McKnight School Is Saved by Teachers Cutting Salaries

Salary Cuts of $35 to $85 Is Voluntarily Made to Keep School Going

It was a sad mission for Mrs. Nora McMurtry, County Superintendent of schools, this week when she was forced to visit the teachers of the McKnight school for the purpose of informing them that a lack of school tax money would compel a closing of the school at that point.

The problem had been given careful study. Every avenue of escape from the impending calamity appeared to be closed. She had not reckoned with the unqualified sacrifice of the faculty.

Upon explaining the dilemma facing them, Mrs. McMurtry was deeply impressed with the astounding offer of the teachers of that school, an expression of devotion to duty and personal sacrifice seldom met with in the profession.

The three teachers of the school voluntarily agreed to cut their own salaries to fifty dollars per month. This means a distinct financial loss to them of from $35 to $85 per month.

R. F. Matthews as principal had contracted to receive $135, Mrs. R. F. Matthews $100 and Miss Winnie Spier $85 per month. They will each receive only $50 per month and the school by reason of this fact, will continue to the end of the term.

In speaking of his first message to the local congregation, Rev. Ferrell called attention Sunday morning to the first Scripture text that he used here a year ago.

"Therefore came I unto you without gain saying, as soon as I was sent for; I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me? Acts 10:29. He said in his opening remarks, "It is well for the Christian pastor to start fairly; to have his mission fully understood; to know the expectations of his charge, so that neither they nor himself may be disappointed afterward. Like the physician, he wastes no time in idle formalities; he goes straight to the patient, and inquires why he is sent for, so I ask therefore for what intent did you send for me? 1. To be a censor of others. God forbid, the preacher's position is that of a shepherd, not a sheep-dog. 2. To cater for your intellectual wants. No, the preacher should strive to improve the minds of his people, but his chief mission is to the heart. 3. To be a boon companion. No, a preacher should rejoice to share the joy of his hearers, but his first business has to do with the poor and sorrowful. 4. To repeat the particular creed of my hearers. No, the preacher's duty is to deal with God's word and not with systems manufactured therefrom. I hope that you have sent for me to expound and enforce the word of our Master; to admonish the erring, encourage the faint; to teach men of their dangers, and to proclaim the Deliverer. This was my position a year ago, and I have not changed my opinion. Pray for me Brethren, and may the Father help us to press on to greater victories."

Basketball Rural Finals Played at Hedley

All of the rural schools and many others were well represented at Hedley Friday and Saturday when the finals were played off between the contesting teams. It is said that more interest was evidenced at this time than in any previous gathering of a similar nature.

Chamberlain and Windy Valley senior girls were pitted and Chamberlain won by a close margin.

Windy Valley and Chamberlain junior boys playing for championship gave Windy Valley the victory by a narrow margin of three points.

All of the games played in finals were close and there was every evidence of fairness and real sportsmanship on the part of the players.

Bill Provides A Fifty Percent Loan For Ex-Soldiers

How Veterans May Secure Loans on Certificates Through Dallas

The regional office for this district is Dallas to where all correspondence should be directed. If money has been borrowed on the Certificate, the amount should be stated and a full account of the transaction given in full to save time.

Those who have not received loans must mail to the office or present a certified note to that effect along with discharge papers and the certificate. Notes can be obtained from the regional offices and veterans' organizations.

From there on the loan is in the hands of the Veterans' Bureau, which heretofore has issued loans within ten days of receiving applications and hopes to continue issuing at about the same rate.

Here is how the value of Veterans' compensation certificates is determined.

Each former soldier, sailor, marine or coast guardsman and those in any other branch of the military service during the World War was given $1 per day for service at home and $1.25 for overseas service.

To this was added 25 per cent of the total which, with 4 per cent interest compounded annually, forms the actual maturity value of his certificate.

Next Contest Will be Held at Second Meeting This Month, Says President

Women of Donley Get Early Start In Planting Gardens

Many New Vegetables Have Been Included in Garden For Canning Purposes

The Home Demonstration Club women of this county are enthusiastically supporting a canning program with an early start as suggested by Miss Martha Buttrill, county agent.

Fifty-one members have garden already planted. Hot beds are being prepared, twenty-three already being in use. These beds have been made large enough to admit of growing vegetables for a winter garden.

In addition to rhubarb and asparagus, fourteen other vegetables will receive attention and of such varieties as have not been grown in previous years. Careful attention has been given seed beds and hot beds for growing plants.

Since fruits are also to be canned, trees have been planted out for new orchards. Sixty cherry trees alone being planted out by club members, two thirds of that amount being planted on farms by renters.

Meats also will enter into the canning heavily this season and no little attention has been given the chick question. To date 3745 eggs have been set either at home or at the local hatchery.

In addition to this plan, 929 chicks have been purchased and contracts made for more. As the spring opens and with the coming of warm weather, these club women expect to become heavy purchasers of chicks.

