Funeral Service Of H. C. Kerbow Held Friday Afternoon

Methodist Church is Packed to Capacity by Friends of Good Citizen

Clarendon and Donley County paid last tributes to one of the most highly esteemed citizens of this section Friday afternoon when the funeral service of H. C. Kerbow, senior member of the hardware and furniture firm of H. C. Kerbow and Sons was conducted by Dr. J. T. Griswold, pastor of the Methodist church of Childers, and formerly a presiding elder of this district. He was assisted by Rev. Robt. S. McKee, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. Sam E. Allison, pastor of the Methodist church here.

Mr. Kerbow passed away Wednesday morning at Mineral Wells where he and Mrs. Kerbow had been for a short time for the benefit of Mr. Kerbow's health which had been declining over a period of several months.

The deceased came of pioneer parents of good old Southern stock having been born in Jackson county, Georgia March 6th, 1856, being seventy-four years of age at the time of his passing.

He came to Texas at an early age and on Christmas day of 1879 was united in marriage with Miss Arizona Redus in Delta county. To this union eight children were born, two dying in infancy. Besides his wife, he is survived by one daughter and five sons, all of whom were with him during his last hours.

The daughter, Mrs. Don Grady, H. Bennett and Ralph C. live in Clarendon. Ellizoy of White Deer, Fred at Lubbock and Guy at Dallas. The sons and son-in-law acted as pallbearers at the services Friday.

Hundreds of good friends of our venerated citizen contributed flowers and the doors of the business houses of the town were closed Friday afternoon as tokens of the high esteem in which he was held where he had been a leading business man for a quarter of a century.

Home Beautiful Visited By Hundreds In Three Days

Beauty of Design Attracts Large Numbers From Over The Panhandle

The opening of the Home Beautiful Friday, Saturday and Sunday was no local affair according to the owner, C. G. Speed Monday. "People came from Claude, McLean, Groom and from every town in the county and the Leader certainly has a wide circulation" was the statement of Speed in discussing the success of the project.

A constant stream of visitors were escorted through the building all of the opening hours with an overflow crowd Sunday afternoon. The visitors often expressed themselves as being surprised at the various improvements of interior finish never before attempted by local builders.

Mr. Speed said an attempt was made to keep a count of the visitors but this was found to be impossible the first day. He estimates that over 2500 adults visited the home during the three days, and that the extreme courtesy on the part of the visitors is greatly appreciated.

A humorous incident in connection with the opening occurred Sunday night after the last visitors had gone. The home was completely equipped as the owners thought but one accessory was missing—the family cat.

Upon opening the front door, Mr. Speed was astounded to find five cats sitting in front of the door asking for admittance. They readily entered and the full equipment was complete. The opening program had been carried out without a hitch. The Panhandle's first residence of this design is known over a wide section and the skill of the builders is well known.

Officers Disturb African Golf Game Saturday

Saturday night when a number of sons of Montezuma had settled down to enjoy their cotton picking money in the colored cafe north of the track, Deputies Guy Pierce and C. M. Peabody appeared. In fact they walked right in just as one of the boys raised his hand to speak to the cubies. Money was said to have been stacked around in varying quantities according to the luck of the players.

Nine, Mexicans and Spaniards were escorted to the hogswog where they failed to dig up the $16.95 each late Monday evening.

Poultry Profitable Pastime For Local Minister

Not exactly a hobby, but rather to get outdoor exercise without a waste of time, Rev. E. N. Shepherd pastor of the First Baptist church of Clarendon, owns ninety fine young white leghorn pullets.

The first began laying at the age of four months and five days. At this time he is getting over forty eggs each day. This method of utilizing his time furnishes profitable amusement, fresh air and sunshine, all of which he needs after a strenuous summer's work in his calling.

Presidents Club Planning Safety Exhibit

At a meeting of the Presidents Club the past week at which each of the civic clubs of the town had representation, plans were made to secure films to be shown at the school emphasizing safety measures.

Dean Clark of the College kindly offered the use of his moving picture machine and it is possible that the pictures will be shown several times that all of the school children may see them.

Plans were also begun that this town might enjoy a series of four lectures to be delivered by Dr. Chas. E. Barker, speaker of national reputation. It is planned to underwrite the expense and permit the public to enjoy the lectures free of any charges at the door.

Marvin Land Buys Sinclair Filling Station

The Sinclair Filling Station a block east of the Donley County State Bank was taken over by Marvin Land in a deal closed Friday. Three electric meter pumps are to be installed soon.

The building is also to be worked over to conform to Sinclair requirements. Joe Cannon is wholesale distributor agent for the company here having taken on the new product some six weeks back.

Flood Forces Clarendon Folks to Work Sunday

Clarendon presented a sight for the onlooker Sunday with a crew out with a fire hose in different parts washing mud from the streets and garages and in some instances business houses following the deposit of silt by the flood waters Saturday night late.

Some of the city streets were dragged early in the morning to fill washes, the highway crew was called out early to repair a culvert that had stopped traffic on Highway 5 west of town.

Another highway crew began dragging the roadway between Clarendon and Lelia Lake. The Denver section crews were out in number early to replace dirt on the fills that had held up trains between Clarendon and Lelia.

Water also was pumped from basements and goods sorted by some of the business element where necessary to prevent further loss. Water is said to have risen several inches higher Saturday night than ever before in the history of the town, and had not the new drainage ditch been complete, hundreds of dollars in damage would have resulted, it is said.

Rev. Sam E. Allison Will Pastor Carlsbad Church

Returning again to the Pecos valley where he was both pastor and Presiding Elder at different times a few years ago, Rev. Sam E. Allison, pastor of the local Methodist church, will assume his duties with church at Carlsbad the first of November.

No New Cases Of Infantile Paralysis In Donley County

General Health Conditions Good And No Cause For Alarm at Present

Despite the fact that Donley county has had five cases of infantile paralysis since August, only two remain and these two cases have reached the stage where contagion is unlikely.

Of the seven cases within a radius of forty miles of here, death has resulted in two instances. The others recovered or at present are beyond the acute stage with every appearance of no permanent injury.

Dr. Oscar L. Jenkins is the officially recognized health officer of the county, and assures our readers that proper precaution is being taken with regard to all forms of contagious diseases.

It is understood that Dr. J. W. Webb is looking after the matter at Hedley and the officials of Clarendon are to secure the services of a health officer soon. Incorporated towns are required by law to employ a health officer.

Childers county is reported to have two cases of infantile paralysis, Armstrong two and Amarillo five at this time. Those in authority state that this condition is not unusual since the disease is epidemic in many sections of the United States at this time. In fact there is less cause for complaint in the Panhandle than in many sections of the state.

Editor and Mrs. Landers of the McLean News visited relatives and friends in Clarendon over Sunday.

Donley's Exhibit Now Being Placed At Texas State Fair

County Will Show Twenty Five Varieties Field, Orchard and Garden

The placing of Donley county's exhibits at this time is being made by County Agent T. R. Broun and Secretary G. L. Boykin of the Chamber of Commerce. A part of the exhibit was sent down Wednesday by County Agent Upchurch of Randall county as he passed through here with a heavy truck for that purpose.

Messrs. Boykin and Broun went down to Dallas Thursday with a large assortment of field, orchard and garden varieties carefully selected from over the county. In addition to these, the better exhibit specimens displayed at the Tri-State fair at Amarillo were also saved for the state exhibit.

West Texas counties are making a strong effort to cop the majority of the prizes this season mainly to offset the rumors that west Texas was drouth stricken and crops of all kinds had been a failure.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Price of Wichita Falls spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Price. Milton returned home Sunday evening, Mrs. Price remained a few days.

Opinions on Cotton Damage Differ as to Amount

Various and sundry opinions have been expressed on the amount of damage resulting from the rainfall and especially cotton depreciation.

M. M. Noble, probably the largest cotton grower in the county, estimates a county loss of upwards of four thousand bales. J. H. Easderling places the damage at thirty percent.

Others looking over the crops of the county place a low estimate. "There is no doubt but what quite a loss has been sustained" stated W. D. Van Eaton Monday, but he could not arrive at an exact figure.

Jack B. Jones of the Clarendon drug store firm is to enter a pharmacy school at Dallas this week to be absent several months.

Raging Waters Reach Higher Levels Saturday Night

Three And A Half Inches Is Recorded in Little More Than Hour

Following heavy rains to the southwest earlier in the night, a heavy rainfall visited Clarendon around ten o'clock Saturday falling in torrents. In less than an hour the fire whistle sounded a warning of flood approach and business men hastened to make preparations to avoid water damage.

Many were cut off by high water on Gorst street in front of the Wilder sanitarium, and likewise on the west side of the square. Unable to reach their places of business in a car, some business men and spectators braved the flood waters on foot.

Water for the first time flooded the floor of the Postoffice, though no damage was done to the mails due to the precaution of the employees. The Clarendon hotel floor on the lower level was flooded. Water for the first time in history crawled into the front entrance of the Pastime Theatre extending back some six feet but stopped by the sloping floor.

Probably the heaviest direct losers was the Andis Brothers truck firm when their office and storage room was flooded to a depth of eight inches. This building is just back of the Municipal building and faces west. A heavy loss was avoided by a late delivery made by the trucks earlier in the evening.

