A friend to the farmer, his home and his family. A champion of his rights and a willing promoter of his interests.

Volume 5 Number 3

CLARENDON, DONLEY COUNTY, TEXAS, MARCH 23, 1933

A Common Paper For Common People

MODERNIZED APRIL FOOL.

If we are to believe all that we see, hear, feel, taste and smell in the daily papers, there will be no need for Sunday school money after April 1st—merely beer checks for the preacher.

MONEY AFFAIRS AFFECTING PEOPLE DONLEY COUNTY

Resources of Home County Not Generally Known Is Of Interest

During the cotton season of 1922, there was a total of 13,394 bales of cotton ginned in Donley county. Several were ginned in adjoining counties, but there is no way to get the exact information.

School pupils of this county are credited with $1.66 each as their share of the gasoline tax paid in the county through 1932, the total being $4,467.06. This money is more commonly referred to as the "state apportionment." There are 2,691 scholars in the county.

The Highway Department expended a total of $49,873.01 on the highways of the county and for salaries during 1932. This money came from the gasoline tax.

Donley county produces more peas, roasting ear corn, water melons, canteloupes and tomatoes for the plains market than any other county in the Panhandle. The melons not only find a market in the Panhandle, but Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico and Kansas as well. Some of these products were marketed in east Texas the past season.

Citizens West of Town Are Not Lined Up Yet

The editor of the Leader had his attention called to a matter Monday that will necessarily call for more explanation.

He had stated that the citizens west of town had all signed up for the highway right-of-way. He is now informed that C. J. Talley, J. E. Baker, Conda Jones and four others have not signed up.

We are giving this information the same prominence as that given the other statement. It is never the policy of the Leader to intentionally mislead any one. We have not been accused of anything misleading, and this article will likely get us all straightened out again.

Uncle Bill Mullins Died At Hedley Monday

Another pioneer of the Hedley section to pass away over the week was Uncle Bill Mullins who died early Monday morning. Rev. Luther Crawford conducted the funeral service Tuesday.

Mr. Mullins had lived in that section for more than thirty years and was a highly respected citizen.

GRAPE GROWERS OF CALIFORNIA ARE RELIEVED

President Signs Beer, Wine Bill Wednesday Using 4 Different Gold Pens

After April 6th it will be legal to sell wine and beer of not more than 3.2 alcoholic content in fourteen states—none near Texas—that have already repealed state laws governing sale of intoxicants.

Prohibitionists are already busy looking to court action to stop the flow of wine and beer. At the same time, Milwaukee starts a bartender training school where both men and women may become learned in the art of foam flecking, bar wiping and geniality befitting those who would draw customers.

The President will be asked to pardon those in penal institutions doing time for liquor violations in the 14 states where the sale will be legal after April 6th.

Others are of the opinion that if some convicts are freed of a certain charge in some states, it should be made universal in all the states since to do otherwise will be showing favoritism.

Rev. Atticus Webb of Dallas, veteran booze fighter and head of the Anti-Saloon League, is calling to his colors all the available cash possible with which to open pro campaigns known only to the old-timers of the Lone Star state. It is believed that the Dean law will prevent the sale of intoxicants in Texas until the people voice their sentiments through a constitutional amendment in 1934.

Under the new law just passed, the brewer pays $1,000 a year tax, the wholesaler $50 a year and the retailer $20. The large tax income talked in the beginning melted to nothing with the final passing of the bill according to Webb's statement.

"Tony The Convict" Will Be Presented at Goldston School Tonight

The first effort in presenting their convict play meeting with such popular favor at Lelia Friday night, the Odd Fellow Dramatic club will present the play at the Goldston school this (Thursday) night.

Although a number of players had their first opportunity to experience stage fright, the fright failed to develop and the play went over in a manner that met with the approval of a goodly sized audience that showed every appreciation.

The readings between acts and the popular brand of music in charge of the best community skill, rounded out an evening of entertainment that is said to have exceeded that for many months.

This play is purely a benefit play in which the proceeds are divided between the school and the widow and orphan fund of the Lodge. A small charge of ten and fifteen cents will be made to help the good causes espoused by the management.

The cast of characters tonight will be the same as published in the Leader last week for the Lelia play. F. O. (Doc) Woods will direct.

Great Guns!!

Here's hoping that the President safely pilots the old Ship of State through the storms of adversity in spite of her Dern, Woodin, Hull.

There's a Reason.

When Senator Glass was offered the position of Secretary of the Treasury, he refused the job simply because President Roosevelt refused to permit two men of J. P. Morgan & Company bankers to occupy responsible positions along with him.

The President likely had in mind the fact that he was to—and sincerely did—order a continuation of the investigation of Wall street's financial giants.

This is Bottom.

Since Congress delegated so much authority to the President, the nation has been moving along with almost military precision. There is no objection to obeying military orders if they are backed by common sense in a peace time battle against uncertainty and fear.

There is no aftermath of discontent following the banking holiday. Americans have shown their willingness to follow a leader who has the courage, ingenuity and honesty to quash the innumerable problems that will arise as the campaign toward recovery progresses.

