaither, with a narrow margin between them.

Mr. Gaither, while chief of police of Amarillo, assisted in capturing a number of hardened criminals connected with crime in Donley county an dis well and favorably known in this section.

He also became better known when he assisted in the capture of the parties-charged with the murder of the Hedley nightwatchman.

Could the people of this section vote for him there, Mr. Gaither would poll a unanimous vote of the law-abiding public.

OUR WEEKLY CHURCH CHAT

"Infidelity"

Much infidelity is caused through man's hatred of Christian principles and those who endeavor to practice them. Many know the truth and right, but deliberately choose error and evil. They are infidels because an attitude of unbelief best accords with their manner of living. "This is the judgment, that the light is come into the world, and men love the darkness rather than the light, for their works were evil," (John 3:19). Such, "hold down the truth of God in unrighteousness," and have "exchanged the truth of God for a lie," and refused to have God in their knowledge" (Rom. 1:18,25,28). The root of their skepticism is sin. Pascal has said: "There is in Christianity light enough for those who sincerely wish to see, and darkness enough to confound those of an opposite direction." It may safely be said, as a rule, that to those who sincerely wish to see, the light will shine, and into the minds of upright seekers the truth will come. Yet one cannot fail to note that there are a few exceptions.

Infidels of another religious truth, and yet they do not find it. What should be our attitude toward such as these. In the first place we should respect them. An honest doubter, is to be preferred to an unthinking sponge that takes in everything. Wholesale denunciation is as useless as it is unchristianity. You cannot bully doubters into believers. Neither will it help to pass such by in silent contempt. Far more creditable is it to make an effort to reasonably to reply to them. There may be some way in which you can help them. They may be some way in which you can help them. They may be overlooking the most convincing proofs or fallen into the common error of judging Christianity by the lives of the worse kind of professors, or the word of God by the tradition of men. FALSE PROFESSORS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR MUCH INFIDELITY. The reply to such skepticism is the TRUE CHRISTIAN LIFE, AND THE INTELLECTUAL REASON FOR OUR HOPE.

Your Power Supply and Your Neighbor's

The grouping of electric service requirements of a widespread area into one large electric system has brought about today's efficient power supply in small communities. Just as in the large city, mass production and mass distribution of electricity become possible. Greater efficiency in operation, and hence greater economy result.

The transmission system of electric power supply is among the outstanding industrial developments of the past fifteen years. Supplanting isolated local plants, it has brought greater efficiency, greater dependability and wider distribution of electric service to small towns and rural areas.

With 2,500 miles of high tension transmission lines, the West Texas Utilities Company distributes economical energy to 115 prosperous cities, towns and communities in West Texas, the "Land of Opportunity".

MOSLEY TELLS WHAT HE THINKS

The people of Donley county have been loyal to me and my interests. In your vote of Saturday you gave me a clear majority over the combined vote of three of the best men in the county. An honor that seldom falls to the lot of any one.

By your actions you approved of my present efforts to serve you as sheriff. You expressed confidence in me though I have made mistakes just like every other human being, and I've tried hard to be fair and square.

No man ever lived who could appreciate your support more than I do. You have been good to me since electing me to the present office. As a hired man, I have tried faithfully not to disappoint you.

Friends are worth more than money. To be remembered by the large number of voters Saturday makes life worth while. It gives a man encouragement of the kind that is needed to serve the masses of people with whom he has to deal, fairly and impartially.

You have my past record. I only hope to live long enough to repay you and meet your expectations in the new office of Tax Collector. I need your help, and must have it. At the same time, remember that I am just a public servant and more than glad to render any assistance possible at any time.

With a heart full of gratitude and a keen sense of appreciation, I thank you.

A. & M. College Pasture Plans Offers Explanation

Sudan Takes Lead Over All For Most Profitable Summer Pasture

College Station, Texas, July 28—Temporary pastures of sudan grass in the summer and of small grains in the fall and winter to supplement permanent pastures at times when plants in the latter are too short for grazing make it possible to prevent overgrazing and to provide good pastures throughout the entire year, E. A. Miller, agronomist, Extension Service, A & M College of Texas, pointed out in addressing the livestock group at the Farmers Short Course here Friday.

