

Fourth Of July Plans Are All Completed

Donley Commissioners Change Hiway 5 Designation

CITY PREPARES FOR CELEBRATION

ALL PLANS COMPLETED AND ALL AWAIT MAMMOTH CELEBRATION HERE

The celebration of the birth of the United States back in 1776 will be put to shame by the modern ancestors of our forefathers here in Clarendon Friday and Saturday of next week, July 3rd and 4th.

No expense has been spared by the chamber of commerce in assuring the visitors the time of their life on the Fourth of July, and plans have been made to take care of thousands of visitors.

Starting Thursday night the celebration will be started off with a bang when all Donley county and surrounding territory meets in the streets of the city for a big free street dance and a general good time.

Then on the morning of Friday the 3rd the lid is completely blown off with two ball games, a preliminary auto races. These two events will just about take up the entire morning and at the conclusion the crowds will move their location to the new city park at the head of Kearney street where the mammoth free barbecue will be served.

Friday afternoon the preliminary rodeo events with the horse racing feature will be staged. These events include every branch of rodeo features found in a first rate show and will be a credit to a rodeo of the larger and wider cities.

The fiddlers contest will be held at the College Auditorium Friday evening.

Saturday morning the finals in the baseball tournament and the car races will be held with the finals in the rodeo events bringing the celebration to a close Saturday afternoon.

Fun for everybody in Clarendon July 3rd and 4th—you are invited. Clarendon expects you.

Dr. N. F. Williams and daughter of Fort Worth were in the city last Saturday for a visit in the home of Frew W. Rathjen and other friends here.

Messrs. Johnson of Fort Worth spent Thursday night in the home of Mrs. M. C. Reed. They proceeded to their home Friday morning.

Bill and Sam Galloway Jr. returned to Ft. Worth Monday after a two weeks visit with their aunt, Mrs. U. J. Boston.

Highway 88 Receives Grading, Ditch Work

Travelers who have been to Jericho on Highway No. 28 in the past week have been meeting with considerable difficulty and a lot of dust caused from the road work being done by the State Highway Department in repaving this section of the highway north.

G. G. Kemp was a business visitor to Pampa Monday.

FOURTH OF JULY TRIPS FINISHED

CLARENDON BOOSTERS RECEIVE COURTESIES FROM TOWNS VISITED

The booster trips to the surrounding cities of the Clarendon trade territory have been completed and have resulted in what officials believe will bring to Clarendon thousands of visitors for the Fourth of July celebration next Friday and Saturday.

The hot day supplemented by the dust of the trip made everybody thirsty and the entire delegation was treated to refreshments at Hardy's Drug Store upon their arrival in Wellington.

The auto caravan continued north to Shamrock where a short concert, was staged by the band, but no advertising literature left because of local plans of that place for the 4th.

At Childress a detachment of trippers were sent to Paducah, Matador, Quitaque and Silverton where window cards and circulars were left.

Tuesday the second trip including some twenty or more cars started east making stops at Ash-tola, Goodnight and Claude on the first leg of the trip.

SAM DYER BRINGS IN HEAVY SAMPLE WHEAT

One of the heaviest samples of wheat ever brought to the city of Clarendon was brought here Tuesday of this week by Sam Dyer from his place near Ash-tola. The wheat is being cut this week and by Wednesday afternoon three cars were ready for shipment from Ash-tola.

LOCAL METHODIST CHURCH HOST TO YOUNG PEOPLE

Last Friday evening the Clarendon First Methodist Church acted as host to some seventy five young people of the Clarendon District attending the Young People's Division of the Church.

The invitation of the Pampa group was accepted and the next meeting will be held at that city next month.

NEW OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED

INSTALLATIONS IN BLUE LODGE AND CHAPTER HELD WEDNESDAY EVE.

Before a fair membership attendance elective and appointive officers for the Clarendon Lodge, No. 700, A. F. & A. M., were duly installed Wednesday evening at the lodge hall.