The biggest battle ever fought on American soil is going on right now on the battlefields of trade, commerce, finance and general business. Never before has a victorious army every been armed with nothing more than confidence and common sense. We have scraped bottom, and there is no way out but up.

Just a Neighbor.

Having already accomplished half of the impossible, the President chooses to talk to his followers over the radio. He wishes to explain matters—to offer encouragement. Totally unlike his predecessor, there is no secrecy about the man at head-quarters.

The fact that he invited fifty press correspondents to visit him at an appointed hour every day is but one of the many sensible qualities of the new president. He wants to take all real Americans into his confidence. How readily they have chosen to follow him, is known to practically every citizen already.

His willingness to shoulder censure in effecting a saving of a half billion dollars of tax money under his Economy bill shows his human sympathy. His orders to continue the investigation of outlaws in high finance betokens his willingness to protect our citizens. Every act helps to emphasize the assurance of a new deal.

In-law and Out-law.

Down near Quanah last week, a gentleman who had what he believed to be an overplus of "in-laws", proceeded to hatch up a new scheme for informing them of the fact without personal conversation that might have disrupted diplomatic relations.

He chose a shotgun. Creeping up to his home after darkness had bathed mother nature into serenity, he took deliberate aim at his own front door and turned Mary Jane loose with a charge that was calculated to impress the most unwary and diffident.

It did nothing more than create a stir within the family domicile. A second charge into the front door caused the "in-laws" to suddenly remember unfinished business elsewhere. They retreated via of the back door immediately. Every plan has its draw-backs.

No sooner did the in-laws reach Quanah than they proceeded to tell the law all about the suggestion impressively forced upon them. Now the old gentleman is under bond for using a method that has been commonly in use for many, many years, but never patented. At any rate, the inlaws are long gone.

Farmers And Publicity.

The publicity on public matters given through the Leader is being done with one sole purpose in view—to enable the farmers to arrive at a knowledge of what might help him in legislation.

Many articles have been printed showing government waste. Proof was offered with each article together with the source of information given in all fairness to the accused and our readers.

Who writes laws affecting the lawyers but the lawyers themselves? Who had the big say in the recent banking legislation but the bankers themselves. Who writes the laws proposed in your state legislature affecting schools but the school heads and school associations?

We do not claim that they are all wrong. Neither would we say that they are all right, but we do say that there is no one directly looking after the interests of the farmers—that class upon which the success of every measure rests.

Who made the mortgage foreclosure laws but the mortgage companies themselves? Those of you who have been foreclosed are perfectly familiar with the deficiency judgment. When they sell you out, there remains a club hanging over your head the remainder of your days. After taking the shirt off your back at the time of sale, the deficiency judgment takes the new shirt off in the same manner provided you ever get able to own a new shirt.

Publicity and discussion in the weekly papers are what are forcing law-makers to correct some of these evils right now. Honesty never fears sane publicity. We need more of it, and the great masses of the people look to the modern country weekly for their information, more than from any other source.

Texas Had The Only Cannibal Indians in United States

Karankaws were the only Indian cannibals known when the first Spanish explorers reached our nation. They occupied a small strip of country near the gulf coast. Because of their habits, they became the prey of every other tribe, and gradually perished.

The following article was written by Prof. J. E. Pearce giving some information relative to coast tribes:

"The middle coast from Galveston to Corpus Christi bay has the same type of burial as the upper coast. One very ingenious artifact from a burial on the coast below Corpus Christi, though it does not belong to East Texas proper, is a tubular piece of sandstone excavated into trumpet form about eight inches long by some two inches wide at the open end, and fitted with a mouthpiece made of a section of a lower human arm bone. It contained ground-up asphalt and charred vegetation, indicating that it was a fire-keeping and fire-making apparatus. It must have been very valuable for this purpose in a damp region having only poor firewood. Several specimens of this apparatus are in private collections at present. They came, as one would expect, from regions of gnarled, tough scrub growth where making fire would be difficult and where a means of carrying and preserving it would have high value. It has been suggested that they may bear a relation to the 'cloud-blowers' of the Pueblo area.

"In November, 1931, I explored a burial place on Agua Dulce Bayou about eight miles west of Robstown. At this place I found the remains of about twenty-five butchered human bodies buried in a wide shallow pit, possibly the refuse of a characteristic Karankawa cannibal feast. Many of the bones show the marks of axes, and all along bones have been broken into at least two or three pieces. This find tends to confirm the historical reputation of the Indians of this region for cannibalism."

Young Man Achieves Success In New Field

Although he still lacks a few months completing his college work, Hughes Gilliam, a young and brilliant pre-med student of Texas Technological College, Lubbock, has already launched into a project that will develop into his fame if his present progress continues. His inchoate project is called The Gilliam Chemical Company, and his profession is procreating and formulating "Charme" cosmetic preparations. Many noted chemists and authorities have analyzed his products and have ranked them with the finest and purest in the market.

