New Chevrolet Models Are Viewed Here Saturday

Large Enthusiastic Crowd is Eager to See Latest Cars of Popular Make

The big show room of the Clarendon Motor Company was crowded Saturday with interested spectators bent upon seeing the latest designs of the popular Chevrolet, the first time to be shown here.

The new 1931 models also carry a new low price never before known to the auto world. These price reductions apply to all models as will be quoted in the big Chevrolet advertisement in this issue of the Leader.

Mr. Kemp is more pleased with the new cars and especially so since they have met with the popular approval of the buying public. The new stream line bodies attracted attention instantly and the car as a whole is a decided improvement over the older models.

E. A. Blatchley Rehearing is Granted Tuesday

Upon a motion of his attorney, E. A. Blatchley, given a five year sentence this term of the district court on a pandering charge, was granted a rehearing and released on bond.

Blatchley was formerly manager of the Antro hotel and is said that the basis for the charge originated there upon which a conviction was secured.

Negro Women Are Charged With Bootlegging

Saturday afternoon deputy sheriffs C. M. Peabody and Guy Pierce made an investigation of the Bodie Wells home in the colored section of the city and arrested Bertha Wells and another negro woman.

According to the officers, Bertha took a sack of bottle goods out and broke them. Upon looking over the remains, the officers discovered an unbroken pint that is said to be intoxicating.

Both women were released on bonds of five hundred each to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Eby Stocking is Returning to Regain Health

After a sojourn of some fifteen months in Portuguese West Africa, Eby Stocking is again on his way home to West Texas to recuperate his health, he having fallen a victim of malarial poisoning.

His duties were to make a geological survey on and near the coast line from Angola south for a distance of about two hundred miles for the Sinclair oil corporation.

A cablegram to his mother here, Mrs. J. D. Stocking, was the first that was known of his intention of returning at this or of the condition of his health since he did not wish to cause her alarm. A month's time will be required on the journey home.

As a student in the geological department of the State University, Mr. Stocking made a record that easily singled him out for the position of responsibility which he accepted soon after graduating.

Chiropractors Met Here All Day Sunday

Thirty-three members of the chiropractic profession met at the Antro hotel here Sunday in an all day session. A banquet of exceptional merit is said to have been served by the coffee shop of the hotel at 12:30.

The principal speaker was C. J. McCullum, D. C. of Lockney. He is also a member of the executive board of the State Association. P. L. Myers, D. C. of Wichita Falls also addressed the gathering.

The principal topic discussed at this meeting was a ruling of the Supreme Court wherein members of this profession may practice provided they do not claim to be doctors or surgeons.

Rev. Joe Smith Preaches Here Sunday

After an absence of some five or six years, Rev. Joe Smith, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church here, returned to preach Sunday and again visit old friends.

His congregation greeting him Sunday was in such numbers that extra seating accommodations were required. People from a distance came to hear him. Members of other churches sought to show him the high esteem in which he is held by lending their presence.

A social was arranged in his honor at the W. C. Stewart home Monday evening. Some sixty were present. Among the tributes paid this venerable minister, was the presentation of a hat, a duplication of kindness shown him at the same home six years ago.

Mrs. S. W. Lowe and Miss Elin Alken attended the Baptist convention at Amarillo Thursday.

Pottery And Art Will Be Shown Here Over Three Days

Exhibit Sponsored by Beaux Art Club Thursday, Friday And Saturday This Week

Those who admire the beautiful product of skilled hands will have an opportunity of seeing some of the best Japanese paintings and the most skilled products of the potter's art at the Club room from 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

No admission will be charged those viewing this wonderful exhibit that is said to be the most complete and artistic of its kind that has ever been brought to this section of the state.

The paintings represent a number of subjects in a wide range known only to the "Flowers Kingdom" and are well worth your time.

The average individual thinks of pottery of the better class only in foreign terms. The Majolica ware of southern Europe known and admired for centuries is subject to imitation and possibly improvement.

Amarillo Fat Stock Show is Organized Saturday

Electing Wilbur C. Hawk as president and P. C. Bennett, Potter county agent as secretary, a fat stock show became a reality at a meeting of leading business men of the town.

In addition to having a far second only to the state fair.

Unique Program Presented at Rotary Luncheon Friday

Musical Numbers - Speeches Add Zest to Gathering of Members And Visitors

Members and visitors of the Rotary club Friday placed their stamp of approval on a program method never before tried here, and originating with the Club Service committee whose day it became to furnish the entertainment.

Mrs. G. L. Boykin favored the Club with two beautifully rendered violin numbers, "Springtime in the Rockies" as her first and "Moonlight in Colorado" as an encore number. Rotary Ann, Rhoda Wiedman accompanied on the piano in a most skillful manner.

Slips of paper equal in number to the members present were distributed. Ten of those slips each bore a different subject. The member thus drew his subject for his "talk".

Those who drew subject numbers included Rotarians Oscar L. Jenkins, R. E. Paxson, R. E. Drennon, J. C. Estlack, Cecil Alexander, F. E. Chamberlain, D. R. Davis, J. W. Evans, President B. L. Jenkins and C. C. Powell.

Ten good talks were made ranging from the ridiculous to the sublime. The subjects covered included surprise, pleasure, achievement, jokes, calamities, ambition, ghost story, personal faults, favors and service.

Rotarian Frank Houston, district manager of the West Texas Utilities company with headquarters at Childress, was a visitor. Also Mr. Jack L. Jones of the Clarendon drug store.

Rotarian Dr. J. W. Evans was welcomed with enthusiasm after an absence of three weeks due to serious illness.

President Jenkins announced the Broncho-Cyclone football game, the meeting adjourning promptly at one o'clock that members might attend the game.

Large Crowd Is Present Father-Son Banquet Affair

Excellent Music is Rendered by Gus Stevenson's High School Orchestra

The Father-Son banquet held in the basement of the Christian church Monday night of this week began with a blare of trumpets, as it were, when the High School Orchestra struck up a popular air as the ladies of the church began placing the tempting turkey and accessories on the tables.

Dozens of faces were recognized as having been present on eight similar occasions. Boys who attended the first banquet were present Monday night with their sons. Neighbors exchanged pleasantries during the 'eats' while the orchestra played soft airs throughout the period.

Toastmaster Rev. Robt. S. McKee appeared in his best humor. To his left Dr. B. L. Jenkins occupied a seat of honor, he having acted as principal in starting the movement in Clarendon nine years ago.

J. C. Estlack as first speaker on the program with an assignment of a subject of "riding herd" compared the family home and its surroundings with the equipment of a ranch. He sought to explain the equal responsibility of father and son and stated that those sons whose fathers did not measure up to their standard, "should use better judgment in the selection of their parents next time."

Fred Bourland, representing the sons, spoke on the duties of both father and son and how and why both should endeavor to cooperate in the general scheme of life.

Dr. H. L. Wilder, president of the Father-Son movement, and who has since moved his base of operations to Pampa, could not forego the pleasures of the banquet and spoke in humorous vein much to the satisfaction of his listeners.

J. M. Crawford of Childress, speaker of the evening, in a reminiscent mood drew upon his experiences as a school teacher, salesman and church worker and brought a message of advice, suggestions and greetings.

Explaining at the outset that he could speak equally well on any subject since he was in no wise an after dinner speaker, delighted his audience with pertinent remarks well illustrated and greatly appreciated.

Dr. Jenkins spoke feelingly of the part he had played in boy life in Clarendon, mentioned his contest efforts among the pupils of the eighth grade the past week and read the prize winning thesis on the subject of "my dad."

W. D. Van Eaton, the oldest father present and who upon occasions of this kind breaks all records for having brought the most boys, though he has no sons of his own, was asked for an expression and contributed kindly advice to the fathers.

The largest family group represented was again divided between L. Ballew and J. C. Estlack, each having the usual five sons present as on similar occasions.

Kelly Chamberlain was accorded the honors of being the youngest father present.

Earl Ballew drew the honors of being the oldest son present with his father, modestly refusing to tell his age or make a speech. He was later elected to the governing board by the unanimous vote of his legion of friends.

J. B. Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Knight, aged two years and three months was accorded the honors of being the youngest son present winning over Master Frank Stallings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Stallings by a margin of three months.