Basements of practically all the business houses bordering on the ditch to the rear of the Donley bank building were flooded. Water was practically excluded from entrance into the Rathjen, Kerbow, Mercantile, Pastime Confectionery and other doors in that area. Little damage was done due to the fact that owners or employees were on hand to take care of the situation.

The Noble garage floor received the usual mud bath, two tanks were washed out at the pumps in front of the building. A number of gas barrels were washed from the unloading stations of the Gulf, Magnolia, Pierce and Texas companies near the track east of the depot.

That section northwest of the Courthouse and north of Third street was more or less flooded. Yards were swept clean of shrubbery in some instances and others muddied. By some strange quirk of fortune, water did not reach a height in this section as did in 1916 the previous high flood tide according to older residents.

National Red Cross Worker Speaks To Lions Club

Speaker Describes Incidents in Connection With Her Work of Relief

Speaking to the members of the Lions Club Tuesday, Mrs. Helen A. Joseph, representative of the American Red Cross, spoke at length in an interesting manner regarding the excellent results obtained from united efforts thru the Red Cross organization in relieving needy ex-service men, flood and storm victims and others.

At the conclusion of her remarks, Boss Lion Fred W. Rathjen informed the members that each club would be asked by the national headquarters to give the Roll Call beginning November 1st their whole-hearted support.

Drs. C. G. Stricklin and T. H. Ellis were present as guests of the Club. Dr. Ellis discussed health conditions of the county and reported the success of Adair hospital and the value of the institution as an asset to the county.

Chas. G. Speed gave the members of the Club notice of the opening of the "Home Beautiful" and invited them to visit and inspect his new home on opening days.

Second Crops Are Produced By Donley County Tillers

Judgment And Effort Gets Results Proving Greater Possibilities

Farmers of Donley county have in times past harvested grain and later reaped a blackeye pea crop from the same land. Some fields have been made to produce a grain crop and a row crop the same season by planting when grain is cut from the land.

While experiences as noted above are common, Frank Hardin is gathering his second crop of canteloupes at this time from the same vines. The first crop was heavy and of such a quality as to find a ready market. The second crop produced by the same vines after a short rest, are even of better quality than the first.

Film Caraway, champion strawberry grower of this section, is reeling in a fall crop of luscious red berries that would be a credit to the famed Ozark section.

A strawberry specimen brought to the Leader office this week measured three and a half by four inches. The flavor and color was up to the standard. Mr. Caraway has given this subject close study and is thus enabled to care for his vines in such a manner as to have berries practically all through the growing season.

Variety, method of culture and extra muscle effort has brought rewards to many. If others have been successful with growing garden, orchard or field products beyond the average production this season, we would be pleased to know about it.

Legion Officers Are Duly Installed Tuesday Night

Installation Ceremony Was Private and Conducted by Capt. Chas. B. Trent

With the completion of the installation ceremonies of Tuesday night, Clarence E. Miller becomes Post Commander of Aubyn E. Clark Post of the local American Legion organization.

Elba Ballew and Joe Holland become First and Second Vice Commanders respectively. G. L. Boykin is Adjutant, Tom Tucker Sergeant at Arms, H. T. Burton Historian and R. W. Moore Chaplain. C. J. Douglas assumes the responsibility of Service Officer for the new term.

Plans are being made for a celebration of Armistice Day November 11th. The Posts over the state have signified their intention of a strict observance of this date on the evening of November 10th. This will be the second time that such observance has been recorded in the state.

The matter of Red Cross work was discussed, a committee was appointed to request the Commissioners Court to place a flag on the pole on the Courthouse lawn. C. J. Douglas paid a fitting tribute to past Commander Ralph E. Andis for meritorious service. A membership drive was also announced.

Pupils Make Excellent Record in Fire Drill

During the past week extra stress has been placed on fire drill at the public schools of Clarendon due to an observance of "Fire Prevention Week."

It is reported that the Junior high school was cleared of all pupils in a period of one minute during unobstructed drill. The pupils of the South Ward made a record of less than two minutes.

The pupils of the last named school are entitled to much credit when it is taken into consideration that the larger number are very small, the lower grades alone being taught in this building.

Mrs. W. D. Van Eaton and daughter, Mrs. Joe McMurtry are at Dallas visiting relatives and do not fair this week.

Young Men Have Narrow Escape—Bridge Out

Leaving town late Saturday night John Tolbert and Loyd Himmelstrain headed for home over Highway 5 in a Ford.

When they reached the creek where the Bailey bridge is located near Martin, water had covered the bridge. They expected to attempt to cross through the water, but as a matter of precaution, John waded out to see if the bridge was safe.

He suddenly dropped out of sight in the flood and realized just as suddenly that the bridge had escaped. Climbing out, the young men returned to Clarendon and remained over night.

Farmers Plan Pastures For Winter Grazing

Since the rain more than a week ago, hundreds of acres have been planted in Donley county to small grain for winter pasture. Winter barley and wheat has been the rule according to information.

Row crops are showing up better and if frost does not interfere before December 1st, it is believed that the county will produce more than enough feed to run stock, and more especially since the large acreage of grain planting.

Domesticated Mallard Ducks Raised by Liesberg

Getting a pair of domesticated Mallard ducks from a party at Claude more than a year ago, O. D. Liesberg has had good success raising others and has quite a flock at this time.

These ducks raised in captivity cannot fly, are tame and are very beautiful. Mr. Liesberg states that the birds are too fat to fly probably the reason they remain in the poultry yard giving no trouble.

He has tried the hen hatching method, but finds that the Mallard hen knows her stuff and cares for her brood with less loss. This arrangement enables the Liesberg household to enjoy "wild meat" with tame advantages when desired.

Peculiar Skull is Brought to Stockings

A skull of peculiar design was unearthed by a grader on the road south of town recently and brought to the Stockings drug store. Peculiar in that the member is intact and yet has no eye sockets.

The skull appears to be modern in that the bone has not changed texture. A number of other bones were found near it. Jerome D. Stocking will ask authorities to pass on the subject.

Flood Endangered Lives Near Courthouse

Shortly after midnight following the deluge around eleven o'clock Saturday night, cries of help were heard in the vicinity of the house formerly occupied by T. J. Jolly south of the square.

H. L. Brady and Vada Carpenter and others went to the rescue going through whirling waters. Two children by the name of Green and about eight years of age and a girl of fourteen were rescued from the home by Mr. Brady and carried to safety.

Later, a Mrs. McCracken, the grandmother of the fourteen-year-old girl was rescued from the water where the water trough is located near the southwest corner of the square and where she had been washed up against the curb by the high water.

Vada Carpenter and Clyde Phillips a young man living at Goodnight, and Clyde McDowell rescued the aged grandmother after she had been thoroughly drenched and in a fair way of being drowned due to her weakened condition.

Art Club Flower Exhibit Next Saturday

Members of the Les Beaux Arts club will offer a number of prizes on flower exhibits at the Club Room in Clarendon next Saturday afternoon between the hours of 1 to 6.

Those having flowers for exhibit are requested to bring them at one o'clock. Money prizes and ribbons will be offered by judges who are not members of the club.

Slashing Attack Of Clarendon Was Too Strong For Irish

Undefeated Champions Fight Way Through in a Blaze of Glory Friday

The Bronchos brought home the "bacon" Friday despite all predictions to the contrary. The local boys had been doped out for a defeat and the results of this hardest encounters of the season is most encouraging. The following account fairly given in the Shamrock Texan of Sunday is reproduced.

"Superior weight and a muddy field told a story of defeat for the Shamrock high school's fighting Irishmen at the hands of powerful Clarendon Bronchos on the home girdion Friday afternoon. The final score was 19 to 7.

At the beginning of the game, while the field was fairly dry, the speedy Irish backs rushed the m-aron and white huskies off their feet, scoring a touchdown and extra point in the first few minutes of play. It is possible that had the field been dry the story might have been different. Intermittent showers throughout the contest made the field slippery, which was a serious handicap to the light, fast Irishmen.

Clarendon's style of play was admirably suited to the conditions. Heavy backs and tricky maneuvers skillfully executed, netted the Bronchos gain after gain, resulting in three touchdowns and one extra point. Clarendon's kicking and passing game was inferior to that of the Irish, but the invaders' rushing plunges and fast end runs were too much for the home team.

Hudson, flashing halfback, was easily the star of the Clarendon aggregation, although the entire team exhibited a quality of team work rare in high school teams. Nichols, also, was a good ground gainer.

Brannon, Bland, Bumpers, O'Gorman, Tarbet, Banks and Earl Martin were the backbone of the Irish defense. The team as a whole deserves much credit for the fighting spirit displayed. They fought to (Continued To Back Page)

Rotarians Make Timely Talks Friday Noon Luncheon

Radical Departure in Program Material Furnishes New Ideas For Future

The program of the Rotary club Friday was opened with the singing of two duets by Miss Wilma Hukel and James Smith, both of whom were assured of the appreciation of the Club by vigorous handclapping and personal thanks.

Rotarian D. R. Davis ably discussed the subject of "The Road to Freedom", an article taken from the last issue of the Rotary magazine.

"College for Two" was the subject of Rotarian R. E. Drennon, also taken from the last issue of the Rotarian, the official magazine of the organization.