Mr. Gilliam's friends are enthusiastically backing him. Dr. C. Glabraith, Head of the Department of Chemistry in Tech, is a staunch supporter and promoter; he is also secretary of the company. Mrs. Mary S. Lovell, former owner of Lovell Hall, a girls' dormitory at the College, is vice-president. Mrs. Hughes Gilliam, who received her Bachelor of Science degree last year from Tech, is a congenitally capable assistant in her husband's laboratories, and she plays an infallible but unobtrusive part in ameliorating his preparations. These two young entrepreneurs, who have so discreetly manifested their optimism and stamina, are headed unerringly toward success.

Ever since Hughes Gilliam was a small boy he has been studying and experimenting in the field of science. At his home in Haskell, during his high school days, he had his own individual laboratory in which to experiment. Because of his profound curiosity he was constantly worrying the neighbors with explosions, fires, and "midnight oil."

According to his college instructors, he possesses the highest discriminative intelligence of any pre-med student that has ever been enrolled in Tech.

Garden time and the early bird gets the worm. But who likes worms?

Some continue to plant in the moon and the moon planters always have a better garden than those who plant in the earth.

Bob Reed is a great boy. Had an article about him last week and we hope to have his farmer article in this week as copied from the college publication back there in old Arkansaw.

And while I think of it, Mrs. Rich Bowlin, a neighbor, had a lot to do with Bob's going to Arkansaw to school, and personally, I want to thank her most heartily.

Every week several come in to get a paper to read a certain article they have heard the folks talking about. Get a paper of your own, folks, it does not cost much, and we run short every week here in the office.

Remember old soaked, soured, stewed, pie-eyed, sizzled, pickled, squiffed, teed up, tanked, groggy, woozy, cornfed, fuddled, half shot, lit up, full as a goat and a lot more of 'em? She's comin' back and we might as well brush up on our language.

Referring to ladies' spring hats, we may see chapeaux in pill-box, tip-tilt and fex varieties or kinds. Let 'em come. Anything for a change.

Speaking of big jobs, the hardest job of all is for a woman to remain satisfied while living in an environment totally unsuited to her tastes, talents and training.

Man is the only animal that has always been a puzzle to himself. We slap each other on the back and say "be a man", but who ever heard of a certain animal slapping one of his tribe on the back and yelling "be a monkey?"

One of the very best articles ever to appear in the Leader was written by a farmer. This man never before attempted to break into print so far as I have been able to learn. He hit the nail squarely on the head in every sentence because he was writing about hard facts as they affected the farmer.

An incident happened recently that is too good to keep under cover. It also illustrates how important it is that every family should have reading matter for the young folks in the home.

It seems that a party was in progress and that it also happened that a very talented dramatic teacher and reader was a guest at the party. In some manner the hostess found out that she had a "reader" present. In order to appear most gracious in entertaining, the hostess approached the "reader" and said: "I understand you are a reader?"

Did the dramatic teacher grab a Sears & Roebuck catalog and read a few pages? She did not!! Did she read an encore number from the pages of Hostetter's almanac? She did not!!!! Why? Because the family did not even "take" catalogs and almanacs!!!! This is a fact if I ever told one.

Names are being withheld under fear of shotgun barrage, but it all happened within 10 miles of the "Athens of the Panhandle" where the public schools rate better than 30 in affiliation and the town truthfully boasts of one of the best Junior colleges in the nation.

Just after writing the above, a man, his wife and their son dropped in to pay the Apostle a pop call. After telling this man about the above, he gave me the name of a young lady of 16 right here in Clarendon who had never been to Sunday school.

All the Apostle has to say about either of both cases is that these families have my undying sympathy and something ought to be done to remedy matters right now. The family that never reads anything, will have something to read next week.

It is no disgrace to be ignorant, but it "is" to stay that way.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stebbins and son Pat of Oakland California arrived Sunday to make Lelia Lake their home.

Many a man thinks he is an ideal husband when he can muster up enough courage to get up in the night and hand his wife an aspirin tablet.

George Moore, aged 10 and a pupil of the Chamberlain school spent a visit with us Saturday. He is of that gentlemanly type of well-trained boys who can make his visits pleasant, get information, see new things and always have a ready welcome to return.

Most every day now we get a request for recipes for cheese making. The season will soon be here when cows are at their best and there is no good reason why most any family should not be enjoying the most wholesome of foods—cheese. We want recipes for making both kinds. There is a method by which cream cheese may be made without an expensive press, or at least one that is home made, and that is what we want. If you use the bucket method, tell us about it. How do you make it?

COUNTY SCHOOL NEWS

(4) The tax is possible of administration.
(5) It is not an unpopular tax.
(6) In the main the merchants shift the tax.
(7) There is little loss to business in the state due to the tax.
(8) The incidence of the tax is primarily on the consumer.
(9) Failure to shift the tax is due either to the lack of cooperation among the merchants or to small sales of certain types of merchandise.
(10) The sales tax judged by its efficiency as a revenue producer and by its reaction on business in the state at a time of great business distress - - - has justified itself at least as an emergency measure.