Following the Blue Lodge ceremony, the Royal Arch Chapter was opened and the following officers were installed: J. Edly Crabtree, H. P.; Homer Mulkey, King; W. A. Davis, Scribe; Joe Horn, C. of H.; Ralph Andis, P. S.; W. E. Ray, R. A. Capt.; G. L. Green, Master of 1st veil; Homer Parsons, Master of the 2nd Veil; Ralph Kerbow, Master of 3rd Veil; E. A. Thompson, Secretary; W. H. Patrick, Treasurer; C. W. Galloway, Sentinel.

Rufus White returned to his home here last Saturday from Shamrock, where he had been operating the hatchery for the past several months.

The main party went to Panhandle where dinner was served at the Panhandle Inn and visits paid to Manager Hastings and wife, former residents of Clarendon.

A last stop at Jericho concluded the trip and ended what is believed to be the greatest booster mission ever attempted in the Panhandle for a similar celebration.

SCOUT WORK MAY BE RESUMED HERE

ADOBE WALLS COUNCIL SCOUT MASTER CONFERS LOCALLY HERE WED.

Scout Director Clark of the Adobe Walls Council was in Clarendon Wednesday of this week in response to a call from interested local men in the reorganization of Boy Scout Work in this community.

Mr. Clark called at The News office and briefly outlined his plans and it is hoped from his conference here with T. E. Trostle and others that a new setup for Scouting in this community will be effected before many days.

Several business men and others in Clarendon are anxious that at least two troops be set up in Clarendon and there is a possibility of three being formed, probably one for each of the Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist churches.

Messrs. Trostle, Boston, Chamberlain, McKee, Davis, Nored, Braswell and others believe the Scout work is needed here and hope that it can be inaugurated in the next few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Buel Sanford and daughters, Francis, and Pauline Shelton and Jonnie D. Latson motored to Amarillo Sunday afternoon and Pauline Sanford, who has been up there the past week, returned home with them.

Harold White of Fort Worth is here for a few days visit in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank White.

Miss Anne Cravens of Childress spent the fore part of this week here visiting Miss Lorraine Patrick.

"ORDERS IS ORDERS"

"Orders is orders," said a famous soldier whose name has been forgotten, even as his saying lived long after him.

When it comes to organization and team work certain Clarendon citizens can qualify for first rank, and only last week an incident happened that proves it beyond a scintilla of a doubt.

Among Friday's Good-will Trippers from Clarendon advertising our 3rd and 4th of July celebration, were A. L. Chase and Odos Caraway, who traveled with the party as far as Childress and then diverted by way of Paducah, Turkey, Quitaque and back home. Those two gentlemen carried a supply of Celebration placards and circulars and in the package was a route sheet specifying just how many placards to leave at a town, how many circulars, list of towns to match, et cetera.

The principal feature of the evening which proved to be of much tire convention was the Sunday noon meal served in the old army style. The conventional food line was formed by the legionnaires and their ladies and the array of red beans, stew, pickles and coffee was dispensed by the veteran K.P.'s at the meeting.

Courtesy passes were issued the visitors by all the theatres of the city, adding further to the enjoyment of the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Snyder of Saint Louis spent Monday and Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williams. They continued their trip to Jacksonville and then to St. Louis.

TEN CARLOADS CATTLE SHIPPED LAST FRIDAY

One of the first shipments to go from Clarendon to a point on the new Santa Fe line out of Amarillo was a ten carload shipment of cattle sent out last Friday. The cattle were shipped to Kerriek, and were shipped by Mr. N. B. Chenault to the Chenault Cattle Company at the aforementioned city. The cattle were shipped from this section to the northern part of the Panhandle for pasturage purposes.

HIGHWAY CENSUS IS COMPLETED IN COUNTY

The State Highway Department's traffic census which has been counted from Saturday morning to Wednesday morning has been finished and the final reports are ready to be made public. This year's census totals were somewhat under the figure of one year ago, but that was expected when consideration is taken of the conditions existing this year.

An average of 402 cars was established on highway No. 88 with highway No. 66 carrying an average of 492 vehicles. The highway No. 5 west averaged 655 cars while the same highway east carried 889 vehicles.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Story were pleasant visitors in The News office a short time Wednesday. They were en route to Childress.

