REPLIES TO C. OF C. LETTERS RECEIVED FROM MANY STATES

Letters of response to courtesy cards and data regarding the desirability of Brownwood as a trading center sent recently by Brownwood Chamber of Commerce to manufacturers whose products are sold here have been received from all parts of the United States.

States from which the letters have come are Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, New York, Tennessee, Virginia, Colorado, Washington, Oklahoma, Georgia, Ohio, Minnesota, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

Typical of the responses is the following, received from C. F. Adams, Inc., of Fort Worth. The letter:

"Please accept our thanks for the courtesy card attached to your letter of November 23, together with the trade area map.

"We wish to compliment the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce on their interest and on the efficient work they are rendering the manufacturers and jobbers in this territory in bringing this type of information before the dealers, jobbers and manufacturers. We feel sure it will result in a great benefit to all the distributors in this trade territory.

"We will be glad to avail ourselves of the privileges extended to us by your Chamber of Commerce, and assure you these are appreciated."

JURY RETURNS TOTAL OF 36 INDICTMENTS

A total of 36 indictments were returned by Brown county grand jury for October term of district court. The jury completed its work Wednesday afternoon and turned in its final report to District Judge E. J. Miller.

The report, signed by D. N. Yarborough, foreman, is as follows: "We, the grand jury, duly empaneled on the 28th day of October, 1935, have been in session nine days and during our work we have examined 82 witnesses; we have found 36 true bills.

"We want to commend the Sheriff's Department for their efficient work in enforcing the law in Brown county, and in running down violators of the law, and helping in all possible ways to secure convictions and accomplishing the ends of justice.

"We especially want to thank the district attorney, A. O. Newman, for his untiring efforts in working with us and in developing the cases we have investigated, to thank Conner Scott for working with us in every possible way.

"We have gone through the county jail and find the same to be in a sanitary condition and properly operated, but would recommend that the cells be equipped with proper heating devices and discontinue the burning of gas in open fires.

"We wish to thank the bailiffs for their efficient work in waiting on the grand jury and securing the witnesses for us promptly.

"The grand jury appreciates the efforts of the janitor of the courthouse in keeping the grand jury room comfortable and in the keeping of the courthouse in general."

Lasso Is Weapon in Mexican Riot

Lariats made their appearance with guns and clubs as riot weapons in the street battle pictured here, one of the clashes which took a toll of five dead and scores wounded in Mexico City as Fascist Golden Shirts fought peasants and workers celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Mexican revolution.

The Southwestern Pecan Growers' Association started accepting pecans for storage this week and is securing loans of four cents per pound on the nuts warehoused, according to H. G. Lucas, president.

Central storage points for the pecans are Brownwood, San Antonio, Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, St. Louis and Kansas City. The growers may form their own storage pools if they prefer.

Government estimates now placed Texas' pecan production this year at 44,000,000 pounds, as compared with 13,000,000 pounds last year and an average of 23,700,000 for the past five years.

The object of the program is to help farm families now in financial distress to become self-sustaining on productive land. The land may be located or land provided by the Rural Resettlement Administration.

BROWNIE JACKSON CHARGED WITH THEFT

Bond for Brownie Jackson, charged with theft from person, was set at $250 this week and he was bound over to await grand jury action. Jackson was alleged to have taken a promissory note, made by his mother, Mrs. H. E. Jackson to R. L. Fry, from Mr. Fry and destroyed it.

STUDENTS WORKING ON MUSEUM BUILDING

Work of remodeling the old engine house and power room on Howard Payne campus which is to house the college's valuable museum collection is nearing completion. A partition has been built to separate the museum room from the remainder of the building, and the walls are being plastered and painted.

Nucleus of the museum is a large collection of horns and other curios donated last summer by A. Boenicke, pioneer Brown county citizen. In addition there is a valuable collection of tools, implements and ornaments of early civilizations, the donation of Rev. G. C. Schurman, former pastor of Brownwood Christian church and a collection of Texas building stone presented to the college by the Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas.

POULTRY CO-OP SHIPS 20 OF 33 CARLOADS TURKEYS SENT FROM LOCAL MARKET

Co-operative marketing and its practical value to local farmers has been plainly demonstrated in the recent service rendered by the Southwestern Poultry Association in marketing the Thanksgiving turkey crop of Brown and adjoining counties.

Promptly upon opening of the market this fall, this co-operative advanced its members 15 cents per pound for their turkeys, paying cash upon delivery of turkeys to the organization's Brownwood plant. Two days after the close of the Thanksgiving market, the association paid an additional six and three-fourths cents per pound for top grade birds.

The real significance of these figures can be evident only after considering prevailing prices in other typical turkey centers. For example, the price in Fort Worth was 18 cents; in San Antonio, 17 cents. In Anadarko, Oklahoma, the prevailing price was 18 cents, with Hudson, Wisconsin, at the very back door of the big central and Eastern markets, paying only 20 cents.

Of the 33 carloads of turkeys shipped out of Brownwood for the Thanksgiving market, 20 were handled by the local co-operative marketing agency. It is significant that these birds were sold for cash right here on the Brownwood tracks, rather than on consignment.

The Southwestern Poultry Association was organized about five years ago to serve poultry growers in Brown county. Its services have reached out gradually to the point today that farmers from several nearby counties are members of the organization.

President of the co-operative is C. M. Kilgore, with Mrs. Lila Salver manager. L. L. Lankford is vice-president, and A. J. Newton is secretary.