Dr. O. Latham Hatcher, President of the Southern Womens Educational Alliance in a personal letter writes:
"Something should be done, and promptly, to direct public interest and sense of responsibility specifically to unemployed rural people, who are being almost completely forgotten now in such considerable provision as is being made in cities for safeguarding morale, for further education, for training and retraining in evening and continuation schools.
"Of approximately forty-eight million children in the united states more than half are rural.
"Nineteen million or more than half, of all the public school children are rural.
"Nineteen million or more than half of all the public school children are rural.
"Of all our public schools, about one hundred and fifty thousand, two thirds or 1000,000 are one room rural buildings.
"They need information, council and cooperation in making and carrying out educational plans."
Dean W. A. Clark's report shows that 72 students were enrolled in Clarendon Junior College for the year 1931-32. Of this number 56 were from Clarendon, 10 students were from the rural districts which belong to the Clarendon Junior College District and six were from other places. There are 75 students in Clarendon College this year, 47 are from Clarendon, 13 are from the rural districts belonging to the Clarendon College District and twelve are from other places. The Clarendon Independent School District does not charge any of the Superintendent's salary or Librarian's salary to the Junior College. Neither are any of the running expenses such as heat, light, water, janitor salary, chalk, erasers, etc., come from the Junior College Funds. By doing this the Junior College tax goes to meet the College Teacher's salary only. There is no state aid for the College. The Student pays not over $30 per year fees and deposits if subjects requiring laboratory work are taken and less if he takes no laboratory work. In times of distress as at present the Clarendon Junior College is meeting the emergency by furnishing educational facilities to many who would otherwise be unable to attend school.
Mr. Sid Thomas of Ashtola reports that the Rural Track Meet held at his school last Friday was a success.
All the County Schools are working hard this week training entries for Interscholastic Meet to be held in Clarendon this week end.

Rev. and Mrs. M. M. Beaver spent Tuesday in Hereford.

The boys and girls won the county championship in basketball and our aim is to win a big part in the track meet. We have some entries in the literary events but more in the track part.
The sand almost covered the school Saturday and Sunday. On Monday morning the pupils and teachers had a time cleaning up. The stove pipe fell down and scattered soot all over everything. Our principal had a black face the rest of the day.

PLAN SAVES MONEY FOR FARMER

Mr. Bennett of Clarendon Grain Co., our implement dealer, has just returned from a meeting of the John Deere Dealers held in Amarillo, where the John Deere Wheat, Corn and Cotton Plan was announced and explained by Mr. McFaden, Sales Manager of the Company.
The John Deere Plow Comany realizing the abnormally low prices now being paid for farm products has announced a plan whereby the farmer buying John Deere equipment this spring is assured of a much higher scale of prices on wheat, corn and cotton than the present market.
Mr. Bennett is impressed with the liberality of the plan and commended the John Deere Plow Company for the substantial allowances which it is authorizing them to make their farmer customers on the sale of John Deere Implements purchased during these unprecedented times.

These boys will make some one hustle for all the first places in the track events for senior boys: J. E. Duckett, Royal pentathlon, 100 yd. dash, 220 yd. dash, 220 yd. low hurdles, shot put.

Robert Hott—Broad jump and high jump; Earl Webb—Broad jump, high jump, 440 yd. dash and shot put; Vernon Reid—880 yd. run.

These young athletes will enter in the track events for junior boys: Wilfred Hott—Broad jump, high jump; J. B. Duckett—Broad jump, high jump. We will also enter in the mile relay.

SENATE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

42nd TEXAS LEGISLATURE 1931-1932

Members of Committee
Senator J. W. E. H. Beck, Chairman
 Senator Carl C. Hardin, Vice-Chairman
 Senator George C. Purl, Attorney
 Senator Joe M. Moore
 Senator Tom De Berry

INFORMATION REQUIRED FROM DISTRICT CLERKS

To facilitate the work of your Committee, we found it would be necessary to have the following information: Authentic list of script issued for out-of-county witnesses; a transcript of the criminal court dockets; and a list of the fines and costs collected from defendants in felony cases, for the 254 Counties in Texas.

Script Issued.
 Upon investigation your Committee found that the provisions of Section 4, Article 1036, Code of Criminal Procedure, had never been complied with. This Section reads as follows:

"The District or Criminal District Judge, when any such bill is presented to him, shall examine the same carefully, and inquire into the correctness thereof and approve the same, in whole or in part or disapprove the entire bill, as the facts and law may require; and said bill with the action of the Judge thereon, shall be entered on the minutes of said Court; and immediately on the rising of said Court, the Clerk thereof shall make a certified copy from the minutes of said Court of said bill, and the action of the Judge thereon, and send the same by registered mail to the Comptroller, for which service the Clerk shall be entitled to a fee of twenty-five cents to be paid by the witness."

Article 414 and Article 415 of the Penal Code provide that such officer shall be fined not exceeding $200.00 for failure to perform any duty imposed on him by the Penal Code or Code of Criminal Procedure.