FIVE ATTEND LEGION MEET

SPLENDID CONVENTION REPORTED AT LUBBOCK BY ATTENDING MEMBERS

Those attending the annual convention of the 5th Division, American Legion at Lubbock on last Saturday and Sunday reported a very interesting and instructive meeting as well as affording the members a splendid get-together with their old buddies supplemented with a fine program of entertainment.

The big picnic was just a beginning for the entertainment during the two days at the convention. Dancing followed closely upon the picnic, which furnished those present with amusement until a late hour. The local members arrived too late for the Saturday afternoon session.

Business were attended during Sunday, during which the Soldiers bonus was discussed, together with the coming State Convention of the Legion to be held in El Paso the 24th, 25th and 26th of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Snyder of Saint Louis spent Monday and Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williams. They continued their trip to Jacksonville and then to St. Louis.

College Head Preaches Here

Dr. T. W. Brabham, newly president of Texas Womens College at Fort Worth, was in Clarendon Sunday evening and preached at the Methodist Church. Dr. Brabham was recently called to his new work from the pastorate of the Pampa Methodist Church where he has made quite a record in the last several years, as an organizer and financier.

Texas Woman's College, according to Dr. Brabham, will continue its record of service in the education of young womanhood in the Southwest and will not be closed according to announcement earlier in the Spring. A feature of interest to Clarendon people is the fact that Mrs. W. H. Matthews, mother of Mrs. G. L. Boykin of this city, has been engaged as a matron of Dan Waggoner Hall for the coming term.

Dr. Brabham has already secured some large contributions and with the renewed financial help from the city of Fort Worth, expects to place the college on a satisfactory financial basis within the coming year.

LIONS OFFICIALS NAMED FOR 1931-2

RECOMMENDATIONS OF NOMINATING COMMITTEE ACCEPTED AS WHOLE

All officers of the Clarendon Lions Club were elected Tuesday at the regular luncheon with the exception of the Tail Twister. The man who was nominated for this office is to be seen by the committee this week and if possible will be returned to the office. If he will not accept the place, a new nomination will be made at the next luncheon and the place will be filled at that time.

Officers elected will be found to correspond with the nominations made by the nominating committee some two weeks ago, and are: President, G. L. Boykin; First Vice President, Holman Kennedy; Second Vice President, Ira C. Merchant; Third Vice President, J. E. Teer; Treasurer, Odos Caraway; Secretary, Lloyd Stallings; Lion Tamer, T. D. Nored; Directors, D. O. Stallings, J. T. Patman, Fred W. Rathjen and Clyde J. Douglas.

The installation of these officials will take place at the next luncheon of the club, the new officials being placed one week ahead of the usual time due to an enforced absence of the Boss Lion from the city for the first week in July.

Report on the first booster trip taken last Friday was made, and the second trip for Wednesday was also given due mention. As many cars as possible were asked, that a great number in the caravan.

Lion Caraway reported on the side trip and indicated that he and Lion Chase, as the true Lions, learned that it is best to follow instructions to the letter—even though a fifteen mile return trip became necessary.

Lion Chase reported on the three-cent key rate reduction, stating that the cut as the result of some years of work and that it was due at almost any time, when the fire record became such as to allow for the credit to be made.

Lion Douglas reported on his recent trip to Dallas and reported making up his attendance with the Central Dallas Lions last week. Lion G. L. Boykin reported that he received much good from his recent trip to College Station, and that although the old spirit was lacking that the school seemed much the same as it had been.

Lion Bennett Kerbow reported that the boys in the city had been treating him rather nicely since his stay in Amarillo and his work on the Federal Grand Jury.

Lion Murrell asked how it felt when a man reached the top and looked down on the other side. This referred to a man's age. For the answer, Lion Watson was called to the floor and was asked to tell of the feeling. Lion Watson stated that he had not reached the top, and that some other person would of necessity be asked concerning the looks of the other side.