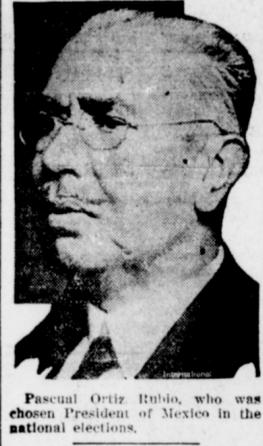

"Sudan grass has no equal for a temporary summer pasture in Texas and every farmer should plant some of this grass on his farm", the speaker said. "For grazing purposes it is best to sow the seed in two-to three-foot rows at the rate of ten pounds of seed an acre. A good plan is to cross-fence the sudan grass pasture, thereby allowing alternate grazing."

Mr. Miller recommended a mixture of oats, barley and rye for the fall and winter pasture when it is not intended to harvest the crop for hay or grain in the spring. The small grain should be sown early in the fall, preferably in September, and it is a good plan to add hairy vetch at the rate of fifteen to twenty pounds to the acre or Austrian winter peas at the rate of thirty to forty pounds an acre. The vetch and winter peas should be inoculated.

In the Blackland Belt of Texas biennial sweet clover sown in January or February with spring oats at the rate of fifteen to twenty pounds an acre will provide excellent grazing and build up soil fertility in crop rotation. In the Gulf Coastal Prairie and the timbered section of East Texas, the annual yellow bloom sweet clover is better adapted.

Queer Causes of Waste

It is estimated by a British expert that 4,000,000 bottles of medicine are wasted annually because the average teaspoon holds more than the usual dose. Another queer cause of waste is the railroad whistle. More than 2,434,026 tons of coal are used every year to blow the whistles on the railroad engines in the United States, and it is estimated that 1,000,000 pounds could be saved if the whistles were moved slightly forward and adapted to a single high-pitch note.

ANIMALS STILL NEEDED BY MAN

Modern Civilization Has Daily Contact With Variety of Beasts.

New York.—To a modern New Yorker, whose every contact, it seems to him, is guided, aided and made possible by mechanical or scientific contrivances far removed from nature or the animal kingdom, the recently divulged employment of police dogs to track a burglar in Staten Island appeared at once ludicrous and anachronistic. Yet if one looks about discerningly in the course of one's daily life one finds that dogs and many other animals are still a part and parcel of up-to-date existence for even the most cosmopolitan of persons.

Animals, now, as 100,000 years ago, provided food, clothing, companionship, amusement and, in many cases, protection for the vast majority of the 1,500,000,000 inhabitants of the earth. Of late they, in the great and often misunderstood field of vivisection, have been the means, and often the sole means, of learning the causes of some of the most loathsome and fearful diseases that have afflicted mankind.

During the World war both the allies and the Germans used dogs—the Germans police dogs—to locate wounded men in No Man's Land, to carry dispatches, to carry Red Cross bandages, first-aid kits and surgical instruments in places of extreme danger. Many a soldier owed his life to a fearless dog who, curling nothing for shrapnel, barrage or gas attack, ran swiftly to his aid, either helping him behind his own lines or summoning aid.

Record of Pigeons.

The splendid record of war pigeons, some of whom were decorated for bravery by the allied governments—one of them received a Victoria Cross, the highest military honor in the entire British empire—is too well known to need more than casual repetition. Pigeons, sometimes wounded grievously by enemy bullets, carried secret war messages great distances from and to the trench battle lines. Pigeons, although somewhat supplanted by radio, are still maintained by most of the armies of the world, including that of the United States.

Contrary to the popular belief cavalry was employed to good advantage in the war. Especially in the British army.

Cavalry today is an integral part of every modern army and as long as wars last, army men predict, it will be used and needed as much as any other branch of the service. Wherever artillery is used—and it is used in every army in the world—horses are considered an essential means of transportation.