The following excerpt from The Gainesville Daily Register describing Santa Claus' reception there gives local citizens an idea of what to expect:

CHESTER J. HILBURN NAMED CAREY MGR.

Thirteen apparently is a fortunate number for Chester J. Hilburn. He has been named manager of the William P. Carey Lumber Company of Brownwood, after thirteen years with the company.

Mr. Hilburn has been with the Brownwood store since April of this year, as assistant manager. He has devoted a great deal of time to the study of the lumber and general building needs of the modern home and is thoroughly competent to assist home owners in planning new homes or remodeling old structures.

Parallel Parking Ordinance Passed On First Reading

Light Vote Cast in Election Indicated Small Interest in Parking Problem.

The light vote cast in Saturday's election indicated slight interest in the question of a suitable parking system for the Brownwood business district.

Only 413 ballots were cast in the election, 211 in favor of the parallel system of automobile parking and 202 in favor of the present system which is, for the most part, angle parking in the business district.

City Council called the election to give Brownwood citizens an opportunity to select the type of parking system to be used here. In announcing the election officials stated that council would be governed by the wishes of the majority thereby ending the much discussed wrangle between advocates of parallel parking and those of angle parking.

City Council refused to pass an ordinance requiring that vehicles be parked parallel to the curb in the city fire limits as an emergency ordinance at their regular meeting Tuesday night. However an ordinance requiring parallel parking was passed on first reading after the emergency clause was omitted and will become effective after a third reading.

City Council following the announcement of the results of last Saturday's referendum in which a small majority of voters cast their ballots in favor of a parallel parking system, Mayor Thompson said that City Attorney R. L. McLaugh had been instructed to draw up the ordinance in accordance with the wishes of the advocates of parallel parking with the exception of their desire for an hour parking limit, not provided for in the ordinance.

The ordinance will be passed on second reading at a called meeting of the council later this week. It requires that vehicles be parked parallel to the curb in all parts of the city fire limits except around the square at County court house, where angle parking will be continued. Violation of the ordinance will be a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not to exceed $100.

No action was taken on the matter of a referendum on a power franchise granted to R. O. Mathews because of the unavoidable absence of attorneys for Texas Power & Light Company which presented the petition requesting the referendum. City Secretary Scott has completed checking the number of eligible voters whose names appear on the petition, but no report was made on his findings. The matter will be taken up at a called meeting of the council soon.

Mayor Thompson was authorized to sign a ten year contract with Guy Jones to furnish gas for the city pump at no change in rate. Mr. Jones present contract with the city is at the rate of 8 cents per 1000 cubic feet.

R. B. ROGERS DIES IN HOUSTON EARLY WEDNESDAY MORNING

R. B. Rogers, 72, retired merchant and prominent Brownwood citizen, died in Memorial Hospital in Houston at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. He was visiting his daughter, Mrs. Ruth Bettes, in Houston when he became ill several weeks ago. His condition had been critical for the past ten days.

Mr. Rogers came to Brown county from Cerulean Springs, Kentucky, in 1882, and started working on a ranch. Two years later he came to Brownwood and started his career as a merchant in a men's furnishings store. He went into business for himself shortly after that and until his retirement a number of years ago operated one of the leading dry goods establishments in this section of the state.

He was a large property holder, and was a consistent contributor to the development of his community. Mr. Rogers was a prominent member of the First Presbyterian church here.

His wife, the former Miss Elva Tannehill, and one daughter, Mrs. Ruth Bettes of Houston, survive in addition to a number of relatives in Kentucky.

The body will be brought from Houston Thursday morning. Funeral arrangements will not be announced until arrival of members of the family Thursday.

Ginnings Are Well Ahead Of Last Year

A total of 8442 bales of cotton were ginned in Brown county from the 1935 crop prior to November 14, according to a report of the Department of Commerce made this week. This is 2435 bales in excess of the amount ginned here by that date one year ago. The report was made by J. M. Ellis, special agent for the department.

Real Objective of the Centennial

(From The Texas Weekly)

Note: Editor Peter Molyneux, of The Texas Weekly, is in Europe, and during his absence editors of various Texas newspapers have been invited to act as "guest editor" for one issue. Guest editor for the issue of November 15 was Wendell Mayes, editor of the Brownwood Banner. Below are reprinted portions of the editorials written for The Texas Weekly by The Banner editor.

ORGANIZATIONS tend to condemn as a unit acts which the members as individuals think most worthy. Thus we find the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, thru its official publication, editorially criticizing the management of the Centennial boards and commissions for listening to the demands among others, of the various units that make up the West Texas organization. The principal complaint at the present time is that Centennial "millions are being spent for monuments, collection of relics and the agrandizement of men and events, while practically nothing is being spent to tell the story of the progress of our great resources and potentialities." And while this finds us in agreement to the extent that too great emphasis possibly is being paid at the present time in the Centennial program to the erection of many monuments to men and events which need not be so sinally honored during the Centennial year, we are not sure but that this fact is recognized by those making the plans. Minorities have a way of making themselves heard, and when the greatest clamor from each locality was for a share in the Centennial expenditure there can be no denying that to those in charge of the funds it must have sounded like a state-wide demand. And, being human and being anxious to do what the people would have them do, the Centennial management made the pardonable mistake of trying to please everyone and thus pleasing no one. We hardly feel, however, that the interesting story of the development and of the yet untouched possibilities of Texas will remain untold to those who are attracted to Texas by means of the Centennial. Nor are we alarmed over the possibility that a resulting increase in population will not be felt in Texas. The story must and will be told, and in a convincing manner. And, while the Centennial will draw millions of people to Texas for first visit, it is not likely that the celebration next year will immediately increase our population to any great extent. In the first place, Centennial visitors necessarily must be those who at home have accumulated a bit more than the average citizen. They must have means and time for travel. Having been successful at home, the majority will not come in search of a new home. At the time of the visit, Texas to them will be a place for pleasure and recreation. Our duty, and our opportunity, will be to make that Texas so attractive that at some future date they will wish to return to make their home; or that they will recommend Texas to their neighbors seeking new locations, or point out the possibilities of this vast empire to their children or grandchildren. Recalling the glorious history of the past has a place in that program, to be sure, and yet there is little cause to fear that it will be done to the neglect of making the present beautiful, or the future attractive.