Both of the above gentlemen made impromptu talks having little time to study the subject other than a mere reading of the article before delivery. This new departure in arranging a program had as its object the encouragement of a better study of the articles appearing in the Rotarian.

Following the excellent talks by the above gentlemen, Rotarian Carl Throop of the Memphis club further elaborated on the subject of "College for Two" expressing a difference of opinion and stating his reasons. This talk also brought out other food for thought.

A. N. Wood, guest of the Club, expressed his pleasure at being present and complimented the membership for the excellent program.

President B. L. Jenkins presided and the program was in charge of the Club Service Committee.

Mrs. W. B. Ponder of Amarillo spent the week end here with her sister, Mrs. Homer Mulkey.

Sound Logic.

In making a speech recently, a banker used these phrases: "Advertise or fossilize. American ends in 'I Can.'" This is the year of cafeteria prosperity—help yourself. If a business man sits and waits for his ship to come in, it will be a receivership."

Government Efficiency.

After a search lasting sixty-six years, and mingling with the Kiowa tribe of Oklahoma Indians all these years, wise officials have just discovered that a certain old squaw is not a squaw at all—she's Millie Dugan, member of a white family, captured on the Brazos in 1864.

Pulled a Boner.

It now develops that the robbing of the wife of the Mayor of Chicago of $17,000 worth of jewelry was a bonehead on the part of the boys who follow that profession. Of course knocking her shofer-police-man down and kicking him around was only a part of the game and merely showed their contempt for any semblance of law and order.

The Dignity of Labor.

While "all honest labor is honorable," we do like to see results. Often these results are hidden from casual view and we are repaid in health and contentment. Real unhappiness is seldom found in the lives of busy people. Imaginary unhappiness is more often found by "crossing the bridge before we get to it," or in brooding over troubles that never happen.

The signs of sorrow, boredom and meanness are far more often found in the faces of those whose days are heavy with idleness for verily is that statement true that "an idle brain is the devil's workshop."

Nature is shrewd in denying to parasites the kernels of happiness, choosing rather to confer the blessings of health, the choice of thrill of accomplishment on those who expend the energy of mind and muscle in creative effort.

Women born to be housekeepers and the mother of children who assign their sacred trust to maids frequently wonder why their faces acquire ugly lines. Men who have time and energy to assume responsibilities in community affairs and choose to spend their time chasing the phantom of happiness ever elusive, get no kick out of life.

Such people attempt to buy happiness by short-cuts. They refuse to pay the price and on the other hand attempt to get without giving. The contented man or woman is usually very busy with their own duties, and duties required of them in performing their share of civic responsibilities.

PUBLICITY IS BEST

Many persons do not like to see plain truths in print, especially if these same facts might be in any way construed to be injurious to the community in which they dwell, but it is far better to have these truths made known than to keep the people in ignorance and cause great loss and pain to that same community.

One instance of this is the reporting of contagious and infectious diseases, but if these same people know how much better it is to keep people informed and on their guard, they would change their tune.

At the present time there are a great many cases of infantile paralysis in the United States, a number of them in South Dakota, and at least two in Day county, one of these being in Lynn township and the other near Roslyn.

Infantile paralysis is one of the most dreaded diseases known and is certain to leave its victim crippled for life, if they pull through the disease itself. Naturally then, there are none who wish to become exposed to it, and none who want their neighbors to become exposed.

The nature of the approach of the disease, is not quite clear to the medical world, but the methods of prevention are clear enough, and if this disease is to be combated, it is important that we follow the advice of the county nurse, Miss Anna C. Dailey, and our doctors.

One of the main preventatives is the proper use of disinfectants, especially before eating, for eating of food from hands that are covered with germs, is one of the greatest forms of spreading disease.

Take all the precautions you can, and don't be afraid to let outsiders know that there is an outbreak of this disease in the county. It may keep it from spreading.—Pierpoint S. D. Signal.

WEST TEXAS UTILITIES CO.

Abilene, Texas, Oct. 6—The output of electric energy throughout the nation during 1930 indicates favorable business conditions and the outlook for an upward trend is excellent, according to a recent investigation conducted by the National Light Association and made available from the general office of the West Texas Utilities Company here.

Figures on electric output are generally considered to be an excellent barometer of business conditions, as electric consumption reflects immediately the industrial operations of the country.

According to the survey, output for the nation as a whole has in no week since the readjustment started fallen under 4 per cent for the corresponding weeks of the high levels of 1929. In most weeks these levels have been exceeded.

Total sales of electric power to all classes of customers for the first seven months showed an increase of 1.4 per cent over 1929 and an increase of 14.4 per cent over the same period in 1928.

Industrial use of power showed a slight decrease for the first seven months of 1930 under 1929. This decrease was 2.4 per cent, but the 1930 industrial use was still 9.9 per cent over the first seven months of 1928.

According to West Texas Utility Company executives, the national figures reflect practically the same picture of general conditions as do the figures for the West Texas Utilities Company. It was pointed out that "These comparisons indicate that fundamentally the industry of the United States has not been seriously affected by the recent period of readjustment, and would seem to show that the nation can expect an early return to normal. The outlook is decidedly encouraging."

H. C. Kerbow

The recent passing of H. C. Kerbow marks an epoch in the melancholy annals of Donley county history. No grander soul was ever clad in human frailty. It may truthfully be said of him no needy was left unattended, and no sorrowing being but found comfort in his kindness.

He was stern in front of adversity, yet when shaken by the winds of sympathy, he soothed with the tenderness of a child. Honor was his girdle and truth was his guide. He was as chivalrous as the heroes of romance.

On these gracious attributes that the community knows and cherishes, we shall not dwell, but rather on that "masterpiece of nature that we term 'friend.'" For in the conception of that treasured relation do we find the embodiment of charitable thought, of kindly bearing of faithfulness unto death.

Many may mourn the death of a friend and be led thereby to reflect that friendship is one of the most valuable things in life. But every person who has ever lost or had a friend can mourn the passing of such a man as H. C. Kerbow who invested friendship with a quality which ennobled all friendships.

His was the conception of friendship as something high and apart from the happenings of the day, a thing that once born should never die, nor experience change or alter. Mr. Kerbow armored his friendships with a fierce loyalty that would brook no interference, the detractor received no encouragement from him.

There was nothing indefinite about his character. The storms of life brought no change and friends found him at the same place when they returned. It was this quality that the writer admired most. He often stole away from his place of business during a dull moment and visited with the writer. His smile and gracious manners were most welcome. He seemed to like the writer and complimented his efforts even to the extent of sending the Leader to a number of relatives.

He came to see me shortly before going away on his last journey. We talked much about many things. Never did he say a harm word against anyone. His conversation partook more of fatherly counsel. His advice was sought and appreciated. Now that he can be here no more, I am glad indeed that I planted flowers in his life when he knew it. He often thanked me when I complimented his quality of citizenship, his ever ready smile and sunny disposition.

A born optimist, hundreds will miss "the touch of a vanished hand and of a voice that is stilled." The mind that thought, willed and obeyed; the heart that loved and poured out its affections; the kindly eyes through which his soul looked; the hand that clasped with warmth the friends and loved ones, are stilled; and we review his life and good deeds with reverence. Death always comes with a shock, but the angel of faith comes to our relief.

"Passing out of the shadows, into the purer light
Stepping behind the curtain, getting a clearer sight;
Laying aside the burden of this weary mortal coil;
Done with the world's vexations, done with its tears and toil;
Tired of earthly playthings; tired and ready to sleep,
Ready to bid his friends farewell, wondering why they weep;
Passing out of the shadow into Eternal Day—
Why do we call it dying? This sweet—going away."

In the passing of H. C. Kerbow, Clarendon has lost one of her best citizens. Our sympathies go out to those who knew him as husband and father. Those of us who knew him best appreciated him most. It must have been a pleasure in his last days to realize that his friends were legion. He left to his family a priceless heritage in a spotless reputation. He left to all of us an enduring monument in that the world is better for his having lived.

CAPITAL punishment for Arson in Athens

The law in early Athens made arson punishable by death. In America today, arson is severely dealt with by long prison terms. There is no escape from the long arm of the law. National co-operation of police, prosecuting officials and insurance companies, results in many convictions.

Arson may be caused by a crank seeking revenge, a pyromaniac, or a criminal.

Every effort will be made to prevent dishonest losses. In the meantime sound stock fire insurance is your only security against property loss.

New Centralized Broadcasting Device Brings Music and Art to Classrooms

MUSIC HOUR IN JAMES H. SMART SCHOOL

FT. WAYNE, IND.—The newest development in centralized broadcasting is a special system for schools recently installed in the James H. Smart school, Ft. Wayne. This system, installed by the Capehart Corporation of Ft. Wayne, consists of a radio receiving set, an automatic phonograph, a microphone, and individual loud speakers for each classroom.

The "broadcasting studio" is located near the office of the principal and from this studio programs are sent to all rooms in the school. By this device, the time usually consumed in assembling the students is saved. Vocal and instrumental music, recitations, dialogues, and special educational talks are broadcast by use of the automatic phonograph, or orchestra. The radio feature permits the teachers and pupils to take advantage of the music appreciation, art, and history lessons available over the national hook-ups. A number of radio programs of national importance, including the recent address of President Hoover to South American countries and the funeral services for President Taft, were heard by pupils of this school.