In the arts of peace the horse still has his place, even on the pavements of New York, where each morning, before daylight, horses draw milk wagons through the silent, gloomy streets. On farms, on western ranches, on the race track, at the horse shows, in the stables of the rich, on the hunting field, horses maintain their places. In polo, a popular sport, they are used, as they are for work throughout the nation and the world.

Dogs, however, go where horses cannot. In Little America, Antarctica, the dauntless Eskimo dogs are working side by side with Commander Byrd and his band of fearless followers. There they are the sole means of transportation when the weather prevents airplane flights. Without them the expeditions would fail, as without them neither the North nor the South pole would have been discovered.

As watchdogs, dogs are still used wherever women and children wait in lonely places while their menfolk are away. Dogs still guard sheep, accompany lone wayfarers in far countries, protect children at play and aid man in one of his favorite sports, hunting.

It is in the prevention of disease that many animals, including dogs, sheep, guinea pigs, rats, cats, apes, guinea rabbits and mice are invaluable. For without these animals as subjects for vivisection numerous diseases would still be scourging mankind unchecked.

Curious enough some of the diseases which were most rife among the animals themselves, such as rabies, have been checked through experiments upon them. According to a recent pronouncement of Lord Dawson of Penn, King George's physician in his late illness, until experiments had been made upon dogs 80 per cent of them which were attacked by malignant jaundice were killed by that disease. Now, said Lord Dawson, dogs are practically immune from death from that affliction, if properly treated.

Examples of Their Use. As long ago as 1621, Harvey, the discoverer of blood-circulation, used dogs in his experiment, and as recently as the discovery of insulin as a cure for diabetes, dogs were used. No other animal, it is said, is better for the study of heart diseases. Rats and guinea pigs are known everywhere to be invaluable for vivisection of all kinds.

Cats, too, are often used for vivisection purposes, and apes and gorillas are used to find the cure for certain diseases.

So important are dogs considered in most civilized communities that special laws regarding them have been made, many of them requiring muzzling as much to protect other dogs as humans.

Every so often one reads of the fashion of monkey-carrying being the vogue again in Paris, New York or elsewhere. Many laugh at this, but the fair owners ever that the monkeys are companionable and intelligent. Tame alligators are sometimes led about on leashes in our Florida resorts by young women who enjoy the novelty, and even rescuer are occasionally exhibited as pets in the more northern cities of the American continent.

Circuses and animal vaudeville acts continue to flourish, and with them and inseparable from them, despite the hurly-burly modernism of present-day life, one finds every variety of performing beast imaginable. There are the trained sealions, who flip-flop as of yore in and out of their tanks, the performing bears, the acrobatic elephants, the tight-rope walking dogs. There are also the dressed-up cats, the fleet horses, the dancing ponies and various other trained animals.

Animals in Transportation.

Horses are not the only means of animal transportation extant in the Twentieth century. In India, Arabia, Persia and other nations of the Far East, elephants continue to bear upon their backs the potentates and princes who look, dress and act very much as they did thousands of years ago. Elephants are also used as hunting points of advantage for tiger treks in Hindu jungles.

In many European countries oxen continue to bear the burden of plowing, without which the nations could not survive. In Siberia, Manchuria and other less progressive Asiatic countries, oxen draw the carts which take the places of American or European automobiles. In sport animals play a great part. In America there are dog races, horse races that draw their millions, and, without the law, cock fights that still fascinate their thousands. The custom in cock fights is to meet in some secluded place where the fight is held, the roosters being armed with jagged spurs. Large bets are placed on such surreptitious contests and the cocks are put through a rigorous course of training beforehand.

Around hunting, requiring the use of dogs and horses, is even more popular than here. In Africa no expedition is complete without its complement of dogs. Bull-fighting, thought by many Anglo-Saxons to be a dying sport in Latin countries on both sides of the Atlantic, is said to be more popular than ever. Thousands, including the leading citizens and officials of the communities in which they are held, turn out weekly to witness the stirring contests between men and beasts.

Zoos still flourish and are visited alike by enthusiastic children and adults as well.