We cannot emphasize too strongly the serious harm that has come to this State, from a financial standpoint and from the dereliction of duty involved brought about because the State Comptroller's Department failed to require the District Clerks of this State to comply with this simple duty.

Due to this dereliction more than two hundred thousand dollars of forged witness script was paid by the State Treasurer for fraudulent script issued in Dallas County alone.

One ex-Deputy District Clerk committed suicide after complaint had been filed for his arrest on account of this forgery in Dallas County.

A former District Clerk who was also practicing this nefarious scheme committed suicide while under arrest. In this case forty thousand dollars was taken from the State.

And one District Clerk, when found guilty was confined in the penitentiary. He admittedly secured more than twelve thousand dollars.

While considerable remedial legislation is necessary to curb the evils of the Fee System, in this instance had the law been obeyed by the District Clerk and the Comptroller, or either one of them, such wholesale raids over a long period of years on the State Treasury could not have been possible.

The above mentioned laws were called to the attention of the Comptroller by your Committee and we are advised that this Section of the law is now being complied with.

Since the Comptroller was unable to furnish us with this information, required to be in his office by Article 1036, Code of Criminal Procedure, for the period from September 1, 1925, to May 31, 1931 we requested the District Clerks to furnish the data, and with a few exceptions, all complied with our request.

Ten Simple Rules Insures Your Chick Success

"Who wants to find their chicks in the 'Missing in Action' Column? asks C. S. Johnson, manager of the poultry department of the Purina Mills, in giving pre-season suggestions as to how to best handle baby chicks this year for bigger profits.

"There are ten simple rules to follow which will help the poultry raiser to bring his baby chick crop through 100 per cent." Johnson points out. "They are first, select early-hatched, vigorous chicks from disease-free stock; second, move brooder house to clean ground. Thoroughly clean and disinfect all equipment; third, avoid overcrowding in brooder house. Provide plenty of feeding and watering space; fourth, carefully regulate ventilation and temperature; fifth, keep a high quality starting mash continually before chicks the first six weeks; sixth, be sure the chicks have plenty of fresh water.

"The seventh rule is separate the cockerels from the pullets and market as broilers as early as possible; eighth, provide range shelter and clean shaded range for growing birds; ninth, keep a high quality growing mash before birds at all times from 7th to 20th week.

The tenth rule is feed scratch grain starting the fourth day if using the mash and grain system of raising chicks and the seventh week if the all-mash system. Of course if chicks are fed an all-mash growing ration beginning the seventh week, no scratch grain is fed.

"About 50 per cent of all chicks hatched die," Johnson says. "Every dead chick is a lost opportunity for profit. Poultrymen can do a lot in the way of care and management to save many more than 50 per cent of the hatched chicks."

Poultrymen who are interested in additional information on how to care for baby chicks can secure without charge a bulletin titled "Turning Baby Chicks into Big Pullets", which contains all of the very latest poultry information. Simply ask for it at Clarendon Hatchery.

"TOMORROW WE START PICKING"

By Bob Reed
 Commonwealth Student

Harvey, already out of his overalls, hastened to blow out the light. There were no curtains on the windows facing the road and the lights of a passing car cast shadows on the wall. Town kids joy-riding, probably. The noise died in the distance and he could hear the big eight-day clock downstairs ticking. It struck eight times. "Tomorrow we start pickin'," he said to himself. "Don't seem any time since I was haulin' cotton to the gin last year. The time when the wagon broke down and I was late at night gettin' back. Cotton went up two cents in one week and everybody thought hard times were over. Hard times, huh, they hadn't even started. Well, yes they had started. Don't guess I can remember when there was anything else.

"Cottin pickin' means dam hard work and lots of it. Days and days, and weeks and weeks of it. Now until Christmas. It's funny, too. Don't guess I mind it so much as I do plantin' and hoein'. It's the time of the year when there is a little money coming in." He smiled bitterly in the dark. His weary limbs were sprawled out over the sheet seeking the cool places. The room was still sultry, holding the heat that had been pushed into it by the sun.

"Yeah, lots of money comin' in. Cotton six cents. Once, not so far back, it was thirty." He and pa ought to make twenty bales. Twenty or thirty dollars a bale. Out of that, rent to pay—he and the kids couldn't pick it all—have to have help. Dam lot of money! A new pair of pants and shoes for a year's work. Maybe a suit. But what did he need with a suit? Don't take fancy clothes to push a mule down a furrow. Strong back, weak mind—all it takes to farm.

Cottin picking time again. He had the picture in his mind of the field as he had seen it that day. The leaden color of the stalks and leaves had given way to the fleecy whiteness of the cotton. Days of warm weather had brought to maturity the plants he had nursed and protected. The change came gradually, not over night.

He had watched the process since he had first known how to watch anything. Here and there a hard boll cracks, tiny alits of white showing through. Slowly the cracks widen, until the once green covering is a dried hull, from which dangles fluffy white locks.