O. C. Watson, Jr. was elected president for the next year. Sam Brisswell, Sr. vice president and E. S. Ballew, Joe Noble and W. C. Stewart were elected to the board of Directors.

The ladies announced that two hundred and six were served with lunch which is said to have been the largest number present on any occasion of this kind.

Memphis Cyclones Down Broncho Eleven 25 to 7 Friday

Bronchos Take Early Lead But Fail to Hold in Third Quarter

Last Friday the local Bronchos went down in defeat to the fast and versatile Memphis Cyclones. The game was tighter than the score shows it to have been. Early in the first quarter the Bronchos took the ball and marched down the field with Captain Nichols plunging the ball over for the first touchdown. Bourland, passed to Reid for the extra point.

The first quarter ended with the Bronchos leading 7 to 0. With the substitution of Pearson, diminutive quarter, for Flannery and Durrett for Jarvis the Memphis boys took the ball down the field with two passes for the first touchdown for the Cyclones.

Melear to Pearson was the winning combination. Kunkler failed to kick for the extra point. The half ended with Clarendon leading by one point.

The Memphis boys came back stronger than ever and scored two touchdowns in the third period and added one extra point. In the fourth period Memphis scored one more touchdown but failed to add the extra point. Clarendon threatened with the ball on the two yard line, but Nichols pass to Behrens was incomplete over the goal line.

Pearson's return of Andis' punts was the feature of the game. He returned everyone back to the scrimmage line. Durrett played a nice game for the winners as did

Church of Christ Makes Improvements

During the past week the minister and others of the Church of Christ have spent some time beautifying the grounds around the church. Spaces between the sidewalk and curbing were spaded out and trees planted.

Local Physician Arouses Enthusiasm In Thesis Contest

More Than Fifty Students of Junior High Entered The Contest

In a thesis contest in which the subject of "dad" furnished the basic subject, more than fifty pupils of the eighth grade handed in articles during the week.

These articles were carefully examined and graded by a special committee wholly nonpartisan. The winners were selected with difficulty according to their statement at the close of their deliberations. A surprising amount of talent was discovered in the articles and all of them were very meritorious.

Nickey Stewart was declared winner of first prize in this contest. Maurice Lane received second prize giving the first winner a race for first honors. H. L. Riley, Jr. and Georgie Wayne Estlack received honorable mention.

The contest was sponsored by that friend of all boys, Dr. B. L. Jenkins who enjoyed the contest immensely. In speaking of the contest Monday, Dr. Jenkins made the statement that "some of these Dads are going to have to hustle to live up to the opinions of their sons."

Dr. Jenkins is also sponsoring a contest this week in the grades in which the boys and girls will be asked to write on the subject of "service." A prize of five dollars will be given the winner.

In speaking to the pupils of the Junior High Monday morning, their benefactor explained that he wanted to render real service to his community and wished to learn from the younger folks at first hand just what they understood 'service' to mean.

Since the contest matter is pretty well advertised, it is expected that practically every pupil in this grade will enter the contest for the honor and five dollars that will accrue to the winner.

R. L. Bigger Sells Filling Station to H. Beach

A deal was closed the last week whereby R. L. Bigger disposed of his retail filling station interests to H. Beach who recently came from Wichita Falls.

Mr. Beach will have three sons associated with him at this station. Homer Beach has been conducting the Texas station on East Second street for some time since purchasing it during the early fall.

Mr. Bigger will devote all of his time to the wholesale distribution of Texas products as he has been for the past fourteen years. "The wholesale end of it got too heavy requiring the undivided attention of him" was the statement of Mr. Bigger Monday.

This is one of the best locations in the City and has enjoyed a fine run of business for a number of years. With the force taking it over, there is every reason for the public to expect and enjoy first class service.

Local Merchants Get Stung by Forger Saturday

A phone message from the manager of the Beaty gin at Hedley Monday acquainted local citizens with the fact that cotton acceptance checks had been printed imitating their checks and were being passed with their firm name forgotten to them.

It then developed that about $260 worth of the worthless paper had been passed off on local merchants here Saturday. Little's, Sawaya and Shelton & Sanford were among the heaviest losers.

No trace of the party can be found, and few if any state they could identify the party, though Nick Sawaya is sure he knows what the fellow looks like.

Mr. and Mrs. Jiggs Mosley of Berger visited relatives here over the week end.

Captain Hammonds, Captain Nichols was the outstanding player for the losers.

Memphis plays White Deer for the championship of these two districts in the near future. We are backing Memphis to win for our district.

Parent-Teachers Go-To-School Night On November 24th

Program Beginning at 7:30 To Be Followed by Social Feature And Music

Members of the Sims Parent-Teacher Association at a regular meeting held Thursday afternoon perfected plans for a "Go-to-School Night" to be held November 24th. This is an entirely new feature never before seen in Clarendon.

Fathers, mothers and guardians of children attending the South Ward school will be asked to attend. Teachers will occupy their class rooms and receive the visitors who will be shown the methods employed in conducting the class room work, devoting about ten minutes to each class period.

The teacher will give an outline of what is hoped to be accomplished during the year and methods used by her in teaching the various subjects.

The program will begin at 7:30 and will close with a social feature at the conclusion of the school work.

The Association feels that parents owe it to themselves to see this exhibit. It will also be an inspiration to the children. Your presence will also lend encouragement to the teachers.

Truitt McClung of Lawton, Oklahoma visited friends here Sunday.

New Methodist Pastor Arrives Here Monday

Rev. W. P. McPherson, new pastor of the local Methodist church, with his wife and two small sons, arrived Monday to assume his duties with the local congregation.

The new minister has been filling a pastorate at Alpine, he having spent several years in Southwest Texas since coming from Louisiana his native state and where he attended Centenary college and Tulane University.

German Machine Gun Injures Clarendon Man

Ralph Decker was the victim of an unusual accident Wednesday when he received wounds from a German machine gun twelve years after he had quit the service of Uncle Sam.

In removing the guns from the display window at the Clarendon drug store Wednesday, the machine gun fell upon his foot resulting in injuries which have kept him indoors. No bones were broken and he is expected to be out again within a week.

* Thanksgiving Proclamation *
* * * * *

By the President of the United States of America

Notwithstanding that our forefathers endured the hardships and privations of a primitive life, surrounded by dangers and solaced only with meager comforts, they nevertheless bequeathed to us a custom of devoting one day of every year to universal thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessing of life itself and the means to sustain it, for the sanctuary of home and the joys that pervade it, and for the mercies of His protection from accident, sickness or death.

Our country has many causes for thanksgiving. We have been blessed with distinctive evidence of divine favor. As a nation we have suffered far less than other peoples from the present world difficulties. We have been free from civil and industrial discord. The outlook for peace between nations has been strengthened. In a large view we have made progress upon the enduring structure of our institutions. The arts and sciences that enrich our lives and enlarge our control of nature have made notable advances. Education has been further extended. We have made gains in the prevention of disease and in the protection of childhood.

Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, November 27, 1930, as a national day of thanksgiving, and do enjoin the people of the United States so to observe it, calling upon them to remember that many of our people are in need and suffering from causes beyond their control, and suggesting that a proper celebration of the day should include that we make sure that every person in the community, young or old, shall have cause to give thanks for our institutions and for the neighborly sentiments of our people.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the seal of the United States.

Done at the city of Washington, this sixth day of November, in the year of our Lord 1930, and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and fifty-fifth.

(Signed)
Herbert Hoover
President

Henry L. Stimson,
Secretary of State

* His Greatest Ambition *
* (An Editorial) *
* * * * *

In speaking to the subject of "My Greatest Ambition" recently, of the leading bankers of the Panhandle said: "It is my greatest ambition to see men regain confidence. Confidence in each other and confidence in their own ability."

It is the opinion of this financier that people have become afraid. They fear the super-natural apparently since there is nothing on the surface to cause them to be afraid to venture.

To quote this banker further: "The banks of the town are in good condition. I do not believe either of them owes a dollar. There is money for legitimate needs. The depression in our section exists within the mind only."

What we need most right now is to loosen up. Buy wisely but buy what we need. Buy necessities rather than luxuries. Improve and build while material and labor are cheaper than for years and probably cheaper than they will be for many years to come.