Current events of interest to the pupils are sent to all the classrooms as a part of the morning program and the teachers have made arrangements so that in case of a fire instructions may be given to all of the students simultaneously.

OUR WEEKLY CHURCH CHAT

"The fate of those who reject the Gospel."

It is God's invariable rule of proceeding to deal with His creatures, in some measure, as they deal with Him. Hence we are told that, with the upright, He will show Himself upright; with the merciful, He will show Himself merciful; and with froward, He will show Himself froward. When, therefore, persons come to Him with a pretended desire to know their duty, but in reality, with a view to find some excuse or justification for their errors and sins, He will suffer them, as a punishment to find something which will harden them in their wickedness. Thus He will suffer the obstinate believer in universal salvation, to deceive himself with delusive dreams, till he wakes in torments. He will suffer the proud, self-righteous opposer of His gospel, to trust in his moral duties, till it is too late to discover his mistake. He will suffer the self-deceived hypocrite to please himself with his false hopes of heaven, till he finds the door forever shut against him. All these persons did, in effect, wish to be deceived; they hated the light, shut their eyes, and would not come to it; they leaned to their understandings, instead of trusting to the Lord; they never prayed to him to keep them from self-deception and from false paths; they chose to believe Satan rather than God, and therefore are justly left to feel the effects of it. The Bible is God's inspired word. Without the Bible, the world's history is incomplete. Without it, nothing would be known of a Saviour. It presents Him to us as our Saviour, "the way the truth and the life." The Bible reveals God's will to mankind. It recognizes the right of human will, that power by which we can look into the face of God and say, "I will or I will not." God's plan of salvation has been revealed to us in the Bible and we can accept it or reject it. There is blood enough in the fountain opened for the unclean to save all the world, but there is not enough to save the unwilling.

Sunday morning in the sermon, "A VISION OF HIS FACE" we hope to help you become more obedient to God and His Son Jesus Christ. Sunday night, in our sermon, "WHY MEN ARE LOST" we will be dealing with some important questions. Perhaps these sermons can help you, come study with us. W. E. Ferrell, minister First Christian church, Clarendon, Texas.

A & M College To Show Ranch Exhibit At Dallas Fair

Value of Grain Sorghums in Feed Value Will Be Explained

Stories of success and records of experimentation achievement in Texas farming and ranching will feature A & M College of Texas exhibit at the State Fair of Texas at Dallas this fall. The exhibit will include booths showing the value of feeding surplus feed to beef cattle, the importance of the poultry flock to the farm home, the utility and progress of grain sorghum growing, how balanced ranching increases ranch incomes, and the contrast between good and bad management of a once timbered farm in East Texas. The exhibit was designed by an Extension Service committee and is in charge of D. L. Weddington, chief clerk.

Data for the balanced ranch exhibit was supplied by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station from research figures from the Edwards Plateau where 20 per cent of the cattle, 90 per cent of the sheep, and 90 per cent of the goats of Texas are produced. It is brought out in the exhibit that where 36 cows and 124 sheep are grazed to the section of land the annual income is $606, whereas $1566 may be made a year a section by running 24 cows, 209 sheep and 98 goats a section.

In the land and forestry preservation booth, one half shows a successful East Texas farm that is terraced, with soil building crops raised in rotation, feed for livestock, and where the timber is marketed in a selective way with the young growth preserved and protected. The other half shows a run-down, one-cropped, gully-washed poverty stricken farm, which, if not reclaimed by better management will have to be abandoned because it will not support a family.

Figures from 468 poultry demonstration flocks supervised by county and home demonstration agents are arranged to show the monthly income from a 100-hen flock.

How the grain sorghums have increased in volume production since their introduction in Texas in 1890 until now more than sixty million bushels are produced annually, of which two-thirds are fed to Texas livestock, is the theme of an educational exhibit on this great feed crop of Texas.

A Mason county beef cattle feeding demonstration has been taken as the basis for the cattle feeding exhibit which shows how grown livestock furnish a lucrative market for home grown feeds.

The many friends of Mr. Hugh Brown will be glad to learn that he is to leave Adair hospital possibly today and that he is recovering nicely though slowly.

BRICE

We received a rain Saturday nite that actually broke the drought. The previous rains have only lasted a few days, but it is thought that this rain will last longer. The cotton was damaged to a great extent by the fast falling rain, by the high winds which accompanied it. Although it did damage the cotton it will be of great help to the winter pastures. There were several of the farms overflowed by the water which came from the brakes. Some of the roads are almost impassable.

Most all the cotton in Brice is ready to be gathered, but it seems impossible for the farmers to get pickers. There is considerably more cotton being made in this community than we thought there would be. It was once thought that the cotton picking season would be shorter in Brice this year than it has been in years, but unless we are able to get hands soon it will last as long as usual.

Mr. Payne made a business trip to Memphis Saturday and returned with three colored men to help gather his crop.

It is reported that Uncle Zack Aduddell is improving; while little Lamar Wood remains about the same. Mr. Darnell has been on the sick list this week and so has Mrs. Nell Aushburn and Marvin Jr. Aduddell.

Superintendent Election Will be Held Saturday

It will be recalled that a number of petitions were recently presented to the County Commissioners asking that a county superintendent of schools be elected or appointed.

Since the organization of the county, the party holding the office of County Judge has acted as an exofficio superintendent as the law provides. The law further provides that when a county has three thousand scholastics, the offices shall be automatically separated. The number is lacking in this respect though the number is less than twenty and it is possible that the offices would be separated the coming year.

The Commissioners have designated next Saturday, the 18th, as the time when the voters of Donley county shall determine whether they want a superintendent to look after the situation.

The minimum salary is sixteen hundred with three hundred dollars allowed for traveling expenses. Judging from reports coming in from the rural districts, the heaviest vote favoring the change will come from those sections.

Citizens Favor Two Officers For Night Work

In response to a call of the Mayor Wednesday, a number of citizens held a meeting in the Legion hall for the purpose of ascertaining the wishes of Clarendon people regarding the number of officers to be kept on the night force.

Following discussions of the subject by a number, a vote was taken which resulted in a unanimous approval of keeping two men on the job. Not only that, the citizens backed the Mayor in his suggestion that these officers be armed with shotguns and otherwise that law and order be maintained at all cost over the winter months.

In the remarks at this meeting, it was shown that Clarendon had less lawlessness during the employment of Messrs. Bill Robison and Guy Pierce on the night force than at any other period and far less than any other West Texas town.

The Mayor was emphatic in his statements that Clarendon would brook no interference from outside lawbreakers of any nature. He was just as emphatically informed that the citizens were back of him and Guy Pierce, newly elected sheriff assured the crowd that he and Robison could do the work.

A. S. Johnson and son Clifford of Hedley were Clarendon visitors today, Clifford bringing his father to the Leader office to advertise for his dog which is lost.

Pathfinders Will Entertain Other Clubs 24th

The Pathfinder club will be hostess to the members of the McDowell club, Les Beaux club, Mother's club, Home Demonstration club, 1926 Book club and the directors of the Little Theater at the woman's club room Oct. 24th at which time a reciprocity program will be rendered by representatives from each of the visiting clubs.

'Jasper Valley' and 'Athabaska Pass' Were Scene of Untold Hardships Years Ago

When not far from a century ago, Father Pierre De Smet, the genial Belgian missionary, journeyed over the Athabaska Pass to preach the gospel to the Indians of the great Oregon territory, he probably never thought for a moment that much of the mountain area which he admired so greatly would one day be set aside by the Canadian government of a later time as a people's playground. In our day a fat man can travel at ease over the mountains in a pullman, but De Smet knew nothing of such conveniences. He had to make the arduous journey either on foot or horseback, and during the month that he spent in the vicinity of Jasper, he fasted so that he could reduce his weight and thus move more effectively across the continental Divide. The picture that he presents of the Oregon missions and the Rocky Mountains can not be surpassed by those who want to understand what life in the great Pacific Northwest was like in the first part of the nineteenth century.

The story of Jasper and the Athabaska is the story of the Canadian West, but it is the story too of the American West, for over this pass journeyed many a pioneer who built a new home for himself in the Oregon country. As J. Monroe Thornton tells us, "Athabaska Pass was one of the first transcontinental gateways of North America—the first through which came any large number of white people. Through it passed pioneers to whom, in a large measure, we owe the foundation of civilization on the North American continent. Fortunate are we that something of their story has been preserved. How utterly strange that their difficult 'Height of Land' should become an alpine playground of today."

Jacques Cartier had landed 200 years before the wave of exploration beat against great mountain heights that rise from the western edge of the prairies. The men of that day could go no further, and they could only imagine what lay beyond those glittering peaks and glaciers. Men's fancies were set on fire by the discoveries of Cook and Gray, and of that Cancouver who gives his name to one of the best known American army posts as well as the island and the metropolis of British Columbia.

The fur trade appealed to the adventurous as much as the gold in California did to the miners of forty-eight and nine. By the year 1792, when the United States had hardly won its freedom, as many as twenty-one vessels, flying different flags, were ploughing the waters of the Pacific coast. The Russian American company, with headquarters at Sitka, was trying to gain control of all the northern trade.