to acquiring means with which to live. The century of the future, upon whose threshold we now stand, should give opportunity for greater development and expansion of those cultural advantages denied to such a great extent to the pioneers. And in placing greater emphasis upon living rather than making a living, we do no violence to the plans and hopes of those who founded this country, for the long fight for independence of Texas was based to a large degree upon the failure of the Mexican government to provide proper educational facilities in this state, and almost the first thought of the writers of the Declaration of Independence of Texas was to demand provisions for educational and cultural development. With no intent to map the course of the future, it might be well to point out that a greater emphasis in the coming years upon the industrial, social and educational development of the State would be in line with the program as planned by the first Texans a century ago, and would do much to attract to this state a greater devotion on the part of its citizens and the favorable attention of the nation.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT of more than ordinary interest came out of Washington recently concerning plans for the establishment of a national park in the Big Bend section of Texas. Situated in one of the most attractive natural locations in the United States, the park will take on an added importance with the establishment just across the Rio Grande of a national park in Mexico. Thus the Big Bend will be the scene of an international Lakes-Glacier International Peace Park between the United States and Canada. Plans of the National Park Service call for development of the gigantic tract, but it is interesting to note that in the main the wild aspects of the area will be retained, and the country will be essentially the same as it was in 1528 when the Spanish adventurer, Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca first visited that section of the country. With the advantages of being listed among the National Parks, and being made accessible to automobile travel, the site promises to be the Mecca of thousands of tourists within the next few years.

OTHER objectives than the mere attraction of newcomers to Texas should be given consideration at Centennial time. The mind is so constituted that it refuses to contemplate the past without dwelling upon the future. Therefore, it is but natural for Texans who are busily reviewing the first hundred years of Texas independence and progress to look somewhat eagerly to the future and ask "What Next?" Along what lines of development should we, who now reside here and who plan to make this our future home, endeavor to make the greatest growth in order to realize the fullest expectations of the leaders of the past century in their efforts to create the best possible environments for themselves and their descendants? Pioneer life is a life of struggle, hardships, endurance tests, sacrifice and building largely for the future. Texas was fortunate in the class of men and women who laid the broad foundations for this country. The signers of the Texas Declaration of Independence were men of education, culture and refinement. Among them were numbered former United States Senators, governors, congressmen, educators and leaders in all classes of society, instead of merely a group of adventurous land grabbers. They were ready to fight in defense of their principles, but sought and preferred peace and its attendant blessings. The first century of history of this country was devoted large-

Nobody's Business

By JULIAN CAPERS, JR.

Austin—Massed in the east gallery of the house of representatives lobbying brains that are paid perhaps $250,000 a year and expenses to influence Texas lawmakers, smirked at each other last Thursday night, as they watched the hands of the big house clock move ponderously to the midnight adjournment hour. Throughout the evening, they watched the house anti-sales tax majority, snarled in a parliamentary tangle, struggle futilely to extricate the revenue bill from a hopeless conference deadlock. Speaker Coke Stevenson ruled that nothing could be done about the dying tax bill unless the conference committee reported formally by a deadlock, so a new committee could be named that would bring in a tax bill without a sales tax, as the house had instructed its conferees.

The lobbyists cheered as they heard this ruling; they cheered as they heard Bob Calvert, Hillsboro legislator, regarded as an administration spokesman, who has always opposed the sales tax, waver and offer a resolution instructing the conference committee to take a "reasonable sales tax on luxuries." They cheered again as Calvert's resolution went down to defeat, but by a narrow margin of only eight votes. They had cheered previously when Walter Woodul, the lieutenant governor, broke a tie vote in the senate, and put the sales tax into the revenue bill.

These developments marked the denouement of the lobbyists' plan, outlined two weeks ago in this column of offering the house the alternative of accepting a sales tax or passing no tax bill at all. The house took no tax bill. The governor announced another special session for January to raise revenue. The lobbyists immediately began making plans for their biggest push in January. Opponents of the sales tax began making plans to force through an income tax along with the sales tax. They recognized that Texas will have a sales tax next year, unless a miracle happens and the people turn loose tremendous pressure on the legislators in the next 60 days. They do not believe that will happen, because the people are unorganized and the sales tax lobby is highly organized.

The house, which changes its mind oftener than the most fickle woman, will indulge its mania again for investigating, by probing the public safety commission and its administration of the rangers. It first voted down a resolution by Sam Hanna of Dallas, a former house clerk, and next day adopted one by Lon Alsop of Carthage. Anti-administration forces were elated at their "victory" until they learned that Albert Sidney Johnson, commission chairman, had quietly passed the word to Austin that the commission was fully prepared to take care of itself in any legislative investigation of its official acts. Enough administrative votes were quietly shifted to pass the probe resolution. Now the investigation sponsors are wondering if they have been trapped. The dismissal of Tom Hickman, ex-senior ranger captain, brought on the investigation resolution.