Wild animals as well as tame are popular as moving picture "actors," evidence of this having been recently demonstrated when a world-famous lion toured the United States in a gilded motor-car. At every cross-roads people crowded to gain a view of the lionine hero of the silver screen. Dogs, naturally, are the most popular heroes of the animal kingdom on the screen, although horses run them a close second. The salaries paid to the owners of some of these noted animals for their use in screen subjects is said to be in three figures each week.

Animals provide nearly every stitch of garment worn by man, woman and child, as in days gone by. Leather, wool, silk—these are but three essential clothing ingredients that come from the bodies or hair or efforts of animals. Horses, cats, rabbits, seals, lions, tigers, birds, all provide clothing and adornment for human beings.

The woman with her furs, the man with his business suit, the child with his eiderdown quilt, all owe to some animal their clothing or nearly all of it. In sport we have the expression "pigskin" for football, the academic circles "sheepskin" for diploma, showing the close, inter-relation between man and beast.

Their Use as Food. In the world of food the flesh and products of animals are paramount. If a man orders ham and eggs he eats the flesh of pigs and the product of chickens. If he drinks a thick, delicious soup, nine times out of ten there is some meat in it, usually from cattle. The rarest delicacies are usually of animal origin.

The Chinese are said to esteem rats as food, and it is said that even in sophisticated New York horseflesh is sometimes sold for roast beef or lamb. All manner of strange foods from animals is served throughout the foreign world.

Animals, too, provide livelihoods for innumerable men everywhere. Men devote their lives to training racing horses, to riding them, to picking winners in the races in which they participate, to treating them when they are sick, to trading them, to buying and selling them, to judging their points in shows, to writing about them in newspapers and fiction magazines. Dogs, too, have their retinue of trainers, veterinarians, judges and fanciers, and for both dogs and horses great prices are sometimes paid. Cats also have their following.

In fiction, as has been suggested above, many writers gain their bread by writing about animals. One well-known writer, who lives in New Jersey, writes of nothing but dogs. He is famous for his dog yarns and has a large following, which nets him a more than substantial yearly income.

"Just fine, Bill, always good in Summer!"

YOU seldom hear remarks like these along any business street during the summer. The majority of business men expect business to be slow during the summer months and he is getting what he expects.

The busy merchant has a different attitude. If you can catch him between waiting on the trade—ask him about summer business being slow. He hasn't found out. He's too busy building up his summer sales.

YES, there is summer business, just as there is winter business, spring business and fall business. Some merchants look only at the winter side—get that side close up to their eyes so they can't see another season. Other merchants hustle to catch that summer business too.

Of course, folks don't always buy the same things in summer as in winter (although fur coat stores have found August one of their busiest months, after they learned how to put over August fur sales). But some body somewhere is buying something right now.

Why not bring that purchase into your store by stocking what is wanted and advertising it?

To make up for customers on vacations there are the travellers passing through. As the demand lessens for roast beef it goes up for cold cuts and frankfurters.

If your summer merchandise is right, and your summer service on its toes—tell shoppers about it. How are they going to know unless you tell them? Invite them in by advertising in The Donley County Leader. Leader readers are noted for reading the ads.

Lubbock Housewife Testifies

I'VE SUFFERED FIFTEEN YEARS SINCE TAKING ONE BOTTLE OF ARGOTANE FEEL FINE.

"I've had a long, hard struggle with ill health but by the help of Argotane I have found relief at last," said Mrs. J. C. Harper, of 506 Ave. K, Lubbock, Texas, while talking with the Argotane representative.

"I've had stomach trouble so bad for fifteen years that my life was miserable," she continued, "but I'm a lot better since I began taking Argotane. I was in such a run down condition I couldn't eat anything I wanted and was losing weight and got weaker every day. After eating the smallest meals I would bloat up and my heart would beat so fast I was afraid something serious would result. I would have severe headaches and was weak and nervous and sometimes thought I would be compelled to stay in bed. I took all kinds of medicine but kept getting worse until I was discouraged and almost lost hope of finding anything that would help me.