The contest meanwhile for the control of the inland fur trade, from the Great Lakes to the Rockies, grew fiercer and fiercer. The Northwest company was stealing a march upon the Hudson Bay company, its great rival. In 1793, Sir Alexander McKenzie, one of the partners of the Northwest company, had fought his way to the Peace and Fraser rivers and from there down to placid waters of the Pacific. Other of his colleagues pushed south and west along the Saskatchewan river, establishing in so doing a line of trading posts.

These pioneers of course had their eye on the United States, for they thought it not impossible that explorers from the United States might come into the region and claim it as part of the republic whose capital was soon to rise on the banks of the Potomac.

Two men, Simon Fraser and David Thompson—in honor of each of whom a famous river has been named—were selected to enter this country, and it was their discoveries that kept the country north of the 49th parallel British territory. In 1805, Fraser travelled from Lake Athabaska up the Peace river. In 1807, he received letters urging him to explore the main Columbia river to the ocean. In the following year he undertook the perilous journey, and after terrific hardships he reached a river flowing from the northwest, which he named after his colleague, David Thompson.

A man of great ability, and with the gifts and urge of the explorer, David Thompson was kin to those who conquered our own West. He it was who in 1811 led the first party of white men across the Athabaska Pass. He was spurred on by reports which he had received of the formation of a new fur company to the south. This new concern was the Pacific Fur company, founded by John Jacob Astor, of New York. Astor had laid down an ambitious program. He dreamed of capturing the whole fur traffic from the Pacific to the Great Lakes, and then of building up a traffic with China by way of the Sandwich Islands, now the Hawaiian Islands. It was Astor's intention to plant a trading post at the mouth of the Columbia river. Before he launched his program, he suggested to the Northwest company that it cooperate with him, but that company refused, so Astor decided to travel by himself. He did, however, engage a number of Canadians, experienced in the fur trade. It was in 1810 that Astor's ship, the Tonquin—a name now of one of the wildest valleys in Jasper park—set forth on its long journey from New York. The craft was one of 300 tons, and carried a crew of thirty-one men and a number of passengers. Just as Tonquin was crawling along the remote coast of Patagonia, Thompson the interperid was setting out to find a new pass. After Thompson and his party had reached Prairie de la Vache, a short distance below the present town of Jasper, they left their horses and went on snow shoes with dogs up the Whirlpool Valley to the Athabaska Pass.

It was midwinter, and on January 10th Thompson wrote in his diary: "A day of snow and southerly gale of wind, the afternoon, the view now before us was an ascent of deep snow, in all appearance to the height of land between the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans. It was to me a most exhilarating sight, but to my uneducated men a dreadful sight, they had no scientific object in view, their feelings were of the place they were."

On January 18, Thompson and his men, after a multitude of adventures, reached the Big Bend of the Columbia, and there decided to stay the rest of the winter, and to build a canoe for the ascent of the Columbia the following spring. The Tonquin meanwhile arrived in April at the mouth of the Columbia, and had taken possession of this vast territory in the name of the United States. After some mishaps the tiny colony of Astoria was established, and when finally in July, 1811, Thompson arrived here, he found the flag of the United States flying over the fort at the mouth of the Columbia river, whose course he had followed from the mountains.

According to some, Thompson carried with him a letter from officials of the Northwest company, with a promise that the company would abandon their posts to the west of the mountains, on the stipulation that Astor would not encroach upon the preserves of the Northwest company on the east side. However this may be, Thompson was well received, and soon afterwards wended his way back to the bend in the Columbia river, where he was met early in September by William Henry, who had crossed the Athabaska Pass with supplies. The following year Thompson made his last trip over the mountains, and then spent the last years of life in retirement with his family in eastern Canada. Henry's camp stood on the shore of the Athabaska, on a rocky hill, near the present town of Jasper, and was the first "Henry House" or "Old Fort" to which many other travelers refer.

Other voyageurs crossed the pass later. Among these was a Gabriel Franchere, a French Canadian youth with a good education from Montreal. He had applied for a position as a clerk with the Astor expedition, and today kept a diary on that expedition and today ranks as one of the valuable historical documents for the light it throws on the men and the events of the period.

After the Northwest company had taken over Astoria, Franchere severed his relations with the understanding, and in April, 1814, with several companions, he left Astoria, to return overland by the Columbia river and the Athabaska Pass. On May 14 the party reached the Committee's Punch Bowl, a small lake which lies at the center of this historic pass. Soon afterwards the party reached Old Fort Hill, and Franchere, who had the eye of the poet, remarks in his diary: "Fifty there is nobody there to enjoy these rural beauties and to praise, while admiring them, the Author of Nature." Thousands of visitors to the park annually ride their ponies up to the place, the view from which so aroused the admiration of young Franchere.

Then followed many a year when the pass was used by the fur brigades. Twice a year, these columns and the voyageurs who accompanied them, traveled over Athabaska Pass. On the westward journey from Edmonton to Jasper, the trip was made in summer on horseback, and in winter with dog team and snow shoes. When the Whirlpool river was reached, the horses were usually sent back, and the rest of the trip to the Boat Encampment, at the Big Bend of the Columbia river, was made on foot.

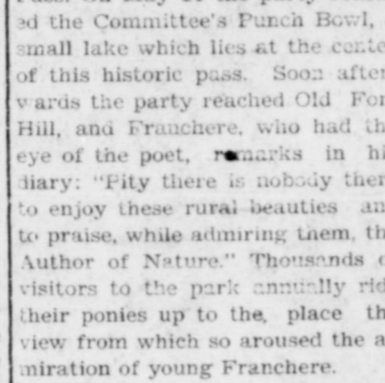

On the return trip, canoes were usually taken from what is now Jasper to Lake St. Anne. The officers of the company, educated Englishmen or Scotchmen, for the most part usually went at the head of the brigade, men eager to win distinction, wealth or fame in the new world. Says our own Washington Irving of them: "As leaders they were probably unsurpassed, and in the French Canadian voyageur they found their readiest assistants." Later expeditions across the pass included scientists, explorers, missionaries and settlers bound for the great Oregon country. About the year 1826, travelers bound for the Pacific began to follow a new pass, the Yellowhead, and it is over this route that the railway now passes. The gold discoveries in 1860 brought many travelers from the east in search of El Dorado and then in 1871, came the quest for a pass suitable for a railway. British Columbia had entered the Confederation and one of the conditions of the agreement was that a transcontinental railway should be begun within two years. Engineers surveyed the Athabaska as well as passes to the south, but the decision finally was made to put the Canadian Pacific through the mountains further south.

Jasper Valley received its first permanent settler close to the end of the nineteenth century. His name was James Swift, and he built his long home near the base of Mount Pyramid, and each year brought in his stock from Edmonton over a trail 235 miles long. In 1909 Canada decided another transcontinental line was necessary, and after a study of routes the engineers decided on the famous Athabaska and Yellowhead pass routes. It was only a few years ago that the second connection with the Pacific was made, both at Prince Rupert and Vancouver, and this line, the Canadian National, is headed by a former American railway man, Henry Thornton.

In 1909, the Canadian government took the initial steps to set

Chinese Elm Grow Seven Feet From Seed
If there is any doubt about the rapid growth of Chinese elm, the doubter should visit the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Arnold near the Junior High School building. Seed blown from the three-year-old trees some fifteen or more feet in height in May, found lodgement in a flower bed. These seed soon came up and some of them are now more than seven feet in height.

The Chinese elm is immune from the many insects that infest the locust family and are rapidly coming into favor as shade trees in the Panhandle. The growth and beauty of the foliage and trunk at once win them favor over many other varieties.

Young Couple Pays Visit to Leader Force

The Leader office was favored with a visit from Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Howard Monday. Young couple just starting out, full of life, plain practical sensible folks of the kind that makes the world go round. They were shown how a paper is made and they left their subscription with us. Thank you, and we are expecting you back again.

Strawberries Are Grown in McDowell Home

One of the many conveniences included in the building plans of the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McDowell on College Heights this past summer, was that of a sun flower parlor. At this time Mrs. McDowell is growing tomatoes and pepper in the flower beds. Not only is she supplying her table with choice vegetables, but she also has a strawberry bed in the flower parlor.

The berry plants show every evidence of thriving under the unique arrangement and the owner will no doubt be rewarded many times over through the winter. The variety being grown is of the ever bearing Mastodons well known for their excellent flavor and productivity locally.

ASHTOLA SCHOOL NEWS

The Ashtola school people are very sorry if the Leader readers were disappointed because of the failure of the usual news item to appear, and it is hoped that it will not re-occur soon. Many people over the county are interested in the Ashtola school and community as manifested by the report received when the usual news item failed to appear. The expression of delight coming from Ashtola's many friends in Ashtola's attempts to enlarge and improve the school is reciprocated by good wishes to all in the county that they all may have the very best school that it is possible to have. Every far seeing person of today is glad to see any community provide for the education of its youth, and every individual should be proud of the accomplishments of his neighbor's children as well as those of his own.