Hint of possible friction in another state department was seen in the action of Rep. J. W. Youngblood of Fort Worth, who put into the record in connection with House Resolution 25, as the session closed, a vigorous denunciation of Chief Highway Engineer Gibb Gilchrist, whom he accused of "lobbying to death a bill providing for establishment of a minimum wage on state highway work" defeated in the regular session. Meanwhile the highway department let another $1,800,000 of contracts Tuesday and the commissioners declared they will have 35,000 to 40,000 recently jobless men at work by January 1 on the highway program.

Dr. Hallum Again Is Health Officer

Commissioners Court re-elected Dr. Roy G. Hallum county health officer for 1936 in regular session Monday. Approval of routine bills completed business of the session.

A bill from Leonard Miller for $25.35 for blue prints was approved. A bill from Leo Ehlinger for $6.30 for trading paper was approved. The quarterly report of Peace Justice E. T. Perkins was approved as follows: Fines collected, $50.65; trial fees collected, $188.50; total, $239.15. Trial fees due the Peace Justice, $187.50, the remainder to be paid to the county by Mr. Perkinson.

tem, leaves a large gap for the prison board to fill. It cut short a sweeping experiment in rehabilitation of felons, planned in detail by Nelson, by which he hoped to return hundreds of one-time offenders back to useful citizenship. Nelson was no dreamer, but a practical executive and an ex-soldier, who demanded discipline, but knew how to get it without brutality. His passing was mourned by all who knew anything about the complicated prison problem.

Local option elections throughout Texas will probably be in order during the next few months, so that communities may determine their status under the new liquor law. Many obviously dry communities probably will remain dry without a test, but changes of sentiment have occurred during the lapse of years since national prohibition came and many local tests of the will of the voters will be ordered by commissioners' courts on their own motion or by petitions of electors. Saloons are doomed in all communities where local officials are willing to enforce the laws. Package sales only may be made in licensed stores where local option permits.

Final regulum for federal oil control agitation was sung last week as Los Angeles, when the American Petroleum Institute seconded the sentiment of the Independent Petroleum association at its earlier Dallas convention, declaring the state compact plan the best practical method of achieving conservation of oil. Col. E. O. Thompson, chairman of the Texas railroad commission and original proponent of state control of oil—back in the days when it wasn't popular—was accorded the place on the API program occupied at the 1935 Dallas convention by Secretary Ickes, father of the federal dictatorship for oil plan. Thompson reported the Texas oil industry prospering under the compact, written by Gov. Alfred, and administered by representatives of the oil producing states, with Thompson as Texas representative.

SINCLAIR H-C GASOLINE

ASTOUNDING "LIFT" IN SINCLAIR H-C, Local Motorists Tell Sinclair Dealers

When you buy gasoline you buy liquid power. And power is measured by engineers in terms of lifting. A single gallon of Sinclair H-C Gasoline has the potential energy to lift 99 million pounds one foot. Putting that into a power picture we say one gallon of H-C could lift a 40-ton Brontosaurus 1/4 mile.

In automobile road tests Sinclair H-C Gasoline gave 15% to 20% more smooth power and from 1 to 3 more miles per gallon—compared to 12 other well-known gasolines!

Your neighborhood Sinclair dealer will tell you what local motorists are saying about H-C's astounding "lift"—what it means in extra power for their cars. Ask him!

LEST WE FORGET

Over three hundred years ago the Pilgrims met on the bleak New England coast to give thanks to Providence for the new life which they had found in America; for the chance to live according to their conscience; for the bounteous harvest just gathered. How little they had for which to give thanks, in comparison to what we have this day.

Let us for a moment consider those sturdy Pilgrims and their spirit of appreciation; and ourselves give thanks today for the many blessings bestowed upon us.

We personally here express our thanks and appreciation for the opportunity given us to serve the people of this district, and for the patronage you have given us. It is a privilege to serve.

As you sit down before an appetizing Thanksgiving feast, your interest is centered upon the crisp-brown bird that has come to be the symbol of Thanksgiving; but nearby, ever a part of the feast and of every worthwhile meal, is Bread—the foundation of good foods.

We are thankful for the part we have been permitted to take in providing good Bread to make your Thanksgiving dinner wholesome and nourishing. Let us this day give thanks to Bread.

When the first Thanksgiving Day was proclaimed by the Pilgrim fathers many years ago, it was an occasion for much rejoicing. The suffering of the past year was over; the drought had been broken, and good fortune had smiled upon the little band of adventurers after a season of privation and suffering.

Thanksgiving Season

We can well imagine the joy of the occasion as the pious Pilgrims stopped for a day in their struggle for existence to pay tribute to the Father who had guided them through troublous times into a season of prosperity. Many Thanksgivings seasons have come and gone since that first occasion. There have been good years and bad. But through it all the custom has been observed with more or less sincerity by the American people.

Times during the past few years have not been unlike the years through which the Pilgrims fought through the hardships to establish a new nation. While the hardships of the past few years have been rather insignificant in comparison with those overcome by the Pilgrims, this country nevertheless has been fighting for its existence against the most prolonged depression in its history.

This Thanksgiving Day does not see those problems solved. But it does find this country in better condition, economically, mentally, and we hope spiritually than it has been in several years past. In recalling these facts, it would seem to us to be a fitting time to recall the real Thanksgiving Day, as originated in this country by the Pilgrims, and give real thanks to the Guide who has piloted us thus far through our difficulties and express the hope and the belief that through a proper mental and spiritual attitude on the part of its people, this country will be returned to a prosperity commensurate with its deserts.