NORTH OF TRACKS FROM HEDLEY WEST

CALLED SESSION FRIDAY SETS NEW RECORD IN TEXAS HIGHWAY HISTORY

Donley County Commissioners held a special called session Friday to discuss warrants for bridges in Precinct No. 4, approved an account for dirt work on bridge approaches in the J. A. Pasture to Clinton Henry in the sum of $350, payable from the bond issue in that district, and then made history in Texas Highway annals by setting aside by court order a state designation of Highway No. 5, from the east line of Hedley to the west line of Donley County.

County Judge J. J. Alexander was out of the city traveling with the Clarendon boosters party advertising the 3rd and 4th of July Celebration as far as Childress, and the session of the court was called on the initiative of the commissioners. S. E. Harris, Commissioner of Precinct No. 1, was elected chairman, with Commissioner Roy Beverly, Precinct 2; J. Les Hawkins, Precinct 3; and G. W. Beck, Precinct 4, all present.

From the memoranda of the meeting on file in the County Clerk's office the following notation concerning the routing of Highway No. 5, was made. "Motion made by J. Les Hawkins, that the Commissioners Court accept the East survey from the Hall County line to about the East city limits of Hedley, thence across the tracks, continuing parallel with the F. W. & D. R. R. on the North side through the County of W. Beck seconded the motion. Two voted for, and one against." The News is informed that Roy Beverly voted against the proposal.

It is said that Commissioner Hawkins explains his motion by saying that as nothing had been accomplished thus far in the negotiations to secure an agreed route through Hedley as it is now, he hoped that this action of the court would provoke compromises on the part of the district engineer. Committees from Clarendon and Hedley have been working on a plan to compromise some difficulties for several months, with always the same result of running up against the state and federal designation, and nothing has been accomplished thus far.

Several Clarendon men are of the opinion that nothing will be accomplished by this move of the court, while many hope that some good may come out of it. "This step of the court recalls the fact that the Commissioners have failed to avail themselves of the generous offer of the highway department to grade and put up drainage structures through the county on Highway 5, if the county would only purchase the right-of-way. It is thought that this may have some bearing on the attitude of the department toward this action voted Friday by the court."

"ONE GOOD TURN DESERVES ANOTHER"—HUGH BROWN

Stirring of memories from the little story in The News last week brought Homer Mulkey's electric buzz fan back home. When Hugh Brown was injured last year the fan was borrowed by Ray Goodson, step-son of Mr. Brown, without the family knowing just where the fan came from. Mr. Goodson was here just a short time and the coming of fall discarded the fan, so nothing further was thought of the origin of the fan for the time. Now Mr. Brown says he is glad to see the fan go back to its accommodating owner, and feels that "one good turn deserves another," so he wants his track jacks back. Some time last year Mr. Brown loaned these powerful house-moving instruments to someone, and like Mr. Mulkey, he can't remember to whom they were loaned. Mr. Brown says he isn't ready to go to work just yet, but he does want those jacks brought back home; anybody with a pair of jacks is invited to look them over and see if they belong to Mr. Brown.

Misses Lotta Bourland, Her-loise Burrell, Eva Lee Morrison and Rhoda Wiedman and Messrs. Homer Parsons and Clifford Allison spent the past week-end in Miami visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jack Montgomery.

ROGER BABSON OFFERS A WAGER

Last week Roger W. Babson, the great economist, declared that he would be willing to stake his reputation on the statement that the bottom of the depression had been reached and that the country was on the upward trend.

Mr. Babson was the man who foretold the present economic low tide and has been more successful than anybody in America in forecasting business trends, hence his offering to wager his reputation, will be generally hailed as one of the sure signs of returning prosperity.

TEN DOZEN EGGS

A local groceryman told this writer last week that ten dozen eggs at the present low prices were equivalent to just about as much flour and meat, and many other table supplies, as were ten dozen eggs two years ago when they were selling at what would seem high prices now.

What the groceryman was trying to show, is that we are not as badly off as some try to make out; that with other necessities on a low price level that what we raise and have to sell brings nearly as much as it ever did. It is good for us to consider such comparisons occasionally. It helps us keep our perspectives.