Local merchants advertising in this issue of the Leader are offering bargains in keeping with present conditions. Drygoods offered by these firms are of standard brands and yet priced below any mailorder house. Business men of foresight realize that the goods must be moved. The prices are lower now than they will possibly be again for months or even years.

Jobs are created by making improvements. Other Jobs depend on our ability to buy. Our ability to buy is governed largely by our willingness to buy. The bankers and business men of the nation cannot restore confidence alone. It is a task in which each of us must share.

Save and invest wisely, ignoring the calamity howlers. Invest for the profit that is bound to come with a return of confidence.

Business men visiting Clarendon Saturday had covered West Texas. They had made exacting investigations. It was their candid opinion that Clarendon and her trade territory were in the best condition of any section of the state.

During the growing season many farmers paid their bills, as they bought by selling produce and farm products grown for a cash market. Bankers made loans carefully. As a consequence, little is owing at present and the farmer can start the new year owing little if anything.

Discrimination.

Bootleggers are warned not to sell booze to Perry, Ohio policemen according to an edict issued by their Chief.

Punk System.

We Americans spend our time going hellabybride from somewhere to nowhere. Our foreign born element attends night schools, reads the best newspapers and magazines and beats us at our own game. Whose is the fault?

Climatic.

During the dry spell the little town up in Moore county was referred to as "Remorse." It rained just before a postoffice was granted and the name was changed to "Morse."

Marrying Reason.

C. L. Tanner of the Alice News is authority for the statement that he married preferring to be "cussed rather than ignored" thirty-three years ago. And that was at a time when many married on a bet.

Traffic Laws.

There is a noticeable disregard again for traffic rules in Clarendon. Sentiment aroused following an accident some weeks ago has died down. Must we sacrifice the life or limb of a good citizen every so often in order to awaken us to a sense of duty?

Worthy Corporations.

During the present depression the West Texas Utilities company has steadily advanced improving their properties wherever located or necessary. Had other corporations done likewise, there would have been very little if any unemployment in West Texas.

Responsibility.

With victory there comes responsibility. The Democrats will now have to share their part of the blame for the panic after March, Mississippi floods in June, hot winds in July and August, boll weevil in September and low prices all fall. Not to mention a number of other calamities that could happen.

Forewarned.

The sheriff of Salem, Dent county, Missouri warns the public to lock motor vehicles, adopt brands and earmarks for stock, mark the poultry, etc. anticipating a pickup in the theft line with the coming of winter. He might have advertised for gravediggers to help dispose of high-jacking victims.

Synthetic Refreshments.

Scientists of Chicago announce the discovery that a combination of non-edibles treated with superlactic acid may be made to take the place of juicy steaks and other delicacies.

Oat hulls, when treated with this acid, are said to have a "meaty" flavor. Cotton seed hulls are also said to have succumbed to a succulent condition of gastronomical delicacies when "treated" with the acid. Who will be the first to pass the acid refreshment at a jackass club?

Revolutions.

Revolutions have been for the most part confined to the Latin countries for several months. Spain joined the ranks the past week. Russia now gets into the limelight.

Unless some change is brought about to quiet the unrest in the eastern part of our nation, we may expect trouble with the arrival of cold weather. Starving babes in the humble home of a workman who is honestly willing to provide for their immediate needs is a powerful factor in cultivating revolutionary ideas.

Perching Room.

If the present pace of drunken drivers in both town and country continues with the same momentum until Christmas, perching room on high places out of danger in old Donley will be at a premium.

It is no longer a question as to whether a citizen has a right to travel our highways, but rather a question of escaping with his life and auto while doing so. In fact it has reached the point to where some of our most respectable citizens carry arms in their autos and if their auto is crashed by a drunken driver, it will be just too blamed bad for the drunk.

Atlantis.

A French engineer proposes a floating city, anchored in mid-ocean half way between New York and Paris. By sinking a circular ring or cofferdam and filling it with concrete, a foundation for a city with all modern conveniences may be possible for the accommodation of 200 thousand people.

Great idea! We suggest that when the job is completed, that all the manufacturers of war material and those who remotely would profit from such a movement, be domiciled on the man-made island and the blamed thing blown up. There would be no occasion for disarmament conferences, Leagues of Nations or Hague Tribunals were this possible.

The Country Banker.

In making a speech in Virginia recently, President Hoover is quoted by the daily press as saying: "As a nation we have more to be thankful for than we have ever had before."

"No people ever had as much of comforts and conveniences and advantages as we now have. We have been blessed with bountiful harvests. Our only complaint is that as a people, we have produced so much of everything that we don't know what to do with it."

As a matter of fact we have no over production so long as thousands are hungry and ragged as we have them today. Instead of overproduction we are suffering from underconsumption and a faulty system of distribution.

After all is said and done, the buck is passed to the country bankers to pull the people out of a mael of a mess—and they will have it to do in some manner.

Boosting Texas.

Col William E. Talbot, late gubernatorial candidate on the Republican ticket in Texas, was defeated as he expected. In the course of his travels during the campaign, Col. Talbot learned much of Texas and her people.

This knowledge gained is to be put to practical use by organizing Industrial and Community Builders with plans to "buy it made in Texas."

During his campaign, three hundred and eighty such clubs were formed with the membership pledged to buy from local merchants at home; buy manufactured articles in your county, in Texas.

For instance, many clothing products are manufactured in Texas but few know about them as they are not advertised. Col. Talbot will start an advertising campaign to acquaint Texas people with Texas products.

If the average newspaper man did not push his business with any more vim and judgment than the average merchant, he would go broke in six months.

Memphis Wins.

The Cyclone football team of Memphis is to be congratulated for having bested our crack Bronchos 25 to 7 in a hotly contested game there Friday. Unbiased reports are to the effect that the Cyclones played a fair game, earned every bit of the honors and merit the District Championship.

The better element of citizens of Memphis were courteous to visitors from all sections. The contrast with the treatment accorded visitors last season was very noticeable. Memphis has done her best to redeem her good name and her sister towns are proud of her achievements.

Memphis has every reason to be proud of those husky boys whose clean games have merited the approval of all right-thinking people and reflected credit on athletic sports in general in the Panhandle.

We are just as proud of our Bronchos as if they had won. They went down to honorable defeat while doing their dead-level best. They made a good record this season and retire from the field of action with honor to their name. They will enter the field next season with the same grit and determination to succeed.

Civilization.

As one of the leading civilized nations we are "it". Thousands go hungry while wheat is cheaper than it has been since the Democrats had a chance with Grover Cleveland.

Thousands are ragged with every indication of a heavy loss of life from freezing this winter. Cotton is cheap and begging for a market. We spend millions teaching the farmer how to produce more and then permit a "few" to starve him to death in the midst of plenty.

We spend more millions for school purposes, pass a law compelling our people to send their children to school, and at the same time permit a "few" to compel them to attend school both hungry and underclothed.

We have more coal, firewood and gas than all other nations combined and yet permit a "few" to compel us to freeze while workmen beg for a chance to supply the demand.

We vote for what we don't want and cuss when we get it, if we vote at all.

We invite foreign students to study our systems and send representatives to all parts of the world boasting of a highly civilized nation. We are a great bunch of animals, we are. The American Indian wasn't much for school, but he had sense enough to make use of our natural resources.

Passing the Buck.

In a recent speech before the Kiwanis club at Amarillo, Judge Jackson of the Court of Civil Appeals laid the blame for disrespect for law and its enforcement to the laxity of citizens in their endeavors to dodge jury service.

Quoting from the statement of a citizen in the editorial column of the Amarillo Daily News of Sunday: "I do not mind serving on federal juries. If a lawyer says his witnesses are unavailable, he is given thirty minutes to make them available; in a district court he probably could drag out the case for days. Federal grand juries get through with their work quickly, and with a minimum of time and expense; the contrary is usually the case with district courts and grand juries."

It might also be recalled that guilty parties being brought before Federal Judge Wilson, invariably plead guilty. Judge Wilson has come up from the courts of Parker county serving in almost every capacity and he knows humanity. He has a snap and a precision in his judicial duties that arouse admiration and respect even among the unplayfully inclined scum of humanity.

He tempers his decisions with sympathy and understanding, choosing at all times to do the greatest good to the greatest number. Visitors in his court appreciate his fatherly counsel and advice. His actions have always reflected credit upon the high office which he occupies.