Some months ago this newspaper took occasion to mention, with endorsement, the plans advocated by the Young Democrats of Texas, we believe it was, for a unicameral legislature for Texas—that is, a legislature composed of only one house. The movement was revived during the special session of the legislature just adjourned by Senator G. H. Nelson of Lynn County, who had indicated his intention of conducting a state-wide campaign in favor of the record through press releases during the past week to Texas newspapers.

Added impetus is given the movement by Ashley Evans, editor of the Bonham Favorite, in an editorial in The Texas Weekly, which publication previously had been placed on record in favor of the one-house legislature last year by Associate Editor Dale Miller.

Wisconsin, we believe, inaugurated the unicameral legislature this year, with more or less satisfactory results. The experiment is being watched by other states, and as soon as legislators feel that the movement is attracting favorable attention of the voters, we may expect more serious consideration at their hands.

The unicameral legislature has a number of advantages, including those advanced by Nelson: that it would reduce cost and expedite legislation. There can be no doubt that the cost of legislation would be reduced, assuming that the number of legislators would be decreased and the salaries would not be increased materially. It is reasonable to expect also that one body could pass legislation more quickly than could two.

The past two special sessions of the Legislature have not pleased Texas voters, because of the slowness with which legislation moved through the mill. It is true that to the casual observer there was a decided lack of speed. But there is much on the side of the legislator so far as those two special sessions are concerned.

At no time in the recent history of the state has the legislature been called upon to formulate the operative mechanism for such complex laws as the people passed to them through the adoption of the constitutional amendments last summer. The liquor question alone might well have occupied the attention of the two houses of the legislature for two special sessions without a satisfactory agreement having been reached. Add to that the perplexing problems of old age pensions, tax revenues to support these pensions, salaries for county officials taken from the fee system, and other minor problems, and you can realize that the legislators when they assembled two months ago faced no easy task. That they evolved some measures that meet the expectations, if not the approval, of the people seems rather the unusual than the expected.

Unicameral legislature may be the answer to some of the problems of legislative expense and delay. No doubt it is worth the trial. But to expect this innovation in American lawmaking to place the blessing of public approval upon the complex necessity of law making is asking just a bit too much. If it is adopted with this in view, then it will be a failure.

No journalistic achievements of recent years has caused such a furor as the publication, by Readers' Digest, of J. C. Furnas' article, "—And Sudden Death."

Face The Gory Facts

This article, which describes the horror of automobile accidents in the most realistic and even nauseous terms, has been reprinted, in whole or in part, in a long list of newspapers and magazines throughout the country. It has become the basis for speeches by safety and law enforcement authorities.

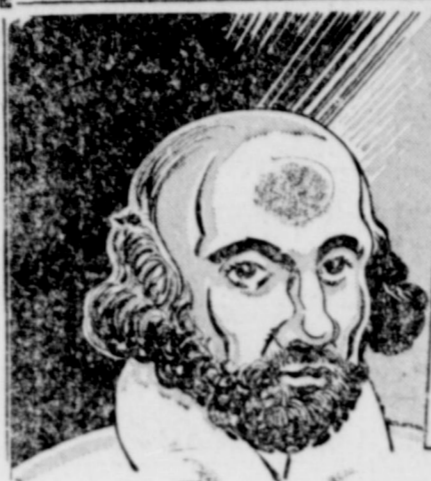

Most important of all, perhaps, the article may have established a journalistic precedent. One of the country's large dailies recently announced that henceforth it would apply the "—And Sudden Death" method in reporting major traffic accidents. The descriptions will no longer be confined to medical terms and softened phrases. They will include factual word pictures of smashed skulls, of compound fractures, of spurting arteries, of crushed chests—of all the horrors that are part and parcel of the accidents which claim 35,000 lives a year in this country.

Newspapers large and small could well follow that example. The driver who reads simply that John Smith was killed when trying to make a corner at high speed often passes the news by with a minimum of thought. If he read, instead, that it was necessary to scrape John Smith's body from his smashed car, and that recognition was made possible only by examination of his dental work, he'd remember it.

It's time we faced the gory facts—time we all realized that the scene of an automobile accident can be as horrible as a battlefield. And it's time we remembered that automobiles have killed many more Americans than have all the wars of our history.

WISHBONE VS. BACKBONE

DID you ever hear of a person having a wishbone where his backbone ought to be? It is not evident physically, but this is often the case. A little lad once said, "I'd give a hundred dollars to be a millionaire," and as the years passed by, he kept wondering through life why it had not come to pass.

In Paris there once lived a young violinist, on the top floor of a cheap pension. As a student he practiced hour after hour. His landlady had been instructed never to knock on his door, when she heard him playing. Many a time coming up the long flights with his lunch she found the first tray still untouched, and placing them side by side, she stole away softly, still hearing his playing, playing, playing. He became one of earth's great artists—but it was bought with sacrifice. Do we not often say we wish we could play like an Heffetz? And yet how unwilling are we to pay the price—above $100 to be a millionaire!

"Effort is the price of everything." Oftentimes with effort comes sacrifice, which is the basic rock of appreciation and achievement in life. We appreciate and achieve only as we are willing to sacrifice. That was the secret of the striving of the Pilgrim Fathers and Mothers. Love of ease has turned many a brave heart soft.