PROSPERITY AND FEED

In the scheme of things agricultural it seems that prosperity always follows plenty of feed—if the feed is properly husbanded. For a year or so the country has suffered from the lack of feed on the farms and we have seen prosperity vanish from the land.

This year there is a general abundance of feed of all kinds, and it looks like the farmer will put up what he needs for one year and in many cases, two years, selling the surplus. This plan many will follow in their table supply.

Feed for the stock, food for the family—and then prosperity comes again.

OUTLOOK FOR TEXAS' GREATEST ERA

The programs of the Texas Press Association at San Angelo a few days ago were devoted to the "Build Texas" idea, and brought to the platform a notable array of business and professional leaders of Texas.

Without exception these Captains of industry and finance spoke in confident manner about the resources and future of Texas, and declared that in the Lone Star State are the elements that will make this the greatest industrial and financial section of the nation even as it now leads in agriculture.

The Texas Press Association begins its fifty-third year with a new vision of the opportunities and responsibilities of the press of Texas, and with the expanding of its program of work, the adding of its strength of personnel from all classes of publications, there can be little doubt of a bright outlook for Texas' greatest era.

"BE SAFE—NOT SORRY"

What do you think of a high school girl that will head her essay, "God is Dead." Would you be proud of her as a daughter, or would you want her for a wife? But that is what happened in the northwest just a few weeks ago. Her essay was printed in a magazine called "Scholastic," and won first prize of the judges, although many were better composed, and other writers had used better English and much better spelling. So anxious were these so-called learned, high brow professors to give an atheist girl the prize, they forgot all other considerations in the contest. This is what so-called higher education is doing for the nation. It is undermining the faith of people in God, the one and only thing that has ever made any nation great. In her article, extracts of which we saw printed in a religious paper recently, she said that she felt proud that she had been disillusioned about God, and now felt that she was free as when a child had found there was no Santa Claus. People, we had better see and know what kind of people we are filling places as teachers in our schools with. When you make a whole nation of people like that Washington girl, life will not be safe as no conscience will be left, and marriage will be less sacred than it is now with the beasts of the field and the fowls of the air, for they at least mate off in spring. We had as soon have a rattlesnake in our home or our school as a man or woman who would teach children that there was no necessity of any kind of moral restraint. Better send the children to your denominational colleges even if it costs more money. Be safe, not sorry.—Terry Co. Herald.

W. E. Tomlin, Advertisement Director of the London (England) Daily Express, Says:

"Did you ever stop to think that in times of bad trade, advertising is one of the chief factors in creating more employment and improving the position of the wage-earner? Most countries are now suffering from bad trade, and the position has got to be forced. No purpose would be served by trying to discover the cause of the present depression—it is more important to try to ferret out ways and means of reviving industry and trade.

In Great Britain, for example, it has been found that many firms are suffering badly just because they were waiting for something to turn up, without themselves taking steps to increase their turnover. We have a large number of unemployed in this country, just as in the U. S. A., you have many unfortunate millions who cannot find work. Yet, as recent balance sheets prove, those companies which have continued to advertise, and in many cases increased their advertising appropriations, have done splendid business as a result, whilst their less go-ahead competitors are simply languishing. This appreciation of the power and value of advertising has enabled many concerns to keep their product prominently before the public; it has extended their home demand; it has increased the number of workers employed in producing it, and, moreover, it has in a number of cases extended export demand to a surprising extent because of the cheapening of prices achieved through more efficient production.

"All this just means that so far as you, the ordinary citizen or householder are concerned, necessities like soap, food, wearing apparel, boots, etc., can be bought at lower prices because the fewer the firms that take advantage of advertising, the more they are able to sell and the cheaper it is for each individual purchaser. All of which goes to show that industrial prosperity based as it is upon the ever widening possibilities of consumption must make use of advertising as its chief salesman among large populations. When the product achieves great popularity and demand as a result of advertising, you are also enabled to employ many more workers in doing so to pay them better. Then you find it possible to compete in the markets of the world by offering good quality at the most competitive prices. "This rough idea of how advertising keeps up with the processes of producing, buying and selling should make clear, I think, how important it is, particularly in times like the present. In more cases than meet the eye, wider advertising would solve many of the difficulties that are troubling many concerns."

