THAT CONTINUOUS HIGHWAY BATTLE.

Since 1922, more people have been killed and crippled on the highways of America than were killed in all the wars in which America has engaged, both domestic and foreign.

And most of us are content so long as we do not suffer directly.

Go out any of the highways in this section at night, and you will find an explanation of many of the night murders being committed.

Coming down from Amarillo Saturday night between the hours of 8 to 10 p. m., five cars and two trucks were passed having only one light. One car had no tail light and one had no lights of any kind, yet was traveling the well-known Colorado-to-Gulf highway No. 5.

One fellow had stopped to fix a flat, but had left two wheels of his car on the pavement.

Should we wonder about so many auto accidents when such conditions of absolute imbecility exists on our public highways? One would think that our highway laws would be enforced to some extent. But are they?

HOUSE JOURNAL RESOLUTION No. 9.

Of all the amendments to be voted on in the November election in Texas, none will affect the welfare of West Texas more than H.J.R. No. 9. This resolution was introduced by Rep. Moffett of Chillicothe.

Here is a gist of the matter. Read it and pass it on to your neighbor.

Representation in the Legislature now is based upon dividing the total population of the state by 150 (the number of representatives) and allotting representatives to each county or counties in accordance to the resulting population quotient. In the above way the 1921 redistricting act gave Harris county 5 representatives and Dallas county 6 representatives. If the state were redistricted in accordance with the 1930 census Harris county would have 9 representatives and Dallas county 8. In fact, Harris county on basis of its present estimated population is claiming and working for 14 representatives out of the 150 prescribed by the constitution.

We submit that the above method of districting will eventually give a few big cities control of the Legislature and that the Moffett amendment will fairly and democratically prohibit this centralization of power.

In the first place geography and economic groups should have representation as well as population. Harris county having 1654 square miles and having more or less common economic problems now has 5 representatives and will get many more if the present method is followed. On the other hand, Gaines, Dawson, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock and Crosby counties having 8530 square miles and quite a diversity in economic problems now have only one representative. The people of Harris county not only have the opportunity of voting for 5 different representatives but also have five votes in the Legislature, while the people in the South Plains counties can vote for only one representative and have only one vote in the Legislature. When redistricting comes surely the South Plains counties should get the increase rather than Harris county. The Moffett amendment will enable our West Texas counties to get more representation.

In the second place it is sound Democracy to limit the concentration of power and diffuse representation to the rural districts. Over 30 of our States have already done this, and have provided in their constitutions for a limitation of representation in the rural districts. The Federal constitution likewise, is framed so as to curtail concentration of power in population centers. The President and Vice President cannot come from the same state. All states have two senators regardless of population and some states now have more Congressmen than their population quotients. The Moffett amendment will likewise make our Constitution up to date in this respect and will prevent the undue concentration of power in the big cities.

In the third place West Texas and other rural districts need more representatives at Austin. Our West Texas territory has 65% of the State's total territory and pays better than 45% of all the money going into the state treasury. You will see by the enclosed map that our representation, both appointive and elective, is nowhere near in proportion to our economic importance. We have only 35% of the representatives in the Legislature and only 27% of the states elective and appointive officials. We secure but 29% of the states available school fund, 25% of the elementary budget and around 30% of the appropriation for higher education. The Moffett amendment limiting concentration of power and giving us more representation will enable us to overcome these discriminations.

History shows that the bulk of population increase goes to big cities. With farm machinery supplanting farm hands this process will continue. At present, West Texas, even though having a large rural increase in population cannot afford to redistrict because the bulk of the population increase is concentrated in cities. Let's fix our constitution now so that rural districts will receive better representation and so that big cities cannot combine and rule. We believe the Moffett amendment will do this.

ELDORADO—To keep the expense down in the improvement of her bedroom, Nell Edimston, 4-H club bedroom improvement demonstrator in Schleicher county, used the canvas from the walls of her room. The paper and canvas were carefully removed from the wall, much of it already being loose. Nell then took the old paper off the canvas by dipping it in hot water.

BALLINGER—By carefully planning her garden work, Mary Lehman of the Dale 4-H club in Runnels county has some kind of vegetables from her garden the year round. At present she has 9,284 feet of vegetables in her garden including 51 varieties. Her expenses to date have been $7.56, leaving a profit of $39.04.

In order to have at least 10 containers of canned products for each member of her family, she has already canned 100 containers and has dried several pounds of English peas.