A university student at examination time prepared his room for study. He chose the lounging chair with pillows and soft shaded lighting. On a tilted stand he laid his book at the angle easiest for him to read and turned the radio on. He started to study. Started, to be sure, but got no farther, for he fell asleep. Love of ease had conquered him. His backbone grew soft and he soon found himself wishing he could pass his finals like some other men of his class. He became a mental invalid as far as study was concerned.

The world is turning a slow curve, but it is turning. The time has passed when one rich man's son may nonchalantly spend three millions on his own pleasure yacht for his own selfish soul. Our children shall live to see the time when young men living on unearned money will not hold the center of the stage, to be envied, as scions of wealth, whether it comes by stock-marketing or inheritance. Honor must come through their own effort and achievement.

Our country needs men and women of backbone, who as yet, are outnumbered by those of wishbone. Go is the start to GOAL.

Hempstead—More than 1000 pounds of nuts valued at approximately $300 will be harvested this year by A. Kohler of Waller county from pecan trees top-worked nine years ago during their spare time, according to J. V. Bush, county agricultural agent.

Most of the production is coming from 12 trees top-worked nine years ago, but Kohler has been budding at intervals for the past nine years and at the present time has between 350 and 400 trees top-worked to improved varieties of pecans.

Childress—A trench silo has recently been dug and filled by Hubert and Harold Kiker, Childress county 4-H club boys. Hubert is 12 and Harold is 10 years old.

Ajax grown by the boys was put into the silo. It was cut with a sled cutter which they made, hauled in by themselves and put into the trench silo under the supervision of V. E. Hafner, county agricultural agent. The silo, which is four feet wide at the bottom, six feet wide at the top, four feet deep and 25 feet long, holds six tons of feed.

Clarksville—Three acres of land planted to tomatoes brought $312 to Ed Peek, Red River county farmer, and to date he has sold $343 worth of fall beans from the same ground, according to C. M. Knight, county agricultural agent. This makes a total sale of $657 worth of tomatoes and beans, and Peek is still harvesting beans. The total expense to date on three acres has been $150 leaving a net profit of $500 on the three acres.

Beeville—Wild persimmon, crepe myrtle, huajilla, agarita and amour river privet have been used by Mrs. William Jaschke of Bee county in making a screen planting for her home, according to Miss Lorena Yates, home demonstration agent. Mrs. Jaschke has spent two years on her yard improvement work and during this time she has made a permanent foundation planting, a senisa hedge, a native screen planting and a rose garden.

She started a grass lawn, but this was killed by the dry weather. She plans to plant a lawn of carpet grass during the fall rainy season, to add a walk in back of the house, to add native shade trees and to plant more rose bushes in her rose garden. Mrs. Jaschke says that her shrubs have never been watered and that they have not suffered for water even during the dry, hot summer. She removes all the black light soil and puts in creek soil and leaf mold which she says retains moistures longer.

On the same afternoon the Brownwood Junior High team was defeated by a score of 14-0 by the Indian Creek Indian team. The Junior High team led first in the conference score one-half of a game ahead strong Williams team. The wood boys record shows they have two defeats in conference while Williams has suffered defeats and a tie.

These two games played marked the close of a successful season for the Brownwood class C conference, complete Williams, Early, Brownwood for High, and Indian Creek teams of the conference were evenly matched as is indicated the fact that the team that first had a record of two defeats played.

Openings at the Poles
One of the earliest Oloians of note was John Claves Symmes of Butler county, who (besides being a gallant officer in the United States army and in the War of 1812) advanced the theory that the earth was penetrated at the poles by openings into a habitable region within. He won world-wide attention and made some converts.

Response to the membership drive in this county was excellent, although memberships fall short of the 1930 quota set for Brown county, and officials of the chapter expressed their appreciation of the cooperation given them by the community as a whole.
A. P. Rowland was chairman of the Roll Call. Officers of the chapter are W. A. Rousseil, chairman; J. Edward Johnson, vice-chairman; Mrs. A. P. Rowland, secretary, and Dean Rippetoe, treasurer.

An oil well fire in the Concord community, ignited when a workman near the well lighted a match, burned for nearly an hour Monday afternoon before it was extinguished by members of the Brownwood Fire Department, who made the run in response to a telephone call from Bangs. The well is being drilled by the Poulter Loan Company of San Angelo with M. H. Crath in charge of operations.

THANK YOU, AMERICA,

for more than a Million cars in 1935

This year Chevrolet has two very good reasons for saying, "Thank you, America." One reason is that people have bought so many Chevrolet cars that production for the year will reach 1,040,000. And the other reason is that they have placed a record number of orders for new 1936 Chevrolets during the first few weeks they have been on display.

Chevrolet is indeed happy to say, "Thank you, America," and to pledge continued adherence to the manufacturing and service policies which have won and held the friendship of the nation.

THE EARLY HISTORY OF TEXAS AS SHOWN FROM THE AUSTIN PAPERS

AVID INTEREST in the affairs of the "back home" were voiced in the letters Texans on the Southern "front" wrote to their families during the Civil War. Though at times they were only a short distance away from home, perhaps not even out of the State, communication facilities were such that it frequently required a week or longer for a letter dispatched in East Texas to reach Central Texas, and vice versa, and when they finally reached the battle lines, even months elapsed before letters reached the hands of those to whom they were written, since such devious methods had to be employed to transmit them.

William H. Neblett, who was engaged in office work in the army headquarters at Galveston, wrote the following letter on January 17, 1864, to his wife. This letter, along with other family papers of the Nebletts, is now deposited in the archives of The University of Texas Library.