"Therefore came I unto you without gain saying, as soon as I was sent for; I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me? Acts 10:29. He said in his opening remarks, "It is well for the Christian pastor to start fairly; to have his mission fully understood; to know the expectations of his charge, so that neither they nor himself may be disappointed afterward. Like the physician, he wastes no time in idle formalities; he goes straight to the patient, and inquires why he is sent for, so I ask therefore for what intent did you send for me? 1. To be a censor of others. God forbid, the preacher's position is that of a shepherd, not a sheep-dog. 2. To cater for your intellectual wants. No, the preacher should strive to improve the minds of his people, but his chief mission is to the heart. 3. To be a boon companion. No, a preacher should rejoice to share the joy of his hearers, but his first business has to do with the poor and sorrowful. 4. To repeat the particular creed of my hearers. No, the preacher's duty is to deal with God's word and not with systems manufactured therefrom. I hope that you have sent for me to expound and enforce the word of our Master; to admonish the erring, encourage the faint; to teach men of their dangers, and to proclaim the Deliverer. This was my position a year ago, and I have not changed my opinion. Pray for me Brethren, and may the Father help us to press on to greater victories."

Rev. Ferrell is most popular with the members of his church, members of the other churches and the general public an enjoys the confidence of a host of friends who appreciate him and his family very much.

L. E. Dodd Reported Near Death at Kerrville

Advices from Kerrville Monday stated that Mr. Dodd was not expected to survive an illness over several months. He and Mrs. Dodd have been visiting a daughter there for some time in the interest of his health.

The Dodd family is among the oldest of the Lelia Lake settlers and were always numbered among the leading citizens of that section where they had many friends who will regret to learn of the sadness coming to them at this time.

Basketball Rural Finals Played at Hedley

All of the rural schools and many others were well represented at Hedley Friday and Saturday when the finals were played off between the contesting teams. It is said that more interest was evidenced at this time than in any previous gathering of a similar nature.

Smith and Windy Valley boys played a hot game for senior championship, Smith winning by a small margin.

Chamberlain and Windy Valley senior girls were pitted and Chamberlain won by a close margin.

Windy Valley and Chamberlain junior boys playing for championship gave Windy Valley the victory by a narrow margin of three points.

All of the games played in finals were close and there was every evidence of fairness and real sportsmanship on the part of the players.

Cleo Foster of the Chamberlain school made more points than any boy or girl entering the contests. Cleo's age is 14 and she is a ninth grader making just as good grades in her school subjects as she does points on the athletic field. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Foster and walks four miles to school.

Joe W. Hastings Dies Sunday at Home in Canyon

Death came suddenly to Joe Hastings at Canyon Sunday morning though he had not been in the best of health for several months.

He came to this section in the early nineties and was in the employ of the J. A. ranch for a number of years. He was also at one time associated with his brother Silas in the grocery business here.

Four County Bankers Have Meeting at Memphis

Bankers of Donley, Hall, Collingsworth and Childress counties met at Memphis Thursday night. The local banks were well represented at this meeting at which Dr. W. C. Dickey was the principal speaker.

The Farmers State was represented by J. D. Swift and Van Kennedy, the Donley County State by Roy Clayton, Kelly Chamberlain, Jack SoRelle and Holman Kennedy. Clifford Davis, W. W. Taylor and W. H. Patrick represented the First National bank.

Local Men Own Miniature Shooting Irons

"Shootin' irons" of olden days and in pioneer life in this section often consisted of a clumsy affair that was a burden to transport the weapon from place to place.

C. J. Douglas owns a shotgun, single barrel, of a H & R make with a barrel about 14 inches in length. He states that the gun is handy in killing rabbits and with the 410 shells really does creditable work.

Rev. W. E. Ferrell also owns a double-barreled gun of Spanish manufacture, nickel plated and a twelve inch barrel that also shoots a 410 shell and gets the game.

Mrs. O. L. Fink spent the week end with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Brittain at Jacksonville, Texas.

Rev. Y. F. Walker Will Be Buried Wednesday

Rev. Walker, for 25 years a Baptist minister in West Texas and one of the leading men of that faith, passed away Sunday at Turkey following a lengthy illness.

He was pastor at Ashtola and Lelia Lake last year and served the church at Hedley for some time. He was pastor of the church at Turkey at the time of his death.

He is survived by his widow and several children. Miss Blanche Rose Walker, missionary in China, is a sister. He will be buried at Turkey Wednesday.

Bill Provides A Fifty Percent Loan For Ex-Soldiers

How Veterans May Secure Loans on Certificates Through Dallas

The regional office for this district is Dallas to where all correspondence should be directed. If money has been borrowed on the Certificate, the amount should be stated and a full account of the transaction given in the first letter to save time.

Those who have not received loans must mail to the office or present a certified note to that effect along with discharge papers and the certificate. Notes can be obtained from the regional offices and veterans' organizations.