Sometimes those snowy locks are destroyed before they can be plucked. There was the year of the hail storm. Picking had just begun. Large handfuls of cotton, made fluffy and white by the hot sun were drooping in the burrs, waiting to be picked. Heat waves danced against the crest of the low hills on the horizon. That night the storm came—wind and hail, and the next morning the cotton was matted lumps of dingy rags strewn over the ground, half covered with wet sand. Even the stalks were beaten and crushed.

Debts and low prices to fight, and not even nature on your side. Always a battle, not for rewards but for existence. Fight and keep fighting. Tomorrow we start pickin'.

The first picking will not make much change in the appearance of the field. You leave behind you more bolls coming of age. But late in the season, with the second or third going-over, you leave behind you little brown trees, with burrs like little empty hands clutching.

"I should be sleeping. I've got to start early. It's hard work." He tossed wearily, and fumed on his belly. "As long as I can remember I've gone out in the field to pick cotton. Always the same. I go out in the morning to work and come back at night tired and sore and stiff and eat supper and pile into bed and pile out again at four. Six days in the week, year in and year out. I'm twenty years old, and just where I was when I started. Cotton!"

Harvey shuddered in his bed. His mouth felt dry as if it were filled with cotton, as if some one were pushing the smothery stuff down his throat. Wide awake, after this little night-mare, he pulled the sheet over his body.

Why had he been born the son of a tenant farmer? There was not supposed to be such a thing today as a slave, but God—years of hitching up mules, of dragging heavy cotton sacks. How he longed to be away from it! The sameness of it—dreary, companionless farm life. His years, all of them he could remember, had meant harvesting cotton: planting, plowing, picking—tomorrow we start picking.

It was the future—tomorrow we start picking—then planting to be done. His old mother's voice, getting shrill, "Harvey, son, how old are you today?"

Dreams turned into night-mares by the grinding of the cotton planter, by the clank, clank of hoes striking stones. Finally, a weary old man bowed under the weight of a cotton sack. Life was a soft, white, cotton trap.

Harvey pressed his arm against his eyes. He seemed to be afire. There was no breeze through the window, but he pulled the sheet tight against him. Sleep did not come, although his muscles ached with weariness.

Love! Every man's right to happiness! What had it meant to him?

Gaudy stories in pulp magazines. Little else. What had he to offer to a woman? A six-foot frame, and nothing outside of that.

Farming is a cycle. A man marries, rents a place, lives through twenty years of hard work. During this time he has a son, who branches off and the cycle goes on. A hard ring to break. When he was a kid he'd had ideas of how he'd break away and make good—but he'd never been sure at what he'd make good. Now with the old man in bad health and deeply in debt, and his mother dependent upon him—he couldn't leave these people, even if he had a chance.

Life was a cotton row that runs in a circle. You're on the inside and must work—year after year—no way to get out—tomorrow we start picking.