"Dear Lizie," he wrote. "I expected a letter from you yesterday and again today, but was doomed to disappointment. You certainly do not write as often as I do. I never fall one week and generally on Sunday or Monday, and yours have generally arrived on Fridays and Saturdays. I am alone tonight in the office—have my bed there. The other clerks sleep over at my boarding house and the other with his Company. So you see I have a quiet time of it. This is a new arrangement somewhat, though I have been sleeping in an adjoining room for a month or more, where there were several others staying. I have been reading the History of England—that portion of it relative to the reign of Charles the 1st and Oliver Cromwell. I regarded it as apropos to the events transpiring at this time in North America. But the present uncertain state of every thing destroys the pleasure to be derived from such a source because it is continually bringing to mind a comparison between the same fanaticism then rampant among the Puritans of that day and almost the same fanaticism among the same Puritans now waging war against the South. They succeeded then, proving themselves inconsistent, hypocritical and incompetent, lost their power on the death of Cromwell and the old order of things were reestablished. I cannot help thinking of Lincoln when I see the name of Cromwell, and think there are many points of resemblance.

You said some time ago that Myers thought there would not be enough corn. If it is not more than half grown there ought to be enough. Has more than half the corn been used? I expect another yoke of oxen had best be broken. However this may be left with Myers. When you have potato seed hedged recollect to put them where there be no shade. I did not do this last year and it caused the plants to come up late. Have you got any calf or cow hides? What did you do about that side of leather Dr. Brown owes? and what do you expect to do about tanning this year? What debts have you paid? I expect there are as many questions as you will find it convenient to answer at one time. I believe I asked you what you were doing about sending the children to school? Sometimes I think of writing something to you and cannot recollect whether I had written any certain thing or merely thought of doing it. I believe I had changed my boarding house. I like the change very much. We draw rations now and get clothing and $11.00 per month and 25 cents extra per day. Two of us board by furnishing our rations and paying five dollars per week, which is $1.50 per month more than we get. It is probable that the law allowing three dollars per day and 11 per month in place of rations and clothing will be passed again by Congress. I regret it expired so soon for I wanted to buy Mary and the baby some calico but I will not have money enough after buying yours to do so. In a few days I will send some of my clothes by express to Pa's together with the dress I will buy for you. I have lately drawn some clothing—did so because the position I occupy afforded the opportunity of doing it in advance of the time, and I availed myself of it for fear there would be none on hand when the regular time came. I think I will have enough winter pants to do me next winter and so I will not need them I send home for safe keeping for we may leave here sometime in a hurry.

"Jan'y. 19. Today I recd. yours of the 8th and 13th both mailed the same day. I have been expecting one for several days and would not finish this until this morning. I have nothing more to add, in the way of news. There appears to be no more prospect of an attack on this place than there did a month ago, and I and every one here ceases to think about it, although every precaution has been taken in expectation of it. So you need give yourself no uneasiness about me. I fully expect to see you once more and to live the balance of my days with you and the children after the war is over. Of course I do not know this, but I feel it, and hope you may do so too. I do not believe we will be subjugated or that any great portion of the State overrun by the Yankees. If Southern men would not give up until they were whipped we never can be subjugated.

"You speak of making me some cloth for a coat when you have the piece for yours and Mary's dress woven. Now I want to make a suggestion. If you can conveniently have the filling made of blue and white cotton carded together it would be the very thing and of the grey uniform color. You mention in your last that you had sent me two prs. of socks by Clements. I have not seen him and had no intelligence of the socks, though he is over on Pelican and I have no doubt he has them, safe. I wrote to him a few minutes since. They came in time for my old ones are out at the heels and toes and I was going to write to you for some for they cannot be bought here now, though I understand they have been selling at $8 per pr.

"I recd. a letter from John Harris stating that he had shipped that piece of Bolter iron to Navasota for me. I weigh 90 lbs. and comes to $65.50. I will write to Pa to take care of it. You are right in stop paying out any more money."

The Voc. Ag. boys are very busy these three days before Thanksgiving as all six-weeks tests must be over with before the holidays. All the boys are looking to have a big time during the brief vacation they will have.

MAY

At a called meeting of the May chapter of Future Farmers they voted to buy a popcorn popper costing approximately $100. The chapter has been considering various plans to raise some funds for the treasury and finally decided on a corn popper. The popper will be run and managed by various members of the chapter and will furnish corn to everybody with a nickel. The popcorn will be sold at every ball game, play or any other meeting at the school house and will also be run in town on Saturdays.

The proceeds from the popper will be used to finance the father and son banquets, trips to the state F. F. A. contest and to send delegates to the State F. F. A. convention. The chapter is also considering some chapter projects such as lambs, pork or baby beeves and some field crops projects. These cooperative projects will not only make some necessary money for the chapter but also teach some very valuable lessons in cooperation.

The May chapter conducting team has just accepted an invitation to take part on the program of the Texas Agricultural Workers Association which meets in Mineral Wells the 10th and 11th of January. The invitation came as a surprise to the boys and they are very much thrilled about the trip. Last year the team was state champion but the members of this year's team are all new men and have not had any previous experience in the contest.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

A new means of raising money is being tried by the May Future Farmers of America chapter, which recently purchased a $100 popcorn popper and has entered the popcorn business. Members of the chapter will operate the machine and sell popcorn on Saturdays and after school hours and at all the meetings and gatherings held at May.

Proceeds from the sale of popcorn will go to finance the Father and Son banquet and other club activities.