In district courts juries are often called upon to serve in a case for days. They just as often return a verdict of guilty based upon the law and evidence as submitted to them.

Is it any wonder that these same jurymen become disgusted when a new trial is granted the defendant and the case postponed for several months thus permitting the witnesses to scatter and become unavailable precluding a possibility of a conviction.

The time and efforts of this same jury amounts to naught. The public views such actions with distrust. Trial extensions are granted upon trivial statements. These statements are often affidavits furnished by quack doctors who swear falsely and who should be in the penitentiary. Illness and injury are often faked by the sworn statements of a disreputable physician for the deliberate purpose of defeating the course of justice.

The general public is aware of these facts. When such facts become known, there is no effort made by the judge on the bench to rectify the error in which he plays the part of an innocent victim. Is it any wonder that there is cause for complaint upon the part of Judge Jackson?

What an Albion Man Heard Over the Radio

An Albion, Ill., man bought a radio. It was no different from any other radio much. But he had difficulty in separating the stations. Sunday he tried to tune in and got three stations coming in on the same wave length. One was a minister up in Iowa preaching a sermon; the second was a Chicago station broadcasting a talk to farmers, and the third was a St. Louis station telling of road conditions. Here is what he heard:

"The Old Testament tells us that baby chicks should detour one mile south of Saline and listen to the words of the prophet Sysyus. Use great care in the selection of your eggs, and you will find hard road all the way to Tulsa. We find in Genesis that the roads are muddy just west of the hen house and you should use clean straw in nests if you expect to save your soul. After you pass through Leavenworth turn north to Jericho. There were three wise men who bought an incubator on account of bad detour. The baby chicks were troubled with the pip and a bond issue is being talked on these roads. Keep the feet clean and dry, live a clean life of righteousness and turn north at the schoolhouse.

Much care should be used in com manding the sun to stand still, as there is a washout on the road just south of Paola, and the road to salvation is undergoing repair, making it necessary to keep the temperature in the brooder at least 70 degrees. After you leave Joplin unless you do these things the wrath of God will cause the pinfeathers to drop out and detour one mile south of the cemetery.

Many are called but few have any luck unless the graveled road between Lawrence and Topeka is mixed with feed. Out of 500 eggs one should get road to Hutchinson, and He commanded Noah to build an Ark one mile West of Wichita. It rained 40 days and 40 nights and caused an eight mile detour just west of the brooder house. Many tourists from Jerusalem are trying Plymouth Rocks this year, mixed with concrete and waste to the right proportion.—The Herald of Song.

A lineman with a broken leg was taken to a hospital for treatment. After his leg had been set, the nurse asked him how the accident occurred. He replied.

"You see, ma'am, it was this way: I was stringing for the company and I only had one ground mole. He sent up a bit come-along and she was a heavy one. I was pullin' on her and yelled to the mole to give the guy a wrap; instead he threw a sag into her and that broke my leg."

"Yes," the nurse replied, "but I don't exactly understand."
"Neither do I," said the lineman. "The darn fool must have been crazy."

"Columbus certainly some prophet."
"Why?"
"When he discovered America he shouted: 'I see dry land!'"

Young man, haven't you any ambition? Wouldn't you like to do something big, something that would create a great commotion in the world?
Yes, mother, I'd like to throw a bushel of eggs into an electric fan.

Bright Son: "Two and one to carry."

'Feminine Bloc' Of House Contains Nine Members

Arkansas Will Have Two Women Representatives for Short Session

The "feminine bloc" in the House of Representatives during the short session of Congress, beginning next month, will have one more member than it has ever had before and for the first time one State, Arkansas, will have two women Representatives.

This record, however, will be of brief tenure. The new Congress, which goes into office March 4, will have only six women members compared to eight during the last session and nine during the coming short session. While Mrs. Effie Wingo (D.) was elected to succeed her husband as Representative from Arkansas, Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield (D.), also from that state, did not seek reelection; Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick dropped her seat as Representative-at-large from Illinois to enter an unsuccessful race for the Senate, and Mrs. Katherine Langley (R.) of the Tenth Kentucky District was defeated by A. J. May (D.).

Mrs. Wingo, who fills the unexpired term of her husband as well as his place in the next Congress, takes her place immediately when Congress convenes in December, while the two "lame duck" members will not depart until March. During the short session, therefore, Arkansas will have two women representatives—Mrs. Oldfield and Mrs. Wingo.

All members of the "feminine bloc" who sought reelection succeeded with the exception of Mrs. Langley.

Mrs. Wingo was the only successful one of about seven candidates who sought election to the House for the first time. Both Democrats and Republicans in her district supported her. In addition to Mrs. McCormick, two other women who sought to enter the Senate were defeated, Mrs. Lottie H. O'Neil (R.), seeking the senatorial election in Illinois, and Miss Thelma Parkinson (D.), whom Dwight W. Morrow defeated in the race for the short-term senatorial seat in New Jersey.

One of the most spectacular victories among the women was that of Mrs. Ruth B. Pratt, who won by less than 1000 votes over Judge Louis B. Brodsky, the Democratic candidate and Heywood Brown, newspaper columnist and Socialist candidate in the Seventeenth Congressional District in New York City.

Other women members of the House reelected are Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen (D.), Representative from Florida; Mrs. Florence P. Kahn (R.), Representative from California; Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers (R.), Representative from Massachusetts, and Mrs. Mary T. Norton (D.), Representative from New Jersey.

Mumfords Fill Parallel Posts In Agriculture

H. W. Is Dean of College at Illinois and F. B. at Missouri

URBANA, Ill.—Having spent their "first 100 years"—and then some—in the industry, the famous "Twins of Agriculture," Frederick B., and Herbert W. Mumford, would do the same thing over again if they had the opportunity.

Reared as farm boys, the brothers have never regretted that early in their college courses they left a denominational college and took up the study of agriculture during their junior and senior years. What is more they believe that the agricultural opportunities for farm boys are just as great or greater today than they ever were, especially in some of the professional lines.

Now, when their combined ages total 121 years, all of which have been devoted to agriculture, Herbert W. is dean of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, and Frederick B., three years his senior, is dean of the College of Agriculture, University of Missouri. Agriculture has no other brothers who have run so nearly a parallel course concurrently or at any other time nor has it ever had any other brothers who have been deans of colleges of agriculture in great universities.

Although born and reared on a farm at Moscow, Mich., the two brothers started their higher education at Albion College, because their parents were a bit skeptical of the influence under which they might be thrown at a larger educational institution. They were not lost to agriculture, however, for later decided upon an agricultural college training and were graduated from Michigan Agricultural College (now Michigan State College) in 1891.

The home farm at Moscow claimed them both for a while, but within a year Frederick B. was called back to take a position at his Alma Mater.

Four years later when he accepted a professorship in agriculture at the University of Missouri, his brother was called from the farm to fill the position left vacant at the Michigan Agricultural College. After six years Herbert W. left Michigan to become head of the animal husbandry department at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. Frederick B. was made dean of the College of Agriculture, University of Missouri in 1909, while Herbert W. was elected dean of the College of Agriculture University of Illinois and director of its experiment station and extension service in 1922.

The way they have been blazing trails through all these years hints of a spirited race between the brothers. Before he even joined the staff of an agricultural college, for instance, H. W. was laying plans for what has been one of his most important contributions to the livestock industry. While selling livestock from the home farm in Michigan, he soon perceived that he and other farmers were at a disadvantage with the market traders and buyers because of the absence of any generally accepted system of market classes and grades with appropriate price differentiations. As soon as he could after he joined an agricultural college staff, he started work on the problem and is now given credit for doing the pioneer work in standardizing market classes and grades of livestock, an important feature of present-day marketing.

Likewise, H. W. was one of the first, if not the first, authorities in the country to recognize the importance of marketing studies in experiment station work. The first bulletin ever published on the marketing of a livestock product is his "Production and Marketing of Wool," issued in 1900 by the Michigan Experiment Station. Recognized for his ability in the marketing field, he later was appointed on the National Farmers' Livestock Marketing Committee of Fifteen, from which evolved the producers' livestock marketing agencies. These are now acclaimed as the most successful voluntary cooperative marketing enterprise in the country.

F. B. is a member of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture; was chairman of the Missouri Council of Defense, 1917-19, and was Federal Food Administrator for the State during the same period. He has served on the executive committee of the American Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities for more than ten years.