From there on the loan is in the hands of the Veterans' Bureau, which heretofore has issued loans within ten days of receiving applications and hopes to continue issuing at about the same rate.

Here is how the value of Veterans' compensation certificates is determined.

Each former soldier, sailor, marine or coast guardsman and those in any other branch of the military service during the World War was given $1 per day for service at home and $1.25 for overseas service.

To this was added 25 per cent of the total which, with 4 per cent interest compounded annually, forms the actual maturity value of his certificate.

County Agents Spend Busy Month Talking Garden

There is no question but that the banks, department of agriculture and others are backing the "live at home" program for this season.

During the month of February, county agent T. R. Broun and the county demonstration agent, Miss Martha Buttrill, conducted twenty two garden meetings attended by 555 people.

In these meetings Mr. Broun told the folks what, when and how to plant vegetables and how to fight the insects, while Miss Buttrill told them how to can vegetables, the relative food value of each and other suggestions of material value to the one doing the canning.

Eight Clubs Are Represented at Council Meeting

The County Council composed of the women's clubs of the county, met here at the Ladies' Club Room Saturday afternoon.

Eight clubs were represented in the meeting. These representatives came from Jericho, Ashtola, Martin, Hedley, Chamberlain, Lelia Lake, White Fish and Clarendon.

Fourteen members and four visitors were present. The Council was presided over by the president Mrs. Louie E. Merrill of Ashtola Mrs. J. C. Latimer of Hedley, secretary of the organization, was in her official position.

Chamberlain to Present Play at Ashtola Friday Nite

Having met with much encouragement in their home community, the cast playing in "What About Betty" will present the play at the Ashtola school auditorium Friday evening of this week beginning at 7:30.

Thirteen compose the cast made up of home talent including both pupils and teachers. The play is a three-act comedy and if you want to laugh, the folks backing the play want to see you enjoy one of the best plays to be presented.

J. R. Cox Died at Mineral Wells This Morning

Mr. Cox dropped dead at Mineral Wells early this morning. He had eaten his breakfast, arose from the table and dropped dead after taking a few steps. He was improving and as late as Monday relatives here were informed by a phone message that he was getting along nicely.

Funeral arrangements have not been made at the time of going to press.

Bryan Wins Prize At Rotary Luncheon In Hot Contest

Next Contest Will Be Held at Second Meeting This Month, Says President

"What would I do if I were broke, out of a job and had a family to support?" was the subject upon which Rotarians were asked to submit articles in competition for a valuable (?) prize offered by the President of the Club.

Revs. Shepherd, Cowan, McKee and Jackson composed the committee to pass upon the number of papers offered in competition for the prize. After due deliberation Rotarian Allan J. Bryan was awarded first place with special mention being given Rotarian F. E. Chamberlain.

Rev. McKee in a most gracious manner and oratorical effect presented the prize consisting of an airplane typifying the wishes of the giver that the recipient might always "fly high."

The subject upon which each member will be asked to write a theme for the second meeting in this month is, "What is the best service this Rotary club may render this community at this time."

Rotarians Densil R. Davis and R. E. Drennon reported the boys' meeting for Tuesday evening of this week.

Each of the visiting ministers gave a helpful talk, Rev. Cowan speaking at some length on general topics and Mr. Jackson on Sunday school as related to the early life of boys.

School Inspector to Arrive Here March 12th

J. C. Griffin, representing the State Department of Education, will be here during the week of March 12th for the purpose of making an inspection of the rural schools of Donley county to determine their status to receive state aid. These inspections are made at regular intervals each year to determine if the schools asking for state aid are complying with the law in such a manner as will entitle them to such aid.

Mrs. Horace Westmoreland and children of Amarillo visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom F. Connally over the week end.

Women of Donley Get Early Start In Planting Gardens

Many New Vegetables Have Been Included in Garden For Canning Purposes

The Home Demonstration Club women of this county are enthusiastically supporting a canning program with an early start as suggested by Miss Martha Buttrill, county agent.

Fifty-one members have garden already planted. Hot beds are being prepared, twenty-three already being in use. These beds have been made large enough to admit of growing vegetables for a winter garden.

In addition to rhubarb and asparagus, fourteen other vegetables will receive attention and of such varieties as have not been grown in previous years. Careful attention has been given seed beds and hot beds for growing plants.

Since fruits are also to be canned, trees have been planted out for new orchards. Sixty cherry trees alone being planted out by club members, two thirds of that amount being planted on farms by renters.

Meats also will enter into the canning heavily this season and no little attention has been given the chick question. To date 3745 eggs have been set either at home or at the local hatchery.

In addition to this plan, 929 chicks have been purchased and contracts made for more. As the spring opens and with the coming of warm weather, these club women expect to become heavy purchasers of chicks.

Loan Worries.

While preparing papers asking for a federal loan, a Kansas farmer's daughter eloped with a beauty parlor operator taking along the brand new family Cadillac sedan.