WILLIAMS

Plans for the Williams F. F. A. father and son banquet are well under way and all the boys are showing much interest and are working hard to make it a huge success. At the regular chapter meeting Monday, Miss Seward, Williams home economics teacher, helped the boys plan the menu for the banquet. The Home Eco. Department and Miss Seward have pledged to help the boys in every way possible to put the banquet over for which the boys are very grateful. All the banquet committees are at work and are functioning smoothly and the work of putting on the big feast is progressing

WITHOUT DRUMS AND PARADE

Usually those projects of wide public benefit are initiated with parades and great gatherings of the people. However, little pomp and ceremony attended the beginning and extension of transmission line electric service in Texas. Yet, no other single public service has been of more far-reaching benefit to all the people. The cost of this service to TP&L residential customers is low... an average of 35% lower than it was 10 years ago, in spite of the present sharply rising costs of living.

RAIL BLAZING is never a bed of roses. It's a tough job... but it must be done, for it opens the way to better living... progress... bigger opportunities.

Let's take a brief summary of the situation in Texas as it looked in 1912:

1. Hundreds of Texas communities had no form of electric service. Hundreds of others had part time service only; or depended upon uncertain and inadequate sources of power.
2. There was no uniformity in existing services. Electric appliances and other equipment that could be used in one community could not be used in other communities.
3. Texas farms had none of the benefits of electric service.
4. Rates for electric service were usually based on the number of "drop lights" in the home, and were so high that they made electricity a luxury, and limited its use to a few people.
5. Texas communities needed industrial pay rolls. Industry, on the other hand, needed adequate, economical and dependable electric power which was not available.
6. Obviously isolated power plants were too costly, and not dependable enough to do the big job which Texas conditions had cut out for electric power.

It was the situation which inspired the founders of the Texas Power & Light Company to pioneer an entirely new type of electric power service in Texas.

It was a tough job... yes... but it had to be done if Texas were to have the balanced development for which she was ready.

How that job was done is a part of Texas history. In the first place it called for a huge sum of money with which to build transmission lines and suitable generating equipment. "Doubting Thomas" said, "It can't be done."

The concluding games of the 1935 football season Thanksgiving day will find the gridsters in prime condition and eager to finish the year's work playing their best. The Hill Billies are scheduled to play the last game of the season here when they meet the St. Edwards Catholics Thursday afternoon. Although the game has no bearing on conference championship honors, fans are expecting to see a thriller.

The Billy captain, Pete Roach, has recovered from injuries received in the Trinity game, and will return to action against St. Edwards. Coach Gene Taylor has not announced a starting team.

Howard Payne's football squad left Brownwood at noon Wednesday for Georgetown for their Thanksgiving game with the Southwestern University gridsters. The Jockets are expecting a hard battle, but hope to continue their unbroken record of defeating the Pirates every year since 1927. Many go to Georgetown Thursday to see the Jackets in their final play of season.

No Thanksgiving tilt is scheduled for the Brownwood High school Lions who have turned in the most creditable record made by any team from the local school in many a year. They whitewashed the Ranger fighters 39 to 0 last Thursday afternoon in a game played at Howard Payne Park.

The Howard Payne boys took a rest last week-end.

Daniel Baker played Southwestern University here Friday night, holding the visitors to a 6 to 6 tie. Fumbles caused the Billies plenty of trouble, although statistics of the game show that the Billies out-gained the Pirates two to one.

FIREMENS TRAINING SCHOOL EXPLAINED

A detailed explanation of the Firemen's Training School sponsored by the State Firemen's and Fire Marshal's Association and conducted by A. & M. College each year was given by Chief Frank Williams, instructor in the school, who spoke at Central Fire Station Tuesday night. The address was heard by a large audience of firemen of both the paid and volunteer fire departments as well as a number of interested citizens.

The firemen's association believes the State Insurance Commission should accord more recognition to the value and service of volunteer fire departments and through the medium of the Short Course and extension service is trying to assist the department in attaining such a degree of efficiency that the proper recognition eventually will be extended.

OPEN COUNTY SEWING ROOM PROJECT HERE WEDNESDAY MORNING

Operation of the Brown county sewing room project under the WPA program started Wednesday morning. Employment will be given to from 75 to 80 women for seven hours per day, five days a week, at the sewing room, which is being operated at Memorial Hall. Mrs. Alfred Son is superintendent, and Mrs. Miles Malone is supervisor.

No new materials have been received yet, and pending their arrival work will be done on reconditioning old garments. Borrowed sewing machines are being used temporarily until new ones are made available through the WPA.

The project here started simultaneously with twelve similar projects in ten other counties in district 14. Employment will be given to more than 500 women on sewing room projects throughout the district.

CENSUS OF BUSINESS TO BE TAKEN AGAIN

A Census of Business, comparable to those made by the Bureau of the Census for the years 1929 and 1933 will be taken in 1936 covering the year 1935, according to an announcement sent to the local Chamber of Commerce office by the Department of Commerce, Business Census Branch, this week. Enumerators, working under supervision of the field organization of the Census Bureau, will start a field canvass January 2 to secure the basic statistical data. The census will be the most comprehensive ever to be undertaken.

Organized representatives in all business fields are working with the Census Bureau to make the project of maximum value. The census will make possible the presentation of data on volume of business, expenses, personnel and payroll on a geographic basis.

Some additional statistics on specialized trades will also be obtained.

Brownwood Chamber of Commerce will assist the workers to obtain data in this section, according to Chester Harrison, secretary.