LOCKHART—"I do not have to disturb my mother when she is busy, because when I need a clean dress I can get myself now," says Dorene Borchert, five year old daughter of Mrs. Reynold Borchert, Caldwell county wardrobe demonstrator. Mrs. Borchert has placed a special rod in the closet for Dorene's clothes.

An old hoe handle was cleaned, smoothed with sandpaper and placed crosswise in the right end of the closet just under the two shelves about 40 inches from the floor. This is not only a time saver for Mrs. Borchert, but Dorene takes more pride in keeping her clothes hung up and in order.

FALFURRIAS—John Negri, Brooks county dairyman and farmer of the Falfurrias community, last winter applied 101 loads of manure on a five-acre field of light sand. This spring he planted watermelons on the field, harvested a bumper crop and made $74.20 profit per acre, according to Louis Franke, county agricultural agent.

On an adjacent field also planted to melons, but not fertilized with manure, Negri made only $4.35 profit on six acres.

CHANNING—A. L. Shackelford, who is one of the outstanding wheat farmers in Hartley county, has a very good and practical way for the tillage and planting of his wheat crop, reports J. E. Crabtree, former assistant county agricultural agent.

Shackelford follows the combine with a one-way plow which destroys the vegetation. About a week later, he follows this operation by chiseling the ground very deep and on the contour with a large chisel. This creates reservoirs to hold and retain the water where it falls and gives an even distribution of moisture.

The assistant county agricultural agent points out that by using this method the land is prepared in fine shape for planting. The wheat crop itself is also planted on the contour and retains the moisture in a like manner as does the chiseling.

Sistie and Buzzle Visit Fair
Dallas—Sistie and Buzzle Dall, the President's grandchildren, recently visited the Texas Centennial Exposition. In company with their father, they saw the educational sights, but had an eye only for the ferris wheel on the Midway, where they spent most of their time.

TEMPLE OF TRUTH
By the Apostle

Speaking of ingenuity, the Hardin County (Ky.) Enterprise announces that the Rotary Club has asked the police of Elizabethtown to visit the cemetery daily "where it has been discovered drunks gather to sober up." As a rule, the "law" would hardly expect to find a renegade on top side of a cemetery, though there might be some not on the top side.

It is said that many of the "sissies" going to a dude ranch for the first time, think a saddle horn is something to be honked.

Dick Tomlinson or near Ash-tola brought in some mighty fine corn and the best watermelon of many years Friday. Thanks a lot, Dick, thanks a lot. We had both Sunday, and it helped put over a big job when company came.

When the hobo "feature writing" journalism student dropped into the balliwick of the editor, the selfsame editor saw visions of a vacation period. The following conversation was had:
Know the newspaper game?
Yep, gotta diploma!
Did you ever read proof?
Hell no! Who wrote it?
And things kept right on running the same at the office as before.

Ima Fizzle says that "Sinky-witz" wrote Quo Vadis, but that Sally Patiky wrote Nux Vomica.

Monday was tinged with a sadness unexplainable. There seemed to be a discord. For the first time in 18 years, we did not have a boy going to school. All five of our boys have gone through the public school and the Junior College. All have married and left home except the baby who is direly threatened with the same thing. On the other hand, the oldest grand child is about ready to start to school, then will we take up the matter again. There will be a flock of grandchildren to see through school. Life is made up of cycles just like the weather. Too, there are storms and calms. The calm in this case will last but about two years. The home is quiet. The playthings are given away or stored for the next generation. Anxiety is not confined to the home now. It is scattered over the state. We have never in any sense attempted to dictate the course of a single one of the boys in any manner except that they be good citizens. They have given us no trouble, and for that we are extremely thankful. GW has shed her tears at time of departure, but the old man gets busy on the job when the frog gets in his throat, and would never, never admit it. Men are just built that way.

As a lad I used to climb the windmill and look for the wagons coming from town. There was a broad expanse of velvety grass, sleek white face cattle, coyotes and antelope. Bob whites and Mexican quail chirped while the "road-runner" hopped from place to place on the water-lot corral. At night we would lie on our backs, look up at the stars and hear the plovers warble their merry tunes as they flew over in the darkness. At that time we had the common plover, and the large plains plover. The larger species is now extinct and the small ones are almost gone. It was lesson No. 1 in beauty appreciation.