Thrifty Beggars.

Farmers of the nation are being advised to curtail production this season in order that prices might advance, while millions are begging for a chance to eat up the overproduction now on hand.

Friendly Enemies.

Greedy gas companies will be entitled to all the credit for the passage of the utility regulation bill now before the Legislature if it results in any benefit to the public.

Auto Intoxication.

Fearing to continue on the highway and thus endanger the lives of others, a drunken man stopped his car near Okeene, Oklahoma Friday only to be thrown out by a highwayman who ran off with his auto.

Need One More.

Since there has been a commission appointed for each of the several duties involving both state and national government, would it not be a good idea to appoint a commission to investigate the commissions as a final climax?

Closing For Funerals.

The editor of the McLean News suggests that the business houses close for a possible 15 minutes period for each funeral. We know some towns that are so dead business houses have been closed for twelve months.

States Rights.

There was a time when the southern states claimed states' rights and a bloody war was the result. Today the east is claiming the same thing in regard to the liquor question. Perhaps it makes a difference whether it is booze or niggers.

Convicts And Paupers.

Supporters of the bill before the Legislature asking that all state printing be done by convict printers at Huntsville state that some of the best skill is now behind the walls. The idea is to put the remainder in the poorhouse and operate two plants if necessary.

Cockle Burr or Gravel?

Governor Murray fired his official barber this week when he cut the Governor's neck while shaving him. It is presumed that the razor hit an obstruction and bounced causing the veteran barber to change jobs and possibly party affiliation.

Living Monuments.

We read of a certain wealthy Canadian who maintains a wild goose preserve. He has made provision for the care of the bird sanctuary after his passing. We have known some men who dedicated their lives to wild women, but this is the first time that we ever heard of a man taking the same interest in wild geese.

Aggressive California.

A bill is now before the Legislature in California that has for its purpose the exclusion of the banana that the people may be forced to eat more of the native fruit products.

And all this too, in a state that maintains a rigid quarantine against Florida citrus fruits lest insidious "pests" be imported into gardless of the true worth of the subject about which the article is written.

Foolin' the Judge.

Al Capone has put over a lot of questionable stuff according to reports, but he was out of luck Friday when Federal Judge Wilkerson of Chicago gave him a jail sentence of six months for failure to respect a court summons back in '29.

Al was spending the winter in Florida and sent up a sick excuse as his reason for not being able to attend court. It now develops that he attended prize fights, races and various other places that could not be properly classified as a hospital by any stretch of the imagination.

Healing Lotion.

Amarillo is getting some more publicity for that mineral water, claimed to be a native product. The latest story is to the effect that a party of autoists driving into town heard a queer noise in the motor and upon investigation, found that the piston had kicked a hole in the transmission case.

The oil was promptly drained from the crank case and refilled with the mineral water. Within a few moments the water had "healed" the hole and the party proceeded to town with the loss of but one minute and forty-five seconds.

Just think! There was a time when a Panhandle banquet menu consisted of sour dough bread, beef beans, onions and coffee. The banquet hall consisted of the wide open spaces covered by "the canopy of heaven."

Pink Parrish Protests.

Coming from the western part of the state where all women are queens and men are men, Senator Pink L. Parrish of Lubbock rears up to tell the world that the manufacturer is making too much profit on hen fruit down at Austin.

The otherwise optimistic senator grows pessimistic when eggs costing the cafe seven cents a dozen are measured back to the hungry customer at the rate of two for twenty-five cents, or at a profit of 1250 percent to the manufacturer.

The corpulent senator is right. Just as right as can be and his protest is just. The producer should get more for his product. The big trouble results from a lack of organization of the producer while the manufacturers demand pay for time, trouble, effort, skill and overhead costs.

Not in Russia.

A prominent Red Cross worker in discussing the male citizens of Arkansas on a recent inspection was surprised to find the men did not wear whiskers. He also was surprised to note that the people were readers and thinkers.

The auto, radio and highway influences has reached the remotest corners of the nation and the people are kept in daily touch with what is going on. The moss back belt has faded away. Likewise the schemer who fleeced the unwary farmer.

He also attends Short Courses at his A & M college, has learned to judge poultry and live stock. He knows as much about a balanced ration for them as does the chemist. He discusses the feed values of protein and is conversant with soil builders. The only thing that appears to have been neglected, is his education along the lines of marketing his products.

Dancing With Nobility.

American girls who happen to be in South America are monopolizing the time of the Prince of Wales and his brother who are paying a visit there at this time. To be accredited the opportunity to dance with the nobility appears to be the sole and social ambition of the young ladies.

Other than being a pretty sensible sort of a fellow, the Prince is not due any credit for any special or meritorious achievements during his life up to his 37th year, and would have possibly been a failure had he not been born lucky.

If the girls want to associate with the real nobility of the universe, let them pick some youngster who is clean of mind and morals. A fellow who has created new values in the scheme of life. One who has made it possible for others to get more out of life.