Business has for the past several months been passing through a very critical time. Millions of people in all of the great commercial countries of the world are without employment. If one were to make investigations as to the kind of people that make up this vast army of many millions, it is most likely that he would be astonished to find that a very large per cent comes from the uneducated ranks. Government authorities were astonished to find that thousands of brilliant, stalwart lads that registered for service were unable to write their own names. Just what is the significance of such facts? What relation does this have to education? The answer is that we are living in a day of the keenest of competition—as in the days of yore, a survival of the fittest. When business finds that its cost is too much for its income, one of the first things done is to dismiss some of its help, and the least fit is the one to suffer. Talks with pioneer oil field workers reveal the fact that the oil game has reached such a stage that a man from headquarters, men who have never handled a machine, come into the fields to tell them how the work should be done, and that the day is near when the unlearned worker will be no longer wanted. A recent exposition in Tulsa, Okla. revealed the fact that oil operators of a few years back who scoffed at the idea of science applied to the oil industry are today going to science for the solution of many of its problems.

Formerly, people had the idea that they should educate their children so they would not have to work. We can see today that it is the uneducated that make up the greater part of non-working group, not because they choose not to work, but because they do not fit. Today people are realizing that their children must be educated so that they may work, not so they can avoid work.

With these facts becoming ever more evident year after year, who could fail to take an interest in schools when it means so much to ones own child? That is the reason why the people of Ashtola, and of all other communities of the county, should be and are vitally concerned in their schools. There are few communities in Texas that are prouder of their school than is the Ashtola community. It is true that the attendance is not what it will be later, but this is an unusual year, and many have been forced to do what they would not have done in an ordinary year. The school is eager to see everyone that is out return, and the faculty will do their utmost for them when they do return.

Faculty, students, and parents are proud of the unusual interest shown by the students this year, and the articles written by the students that appear in this item are manifestations of such interest. The best written work is given publication each week, and each student strives to make his article the best. In this item appears several of such articles and other news of interest which follows:

The seventh grade students are doing some splendid work. The following is an article written in history:

I do not think the Indians were treated right, for they loved their land just as we love it now. If Columbus had never sailed we would be somewhere else perhaps, but the Indians would be happy in this land of freedom. If we had never taken the new world, there would be no settlements, but just plain open country. There would be vicious animals and buffaloes wandering about.

The Indians are very scattered now over the western part of the United States. Oklahoma has a large number of Indians. Some day they are going to form a colony of their own perhaps.

In the early days, they did have many bad massacres, but they wanted their rights just as we would if some one tried to take the land away from us.

Arline Bellamy.

Some interesting papers are being written in eight grade English. One of them follows:

The Little Puppy that Liked to Run Off.

Once there was a little dog who liked to run off. His mother did not like for him to run away; neither did Janie, its little mistress.

One day Janie came out and said, "Are you going to run off?" The little dog went hopping across the yard. The mother dog barked at it as to tell it to come back. Janie ran and got it.

"Little dog", said Janie, "You will get killed." The little dog did not care.

The puppy barked for her to turn him loose. Janie said, "No, I'll just go put you in the cellar so you can not get out."

The mother dog ran after her trying to get her not to put the puppy in the cellar. Janie said, "Little dog, are you going to stay at home?"

He barked as if to say "Yes."

Doyce Graham.

The Ashtola P.-T. A. met in regular session on Thursday afternoon with the president in charge. The teachers gave reports on the membership drive; Miss Maxwell led with twelve paid members. A committee was appointed by the president to investigate the price of pictures which are to be given as awards in the membership drive. Ways for raising money were discussed.

The third grade pupils are very interested in letter writing. One afternoon their teacher could not go to school and the pupils gave her a letter shower. Here is one of them:

Ashtola, Texas
October 9, 1930.

Dear Miss Maxwell:

How are you getting along? I like you for a teacher. You make our lessons easy for us. I like you better all the time.

Navajo Sand Painting Called Oldest Of Arts

Laura A. Armer Reproduces Indian Symbols for Rockefeller Museum

SANTA FE, N. M.—A collection of reproductions of the sacred sand paintings of the Navajo Indians is being executed by Laura A. Armer of Berkeley, Calif., for the Rockefeller Museum at Santa Fe, N. M. The museum, which will open this fall, has as its objective the study of the current work of the Navajo tribe, and although sand paintings is one of the most ancient arts, its practice is still adhered to in present-day ceremonials.

Certain ancient races were imbued with the inspiration of art to a remarkable degree. They expressed their belief about man's destiny and his relation to so-called natural powers through artistic symbols. Their beliefs became crystallized in ritualistic dances, drawings and carvings.

For many years the Navajo tribe has closely guarded its sand paintings, and Mrs. Armer has the distinction of being the first white woman ever permitted to watch one of these paintings made with the additional privilege of photographing it. That was in 1925, and since that time she has spent a part of each year in a camp, with a Navajo interpreter, making notes on the symbolism of the paintings and recording the various chants.

Each sand painting represents a chant; each chant has its own group of paintings. How many there are, it is difficult to ascertain on account of the secretiveness of the Indian; he imparts his knowledge, inch by inch, through the confidence he has placed in Mrs. Armer's reverence for the sanctity of his art.

Mrs. Armer has been working steadily for seven years in the accumulation of the chants, gaining her knowledge through direct reports of the Smithsonian Institution.

The sand painting of the Navajo Indians is an art that approaches perfection in its fineness of work, in its delicacy, in line and accuracy of detail, expressed in the richly patterned motifs of ritualized symbolism. It is a form of painting believed to be as old as the human race, and to be, in fact, the oldest of all the arts.

In place of a brush, the sand painter takes pinches of red, yellow, white and brown sand, sometimes rock which he grinds, and charcoal for black, between the thumb and first and second finger of his right hand; this he pours in regular symbolical designs, forming his picture on the canvas of light tan sand, which is evenly spread on the ground. The duration of the painting is of brief span, as it is made, after the ceremonial has been performed.

The Navajo Indians are said to be the best sand painters in the world. The origin of this form of art is lost, but it remains in what is probably the same form as when it was first practiced, possibly in the deserts of Asia.

Mrs. Armer, in describing the process of the first sand painting which was made for her says: "The shaman brought with him charcoal and white and yellow sandstone in lumps. One of his assistants was dispatched to a cliff some two miles away to get red sandstone. The wind-blown sand from the dunes outside of Oraibi was then brought in and spread evenly about three inches deep on the floor over a space 10 feet square. It was then carefully smoothed down in place by means of a specially curved stick which the shaman brought with him.

"In the actual painting, the work done was from the center, outward, and as each assistant moved backward the sand on which he had knelt was smoothed by the stick of the shaman toward the outer edge of the sand bed. Each line drawn was marvelously clear and exact, the mass coloring evenly applied, each bit of heavy color being bordered by a lighter one."

The figures used are all symbolical; each is as fixed in line as the great pyramid. Successive shamans for centuries have been drawing these same figures in the same colors in this same way. At least 10 years of apprenticeship is the schooling each aspirant must undergo.

The Electric Man Presents His Low-Cost Burglary Insurance

"Police records show that sufficiently lighted houses rarely suffer depredations from prowlers or thieves. For this reason, many people make it a practice to leave lights burning when they spend a part of the evening away from home. On their return, they feel secure in the knowledge that their possessions have been safe in the keeping of protective lighting.

"Normal household necessities utilize the first two steps, so with the new Home Comfort rate, this burglary insurance is even more economical, for it is billed on the low rate of 4c per kilowatt-hour—3c where service is also used for heating or cooking.

"The next time you spend an evening out—leave lights burning in one or two of your rooms, Notice the sense of security with which you enter your home—then check your light bill. You will be surprised at the extreme economy of this efficient Burglary Insurance. Watch for me next week, I'll have some more ideas for you."

Temple of Truth
By the Apostle

The awful truth it out. The Queen of Belgium cannot hold up her proud head in public. Shame has fallen upon the royal household. The truth at last has leaked out from Brussels that King Albert dunks his bread in his coffee.

Why such a mess? The Apostle has been a constant bread dunker for years. He dunks it at home, abroad and at the Rotary club. That's alright King, keep on dunking, they will get used to it sometime.

Well, well. A perfectly fine lady writes the Apostle intimating that he is all wrong about this infantile paralysis. She seems to think that he should have had nothing to say about the matter. Perhaps not. Perhaps he is all wrong, always was and always will be wrong.

But! On the very same day that the above letter was ushered into the Sanctum Sanctorium of Holy of Holies, otherwise the Temple of Truth, there also arrived three letters from perfectly good mothers who gave a history of each of their experiences. It brought sadness—it brought tears.

And too, the Apostle had in mind the home just west of town made sad recently, and the home near Groom made just as sad the past week because of the ravages of this dread disease. Our little folks—the helpless humanity that looks to you and me for protection—is entitled to the protection of modern science. Medical science can do little more than guard against further infection, and those of you who think the Apostle is unduly alarmed, are evidently unacquainted with actual conditions.

Often the Apostle took his little fellows to school. At the same time he saw a devoted mother bring to the same school a sweet little girl crippled and maimed for life, and who passed away a short time ago. She was a victim of infantile paralysis at a very early age.

Pretty, bright and oh! how she tried to fill a place in life. Studious and while a constant care upon the hearts of her parents, it was a labor of love and both of them spared neither time nor money to bring her comfort and, if possible, relief from her affliction.