Talk about preserving a heritage? We are not preserving anything. Those who go out and shoot the rapidly diminishing animal and fowl game species have no more idea about preserving anything than a hog has of observing the Sabbath. Not many years ago the graceful prairie chicken made the welkin ring in the morning with their cackle, while the rooster birds "drummed." It was sweet music then, and would be yet. They have been ruthlessly destroyed. We ought to declare a closed season on everything in the game line in the Panhandle for at least ten years.

The only game left to us now in any number, consists of badgers, skunks and chicken hawks.

Corn is so scarce in Iowa that the jewelry stores are featuring silver roasting ear holders for the better set tables.

A tourist stopped to ask a native of Groom the way to Pampa. The native pointed east and says "maybe you better go that way and take the left hand, or you maybe better go to west and take the right hand." At that he stopped in a deep study. Finally a brilliant idea came out for air and he said: "No, drunit, you better go back to Amarillo and start from there. Everything in the Panhandle gets started from Amarillo."

Hastoon Yazzie of Brice, who has been reading up on the republican platform, was called in to inspect a republican captured near there Saturday. He instantly pronounced it a "Gazookus," a species of promise, but slow in habit to get anywhere similar to a water-dog.

Frank Morgan, as the comic Alcalde, realizes almost too late that he has promised the hand of his exotic daughter, Steffi Duna, to the sinister Victor Varconi, in the gay musical romance of old Southern California, "Dancing Pirate," filmed entirely in the melo-lou beauty of the new 100% Technicolor. Charles Collins, a new dancing sensation in this Pioneer Picture, is the choice of Steffi's young heart, and woos her with rollicking terpsichorean feats.

Prize-Winning Horse Bought By Low-Income Farmers

The prize-winning Percheron stallion shown above is one of 83 pure-bred sires which cooperative groups of low-income farmers in Texas and Oklahoma have been enabled to buy through loans from the Resettlement Administration. The other photograph was taken at a cooperative threshing also bought with a Resettlement loan for use of a group of low-income farmers whose fields were so small that they had been unable to obtain adequate service. More than 2,300 Texas and Oklahoma families are using such cooperative services established this summer by means of loans from Resettlement. In addition, individual borrowers in these two states have used Resettlement loans to buy 16,932 milk cows, 17,288 horses, 20,111 mules and 137,812 head of poultry, and have also purchased $750,000 worth of farm machinery.

MUSICAL TREAT IN "DANCING PIRATE" NEW COLOR FILM

Gay comedy, punctuated with terpsichorean and musical surprises, permeates Pioneer Pictures' feature, "Dancing Pirate," the first dancing romance ever filmed in the new 100 percent Technicolor.

The story, beginning with brief action in Boston when that city had not yet got around to eulogizing the bean, moves rapidly to early Spanish California and humorously reveals a phenomenon of love. Because of the emotion, one very fastidious, decorous and esthetic young Bostonian becomes a swashbuckling, hard-fighting Romeo and wins the heart of a fiery Spanish beauty.

The title role is in the hands—and the feet—of Charles Collins, the screen's new dancing sensation. The girl is portrayed by Steffi Duna. The comedy is personified mainly by Frank Morgan, whose role as the "Alcalde" (Mayor), is said to provide him with opportunities equal to those he capitalized upon in "The Affairs of Cellini."

Musical and terpsichorean highlights include old California Spanish dances, as interpreted by the Royal Cansinos, and the introduction of a new dance rhythm, Huapango (Whop-an-go), now the rage in Mexico City.

The cast also has Luis Alberni, Victor Varconi, Jack LaRue and Wm. V. Mong in humorous characterizations. Lloyd Corrigan directed; Robert Edmond Jones designed the color, and the music and lyrics are by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart.

BUILDER OR WRECKER (Anon.) I watched them tearing a building down, A gang of men in a busy town, With a ho-heave-ho and a rusty yell, They swung a beam and the side-wall fell, I asked the foreman, "Are these men skilled As the men you hire when you build?" He gave a laugh and said, "No, indeed; Just common labor is all I need. I can easily wreck in a day or two, What builders have taken a year to do." And I thought to myself as I went my way, Which of these roles have I tried to play. Am I a builder who works with care, Measuring like by the rule and square, Am I shaping my deeds to a well made plan, Patiently doing the best I can, Or am I a wrecker who walks the town, Content with the labor of tearing DOWN?