"I read so much about Argotane that I decided to try it. It may be hard to believe, but it's the truth, I feel better than I have in fifteen years, and I've just taken one bottle of Argotane. I am no longer bothered with my awful headaches, my appetite is splendid and I can eat anything I want, without it hurting me in the least. My heart doesn't bother me as it did and I feel better in every way, my nerves are quiet now and I sleep fine every night. I give Argotane credit for straightening me up and I am glad to give this statement and to recommend it to my friends.

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Clarendon at the Stocking's Drug Store.

DISCOURAGEMENT

It was once announced that the Devil was going out of business and would offer his tools for sale to any one who would pay the price. On the night of the sale they were all attractively displayed, and a bad-looking lot they were. Malice, hatred, envy, jealousy, sensuality and deceit, and all other implements of evil were spread out, each marked with its price.

Apart from the rest lay a harmless-looking and wedge-shaped tool, much worn and priced higher than any of them.

Someone asked the Devil what it was.

"That's Discouragement," was the reply.

"Why have you priced it so high?"

"Because," replied the Devil, "it is more useful to me than any of the other. I can pry open and get inside a man's consciousness with that, when I could not get near him with any of the others, and when once inside, I can use him in whatever way suits me best. It is much worn because I used it with nearly everybody, and very few yet know it belongs to me."

It hardly need be added that the Devil's price for Discouragement was so high it was never sold. He still owns it and is still using it!

Texas Company Man Takes Pride in Appearances

The general appearance of the loading station of the Texas company sets an example in civic pride that might well be emulated by similar companies of Clarendon. In addition to the clean, orderly manner of keeping stock, the grounds are kept exceedingly clean cutting down the fire hazard.

The floors are scrubbed with a lye-water preparation giving more the appearance of a kitchen rather than the greasy oil station one frequently sees in such places. This condition is largely due to the pride taken in the appearance of the station by Simpson L. Tidwell, truck delivery man for R. L. Bigger, the local Texas agent.

Hot Dry Weather Increases Work of Caretakers

Another evidence of what might be accomplished in the way of keeping up yard appearances during the heated summer period when rain becomes less may be had by inspecting the courthouse yard.

The street from the Methodist church to the College is also another shining example of what may be accomplished by extra effort. While it is true that a greater quantity of water is required, the City makes a special summer rate to enable our citizens to take care of the yard irrigation.

Mrs. C. H. Russell and daughter Miss Helen Ruth of Honey Grove, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Lovell of this city.

Miss Maude and Nina Crawford left Saturday afternoon for a visit with an aunt, also friends at Ft. Worth and Dallas.

A decrease in cotton acreage of six per cent is reported by State Commissioner of Agriculture George B. Terrell. He estimates that there are approximately 17,000,000 acres of cotton in cultivation. There were about 17,968,000 acres harvested last year, he said.

"Forty per cent of the cotton crop is late, planted since May 15th, and much of it is not blooming; and not any of this late crop is assured, and it is impossible to estimate the outcome of the cotton crop," he said.

"Hot dry weather is reported in every district, and cotton is failing for lack of moisture. Only a few counties report any rain in July. Cotton is reported good in only a few counties. Very little insect damage is reported. It now looks like the crop may be as short as last year. A short crop would seem to be the only hope of better prices this fall.

"Corn is reported good from Austin, South to the coast, and some counties of Central and North Texas report good corn. The average yield per acre of corn and oats is estimated to be 20 bushels."

A repeal of the Texas statutes prohibiting boxing was advocated by a bi-district meeting of the American Legion at Galveston recently. Governor Charles E. Culberson crusaded against prize fighting and caused the enactment of the statute more than 30 years ago.

Texas now has 1,147,455 more inhabitants than it did in 1920, it is indicated by the latest census estimates. The total population is 5,810,683, compared to the 1920 population of 4,663,228. Texas now ranks fifth among the states for greatest population.

Lee Simmons, new Prison Manager, is reported to be making great headway in cutting penitentiary expenses. The cost of feeding prisoners has been reduced 28 per cent.