Dozens of memoirs of the pig clubs and baby beef clubs of Texas are entitled to more consideration than all the scions of nobility of the globe.

Think it over. It may be that the offense was done unintentionally. It may be that it was only a misunderstanding. It is possible that

Talk It Over.

Space is here devoted to a reprint from the Tatum, New Mexico public school paper, the article coming from the gifted brain of Moira Jo Markham of that southeast New Mexico school located upon the broad plains in view of the Sacramentos and canopied by an emerald sky not surpassed by that of the Italian Alps. The title given the article is "Tell the Offender," and was taken from a recent issue of the Lovington, N. M. Tribune.

"When a person commits an act toward you, which act offends you; and that person commits the act, either intentionally or unintentionally, go to the offender and settle the trouble. Do not tell every one in the community before going to the person who has done you wrong, as it will only cause more trouble. You are not settling the trouble. You are not gaining more friends; possibly you are losing some of the friendship of those whom you already term friends.

Community Loyalty. Far be it from us to intimate that the actions of the teachers of you do not understand the circumstances under which the act was committed. Put yourself in the other fellow's place. Try to think of the reasonable side of the trouble. Above all, settle the thing with the person who has done you wrong, if an agreement can be reached at all.

You probably assume that the action was done in the wrong spirit. Because you assume this you will always tell your side of the affair; thereby hurting an innocent party. Perhaps the people to whom you tell your troubles will see the other side. Then, you have lost just another friend. This case also applies to trouble between pupils and teachers, or parents and teachers, as well as between associates, enemies or what not.

In the first place, and above all, go tell the offender before you tell others. It will cause a lot less trouble. Anyone should keep as many friends as he possibly can, and gain as many more as he possibly can."

the McKnight school in this county should be regarded as a precedent or even an example for the members of the profession, but when teachers sacrifice their pay in order that a community may have a school, it is worthy of more than passing mention.

The teachers of this school voluntarily cut their salaries to fifty dollars each per month because tax money had not been paid in to the extent that they could be paid the salary price agreed upon as per contract.

They went further than that according to the County Superintendent of Schools who informs the Leader that these teachers would continue the work if they were paid only enough to meet actual personal living expenses.

Card Money in Canada
 Card money preceded coinage in Canada, being circulated between 1685 and 1717 and later from 1729 to 1750. De Meulles when Intendant conceived the idea of paying the troops in bills (owing to the scarcity of specie), to be redeemed when the ships arrived from France. Having no better substitute he used playing cards for the purpose by cutting them into quarters, stamping them with a crowned fleur de lis, writing on them their value and signed by himself and the clerk of the treasury. Paper money was used in Acadia in 1708, and some merchants issued small paper due bills for purchases at their stores. These continued in use for many years.

Oaks Retain Leaves Long
 Oak trees are usually the last to shed their leaves in the fall, and frequently they stay on all winter. According to the United States forest service this is due to the fact that their growth has not entirely ceased when frost arrives. A sudden drop in temperature stops their growth when the fibro-vascular bundles or woody fibers connecting the leaves with the twigs are still in a vegetable condition. The connecting fibers which have been suddenly killed by frost become hard and tough and the leaves sometimes cling to the twigs until the next spring, when they are shed through wind and rain.

Chevrolet Leads Field of Production Through February
 January production of Chevrolet Motor Company was 70,766 cars and trucks, according to W. S. Knudsen, president. Output schedules for February, with three fewer days, call for 67,429 cars and trucks, exclusive of schedules in the company's Canadian plants.
 January's production compares with an output of 64,019 in December, the largest December month in the company's history.
 The month just ended is the third in succession to establish new high production marks over previous months since Chevrolet brought out its new line of cars in November, when 45,000 cars were made, setting a new output record for that month in any year.
 According to President Knudsen, output in February likely will exceed tentative schedules now set and each month during the remainder of the year is expected to show an increase over the preceding one.
 Chevrolet factory employment as of Saturday, January 24, totaled 34,447, an increase of more than 2000 over the corresponding date in December and 8000 more than when the company commenced production of its new cars in early November. During the current month employment is expected to reach 40,000, Chevrolet's normal operating force.

OUR WEEKLY CHURCH CHAT
"Morbus—Sundaysus."
Morbus—Sundaysus is a very contagious disease. When a member of the family is stricken with this dreadful malady, especially if it be the head of the family, it is soon communicated to others in the house, and spreads around the community in an alarming proportion.

The symptoms are easily detected. There is a feeling of lassitude on the Lord's Day morning, a disposition to read the Sunday newspaper instead of the Bible. It affects the disposition to such an extent, that nothing but the Katzenjammer Kids or the adventures of Happy Hooligan or the funny page can excite him. Towards Bible school time the patient will have temper and temperature so high that an invitation to Bible School will throw the patient into convulsions of exasperation that would bring tears to the eyes of a graven image (?). It increases in violence and reaches its crisis and climax about church time, and from this time on till 12:30 subsides, until the lassitude gives place to a voracious appetite which can only be appeased by a big Sunday dinner.