Both the brothers have had for-sign contacts under rather exceptional conditions. H. W. studied live-stock conditions in Great Britain, France, Belgium and Holland in 1897 and in Argentina in 1908. Two years ago he served on the American commission invited to study agricultural conditions in Germany. During the past summer he was one of three Americans on a commission which the Mexican Government enlisted to review agricultural education and farming conditions in that country. F. B. was a student at Leipzig for a time in 1900 and at Zurich in 1901. He was a member of the American Commission to France in 1919 under the auspices of the French Institute.

What these two men say is welcomed by the live stock and agricultural world as something with meaning and purpose. H. W. is author of "Beef Production" and joint author of "Practical Farming and Gardening." He also has prepared articles for the Cyclopaedia Americana and the Cyclopaedia of American Agriculture. F. B. is author of "Animal Breeding" and also has written for the Cyclopaedia of American Agriculture. Both have made outstanding liberal contributions to current agricultural literature.

Their careers are ably summed up by Eugene Davenport, dean and professor emeritus of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, under whom both brothers were students at Michigan State College. "What a fruition of the years and what a confirmation of the hopes of those who bred and reared such specimens of American manhood."

Father: "When I was your age, son, I was glad to get any bread to eat."

Bright Five-year-old: "You're much better off now that you're living with us, aren't you, Daddy?"

A western evangelist makes a practice of painting religious lines on rocks and fences along public highways. One ran: "What will you do when you die?"

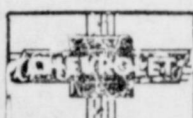

An advertising man came along and painted under it: "Use Delta Oil. Good for Burns."

PRESENTING

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Today the Chevrolet Motor Company presents the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six, a new model of the six-cylinder car which has enjoyed such wide popularity.

In both the chassis and body of this new six-cylinder Chevrolet you will find expressed, as never before, Chevrolet's well-known policy of progress through constant improvement.

Your first impression of the new Chevrolet will be one of striking fleetness, grace and beauty. The car is longer, lower and modernly smart. The radiator has been deepened and its appearance enhanced by a curving tie-bar and chrome-plated parabolic headlamps. The long hood lines sweep back unbroken to blend gracefully into the new Fisher bodies. And never was Fisher's fine craftsmanship more evident than in the bodies of the new Chevrolet Six!

Not only are the smart, graceful, new bodies roomier and more comfortable, but as you study them you will discover many gratifying new features and pleasing refinements—many examples of that painstaking attention to detail which is the basis of true quality.

Mechanically, too, the new Chevrolet Six is a better automobile. The wheelbase is longer. The frame is stronger. The steering is easier. The clutch is more durable. There is a smoother, quieter, easier shifting transmission. In fact, wherever finer materials and more advanced design could add to Chevrolet quality or increase Chevrolet's traditional economy of ownership—improvement has been made. See the new Chevrolet Six—and you will agree that here is the Great American Value!

Mrs. E. A. Taylor Writes On Armistice Day

The Leader is in receipt of the following written by Mrs. E. A. Taylor of this city who is now visiting in the home of a son, A. M. Taylor and family of Ft. Collins, Colorado:

Armistice Day, November 11, 1930. Some of God's providences. There were some remarkable coincidences when the Armistice was called between the warring nations.

It was the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month of the year, and the 11th verse of the 11th chapter of the 11th book of the Bible has this to say: "For such as this is done, oh king, and Thou hast not kept my covenants and my statutes which I have commanded Thee. I will surely rend the kingdom from Thee and give it to Thy servant." (1 Kings; 11: 11).

And if this was ever done to any nation and ruler, it was done to Germany and the Kaiser. Germany had for many years taught that "might made right". She had forsaken Christ for Krupp.

Nickey Stewart.

Number Two: "I think my Dad is the best in the world. Because he works hard to make his family a living. And because he sends me to school to educate me. And because he doesn't drink whiskey and is honest and truthful, and because he is kind to dumb animals."

Maurice Lane.

Number Three: "I think that he has helped to be part of the world to me, and he would do anything to save me. He sometimes is cross, but he is usually right about things and he tries to make others happy whether he is or not."

George Wayne Estlack.

Number Four: "I have one of the best Dads that can be produced. He gets me things I like best, toys or games, and he plays with me. He does everything to help me get a kick out of life. Best of all, he has a most pleasant home for me."

Aztec Writings Reveal Love For Nature

Material Is Highly Poetic,
Using Strange Similes
and Metaphors

The most striking characteristic of Aztec literature was an intense love of nature never surpassed in any other race of any other time, says John H. Cornyn, professor of the Aztec language and literature at the Mexican National University, who has just published "The Songs of Quetzalcoatl," a collection of Aztec poems hitherto unknown. Probably much of the Aztec literature thought to have been lost in the burning of native codices and maguey-paper books by the Spaniards during the Conquest has really been preserved in the works of Fray Bernardino de Sahagun, the originals of which are now in the Library of the Royal Palace and the Library of the Royal Academy at Madrid, Spain, Professor Cornyn believes.

This mass of literature, in 12 volumes, believed to have been written by Sahagun himself, now appears to be original Indian compositions. It is in the form of rhythmic prose of the trochaic meter a meter unknown to the Spaniards of Sahagun's time and is still rare in Spanish literature today. Furthermore, the material is so highly poetic, and uses such strange similes and metaphors, that it is impossible to have come out of Spanish thought.

Sahagun came to Mexico in 1529, eight years after the Conquest. He and others established mission schools where the Indian nobles and their descendants were educated. Sahagun himself became famous for his knowledge of the Aztec language, and for the remarkable piece of research work he did with the history, religion, customs, economics and other phases of Indian life.

He claimed to have questioned hundreds of nobles and learned Aztec on the various subjects he was interested in, and to have written down the substance of it in Aztec. However, it is now believed that his Indian pupils to whom he gave the Spanish alphabet, wrote it down themselves, as they had heard it from their elders or as they had learned it in their pre-Conquest schools.

Aztec literature was not written, because neither these or other American Indians had as yet evolved a phonetic alphabet although they were approaching it. Picture records of the rebus-type, many of which are preserved today, now known as codices, expressed the high points of Aztec history, religion, politics and other subjects.

Accompanying "songs" filled out the details of the pictured text, which were learned by heart. Today, without such songs, no two experts express an Aztec picture record exactly alike. Because of this lack of an adequate written language, Aztecs were forced to much memorizing, thus saving their literature when the Spaniards destroyed the native libraries. Sahagun preserved a great quantity of it in his collections and compilations.

These original Sahagun documents now in Spanish libraries were photo-stated and printed in facsimile by the Mexican Government between 1905 and 1920 with about 2000 original pictures accompanying the texts, and another 1000 pictures in colors expressing various phases of Indian life and activities. This mass of material presents a remarkable picture of the Aztec civilization.

Although Sahagun always intended to write a history of Mexico based on this material, it was not translated until the three hundredth anniversary of his arrival in the New World, in 1829, when a free version was published in Spain, entitled "History of New Spain." The valuable nature of this material was then not recognized.

The poems which Mr. Cornyn has translated are only an insignificant portion of the known Sahagun documents, which in turn are believed to be only a small portion of those that must still be lost in dusty archives of the world's museums and libraries.

Europe Shows The Result of Forest Waste

Most Countries There Have Insufficient Timber to Supply Needs

By Robert Sparks Walker
Down through the centuries the forests of Europe have stood loyally by the people but man failed to stand faithfully by them, until now of all the many European countries only four remain that grow more than enough timber to meet their needs. These are Soviet Russia, Finland, Norway and Sweden. Of the forest lands of the world, Russia owns the most. The British Empire is second and Brazil and the United States follow.

About 89 per cent of the hardwood forests and 95 per cent of the coniferous trees are found growing in the north temperate zone, in which dwell about three-fourths of the earth's population. No nation can live unto itself. It is constantly calling on its neighbors for an exchange of commodities, and that is as true of the tree products as it is of foods. For instance, what would the United States do were it not for Europe and Canada to furnish its supply of newsprint alone. This is equal to about 4,200,000 cords of pulpwood, which means a consumption of 11,500 cords each day for printing newspapers.