"We are giving the men all the garden stuff they can eat, all of which was raised on the prison farms", says Simmons.

A fist fight added considerable interest to a hearing of the legislative committee charged with investigation of alleged irregularities of University of Texas oil lands. An acrimonious discussion about "tale bearing" brought a clash between Representatives Bob Long of Wichita Falls and J. O. Eargle, an auditor employed by the committee.

Eargle was discharged by the committee after he admitted that he was guilty of an unethical practice in borrowing money from an official whose books he was auditing.

State Comptroller George H. Sheppard reports assessed property valuations to be $4,280,498,578. This represents an increase of $73,000,000 over the totals for 1929, Sheppard said.

These estimates will be used by the State Automatic Tax Board in fixing the tax rate for the year.

Plans to coordinate the activities of the University of Texas, A. and M. College, and the State Teachers colleges, were discussed at a meeting last week of the State Board of Education. Governor Moody addressed the meeting, urging that natural resources be taxed to raise school revenues.

The State Highway Department is receiving some of its order of 1,750,000 motor vehicle license plates for 1931. The plates cost $157,500.

TO THE VOTERS OF DONLEY COUNTY

I wish to thank those that voted for me in the race for Tax Collector, and hold no enmity against those that did not, as I told most of you that if you did not prefer to vote for one of my opponents that I would appreciate your vote. Having preferred to vote for one of my opponents you have nothing on me as I voted for my preference and where have I a kick coming.

I had quite a kick out of making the race, did me good to get out for a while. I surely enjoyed visiting with you while making the race and surely do thank all of you for the courtesies extended me, now cordially invite all of you to repay that visit.

Thanks,
A. N. Wood.

Early History of Clarendon and Donley County

Donley county was organized in the spring of 1882, the officers of the new county being sworn in by Judge Emanuel Dubbs, now a resident of Milford, Indiana, who was then judge of Wheeler county to which Donley county was attached for judicial purposes.

The first officers were G. A. Brown, county judge; B. N. White, county clerk; J. D. Wilson, sheriff; W. D. Kimball, treasurer; J. T. Otey, assessor; J. H. Parks, surveyor. T. W. Morrison, Charles Goodnight, L. R. Dyer and S. E. Nall were the first County Commissioners.

At this time school land could be had most any place for one dollar per acre and the best improved places were selling for $3 to $5 per acre.

Looking at new Clarendon in 1903, H. W. Taylor & Sons had the largest hardware business, Rutherford Brothers fitted the boys out with all the cowboy regalia and included a large harness line. John H. Rathjen, uncle of Fred W. Rathjen who now conducts the only exclusive shoe store in town, at that time conducted a similar business.

B. T. Lane did a good implement business. H. D. Ramsey and J. D. Stocking were leading druggists and Drs. T. W. Carroll and D. B. McGee were the physicians. Wm. H. Cooke practiced dentistry, also R. M. Prather. J. H. Oneal was a lawyer here at that time over Ramsey's drug store. J. T. Patman was a notary public with headquarters at the Bargain Store, then owned by Posey & Patman.

The first courthouse was a small plank structure built in 1887, the present building being erected in 1890, one of the contractor's losing his life by a fall from the higher portions during the building of the county capitol. One peculiar feature that is unnoticed except by those aware of the fact, is that the "golden" rope ornament above the judge's bench is really rope sold the contractors by Mayor Taylor when they found they did not have sufficient "gold imitation rope" to complete the job.

A frame school building of 'commodious size' was erected in 1889. It was displaced by what is now known as the 'Grammar School' building in 1902. In 1903 the Clarendon school faculty was made up of eight members with W. R. Silvey as superintendent. W. G. Stewart was principal. The other teachers were Miss Lora Kimberlin, Miss Clara Helvey, Miss Pearl Betts, Mrs. Kate Palmer, Miss Nora Skinner and Miss Bessie Chamberlain had charge of instruction in public school music.

The school board was made up of W. H. Cooke as president; W. B. Ware, secretary; R. A. Chamberlain, treasurer; J. H. O'Neal, assessor and collector; T. S. Bugbee, Morris Rosenfield and T. J. Noland constituting the other members of the board.