AEF REUNION IN DALLAS SEPT. 10th

Commander in Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars James E. Van Zandt of Washington, D. C. and Major General Frank Parker Commanding General of the 8th Corps Area US Army, Lt General Robert L. Bullard President of the National Security League will all assist Major General Beaumont Buck the National Chairman in formally opening the First National AEF Reunion in Dallas September 10th, 1936 on the grounds of the Texas Centennial. The Reunion will be held four days September 10th thru 13th inclusive. Each of the Divisions of the Army as set up in the National Defense Act will have special days. September 10th being Regular Army Day honoring the 1st thru the 7th Division AEF, September 11th will be National Guard Day honoring the 26th thru the 42nd Divisions AEF, September 12th will be National Army Day honoring the 76th thru the 92nd Divisions AEF, September 13th will be combined Army, Navy and Marine Day with Memorial Services that night. Many of the life time friendships formed on the field of battle and the training areas of France will be revived at this first Reunion. Many Last Man Clubs formed around the Vin Rouge tables in France will hold their first meeting here 18 years after. Inquiries have been pouring in asking about Buddies of the old outfit and already small Battery and Company Luncheons are being arranged. The daily programs have been so co-ordinated that each morning Company, Battery, Regiments, and Naval Ships will meet and many a happy hour will be spent when these veterans fight over again those long marches between poplar trees, the dangers of the front, and the long wait to return home. Eighteen years have passed and again the Veteran wants to see that Buddy of yesterday who shared a common danger while in the Service of our beloved America. Every AEF Veteran should make every effort to attend this first National Reunion of their Buddies. Special rates on all railroads and Buses.

Pageant of Transportation at Ford Exposition

A pageant of transportation from the day of the early ox cart to the 1936 Ford V-8 is presented in the rotunda of the Ford Exposition building at the Texas Centennial in Dallas. Here is a partial view of the display with the first Ford ever built in the rear of the information desk and the 1903 model to the right.

Air Pioneers' Building Goes to Join Collection of Structures That Make Up Famous Village at Dearborn, Michigan

The Pageant of Transportation as displayed by the Ford Motor Company in its building at the Texas Centennial in Dallas shows only vehicles which travel upon the ground. However, in Dearborn, Mich., the history of transportation as portrayed by the Edison Institute includes aviation. This display is now augmented by another historical exhibit.

In Dayton, Ohio, Henry Ford purchased the building formerly occupied by the Wright Cycle Company and the laboratory in which Wilbur and Orville Wright designed and built the world's first successful airplane 33 years ago. Ford plans to move the building to his Edison Institute, which is the name of the combined Edison Museum and the Greenfield Village, constructed to endure for generations as exhibitions of progress in engineering, mechanics and the useful arts and crafts.

The Wright building is a two-story brick and frame structure. It was here that the Wright brothers had their bicycle manufacturing plant and repair shop. In this place they began work on an airplane and accurately analyzed for the first time what aeronautical engineers call the "travel of the center of pressure," on an airplane wing. It was their analysis of this that makes it possible to construct an airplane light enough to fly, yet strong enough to carry a load and withstand all the strains of flight. Many American buildings which have become shrines are located in Greenfield village. Also there are exact reproductions of such buildings as Independence Hall, Congress Hall, and the City Hall of Philadelphia.

Nearly every aspect of the village reflects the life of the small American community of fifty or one hundred years ago. Among the buildings is the Clinton Inn, built in 1831 in Clinton, Mich., and once a stopping place between Detroit and Chicago. Nearby is the chapel of Martha-Mary, named for the mothers of Mr. and Mrs. Ford.

The original red school house in which Ford occupied a seat as a boy is maintained as it was in the early days of Dearborn. Nearby is the Lincoln courthouse. Outstanding to most visitors is the Menlo Park group of buildings, reconstructed from, or reproductions of, the structures in which Thomas A. Edison labored from 1876 to 1886.

WILL DEDICATE STATE BUILDING

Austin, Sept. 2.—Dedication and opening of Texas' $1,200,000 Hall of State, located on the grounds of the Texas Centennial Exposition at Dallas, will take place at 8 p. m., Saturday, September 5. Elaborate ceremonies are being arranged by state officials, the will mark the opening of the memorial to heroes of Texas—handsome all stone structure.