Our Weekly CHURCH CHAT

W. E. FERRELL
Minister First Christian Church

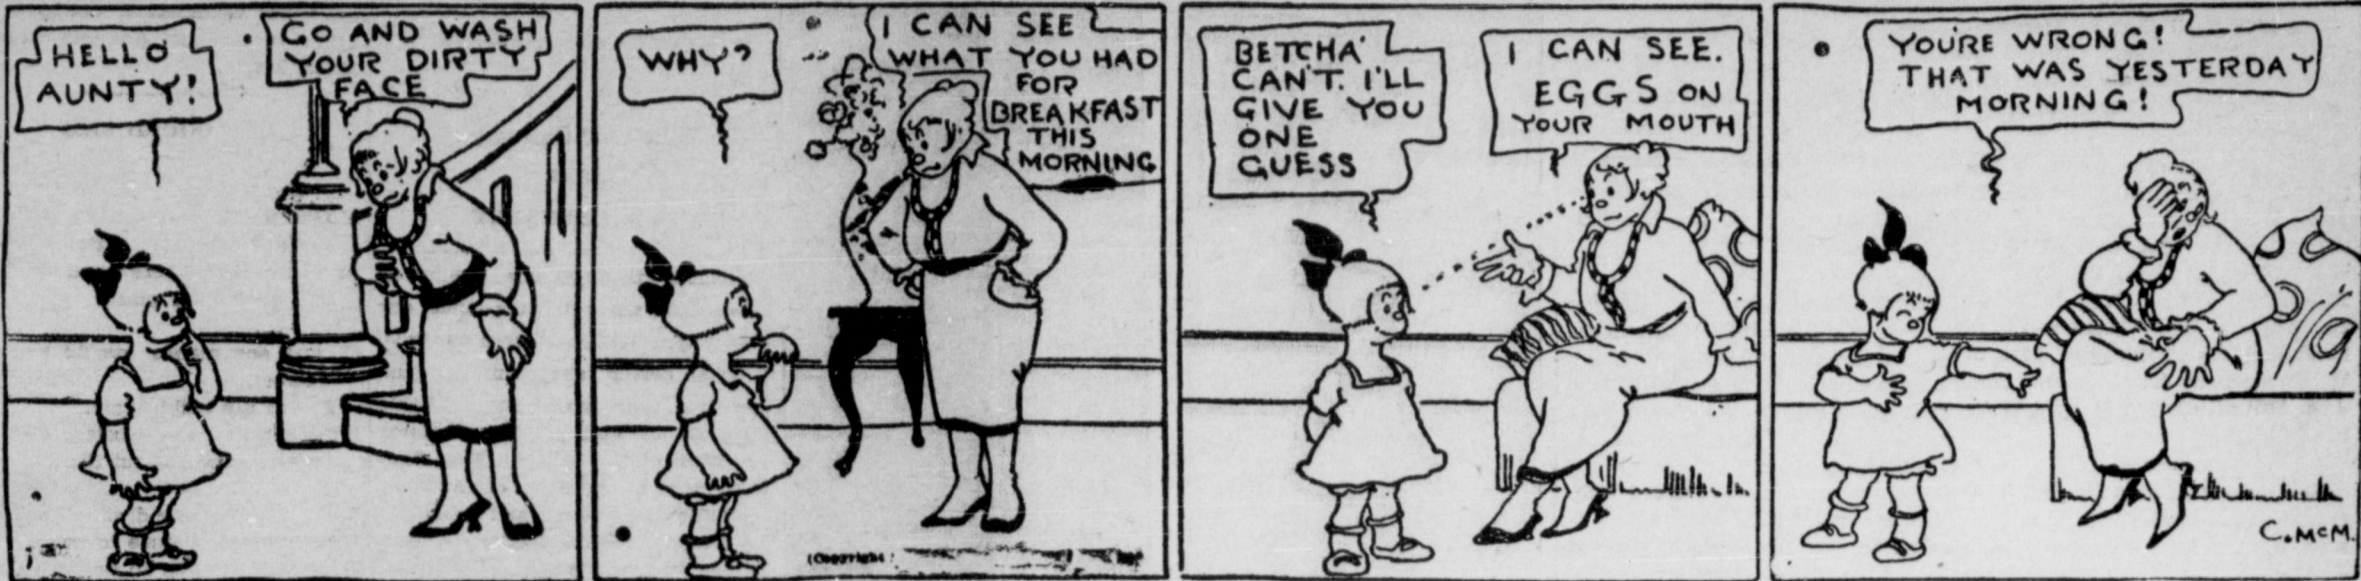

Theme: "THE CHURCH LOST AND FOUND."

VII. "A Plea for Christian Unity."

Believing that the Bible gives the complete history of the church, that it reveals God's plan for the salvation of humanity, and tells us what we must do to be saved and how to stay saved, and that the church as it was established in the beginning was perfect in its organization, plan and program and that no man or body of men have the rights to change any of its teaching, we appeal to all who profess to be Christians to discard all teachings, plans and programs that are revealed and taught in the New Testament. Believing that when people departed from the God given plan, the church was carried into a dark age and suffered many losses, and that denominationalism had its birth and has caused much spiritual suffering and strife, we appeal to all men everywhere to help rid the world of denominationalism and assist in the restoration of the New Testament church with all of its plans and programs.

Denominationalism, removed would enable the church to speedily accomplish its mission in carrying the gospel into the uttermost parts of the earth. Duplication of work and workers would be avoided, and the name of Christ would be glorified. All would be members of one great family, wearing the one family name, and would be guided by the same creed and discipline, the Bible which is God's inspired word to the human race. No town or community would be over-churched, none would be under-churched. None would be asking the question, "What church must I join?" for there would be but one church and that one working according to God's desire.

Brethren in Christ, partakers of the heavenly calling, this is the task of the people of God throughout the world. The restoration of primitive Christianity, in its doctrine, its ordinances and its practices. Jesus while standing in the shadow of the cross prayed that His followers might be one. That there would be one flock and one shepherd. Christian Unity is practical and Christ prayed for it. With Christian unity, we can convince the world that God sent His Son to save the lost. Let's work for it.

BOOK TALK

By Lallah Wright

It seems inconceivable that a girl so lovely as Judith Earle exists—so beautiful, romantic, idealistic, and genuinely effeminate. But she is here, and to stay forever. She will be remembered in literature as the sweetest expression of childhood and young womanhood of the twentieth century. Judith is a living character in "Dusty Answer", presented by Rosamond Lehmann, an English novelist.

A child, Judith watched people, studied people, especially their faces. She found in faces meticulous revelations. A young woman, she still studied the same faces, and achingly remembered. Life, to her, was an hallucination and an everlasting mystery, never solved.

She loved and was loved, but her inescapable destiny was a dusty answer. Honesty, truthfulness, were her elements. She offered these gems and unduly got imitations in return.

The story is nearly formidable. It is filled with tenderness and pathos so real that one cannot read it without living it.

Judith's love for her college friend, Jennifer, is overwhelming. A friendship like theirs—so thoroughly understanding—can develop only at college where the true essence of a person is revealed. Judith and Jennifer were so different yet so alike. Their very existences were antithesis and analogy combined, if that is possible; they were two different people living in separate worlds, then through their college association the difference dissolved, only to develop again when they finished school and went back to their separate worlds. They never saw each other again. One letter, written and answered, was the climax of their beautiful friendship.