H. S. Anderson conducted a feed store and wagon yard. E. A. Taylor was the leading "horse shoer" of the town. Robert Lamb looked after the footwear, J. N. Crabtree owned the dairy, Price Baker drilled the wells, Priddy, Barrett & Priddy sold real estate, M. F. Lee sold coal.

The larger firms were Caldwell & Sons, The First National and Citizens Bank represented the financial institutions. W. H. Meador was a grocer, John M. Clower & Son held the confectionery trade.

The town boasted of the following firms in 1903: Two banks, one cotton gin, an electric light plant, telephone exchange, three newspapers, three hotels, two livery stables, two retail harness and saddle stores, two buggy and harness stores, four grocery, two furniture, three grain houses. Three coal dealers, four blacksmith shops, two drug stores.

Two lumber yards, six drygoods houses, two milliners, one photographer, four restaurants, two dentists, seven attorneys, two life insurance agents, one fire insurance agent, four real estate agents, one jeweler, seven music teachers, twelve preachers, and 'unequaled opportunities for investments.'

In looking over the above list it will be noted that with the exception of a very few present day lines, there was more competition in 1903 in Clarendon than there is now.

Citizens at that time believed in the public schools and the finer arts came in for a good share of attention with seven music teachers in the town. Clarendon could also boast of several nice residences with beautiful trees and many flowers.

The better homes at that time were owned by Sam Sayre, W. A. Caldwell, W. H. Patrick, Judge W. M. Smith, D. L. McClellan, J. M. Mann, T. S. McClelland, J. B. Pope, H. W. Taylor, Geo. F. Morgan, J. B. McClelland, J. D. Stocking, Harry Mundy, J. E. Collins, Dick Walsh, D. J. Calvery, Chas. Eyley, R. A. Chamberlain, C. J. Lewis, J. M. Clower, Dr. J. S. White, J. S. Jeffries, C. W. Taylor, Dr. D. B. McGee, Dr. H. J. Winn, W. W. Dyer, T. S. Bugbee, W. H. Cooke, Frank Collinson, Morris Rosenfield, T. J. Noland, H. D. Ramsey, Geo. Washington and others.

Many of these early residents continue to live here and continue to take a prominent part in building a better Clarendon. Some of them have passed on and the second and even the third generation continues to believe in Donley county as the best place for a home.

AN INDUSTRIAL-MINDED LEGISLATURE

Believe it or not, our next legislature will have a policy so sanely constructive as to meet with the unqualified approval of most thinking Texans.

A recent survey definitely establishes the fact that ninety-seven per cent of the legislative candidates are committed to a progressive policy of industrial development. If, by chance, every candidate adverse to the industrial program were elected, those espoused to the plan would still command a decisive majority.

In its attempts to build an industrial Texas, members of this 42nd legislature will resort to none of those desperate expedients embraced by one or two of the states. No prospective industries, for instance will be lured to the state by promises of remitted taxes.

These men and women who will be members of our next legislature wisely contend that no such tactics are necessary to secure industries for the state.

In the opinion of our next year's legislature, Texas' unchallenged supremacy in the field of agricultural production, its wealth of undeveloped mineral resources, its inexhaustible supplies of water and fuel, and its outstanding advantages in the realms of rail and water transportation are the considerations which should attract industry to the state.

industry, the 42nd legislature will add another: a disposition to foster and cooperate with industrial enterprise.

This disposition will be evidenced in sane and reasonable aspects. Industry will be given no tax favors at the expense of agriculture or business, nor will it be discriminated against in favor of agriculture or business. Prosperity will not be penalized, and the tax burden will be minimized by an attack upon the rising cost of government rather special levies against flourishing units of the state's industrial organization.

Finally, a department of industry, or an industrial commission, may be organized which will discover and broadcast information upon the many industrial opportunities which lie within the state.

The attitude of the new legislature will be sane and friendly, and Texas' best promise for progress and prosperity lies in the personnel of that body.