Morbus—Sundaysus produces the fault-finder, and like the dyspeptic, no food please him, but only distresses him. He becomes a preacher-killer, a grumbler, a pessimist, and unless the progress of the disease is arrested, a doubter, and this contagion spreads like a miasma over the souls of those around him. (Selected)

None of us wants to miss any of the blessing that God has in store for us. It is good to go to church. It enriches one. To stay away from church is to rob and defraud one's own soul. It means that we are missing some of the blessings that God wishes for us to receive and intended for us.

We are giving for your benefit a "Recipe for a blessing." Read it well. 1 Hour of time. 3 or 4 good hymns sung with feeling. Half dozen real prayers. 1 Helpful Bible Study. All mixed together and seasoned with good-fellowship and Christian love served twice on Sunday and once Wednesday night in the meeting house of God's people. It will produce results. Try it right away.

Sunday we will present the following messages: "The Longest Way Round" at the morning hour and "A Peculiar People" at the evening hour. You are invited.

Amarillo Pioneer Captured By Indians Now Seriously Ill

Early History of Experiences of T. A. (Dot) Babb After Indians Killed Mother

Formerly a citizen of Clarendon, T. A. (Dot) Babb now lies critically ill in an Amarillo hospital, having suffered an apoplectic stroke more than a week ago. A bit of the life history of this noted pioneer is here given, and is presumed to be correct since it is taken from an early history of Clay county.

During the summer of '66 there lived on Dry Creek in Wise county Texas, a prosperous and happy family.

The father and head of the family, John S. Babb, (now deceased), had emigrated from Wisconsin in the summer of '56 and settled with his family (as above related) on Dry Creek 12 miles west of Decatur in Wise county, Texas, preparatory of going into the stock business. He had for a long time prior to coming to Texas, lived on the frontier of Wisconsin among Winnebago tribe of Indians, and thus became familiar with the customs and habits of the Indians, and felt no fear of trouble from them in his new home in Texas.

For a number of years Mr. Babb and family had dwelt in their new home without being molested by the Indians until they had become reconciled and all fear of them had about vanished from their minds.

In the summer of '66, Mr. Babb and his eldest son, H. C. Babb, (a resident of Henrietta for several years), started to Arkansas with a bunch of horses to exchange for cattle, little dreaming of the awful tragedy that was to take place during their absence.

He left his wife and son, T. A. Babb who now lives in Wichita Falls, and Bianca Babb and Margie Babb, two small girls, to take care of the place and stock during his absence. In the afternoon of a September day, '66, T. A. Babb, (or Dot as he was generally called) saw a lot of men riding toward the house. They at first supposed them to be a lot of cowboys on a round-up, but when they came up, they proved to be, instead of cowboys, 54 Comanche Indians all painted up and on the war path, only one Indian came near the house at first, and when he was certain that there were no men folks about the house, he gave the war hoop and in a few minutes the house was full of Indians. They began tearing up and carrying out everything that they could get their hands on. After they had ripped open the feather beds and appropriated the bed-ticking to their own use, they started to leave the place, taking hold of the little boy, Dot, and Bianca, the eldest of the two girls, forced them to accompany them to their Indian homes. Mrs. Babb begged them to leave the children with her. As the Indians were carrying Bianca out, she grabbed hold of the gallery post, and clung to it so tight, that when the Indian jerked her loose it tore the skin from the inside of her hands. An Indian drew a butcher knife and acted like he was going to kill her, then it was that the mother came to the rescue of her two children, and while she was making a terrible fight for them, one old savage shot an Indian arrow into her back. While they were scalping her another Indian, more wicked than Satan himself, plunged a lance into her throat. Dot pulled the arrow from his mother's back, and she told him and Bianca to go on with the Indians and be good children and some day their father would get them back.

Little Margie was sick at the time, and as the Comanches are very superstitious about harming the sick she was left undisturbed. The Indians made Dot, Bianca and Mrs. Sarah Luster mount behind them on their horses, and traveled a mile or so, as fast as they could go. They then stopped and caught several of Mr. Babb's horses that were grazing on the prairie.

Taking a northwest course they traveled that afternoon, and all night in a fast pace, only stopping a few minutes at a time to let their horses rest.

They crossed the little Wichita second day, about seven miles above where Henrietta is now located. The river was past fording, but they swam their horses and crossed themselves over on the drift wood. They never stopped long enough to get anything to eat until the third day after leaving the Babb ranch, when the Indians killed a steer that the wolves had almost killed. The captives were so hungry, that they ate some of the meat before it was cooked. Resuming their march, after cooking and eating their beef, they camped that evening just as the sun was sinking in the west, under the bluffs of Red River, and remained there two or three days.