Forrest R. Geneva, Advertising manager of the Des Moines

(Iowa) Register, says: That another evidence of the effectiveness of newspaper advertising is the very direct influence it has upon the value of property in the business section of any city.

Infinitely, the 100 per cent locations are always those in the direct center of the swing of the advertising pendulum. Property valuations grade downward on either side of that location.

To clarify the point, let's state the case in accordance with the fact that in particularly every city of the country there is the thoroughfare that is known as the "main drag" for retail business. It is the street that has established itself as the center of retail activity. It is the street upon which are located the retailers who spend the most money for newspaper advertising. And the 100 per cent locations upon that street will be at the point of the retailers who spend the most for newspaper advertising. Property valuations will grade downward on either side of those spots as possible that some of the well known five and ten cent operations are sure to be, and being nonlocated in the direct line of traffic.

Every now and then in the business centers of cities, some sizable merchant will try to make a go of it off the main business thoroughfare. It can be done if the firm attempting it can spend enough percentage of its gross sales in advertising to swing and sway the crowd. The average department store figures on spending around 4 per cent of its gross sales for advertising. If the amount necessarily goes much higher than that, it is generally considered that the expense of getting the business make the effort unprofitable.

Advertising and particularly Newspaper advertising, needs no champion to extol its virtues. Its productivity is generally recognized and accepted. But one is not apt to think of the part it plays in establishing the value of downtown real estate property—yet it is the determining factor beyond the shadow of a doubt.

From time to time we are amused by odd descriptions and criticisms of the United States and Canada by European travelers who regard these countries as barely removed from savagery. These individuals seem to obtain complete knowledge of these countries in a few days and then return home and write a book about us. And it is only after reading the book can we realize how primitive we are.

Recently while east I struck a piece of luck. Met one of them face to face. I was at a function where the majority of the people were normally attired in evening dress, when in drifted one of these hardy adventurers. Although I looked it over, on account of the way it was dressed, I was unable to determine its sex.

But I haven't the least doubt but what the world will soon be given another vivid description of these countries, and the odds are that the book will sell well.

RISE OF A BELL-HOP

Another striking illustration of what industry and thrift may accomplish, even under the handicap of meager education, is seen in the career of the late Ellsworth M. Statler, millionaire hotel owner. Born a poor farm boy in Somerset county, Pennsylvania, he had little formal schooling, being forced to go to work when a mere child. Yet he became one of the most able and forceful public speakers in the country. He often recalled that his first lesson in English was given him by Tom Duffy, a bartender in the McClure House in Wheeling, where young Statler first became connected with the hotel business as bell-hop at a salary of six dollars a month. He was 33 when he opened his first restaurant under his own name in Buffalo. His first management of an enterprise of magnitude came at the age of 38, when he built and conducted a large hotel at the Buffalo Pan-American exposition in 1901, followed by his management of the famous Inside Inn at the St. Louis world's fair in 1904.

He then began to build up a chain of magnificent hotels in various cities, including the great Hotel Pennsylvania in New York, where he died.

Mr. Statler's rise was not due to good luck, although his business ventures were more than usually successful. In was due to the fact that he had learned the hotel business from the ground up, and was untiring in his efforts to please his guests. He was known as the most polite bell-boy, and when he became a magnate he had still retained the habit of politeness, and his outstanding trait was consideration for the comfort and happiness of others.

WHAT IS WRONG WITH THIS TOWN?

DOES THE ANSWER TO THAT QUESTION LIE IN THE FACT THAT THE TOWN HAS FAILED TO MAKE GOOD USE OF ITS RESOURCES?

JAMES B. WOOTAN, In Public Service Magazine.