There is another little fellow who hobbles on the street occasionally. He is now at Dallas. The Apostle has watched a painstaking mother lead him along by the hand. Brave soldier? Sure he is. There never was a more manful fight made for a chance to enjoy a normal life than this little one is making right now.

Infantile paralysis made a cripple of this bright little fellow for all his life. The money that has spent in his behalf meant nothing. The care and attention and anxious moments of relatives means nothing. He is a cripple and all that money and loving care can do is being done, but that brave little soldier will be forced to fight a constant battle throughout his life. He's better now since treatment was begun, but life has been robbed of many pleasures.

The warning on the front page of the Leader last week was not intended to criticize anyone. It was not meant to unduly arouse anyone to alarm, but with the two pictures above ever in the mind of the Apostle, he sounded the warning, has no apology to offer and will continue to enter a protest in behalf of helpless humanity at any time and place.

If there is no such thing as protection against infections and contagious diseases, doctors are a bunch of fakirs, medical laws are a joke, civilization a myth and the whole world exists merely as a theory.

Maybe the Apostle is all wet. Maybe he is as ignorant as some believe. Perhaps he should talk about something that he knows more about. Well, we have got to get away from this sadness somehow, so here goes our opinion of Adam and Eve.

In the beginning God created Adam and Eve. Adam was the only guy hanging around, walked cocky as a Jap and bossed the whole works while hiding his face behind a flock of whisks. Adam was given power to reason and Eve was a demure miss chock full of intuition and sweet impulses.

Crops were fine that year, Canadian thistle and cocklebur had not been invented and Adam put in most of his time tuning up the famly jitney while eve spent a lot of her time window shopping because she was getting tired of the same old duds she started out with.

Satan had gotten in hand and had been kicked out the year before and Adam and Eve were warn ed not to eat any apples because doctors in those days were few and far between and the roads about like what Donley county has now. If Adam went after a doctor for Eve, she might have grandchildren before he could get back.

Well Satan wasn't satisfied with-out starting trouble just like some folks are in this age, and he found Adam under his jitney working on his differential and too busy to talk about apples or anything else. Seeing that he could get nowhere with old man Adam, he picked a conversation out of Eve.

Soon after Satan quit the flats, Eve called Adam and he crawled out from under the Jitney all hot and bothered and walked out to where she could hand him a nice juicy apple. They both filled up on apples and such a night! Such a night!

After court closed Monday, they found the earth had been cursed with cockleburs, thistle, crabgrass and every other old thing, all to keep Adam out of devilmont on account of the apple deal.

Adam's face covered up with a flock of hair kept Eve in the dark when she questioned him as to his whereabouts the night before, but her face was open, innocent and when she "spilled the beans" he could tell all about it. Adam con-tinued to rule the roost but Eve established the code of morals that has lasted down the ages.

Adam and his male followers con-tinued to rule until whisker surges-ons started a new wrinkle to give the barbers a drag and men began to appear with a slick face. Whether they did this to attract flappers, or for purely sanitary reasons as advocated by the whisker surgeons, it is not known to this day.

Anyhow, after man shed his whiskers, the Eve delegation began to assert their rights, and no longer had any respect for the false impression of whisker rule under which they had lived for centuries.

They began to vote, finally took up smoking and cussing in some instances where they deemed it necessary to make a bluff stand up, and now they are wearing men's pants and running for office. All of which goes to prove present day man can't put it over like old Adam did.

Adam's crowd sits around like a bevy of old maids, do all the gossiping, refuse to fist fight, and attend banquets where they do nothing but "shoot the bull" and eat mayonaise dressing off a lettuce leaf and think they have been somewhere.

Old Gravel Pit Is Turned Into Sunken Garden

Fascinating Sight Is Part of Park Development in San Antonio

"Now, old gravel pit, don't you cry—you'll be a beauty spot by and by!"

Doubtless such a song was never sung, for gravel pits do not usually inspire poets or songsters, yet it might have been a prophetic theme for one, for just such a place here has turned out to be a favorite setting for those who paint either with words or with color.

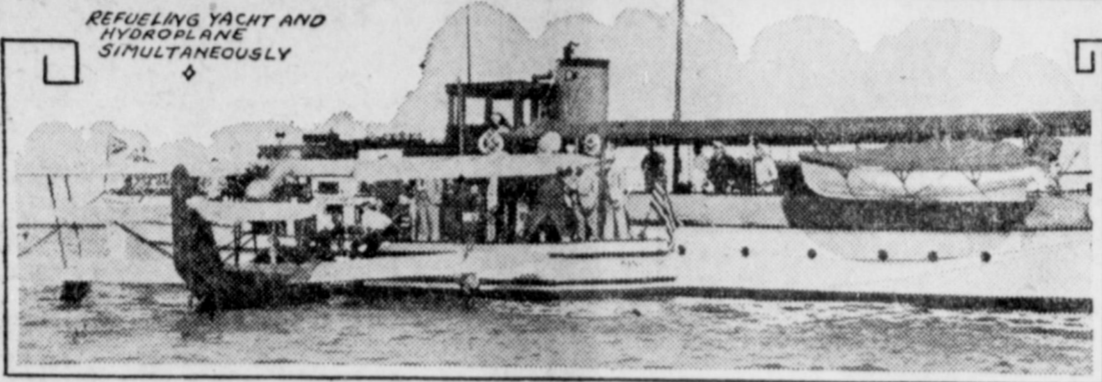

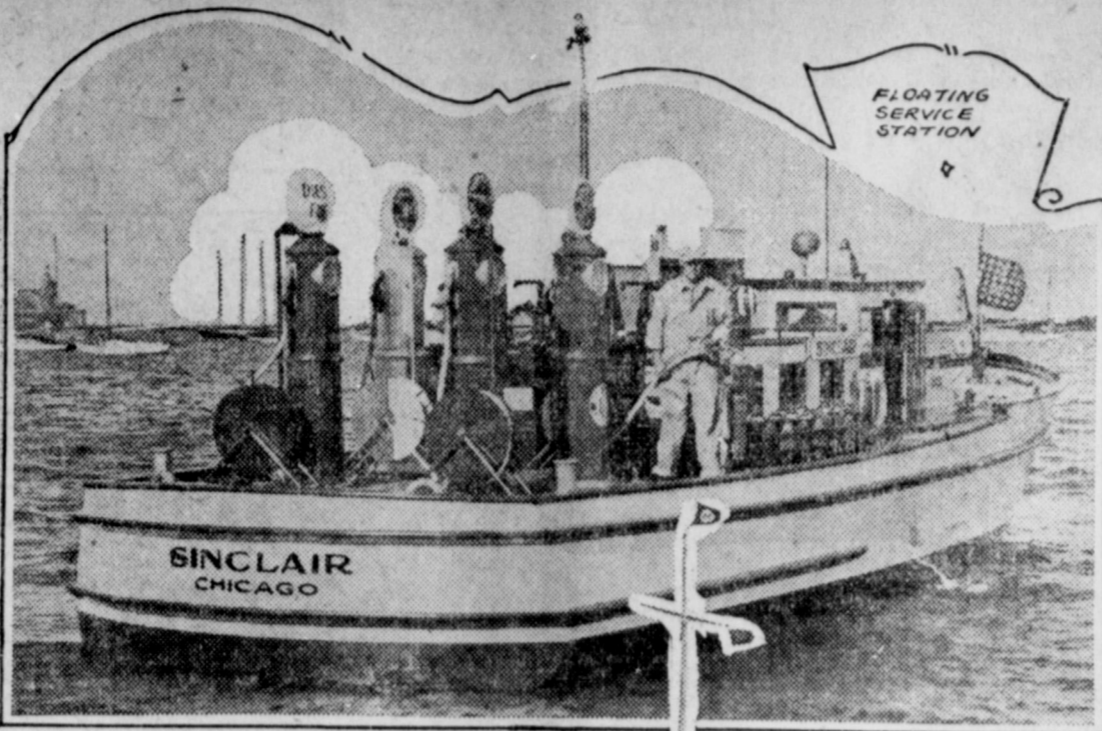

San Antonio's picturesque sunken garden near Brackenridge Park, though the best-known product of the old gravel pits, is by no means the only one. Near by on part of

Floating Service Station Supplies Yachts and Planes

REFUELING YACHT AND HYDROPLANE SIMULTANEOUSLY

CHICAGO—Increased interest in yachting and power boating on the Great Lakes has just been signaled by Chicago's first "floating service station," a supply boat commissioned by the Sinclair Refining Company of which Sheldon Clark, prominent sportsman and ex-Commander of the Chicago Yacht Club, is vice president.

The vessel rests at anchor in the Chicago harbor off Grant Park, making daily rounds of the various harbors along the lake front and offering full service to yachts and power boats, as well as hydroplanes. It carries regular gasoline, Diesel fuel, Sinclair motor oils, kerosene, a supply of ice, and virtually every commodity used on yachts and power boats.

The ship, which was built by the Burger Boat Co., of Manitowish, Wis., is driven by a four-cylinder Diesel engine of 70 horsepower. It carries 5,000 gallons of gasoline, kerosene, and Diesel fuel, and 500 gallons of lubricating oil.

does not—cannot—appreciate the beauty of the gravel pits' transformation until one gets the first breath-taking glimpse of the sunken garden. One thinks of stori ed fairylands as, from the top of a 40 foot cliff around a large part of the garden, one feasts one's eyes upon its colorful depths. Night-time in spring or summer is the best time for a view of the garden.