September 5 has been designated as "Texas Day" at the Centennial Exposition. Governor James V. Allred has decreed Saturday as a holiday for all state employees in order that they might attend the dedicatory services. All state senators and representatives will participate and an invitation has been extended to all county judges of Texas and citizens of their respective counties to be present on the occasion of the Texas Hall of State opening.

Lieut. Governor Walter F. Woodul, who will be acting Governor during the absence of Governor Allred from the state, will represent the State of Texas. Claude D. Teer, chairman of the State Board of control will preside over the exercises, at which time he will deliver in the name of the state the imposing memorial to the Centennial Exposition and the people of Texas. The Board of Control has acted as the supervising agency during the construction of the building.

Principal address of the dedicatory exercises will be delivered by former governor Pat M. Neff, member of the Texas Centennial Commission of Control. A speech of acceptance on the part of Dallas and Centennial officials will be made by Nathan Adams, chairman of the board of the Texas Centennial Exposition. Other Exposition leaders and City of Dallas Park Board officials will acknowledge the $1,200,000 gift.

Arrangements are being made to open the building for inspection during the day Saturday, prior to the evening ceremonies, in order that visitors to the Exposition may have the opportunity of inspecting the premises of the memorial.

Facts vs. Epigrams

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

"The greatest truths are the simplest."

During the past few years the American people have witnessed the injection of many new and complex ideas into their once direct and simple form of government.

And they have been further puzzled by long explanations of those novelties, often in terms still more complex and unfamiliar.

The process continues—quickened during recent weeks by the demands of campaign oratory. Yet even when enlivened by epigram and wisecrack, many of those explanations sound strange and foreign to the American ear.

But there is no reason for such complexity. Facts are simple things, and in campaigns as in routine reports of government, may be simply told. The fundamental issues which interest the American people need neither epigram nor wisecrack to clarify them.

The strength, the value and the security of our Constitution, for example, can be described in the simplest terms. Reasons for discarding its basic principles need more involved explanation.

The sanctity of personal liberty—of the right of every citizen to run his own farm, his own business, his own affairs—is another truth that can be simply stated. Reasons for curbing that freedom are harder to present.

The need to eliminate extravagance in government and its consequent drain on the earnings and resources of every citizen, may be readily outlined and understood. Reasons for continuing such waste require longer, more difficult and more complicated phrases.

If campaign orators will remember these things their labors will be both easier and more effective. The American people are eager today for facts, not epigrams.

They realize that the greatest truths are not only the simplest; they are also the most easily told.

NOT GUILTY

(C. L. Frazier, Refugio, Texas.)
I guess I've seen a hundred men
Go in this jail and out—
From a tramp with week-old whiskers
To a rich man with the gout.

Not a one of them was guilty
Of the crimes the law accuse;
Seem they all were just victims
Of some law man's rough abuse.

From the time the keys are rattled
'Til they're locked up in a cell,
Their voices they may differ,
From a whisper to a yell.

But the song is just the same
That everyone will sing—
"I don't see why they put me in here;
I haven't done a thing."

Makes no difference what they've done,
Or how mean the crime has been
When they're locked behind these bars
Seems to me they're free from sin.

Evidence, it may be solid,
And their voice may have a guilty ring,
But they'll step right up and tell you
That they haven't done a thing.

And when they die and leave this world,
To stop in heaven or hell—
If they could just be taken
And locked up in a cell—

On that judgment day in chorus,
Loud and clear you'd hear them sing—
"I don't see why you put me here;
I haven't done a thing."

Beard Tells How To Distinguish Criminals

Criminals do have distinguished physical characteristics, Daniel Carter Beard, eminent American artist, writer and outdoorsman, says in the September issue of "Boys' Life" a magazine published for all boys of which he is associate editor and a regular contributor.

"On all public enemies there is a tendency for the right side of the face to droop," asserts Mr. Beard, basing his observation upon study of photographs of criminals. "This is usually more noticeable in the right eye, but the sagging frequently includes all of the face, the right side of the nose, the right corner of the mouth, and sometimes the chin, or it may be only one of these, but that tendency is always there upon the face of the real criminal, and when I say real criminal, I do not mean men who have done one criminal act under the stress of great emotions or excited feelings, I mean men whose thoughts are criminal, dishonest and heartless."

Mr. Beard says that he has consulted friends in the medical profession, and learned that the side of the face is controlled by the pituitary gland. "Then I knew what made a criminal. It was the unnatural action of the pituitary gland."