But in the United States less than 5 per cent of the quantity of timber removed is used for pulpwood. Even though there is some comfort in considering the saving of timber that will result from the ever-increasing use of concrete, tile and steel in constructing buildings, there comes the increased call for wood pulp for rayon and other products which are ever on the upward trend.

This is only one reason why Americans are interested in the conservation of the forests of each of its European neighbors. Expert national economists have placed the average of 30 per cent of the land area of any country to be kept in productive forest trees; 60 per cent available for farm land and 10 per cent for towns and cities.

Few of the European countries reach this standard with their forests. Germany has 24 per cent of her land devoted to forests, or 31,000,000 acres, and 33 per cent of the amount is in hardwoods. Of this her state forests amount to 30.1 per cent and the privately owned forests represent 47.3 per cent. The general German rule is to cut only an amount of trees that is equal to the annual growth.

Germany's forests have a cash value of $4,900,000,000 exclusive of the forest land. Preceding the World War, Germany's output of saw-log timber was greater per acre than any other European country. Even so, her lumber imports since 1863 have exceeded her exports.

How Germany and some of the other European countries manage their forests is of great concern to the people in the United States. Constant national and state vigilance of her wooded lands has been maintained by Germany for many years which has made her forests and forestry program of world-wide interest.

The larger German states maintain schools for training in forestry. One of these was begun as early as 1816 and the courses cover from two to four years. Laws for the prevention of forest fires, land and snow slides, floods and scanty water supply are enforced. In protected forests, clearing is not done except by a special permit.

The laws that were passed early by some of the states require the owner of a private forest to secure a permit before he can clear the timber off a piece of land. Not even the neglected lands became wasted ground, for the states replant the land and charge it up to the forest.

In the event that the owner of a private forest is guilty of overcutting his timber, or when he displays a lack of wisdom in its best management, a warning is issued. If he fails to heed this notice, the forest authorities take the management into its hands.

Wholesome results have also been brought about by a law passed in 1875 which placed the forests belonging to villages, towns and other public corporations directly under the control of the state.

The owner of a private forest in Baden is permitted to do about as he pleases with his forest, so long as he does it no injury. When he wants to make a clearing he must obtain a permit. Bare and neglected spots must be kept replanted.

When the owner fails to observe the state rules he loses possession of the forest for 10 years, during which time the forest authorities manage it.

France's productive forests amount to something like 23,173,500 acres, of which 2,962,615 acres are in possession of the state, and 15,982,106 represent small private holdings. Some forest experts believe that a small private ownership for the United States would be an advantage, where 79,000,000 or more acres of our forests belong to only 1500 people. On the other hand, it has been pointed out that the owner of a small forest tract often lacks the knowledge to make his forest a success.

The timber supply of France is insufficient to meet her requirements, for she imports from 35 to 40 per cent of her lumber. A program of developing forestry in her foreign colonies has been persistently carried out during the last decade.

French laws governing privately owned timberland are rigid. A private owner of wooded lands is not permitted to cut away his timber until he has given the sub-prefecture four months notice, and then he may be denied permission to carry out his plans. The forest agent is known as the prefect. A violation of the law brings the heavy minimum fine of $39.07, or a maximum of $117.21 an acre. In addition, the owner is compelled to replant the cleared land inside of three years.

France saves its forests from fires by enforcing a very stringent law which forbids the use of fire within 650 feet of a forest from June to September unless a special permit is obtained. Another fire prevention law compels the railroads to maintain a fire line of 66 feet from each rail. Owners of woodlands must also see that a fire line is kept between their land and the adjoining wooded property.

Great Britain's agricultural lands take up about 81 per cent of its acreage. With the exception of Denmark, its per capita of forestry is the lowest of any European country. Before the war its forests were disappearing at the rate of 1000 acres per annum. The British Empire has a fewer number of acres under state control than any other European country.

One can scarcely think of Ireland having trees, but it has 95,650 acres of forests.

Great Britain's loss of forests from all sources is estimated to be no more than 10 per cent. The wet climate is a natural protection against fire.

The nation has been promoting a policy of increased plantings in forests with marked results. The Forestry Commission in 1920 planted 1500 acres and the next year more than 5,000 acres.

While thinking of the smaller forests of Europe, we may tickle our imagination by shifting our thoughts to Siberia, where four-fifths of the forests are yet unexplored!

ASHTOLA SCHOOL NEWS

At 3:30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, the Ashtola School gave an Armistice Day program.

The first number on the program was a song, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Following that several patriotic songs were given by the primary students. Mr. Howard then gave a very interesting talk about what Armistice Day means to us. Velma Collier, Viola Barker and Miss King gave patriotic readings which were very appropriate for the occasion. The High School then sang two songs, "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "Till We Meet Again." The concluding number on the program was a pantomime "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" by the high school boys.

The program was enjoyed by everyone. There were several visitors present. The visitors present were as follows: Mrs. Byers, Mrs. O. C. Hill, Mrs. M. S. Swinburn, Miss Jessie Swinburn, Mr. and Mrs. Lu McCellan, Mrs. P. A. Johnson, and Miss Betty Johnson of Ashtola and Misses Virginia Wisdom, Joyce Link and Wilma Hukel of Clarendon.

The Ashtola School has returned to the original schedule of beginning classes at 9:00 o'clock. Since there is a new state law requiring physical education, it has become necessary to have these classes of physical education from 3:45 to 4:15 o'clock. Under this new plan, Miss Maxwell is coaching the girl's basketball and Mr. Howard the boy's basketball. Miss Mc Murtry has the younger boy's floor work and Miss Shook the girl's floor work. Miss King has the two primary rooms for exercises and games. The students are entering very enthusiastically into the new program of work, and it is hoped that their enthusiasm will make possible more benefit than they as yet realize.

Migosh! Doc Wood over at the drug store has imported a Jack county pooch trained in 'possum hunting and presented it to the Committee of One which is none other than Homer Mulkey.

This is a pedigreed dog. His papers read: Bromide of potassium Dam borax of peruvian bark. Com from old Jack county, he knows nothing about digging in the ground—he's from a rock country.

His first act was to tree Alma Mater. Alma Mater is a pet 'possum belonging to Prof. J. Roy Wells which makes its headquarters domiciled at the J. H. Watts home. J. Roy claims to have given the rodent that name because it took a 'slick tail' to get by the school authorities.

Homer has given this hound the name of "Hoover" because his first act was to appoint a dog commission to find out why perfectly respectable dog fleas are found on Clarendon cats. Great things are expected of "Hoover", he knows his possums, but can't dig 'taters.

Hayes Robbins claims that he can't 'eat' potatoes. That shows how much an ex-cowpuncher knows about civilization. It is supposed to be drunk out of a cup. Cock your eyes to heaven, turn up the cup and if the machinery is working properly, there is a sound as of pouring suds down a dog hole, niggers kissing and a smacking like a cow jerking her leg out of a hog-hole, if you understand what I mean.

Ed Wheeler of Brice and several others put in a bid for a start of poke last spring when we bragged about poke salad. Come on, boys. The roots are ready to move and what I mean get here before someone heats you to it because the "poke starting" is starting with a rush.

Homer Mulkey just dropped in and said that he learned to catch 'possums from Hostetter's almanac in 1860.

The mystery of what became of LaSalle's colony of east Texas has been solved according to a bright high school pupil of that section. They died.

Saw an ad in the paper today of a laundry which read: "Why kill your wife? Let us do the dirty work." As man to man, speaking from experience, one laundry can't do it. Better round up a half a dozen when you start.

Another one of them foreigners from Hall county was up here Thursday and asked that his name be kept out of the paper as he was ashamed to let any one know he had traveled the famous Donley county highway. Alright, alright. You are just ashamed of it as you are.

Turnip greens and warm weather has hatched out another poetic urge. How's this: The dog stood on the burning deck, The flames flew up round his neck! Hot dog!

That's a flop. How's this one? The imps shout halleluyah, The devil acts peculyah, With wee he fills us full, He gave us an obsession, That we had a depression, Causing many to fail, With the world by the tail, And a down-hill pull. That shows a decided talent for something but what is it? What I write I don't always understand myself.