Judith loved Roddy Fyfe, of the family of three boy-cousins next door, from childhood. Even the answer to this deep love was dusty. The affair was that which we sometimes call "love in profile,"—for all the cousins loved her except the one she loved. That fact brought about a distressing conclusion.

At the end, one marvels at Judith for not having that dull feeling of self-commiseration. She did not—could not. Although her friends and lovers had gone from her, one by one, she was still to be happy, for she loved her thoughts.

WINDY VALLEY SCHOOL NEWS

Last Friday, March 17, Mr. and Mrs. Dillard took the members of the high school together with the seventh grade to the track meet at Ashtola. Some twenty-two boys and girls made the trip all having a fine time and winning many honors for Windy Valley.

The track meet started at 1:00 o'clock with teams from Goodnight McKnight, Ashtola and Windy Valley present. In the Junior division, Windy Valley was first with 28 points, Goodnight second with 12 points. In the senior division, Goodnight was first with 66 points, Windy Valley second with 38 points and Ashtola third with 15 points.

All the contestants for the scholastic meet have just about reached perfection, the literary events are all in good shape and the boys in track will be ready by Wednesday to take the county meet. The meet at Ashtola was just what was needed to show the boys their weak places. With Bill Parker, N. C. Stogner and Dick Noble in the field events, Winfred Noble, Theo Noble, Dick Noble, George Simmons, Gordon Mann, Wylie Buchanan and Royce Hughes in the track events; all of these will cause the stock of Windy Valley to soar on Fri. and Sat. March 24 and 25th.

The six-weeks exams are over, and every one has settled back to work. The children have been promised a series of pop quizzes which they hope will take the place of the last exams before finals.

On last Friday, March 17, we completed five months of school in which numerous things have been accomplished. There are two more months and many, many things still incomplete, but with that "never give up spirit", which prevails down at the school house, Windy Valley is destined to close one of the greatest years in its history.

In preparation for the base ball season, Mr. Dillard received three gloves, two bats, half dozen balls and a mask together with the material that remains from last year puts the material for base ball in mighty fine shape. But the boys are crossing the bridges as they get to them. They are not thinking base ball until they take the county track meet.

On Friday March 31st, the district meeting of the Donley County Trustees Principal Organization will meet in Windy Valley, at which time an excellent program will be presented by the organization and Windy Valley will furnish the entertainment. Every one is cordially invited and urged to attend.

The above meeting on the 31st of March will take the place of the monthly Literary Society. At the present time, Mr. Dillard is sending two play casts through their places in preparation for this program.

Seventh District
The McDowell Club of Memphis is planning a special Fine Arts program as a feature of its National Music Week Observance.

The Program Committee of the Seventh District held a meeting in Amarillo Friday to work out the details of the Convention which will be held in Hereford, April 19, 20 and 21. Mrs. Tom Rose of Pampa, Mrs. Bob Wilson and Mrs. B. F. Guthrie of Hereford, Mrs. J. W. Sanders of Amarillo and Mrs. J. A. Hill of aCanyon are preparing the program.

Every club of the Seventh District is requested and urged to send the District President, Mrs. J. A. Hill, a list of its new officers who will serve during the club year 1933-34. Mrs. Hill states that the State and District Year Book is to be compiled within the next month, and that it is vitally important to have the correct information for its pages. The number of members should also be given by each club reporting, for only in this way can correct statistics be made up by the State officers. A post card communication will be enough to carry all the information necessary.

Clubs throughout the District are evincing special interest in the maintenance and further building of good roads. It is generally held that quick transportation and easy communication are essential to present day society.

Delegates to the Hereford Convention will have a chance to learn to sing a song extolling the junior clubs of the district. Copies of the words have been distributed by Mrs. W. P. Avriett, Junior chairman, of Lamesa.

"Valuable Cripple"

Despite his artificial leg, J. W. Dale of the Pine Tree (Gregg county) basketball team has been voted the most valuable player on his squad. Any boy who played against him at the Interscholastic League meet at Jacksonville recently will testify that J. W. is a real tough. He also plays football.

HOW TO WIN PREFERENCE WITH EMPLOYERS

When executives need office help, they want someone who is trained to do the work from the first day, and who has the broad knowledge of business which will make his or her services more and more valuable as time goes by.

Because we have placed so many young people in offices in the past, our school has built up a reputation among employers. They know that they can rely upon our recommendations; therefore many of them call us first when there is an opening.

IF I COULD SEE
By Adda May Hamaker
If God would only let me see
For one brief moment's space,
Into the realm where loved ones go
Into that quiet place.

O, just one glance would be so sweet,
To see my child again.
I think that I could better wait
And be more patient then.

If I could hear my darling's voice
Call "mother" once to me,
It would not seem so far away,
Where he has gone to be.

Sometimes I think I almost can See through the mystic veil,
And yet the shades are closely drawn
Around this earthly pale.