The next day all the Indians left camp, except two, which were left to guard the camp and prisoners. One of the Indians left was wounded, having been shot in the knee in a skirmish with Glen Halsell and Ben Blanton on the day of the capture at the Babb ranch. About an hour after the Indians had left camp, an awful yelling was heard some distance away; one of the Indians ran up the bluff to see what was going on, thinking that the white people were following them. The prisoners ran down the river some little distance, and then up the bluff to where they could see what was going on, thinking that their friends had come to their rescue, but no friends greeted their sight. The Indians had rounded up a herd of buffalo, and were killing some for meat. After the prisoners learned the cause of the racket, they turned and went back to camp, and found the old crippled Indian yelling at the top of his voice, thinking that they (the prisoners) were gone.

Some two days before reaching the Indians village, where the squaws and papposes were camped, Mrs. Luster and Dot attempted to make their escape. Before retiring for the night, they noticed where the Indians had staked two of their best horses. They did not go to sleep that night but waited for the moon to go down so that they could get away without being noticed by the Indians. After the moon had sunk behind the western hills, and all the Indians sound asleep, they slipped from their pallets on which they were lying, and began hunting for bridles. Mrs. Luster soon found one and put it on one of the horses. Dot found one but an Indian was using it under his head for a pillow.

As he pulled it out from under the Indian's head, he awoke and gave the alarm. After Dot saw there was no chance for his escape he called to Mrs. Luster, who had her horse ready to mount and leave. She sprang on the horse and was soon out of hearing. When morning came, and the Indians could not find their escaped prisoner, they were mad and took their spite out on Dot. They made a mark on the ground, and made Dot touch the mark. They would punch him on the bare breast with a pistol until the skin was torn from the flesh. When they could not make him cry, and he stood their ill treatment so bravely, they tied him to an old dead tree, and commenced to pile brush around him, as if they were going to burn him. Bianca, Dot's sister, who was near by, could not look upon the scene any longer and covered her head with a blanket. The Indians sang and danced around Dot and the tree for quite a while, and when they saw that they could not scare nor make him cry, they untied him from the tree, and seemed to be very proud of his bravery. Bianca too; was spunky and brave like her brother, and was always ready to take her own part. That morning when starting on their journey, they separated Dot and Bianca and would not let them travel together.

When they arrived at the squaw camp, most of the Indians, big, little and young, came crowding around, as though they were going to pull them off of their horses and mob them. After arriving at camp, the old chief gave Bianca to a squaw named Lecwishama whose husband was killed on the day that Bianca was captured. The Indians very often visited other lodges or villages of their tribe, and would always take Bianca with them. While on one of these visits she met a white boy who had been captured by another band of Indians while making a raid in Texas. She was well treated by the Indians and thought as much of apparently as one of their tribe. The old squaw would make a mixture of charcoal and grease and try to color her hair. Her dress was made of bed-ticking, one width doubled in the center, with a hole large enough for the head. Her hair dress was pieces of silver money beaten out and fastened to a piece of skin, reaching from the crown of her head to the feet. Her bracelets consisted of large and small brass rings extending from the wrist to the elbows, one above the other. The Indians burnt her ears and not having silk cord to put in to the holes to keep them from growing up, put little sticks into the holes.

The Indians moved about from place to place, changing their camp many times. Finally they were thrown into camp with a squaw who had previously attempted Bianca's life. This old squaw was still mad and tried to set the dogs on her. A few days later Bianca with several squaws and children were out gathering wood, when this old squaw ran at her with an uplifted ax. A young Indian girl ran between Bianca and the old squaw, receiving the blow which split her head causing instant death. For this crime the old squaw was arrested and kept under guard all night, and the next day carried some distance from camp and probably executed according to the Indian laws, as she was never seen in camp again.

When the rations in camp began to get scarce, part of the tribe would strike out on a buffalo hunt. Bianca generally went on hunts with them, and liked it better than staying in camp. The bucks would kill the buffalo and the squaws dress and dry the meat. Should the provisions give out in camp before the hunters returned with the buffalo meat, they would sometimes kill a fat horse, and eat the meat.

When the cottonwood was in bloom the different tribes would meet for a big pow-wow and war dance and have a good time generally. Bianca would join in the song, and sing a kind of bumble bee ditty for the dancers. They had very remote ideas of the Great Spirit. During certain moons they would hold grand meetings, putting several tents together, making it large enough to accommodate two or three hundred people. The only entrance to the inside of this big tent was through a hole dug in the ground, about six feet long, four feet deep and two feet wide. Anyone getting inside of this tent had to go in through this hole in the ground. Inside, in the center of the tent, was burning a large fire. Around the fire was a ditch filled with water, and around this ditch of water was a well beaten path where the braves would run around sometimes several at a time, and at other times only one would run around the fire, all the time saying something to the Great Spirit. These attending these meetings had to wear their buffalo robes with the woolly side out and attend three mornings in succession barefooted and without eating any breakfast. All Indians camp in the Western wilds was quite a picture. It was invariably in a picturesque locality, for, like the white man, the Indians have an eye to the beautiful. They avoid the mountains, choosing the smooth prairie where the buffalo and elk graze, where the wild turkey and the prairie chicken love to stay, on some quiet river.