Tribe Refuses New Houses

Alabama Indians Turn Down Homes Because Stoves Included

Two or three years ago, hearing tales of the pitiful plight of the Alabama Indians of Polk County, living in squalor on acres long ago robbed of their fertility, the Federal Government added 3,000 acres to the reservation and appropriated funds for better schools and teachers. Then the State of Texas, awakened to the needs of the few Indians remaining of all those who once roamed the broad prairies of the State, decided to build new homes for the redmen, replacing the old log cabins. Twenty-five homes were needed for the little tribe and the State Legislature set aside $15,000 to build them.

Recently the homes were completed. Carpenters gathered up their tools and left the Indians to the pleasant business of moving.

That is, the State figured it would be pleasant business. The old log houses were worn, inconvenient, squalid, smoky from open fires, and to a white man, change to a new house would be welcome.

But not to Chief Sun-Kee, his main tribesmen and squaws. The Indians refused to move. Moving day came, but there was no moving. And there the new homes stood, empty, when several hundred white men and women from Livingston, Dallas, Houston, Beaumont and other East and North Texas cities visited Indian Village near Livingston Oct. 23. Near each empty house they found each Indian family peacefully continuing house-keeping in his old smoky cabin. From each stick-and-mud chimney curled spirals of smoke, in the maner that oak wood smoke had curled for the last hundred years or more in the village. The Indians weren't peeved at anybody for building the new houses. They simply weren't planning to move.

Then it came out that the new houses were furnished with wood stoves for cooking and heating instead of fireplaces. The Indians knew no other method of cooking than by swinging pots over the coals in the open hearth. They didn't like the idea of cooking with stoves, and they wouldn't move. "Too small, anyway," remarked Chief Sun-Kee, better known as Charley Thompson. He said it without scorn. Too polite to say his folk didn't like the new houses, he explained simply that the squaws couldn't cook without fireplaces.

The occasion for the visit of interested Texans to Indian Village was the completion and dedication of a new church provided for the tribe by the Women's Auxiliary of the Presbytery Synod of Texas. Mrs. George A. Sprague of Dallas, president of the auxiliary, was among the visitors. Dr. T. M. Hunter of Beaumont and Dr. J. C. Oehler of Palestine were present and participated in the program, assisting Dr. C. W. Chambers, who with his wife, has for more than thirty years been missionary to the Alabamas and leader of their religious activities. Approximately 350 other attended the services, together with the Indians, who number about 200.

The church was erected at a cost of $5,000. It stands on the old council ground in the midst of typical Polk County pine trees at a spot where Gen. Sam Houston stood when he gave the Alabamas a deed to their land from the Republic of Texas nearly 100 years ago.

The Alabamas graciously accepted the church. But as to the homes, they say, "New stoves no good. Old fireplace better!"

EMBARRASSING MOMENT A man sat down in a swell restaurant and pointed to a line on the French menu card and said to the waiter, "Gimme some of that."

"Sorry, sir," answered the waiter "the band is playing that."

Mr. and Mrs. Neise Robinson and family visited her brother, Edgar Beach of Hedley Sunday.

LELIA LAKE SCHOOLNES

The O. B. Club of the seventh grade is now building rapidly. They were able to go through an entire session at their regular meeting on last Wednesday afternoon without referring to the "Rules of Order."

The committee on constitution and by-laws reported at this meeting. A constitution to suit the needs of the club was adopted. A critic and correspondent secretary were elected.

The social committee reported, that after the ghostly and most enjoyable Hallowe'en social among the shades and shadows of the large grove at the home of Margaret Gerner, they were planning our next event for the Christmas holidays.

An interesting program is rendered each week. At our next meeting two of the boys are to prove to us that the early practice of taxing citizens according to the richness of their clothing was a better method of taxation than the present method.

At our last meeting, after the regular program was rendered, our president treated us to a social "The Fuzzy Wazzy worm."

We are back on our regular schedule now and the school is going nicely. Practically all of the students are back in school since most of the farmers are up with their cotton picking.

We had a short program at the school auditorium on the morning of November the 11th. Mrs. Hill and daughter Dorothy of Floydada Texas visited Miss Eula Bess Hill, and Dorothy read for us. We enjoyed her reading very much.

We are indebted to Miss Nan W. Potter for a number of library books which she contributed this week. This makes something like twenty books we have had donated in the past two weeks. We appreciate them very much and the students are making good use of them.

ASHTOLA SCHOOL NEWS

At 3:30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, the Ashtola School gave an Armistice Day program.

The first number on the program was a song, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Following that several patriotic songs were given by the primary students. Mr. Howard then gave a very interesting talk about what Armistice Day means to us. Velma Collier, Viola Barker and Miss King gave patriotic readings which were very appropriate for the occasion. The High School then sang two songs, "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and "Till We Meet Again." The concluding number on the program was a pantomime "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" by the high school boys.

The program was enjoyed by everyone. There were several visitors present. The visitors present were as follows: Mrs. Byers, Mrs. O. C. Hill, Mrs. M. S. Swinburn, Miss Jessie Swinburn, Mr. and Mrs. Lu McCellan, Mrs. P. A. Johnson, and Miss Betty Johnson of Ashtola and Misses Virginia Wisdom, Joyce Link and Wilma Hukel of Clarendon.

The Ashtola School has returned to the original schedule of beginning classes at 9:00 o'clock. Since there is a new state law requiring physical education, it has become necessary to have these classes of physical education from 3:45 to 4:15 o'clock. Under this new plan, Miss Maxwell is coaching the girl's basketball and Mr. Howard the boy's basketball. Miss Mc Murtry has the younger boy's floor work and Miss Shook the girl's floor work. Miss King has the two primary rooms for exercises and games. The students are entering very enthusiastically into the new program of work, and it is hoped that their enthusiasm will make possible more benefit than they as yet realize.

DONLEY COUNTY STATE BANK

"Home of the Thrifty"

Migosh! Doc Wood over at the drug store has imported a Jack county pooch hound trained in possum hunting and presented it to the Committee of One which is none other than Homer Mulkey.

This is a pedigree dog. His papers read: Bromide of potassium Dam borax of peruvian bark. Com from old Jack county, he knows nothing about digging in the ground—he's from a rock county.

His first act was to tree Alma Mater. Alma Mater is a pet possum belonging to Prof. J. Roy Wells which makes its headquarters domiciled at the J. H. Watts home. J. Roy claims to have given the rodent that name because it took a 'slick tail' to get by the school authorities.

Homer has given this hound the name of "Hoover" because his first act was to appoint a dog commission to find out why perfectly respectable dog fleas are found on Clarendon cats. Great things are expected of "Hoover," he knows his possums, but can't dig 'taters.

Hayes Robbins claims that he can't eat potlikker. That shows how much an ex-cowpuncher knows about civilization. It is supposed to be drunk out of a cup. Cock your eyes to heaven, turn up the cup and if the machinery is working properly, there is a sound as of pouring suds down a dog hole, niggers kissing and a smacking like a cow jerking her leg out of a log-hole, if you understand what I mean.

Ed Wheeler of Brice and several others put in a bid for a start of poke last spring when we bragged about poke salad. Come on, boys. The roots are ready to move and what I mean get here before someone beats you to it because the 'poke starting' is starting with a rush.

Homer Mulkey just dropped in and said that he learned to catch possums from Hostetter's almanac in 1860.

The mystery of what became of LaSalle's colony of east Texas has been solved according to a bright high school pupil of that section. They died.

Saw an ad in the paper today of a laundry which read: "Why kill your wife? Let us do the dirty work." As man to man, speaking from experience, one laundry can't do it. Better round up a half a dozen when you start.

Another one of them foreigners from Hall county was up here Thursday and asked that his name be kept out of the paper as he was ashamed to let any one know he had traveled the famous Donley county highway. Alright, alright, we are just ashamed of it as you are.

Turnip greens and warm weather has hatched out another poetic urge. How's this:

The dog stood on the burning deck,
The flames flew up round his neck!
Hot dog!

That's a flop. How's this one?
The imps shout halleluyah,
The devil acts peculya,
With woe he fills us full.
He gave us an obsession,
That we had a depression,
Causing many to fall,
With the world by the tail,
And a down-hill pull.

That shows a decided talent for something but what is it? What I write I don't always understand myself.

Migosh! Look who's here. Haven't made the statement more than once that journalistic graduates in the main are a failure in the actual game of newspaperdom, here comes a Smart Alec who takes advantage of our ignorance and says:

"In my course covering a study of two years I learn that editors are either an advocate, broker, entertainer, informant, interpreter, solicitor, teacher or benefactor but you are neither. Your paper is neither red, yellow, gray, drab, impressionistic or melodramatic."

