

1936 VISITORS WILL BRING VARIED COLOR IN LICENSE PLATES

San Antonio Express: This is going to be a tough winter for color-blind San Antonians, anxious to join the game of "Where did that car come from?" likely to be so popular during the approaching tourist season and the influx of visitors here for the Texas Centennial, it was announced Saturday by the San Antonio Automobile League.

The league has just received from the American Automobile Association a list of the color schemes to be seen on car tags in all States, territories and provinces of Canada next year. Every one, it is expected, will appear here during the Centennial year. In Alamo Plaza, on the Old Spanish Trail and the main highways leading from the north and west are where they are most likely to be seen.

The 1936 color combinations range from North Dakota's vivid midnight blue on dark orange and Alabama's crimson on white to the simple black on white of Missouri. Some of them already have appeared here from States where it is permissible to attach 1936 markers before the end of this year.

REMARKABLE GROWTH OF CITY IS SHOWN IN CENSUS FIGURES

Back in 1860, when the United States department of census began to take notice of the City of Brownwood, there were 155 people here. That is approximately 1 per cent of the total estimated by the department to live in Brownwood in 1935, when the figure had reached 15,131.

An interesting story in the growth of Brownwood as a city and as a trading center is shown in the census figures. For the period covered by the census, they are: Population of City of Brownwood, 1860-1935:

Year 1860, 155; 1870, 371; 1880, 725; 1890, 2,176; 1900, 3,965; 1910, 6,967; 1920, 8,223; 1930, 12,789; 1935, 15,131.

The number of families in the city showed a proportionate increase from 31 in 1860 to 3,861 in 1935. The growth in population and number of families has been a steady growth, showing substantial increases each ten years, with no abnormal boom periods and no slackening in the gradual and steady increase in number of residents of Brownwood.

The number of families by years, as reported by the department of census, are as follows:

Number of Families in City of Brownwood
Year 1860, 31; 1870, 74; 1880, 145; 1890, 435; 1900, 793; 1910, 1,297; 1920, 2,058; 1930, 3,270; 1935, 3,861.

Number of Families in Brown County

Year 1860, 52; 1870, 112; 1880, 1,683; 1890, 2,289; 1900, 3,204; 1910, 4,591; 1920, 4,337; 1930, 6,587; 1935, 7,281.

Brownwood Man Owns Large Ox Bell; Relates Pioneer Life In This Area

A large ox bell owned by S. G. Alexander of near Brownwood brings back memories of those pioneer days when oxen were motive power for the wagons that carried the freight back and forth across this part of Texas. The bell weighs two and a half pounds, is eight and a half inches tall, six and a half inches wide at the bottom and the strap is two and a half inches wide. Mr. Alexander, who did not drive oxen himself but saw them as a boy and has later talked to old drivers, says the bells could be heard for three miles.

Some history of the old ox drivers and the oxen of the free range days of Texas is given by Mr. Alexander. Of course there were no railroads in this country then and no trucks and automobiles. All freight—lumber, groceries, clothing and such things—were hauled to the frontier in the lumbering ox wagons pulled by a yoke or two of oxen. Loads of 2,000 pounds and more were hauled in the wagons.

Generally two freighters traveled together. When they pitched camp they unyoked the oxen, hobbled the one that carried the bell and tied the two together with a rope around their necks. The oxen strayed from two to three miles during the night, but when the drivers started to find them they could hear the big bell.

Wagons Were "Home." In summer the drivers slept under the wagon and in winter they made their beds in the wagon. They always kept their six-shooters near by to shoot wild beasts. Most drivers also carried along an old hound dog to keep off the wolves at night. In the mornings the drivers arose at about 4 o'clock, one starting out for the oxen while the other prepared breakfast. After the meal the day's long journey was begun and the freighters made all of ten and twelve miles a day. There were hardly any roads—only cow trails—and no bridges over the streams.

Eleventh street, New York extends from the North river to East river without crossing the water. The Fourth avenue building associated with Grace Church stands in the way of its crossing "main stem."

The word "tariff" is derived from the Arabic "tarifa" which is a modification or inventory.

The Sinclair dinosaur stands for the vast age of the crude oils used in refining Sinclair Opaline and Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oils. The oldest crudes make the tougher motor oils. Grueling tests on the Sinclair Film-Breaking Machines prove that Sinclair Opaline and Sinclair Pennsylvania give a lubricating film that will withstand a pressure of more than 3 tons per square inch. ALL DAY PROGRAM OPENS NEW CHURCH

Members of the Melwood Avenue Baptist church observed the opening of their new church building Sunday with all-day services. Dinner was served at noon. The building has been completed except for some interior finishing and stuccoing the outside walls, and all future services of the church will be held in the new building. Several former pastors of the church took part in the services. Rev. J. M. Cooper, pastor, directed the all-day program. Work on the tile and stucco building was started October 1 with W. F. Scales and L. L. Woodward as construction foremen. The building is valued at between $6,000 and $8,000, but by use of material from the old building and the foundation which had been built previously and with much volunteer labor the actual cost has been about $3,000. The church still has unsold a little more than $300 in $8.75 bonds by which the building has been financed.

Have you ever heard the rattle of a dyin' man's last breath?

Or seen the look of horror in the stare that faces death?

Have you ever heard a person scream and writhe in sudden pain And look down at a mangled arm that will not move again?

Or have you heard the moaning and smelled the stench of gin And seen the gory, bloody gap where once an eye had been?

When your car is doing fifty have you ever felt the yea

To let'er have another notch 'n do another ten?

When a pokey guy's ahead of you have you ever had the thrill

Of swingin' out 'n passin' him upon a dangerous hill?

Or have you ever felt the old car scream 'n lurch 'n swerve As you let'er have the limit while you took a sudden curve?

Have you ever seen the wreckage of an automobile crash With flesh and steel made into a morbid, gruesome hash?

Have you ever seen the entrails 'n the ears 'n arms 'n hand 'N hat 'n shoes 'n fingers of what once had been a man?

Have you ever seen the jagged bone stick through a mangled leg And heard the blood-smeared victim pray 'n cry 'n beg?

Have you had the keen sensation of a fast car at your bid 'N run up to a stop sign 'n slap 'em on 'n skid?

Did you ever pass a school-yard 'n give the horn a slam

'N drive close to a gang o' kids 'n see 'em jump 'n scream?

Did you ever take a quart o' rye 'n swallow four or five 'N take the old bus down the road 'n show 'em how to drive?

Have you ever seen a little child all crumpled up 'n still—

Who tried to run across the street while a car came down the hill?

Have you seen men's brains on fenders? Have you seen blood in the street?

Have you seen them stare at the bloody stumps of the things that were their feet?

Have you ever heard the crash 'n scream 'n seen the ghastly stare

On the face of what ha driver 'n the rest of t there?

MOST of the Twenty Million families totaling Ninety Millions of our people who live electrically still call their electric service bills "Light Bills"—although the light that Thomas A. Edison brought to them in such abundance at so little cost now represents a small part of the average electric service bill.

Today's light bill is a "Electric Living Bill"—the only bill that a housewife pays that has shrunk steadily for each different service that brings into her home.

ELECTRICITY is Today's Greatest and Cheapest Single Service

When you sit by your radio—you're blowing a refreshing breeze, and a glass of electrically cooled beverage in your hand—remember that you use electric service to do more things for you than any other service you can employ—and that you pay less of each service than you pay for any other comparable service you enjoy.