In June, '67, an Indian scout and interpreter by the name of Horace Jones and a Comanche chief from another band, came to the Indian camp in New Mexico, and told Bianca that they had come to take her to her father. Her leaped for joy, yet she could scarcely believe them. Her Indian mother begged her not to leave her, but when Bianca insisted on going, the old Indian would not let her come in to the tent. Bianca sat down on the outside of the tent. About midnight the old squaw came out and told Bianca to come go with her, and she would take her to her father. Bianca followed her for quite a while, and then she took her on her back and carried her a long distance. About 9 o'clock next morning they came to a large hole in the prairie, in which they waited to rest. They hadn't been there long before the old Indian chief came riding up. He appeared to be very mad, he took Bianca up behind him on his horse, and the squaw following when back to camp where they soon left for Fort Arbuckle, near the Arbuckle Mountains in the Indian Territory, where Bianca met her father, who looked much aged over his late troubles by losing part of his family.

After being separated from his sister, Dot was carried into Colorado. He was well thought of by the Indians and was given several horses, and was allowed to go with them on the hunt, but not so when they were on a marauding expedition, although he told them he would not take the advantage and get away.

Dot remained with the Indians about two years when in the summer of '68 he was on the Cimarron river where he had the first news that he was to be ransomed. He was with Horse Back and the news was brought by Old Essehahbie. After receiving the news they went to the Washita river where his father his father and Horace Jones, a noted Indian scout, were met. This was about where Anadarno now stands, from which place they went to Fort Arbuckle where the final change was made.

Dot has been in the western part of the state ever since and was one of the first settlers in Wichita Falls. He has a large ranch in the upper part of Wichita county, but his residence is in Wichita Falls. Little Bianca Babb, who 30 years ago lived with and followed the Comanches far over the Texas frontier, and gathered wild flowers with the dusky Indian maiden, is now the Bianca Babb Bell of Henrietta, Texas. She is the mother of several sprightly little boys and girls, and often tells them how that, when a little girl, she rode the wild mustang, and chased the Coach Burton says he knows a man who can bake dandy good pies at a cost of only seven cents a pie. If he knows as much about pie as he does football, he would like to see this pie business tested out.

There was a time when some people thought the earth was square, but most any one now knows it is crooked.

"Misery makes all the world kin" is an old saying and no doubt true. Take for instance a corn on the toe. If the victim does not treat all those around him like they were kinsfolk, I don't know corns.

Trials do not, as a rule, hurt a person except in their own mind, but should make them stronger and better prepared to meet other obstacles that come our way.

Negro Girl Sells For Ninety Dollars; Whiskey 22c Gallon

Gov. Roberts Does His Share of Bargaining Back in The "Good Old Days"

Facts connected with the history of the leading men of Texas seldom breaks into print, and more especially is it carefully kept from the school text books. Were all the facts connected with the lives of national heroes printed in our histories, no doubt there would be strenuous objections from some of the present day leaders.

Very few men in public life back in 1842 when the Bill of Sale printed below was passed, would escape condemnation today for their every day acts. These bits of history give these a jolt who prate about the world "going to the dogs."

The bill of sale is here printed in full, and is now owned by Judge R. T. Brown of San Augustine, Texas, San Augustine County.

Know all men by these presents, That I, Oran M. Roberts, for and in consideration of the sum of Ninety Dollars, do by these presents bargain and sell unto Abner Parther a certain negro girl about fifteen years of age named Sarah of dark complexion, warranted to be a slave for life, the same to have and to hold to himself and legal representatives. Provided, however, and upon this condition, that Whereas, the said Roberts has purchased ten barrels of Whiskey from said Parther at Twenty Two cents per gallon amounting in all to about Ninety Dollars, four of which have already been delivered and other six barrels to be hereafter delivered upon order of said Roberts for which whiskey said Roberts binds himself to pay on or before the fifteenth day of November next.

Now if the said Roberts shall well and truly pay said Abner Parther for said Whiskey at said time, this instrument shall thenceforth and forever after be fully discharged, cancelled and of no effect.

This the 15th day of September 1842.

Witness my hand and seal the word Parther is interlined before sealing and delivering.

(Signed) Oran M. Roberts, (Seal)

Test:

John Martin,
The Republic of Texas,
County of San Augustine.

This day personally came and appeared before me John Martin who after being duly sworn says that he saw O. M. Roberts sign, seal and deliver the within and foregoing instrument for the uses and purposes therein contained.

Given under my hand at office this 27th day of December 1842.

J. P. Border, C. C. C.

By his Deputy, C. R. Sossaman.