Migosh! Son, you'd better drink coffee now. You failed to state whether you were preparing to manipulate a gutter, sensational, ackal, capitalistic, inspired, republican or prostituted press. Your mind has been elaborated,

Tribe Refuses New Houses

Alabama Indians Turn Down Homes Because Stoves Included

Two or three years ago, hearing tales of the pitiful plight of the Alabama Indians of Polk County, living in squalor on acres long ago robbed of their fertility, the Federal Government added 3,000 acres to the reservation and appropriated funds for better schools and teachers. Then the State of Texas, awakened to the needs of the few Indians remaining of all those who once roamed the broad prairies of the State, decided to build new homes for the redmen, replacing the old log cabins. Twenty-five homes were needed for the little tribe and the State Legislature set aside $15,000 to build them.

Recently the homes were completed. Carpenters gathered up their tools and left the Indians to the pleasant business of moving.

That is, the State figured it would be pleasant business. The old log houses were worn, inconvenient, squalid, smoky from open fires, and to a white man, change to a new house would be welcome. But not to Chief Sun-Kee, his main tribesmen and squaws. The Indians refused to move. Moving day came, but there was no moving.

And there the new homes stood, empty, when several hundred white men and women from Livingston, Dallas, Houston, Beaumont and other East and North Texas cities visited Indian Village near Livingston Oct. 23. Near each empty house they found each Indian family peacefully continuing house-keeping in his old smoky cabin. From each stick-and-mud chimney curled spirals of smoke, in the manner that oak wood smoke had curled for the last hundred years or more in the village. The Indians weren't peeved at anybody for building the new houses. They simply weren't planning to move.

Then it came out that the new houses were furnished with wood stoves for cooking and heating instead of fireplaces. The Indians knew no other method of cooking than by swinging pots over the coals in the open hearth. They didn't like the idea of cooking with stoves, and they wouldn't move. "Too small, anyway," remarked Chief Sun-Kee, better known as Charley Thompson. He said it with-out scorn. Too polite to say his milk didn't like the new houses, he explained simply that the squaws couldn't cook without fireplaces.

The occasion for the visit of interested Texans to Indian Village was the completion and dedication of a new church provided for the tribe by the Women's Auxiliary of the Presbytery Synod of Texas. Mrs. George A. Sprague of Dallas, president of the auxiliary, was among the visitors. Dr. T. M. Hunter of Beaumont and Dr. J. C. Oehler of Palestine were present and participated in the program, assisting Dr. C. W. Chambers, who with his wife, has for more than thirty years been missionary to the Alabamas and leader of their religious activities. Approximately 350 other attended the services, together with the Indians, who number about 300.

The church was erected at a cost of $5,000. It stands on the old council ground in the midst of typical Folk County pine trees at a spot where Gen. Sam Houston stood when he gave the Alabamas a deed to their land from the Republic of Texas nearly 100 years ago. The Alabamas graciously accepted the church. But as to the homes, they say, "New stoves no good. Old fireplace better!"

EMBARRASSING MOMENT

"Sorry, sir," answered the waiter "the band is playing that."

LELIA LAKE SCHOOLNES

The O. B. Club of the seventh grade is now building rapidly. They were able to go through an entire session at their regular meeting or last Wednesday afternoon without referring to the "Rules of Order."

The committee on constitution and by-laws reported at this meeting. A constitution to suit the needs of the club was adopted. A critic and correspondent secretary were elected.

The social committee reported, that after the ghostly and most enjoyable Hallowe'en social among the shades and shadows of the large grove at the home of Margaret Gerner, they were planning our next event for the Christmas holidays.

An interesting program is rendered each week. At our next meeting two of the boys are to prove to us that the early practice of taxing citizens according to the richness of their clothing was a better method of taxation than the present method.

At our last meeting, after the regular program was rendered, our president treated us to a social "The Fuzzy Wazzy worm."

We are back on our regular schedule now and the school is going nicely. Practically all of the students are back in school since most of the farmers are up with their cotton picking.

We had a short program at the school auditorium on the morning of November the 11th. Mrs. Hill and daughter Dorothy of Floydada Texas visited Miss Eula Bess Hill, and Dorothy read for us. We enjoyed her reading very much.

We are indebted to Miss Nan W. Potter for a number of library books which she contributed this week. This makes something like twenty books we have had donated in the past two weeks. We appreciate them very much and the students are making good use of them.

Our attendance to our Parent-teacher association continues to grow which I think is a good sign that the parents of our community are interested in the work we are trying to do. We appreciate very much the cooperation shown us by the patrons of the school.

We are sorry to lose Miss Goldis Atkinson from our school. We understand she will not be able to attend school any more this year. The Senior class is at work on a play which they hope to present in the near future.

Some of the teachers are contemplating going to the Teachers association which meets in Houston Thanksgiving. All of our teachers are members of the association this year.

We are making arrangements to begin work on our Inter-School

Profiteering In Time of War To Be Blocked

Government Commission Will Appportion All Military Supplies

The Federal Government is planning to take all profit out of war and at the same time mobilize industry and place it in the hands of a government commission in the event of hostilities, Frederick H. Payne, Assistant Secretary of War, stated in an address before the American Hardware Manufacturer's Association, of which he formerly was head, here on Oct. 22.

Mr. Payne said the plans did not provide for government possession of industrial plants in such a contingency, but for the placing of such establishments under a federal body named by the president. The plan owes its origin, he said, to a congressional commission to study methods for equalizing the burdens of and removing the profits from war.

In time of peace the plan would, he said, "allot suitable industrial establishments the task of initiating promptly upon the outbreak of war the production of specific amounts of essential items. Eventually the aggregate of these allotments will comprise the full list of army requirements for the initial stages of a major war."

"To provide for the desired distribution of this production task the country has been divided into 14 districts. Based on information obtained through detailed industrial surveys, the initial load is apportioned to districts in accordance with their respective capacities to absorb it."

"War Department representatives in the districts make sub-allotments to suitable industrial plants. Ordinarily no plant is given a task involving more than 50 per cent of its normal output. This permits each industrial facility to maintain commercial contacts and minimizes disturbance in normal industrial activity upon the outbreak of war. The unused capacity of these plants, together with that of the thousands unsuited for munitions production, will be able to furnish essentials to the civilians population."

"More than once," he said, referring to the peace-time aspect of the plan, "the accusation has been made that certain elements of our citizens hope to profit from war and are constantly spreading propaganda calculated to thrust us into war."

"If this accusation be true, then industrial planning, as I have described it, should correct the mistaken notions of prospective profiteers. A widespread realizing that war will mean the sacrifice by all and gain by none will do much to bring a selfish minority into entire accord with the undoubted peace-mindedness of the mass of our population."

V. N. Kennedy

The astute probability that members of the 42nd Legislature will receive compensation less than those of the Legislature was revealed this week by Representative T. Williams, retiring member of the Legislature, and citizens at that the recently adopted constitutional amendment will increase pay of legislators immediately.

But such must be in order, according to Williams. The five constitutional amendments adopted on Nov. 4 in enacting clauses. A legislative enactment will be necessary in each of them into effect. The wide-spread idea is that the 42 Legislature will convene on July 13 and immediately put rough their salary raise.

Williams refers to Section 18 of Article III of the State Constitution, which says: "No senator or representative shall, during the term for which he may be elected, be eligible any civil office of profit under this state, which shall have been created or the emoluments of which may have been increased, during such term."

This provision is strong enough to prevent the new Legislature from benefiting by the $10 per day amendment, is the claim of Williams. Members of the 43rd Legislature will be the first to receive the raise.

This same amendment which raises the pay also cuts the mileage allowance for traveling to or from sessions of the Legislature. Although this 911-H.

a definite limitation on the Legislature, says Williams. Therefore, members cannot receive mileage expenses at a rate of more than ten cents per mile, or about half of what has been allowed heretofore. Under the old constitutional provision the maximum that could be allowed for traveling was $5 for every 25 miles traveled.

In this way the solons of the 42 will be receiving actually less than their predecessors, although most of them have the idea that they will receive $10 per day, according provision is not self-enacting, it is to the Travis County Representative.