A hundred lights blink down there, half concealed in vines or plants rearing themselves by the edges of placid pools, the water itself partly hidden by a dark green coverlet of lily pads. Rustic walks and bridges wind around down there and the picture below seems far away, yet the laughter of leisurely exploring sight seers is wafted up with the fragrance of the garden's blossoms. The gurgling sound of a woodland brook comes up, too, carrying no suggestion of an artificial water supply.

One lifts one's eyes across the sylvan depths to the thatched roofed structure that completes the Japanese-like picture. Beneath it real-

Glad to Speak A Good Word For Argotane

ANOTHER WOMAN TELLS OF AID NEW TREATMENT, ARGOTANE IS GIVING HER HUSBAND.

"My husband had a severe case of stomach trouble and kidney trouble and seemed to only get worse all the time until he began to take Argotane, said Mrs. J. M. Hooser, wife of a well known Ardmore man, who resides at 112 Mill St., in a conversation recently.

"This stomach and kidney trouble of his," continued Mrs. Hooser, "kept him feeling badly all the time. He did not have any appetite at all and what little he did eat seemed to do him a great deal of harm. He lacked energy and strength, tired easily and was just in a generally rundown condition. He was nervous and it seemed he could never get a good night's rest. Then we read about Argotane and he decided to give it a trial.

"Well the quickest way to tell you of the good is; that his appetite is now good. He eats anything he wants and all he wants of it. He sleeps well and has gained in weight since he started on the treatment. His stomach does not seem to bother at all any more. I the last, completing a long pass and threatening to score just as the referee's whistle blew to end the contest.

Shamrock's lone touchdown was made in the first quarter, following an exchange of punts. After the Irish backs had pushed the ball down to the field of scoring distance, Bland completed a pass to Tarbet for the score. Bland kicked the extra point.

Clarendon also scored in the first quarter, when Reid slipped through the Irish line on a criss cross play for a touchdown. Baird failed to kick the extra point. Clarendon also scored in the second and third quarters.

The Irish defeat was the fourth straight victory for the Bronchos and gives them an almost unbeatable chance at the district title.

The starting line-ups of the two squads was as follows:

Shamrock	Position	Clarendon
Grady	Center	Cornelius
Chance	Right guard	Behrens
Kelly	Right tackle	Langford
Tarbet	Right end	Reid
Bland	Quarter	Bourland
Bumpers	Right half	Baird
O'Gorman	Fullback	Nichols

Substitutions: Shamrock, Cain for Chance, Cain for Watson; Clarendon, Hudson for Whitlock, Johnson for Cornelius, Andis for Baird.

Officials: Hopkins, referee; G. Close, head linesman; F. A. K. George and Noble, timekeepers."

SOCIETY

MRS. J. T. SIMS, JR.
HONORED

An outstanding event in the social life of Clarendon during the past week was the reception given by Mrs. J. T. Sims, Sr. in the spacious Sims home for Mrs. J. T. Sims, Jr. on Thursday afternoon from three to six.

In the house party assisting the hostess, were Mesdames O. T. Smith, G. B. Bagby, James Trent, Chas. Bugbee, Will Word, J. H. McMurtry, James H. Morris, Louie Merrill, J. T. Patman, W. H. Patrick, Sam Dyer, Annie Hall, Ode Caraway, W. H. Martin, M. E. Bell, Clinton Henry of Paloduro, Allen Beville, Jr. of Amarillo and Miss Mildred Martin.

In the receiving line were the hostess, Mrs. J. T. Sims, Sr. the bride, Mrs. J. T. Sims, Jr. and the bride's mother, Mrs. J. B. Baird and during the afternoon they greeted about eighty five guests.

The guest rooms were lovely in a color scheme of orchid and pink which was carried out in a profusion of bowls of cut flowers. The reception hall was charming in its oriental suggestion. The dining room was most attractive with its softly shaded pink candles in silver candle sticks its riot of flowers, its table with lace over pink satin, center piece of pink roses, silver service, and hand painted china.

A delicious salad course was served with beautifully decorated individual cakes and mints and hot tea and coffee.

The Sims home which is known for its hospitality opened wide its doors to the large number of friends who crowded the rooms on this occasion to do honor to the only son's bride. Misses Fannie Florence and Nettie Sims who teach at Pampa drove over in time to add their greeting to the guests.

PATHFINDER CLUB MEETING

Mrs. W. B. Sims and Mrs. Tom Goldston entertained the Pathfinder club Friday afternoon at the woman's club room.

"The romance of the skies" was the theme for the program which was led by Mrs. Sam Lowe. She was assisted by Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Mrs. James Trent and Miss Steagall.

Lovely refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

LELIA LAKE H. D. CLUB

Lelia Lake Home Demonstration club met with Mrs. W. V. McCauley on Tuesday afternoon with 9 members present. Miss Butterfill gave demonstration on making jelly conserve and marmalade.

A delicious refreshment was served to Mesdames Guy Taylor, J. A. Thompson, S. R. Tomlinson, J. A. Turner, Mose Cunningham, Will Kennedy, O. L. Lewis and Van Knox. Visitor for the afternoon Mrs. Tomlinson of Ft. Worth.

MOTHERS S. S. CLASS

The members of the Mothers' Class of the Baptist church spent a pleasant and profitable day Tuesday of last week quilting their "Friendship" quilt; the blocks having been pieced by the various members of the class.

At noon a bountiful lunch was enjoyed, each attendant having brought a dish.

Mrs. W. A. McMillion was hostess on this occasion to Mesdames J. H. Reeves, M. B. Halle, N. C. Simpson, D. L. McClellan, F. A. Shoffitt, J. R. Leathers, B. R. Crabtree, G. L. Doshier, W. B. Holtzclaw, J. L. Allison and the teacher, Mrs. W. T. Lowe.

MRS. LOYD STALLINGS ENTERTAINS CLASS

The members of the Belle Bennett Circle of the Methodist church were entertained in the home of Mrs. Loyd Stallings Wednesday afternoon, thirteen being present.

Mrs. B. C. Antrobus was leader assisted by Mrs. C. E. Miller and Mrs. C. W. Gallaway. Mrs. Harlan B. Naylor discussed a chapter from the "Life of Belle Bennett."

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the meeting.

GOOD WILL CLUB

Mrs. Melvin Cook entertained the members of the Good Will club at her home Monday afternoon honoring Mrs. Chas. F. Carlson. The guest rooms were made more beautiful with yard flower decorations.

In addition to contest games and other amusements, Miss Nova gave a reading and a piano solo, after which the hostess served a delicious salad course to the large number present.

Those present included the honoree, Mrs. Chas. F. Carlson, Mesdames Alvin Seavers, Reeves, Cecil Longey, J. E. Mongole, L. M. Bones R. Y. King, E. D. Blanton, L. D. Carlile, Beach, Will Johnson, A. O. Yates, Blanche Odom, Don Martin, H. J. Shoffitt, Otis Naylor, Cy

Johnson, Fred Russell, W. C. McDonald, G. F. Keener. Misses Delia Barnes, Mable Mongole, Nova Cook, Lucile Yates, and the hostess, Mrs. Melvin Cook

1930 BOOK CLUB

Mrs. Clarence E. Whitlock entertained the members of the Club Monday afternoon honoring Mrs. Carl Tyree. Cut flowers and pot plants in profusion were used in a decorative scheme that was most beautiful.

As a token of their appreciation of beautiful friendships, Mrs. Carl Tyree was presented a beautiful gift from the members of the club. A most delicious refreshment course was served the honoree, Mrs. Carl Tyree, and to Mesdames Vada Carpenter, Joe Cannon, Geo. Garrison, C. W. Gallaway, Ralph Becker, Ernest Hunt, Harve Miller, Marvin Land, Ray Couch, Clarence Whitlock.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The circles of the Missionary society of the Methodist church met in the following homes Wednesday afternoon Oct. 8th: Circle No. 1 met at the home of Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. T. E. Trostle as hostess, Mrs. E. Price leader, those assisting on program were Mesdames W. M. Murrell Blanch Odem, J. G. Dillard, C. A. Burton.

Circle No. 3 met in the home of Mrs. R. Y. King, 12 members and 2 visitors present. Mrs. Weidman led devotional and Mrs. Dave Johnson was leader of program.

LES BEAUX ARTS CLUB

The Beaux Arts club met Saturday afternoon at home of Mrs. T. H. Ellis. In spite of rain, quite a number of the members were present. Among subjects discussed during the business session was that of the flower show to be given Oct. 18th. This will be held at the club rooms next Saturday afternoon between the hours of one and six, and it is hoped that all ladies having flowers will bring them at that time for exhibit. Money prizes and ribbons will be bestowed on winners of the exhibit by competent judges chosen from persons outside the club.

After business matters were disposed of, an interesting program concerning Venetian Painters of the Renaissance, particularly Bellini and Giorgione, was enjoyed, following which refreshments were served by the hostess. The meeting then adjourned to convene again on Nov. 8th.