For two decades now Jonesville has failed to show any appreciable increase in population. Nearly every one of her sister towns had shown marked increases at both censuses. But Jonesville's leading citizens, when the subject was discussed, had invariably wound up by saying, "Oh, well, it takes more than population to make a good town. Quality counts for more than quantity."

Some how or other that complacent old argument didn't seem so very convincing when one looked about and couldn't help but see that, after all, there was about as much quality in those towns that had gained in quantity as there was in Jonesville.

Jonesville's failure to keep pace with the progress of her neighbors had begun to sink in on some of her more thoughtful business men and they were beginning to realize that something must be wrong somewhere or Jonesville would not be lagging in procession.

They Know She's Slipping

It was a delicate subject of discussion. Everybody in Jonesville knew that civic pride of her people was the chief characteristic of the town. So far so good. But thoughtful men with the burden of business upon them knew only too well that civic pride must have something on which to feed if it is to be sustained. They knew that Jonesville is slipping. Down at the Jonesville State Bank one morning a few of these citizens got together in a real honest-to-goodness discussion of the whole situation.

"We should not try to deceive ourselves any longer," remarked Silas A. Robbins, president of the bank. "Something is the matter with Jonesville and we ought to find out what it is and see if we can't correct it. A town no more than a business concern can stand still indefinitely. It must go forward or go back. I think it is plain enough to anybody who is at all informed on what is going on in this town of ours that Jonesville hasn't made an inch of progress in many years. That, in itself, means that Jonesville has begun to go backward. What is the reason, and how can we overcome it?"

A Dissenting Voice
Mr. Robbins had had a most attentive audience. His keen business acumen was a matter of general knowledge and acceptance. Besides, he had as much at stake in Jonesville as any other citizen; more than most and he had a right to be worried over the town's backwardness. Nevertheless, there was old man Rutgers, the oldest citizen of Jonesville, who in his day had been most active in every good work and now in his years of ultraconservatism, took sharp issue with his friend, Robbins.

"I think you are wrong, Robbins," said Rutgers. "I am afraid you are unduly affected by the depression which is not peculiar to Jonesville, nor even to our state or nation. It is worldwide, I think Jonesville is going along about as well as could be expected under the circumstances."

"About as well as could be expected under the circumstances," repeated the banker. "Yes, that is what they tell you at the hospital when you call up to ask how your friend or relative is getting on. That is a galvanized expression which may mean more or little, and it is significant for you to employ it here in trying to ignore the galvanized condition toward which our town is rapidly drifting. There is something radically wrong with Jonesville and I, for one, propose to find out what it is and see if something can't be done about it. I think I know now what it is."

Coincidence of Views

But before Mr. Robbins could tell what he thought was the matter with Jonesville, Emory Erskine, one of the youngest and most progressive business men of the city, interrupted him to say:

"So do I, Mr. Robbins. You are dead right when you say something is radically wrong with this town, and in my opinion it is simply its failure for many years to make good use of its natural and acquired resources."

"By George, Emory, you've taken the words out of my mouth," exclaimed the banker, who came down on the young man's ample shoulders with a firm slap by way of emphasizing his approval. "Nature did a lot for Jonesville. Pioneer citizens did much. Up to some twenty years ago, especially up to the last ten years, we went ahead making fairly good use of the resources we had acquired from nature and those who built and made the town, but of late years we seem to have gone to sleep on our laurels or been lured into false notions concerning business and politics and before we have realized it we are on the downgrade."

"That's my view of it," replied Erskine, and by now the others were assenting, all but old man Rutgers. No one expected him to change his mind. Indeed, he was disposed to taunt.

"What are some of these resources Jonesville has neglected to develop as she should," he demanded.

"Mr. Rutgers," it was Banker Robbins who replied and that, too in most deferential manner, for he and everyone in Jonesville not only respected, but admired Mr. Rutgers. "Mr. Rutgers, in the first place, our chief resources, as I see it, lies in our location with reference to transportation and markets, and also, as I see it, that is the one we have chieftly neglected."

"How?" asked Mr. Rutgers.

"Do you remember, Mr. Rutgers, about fifteen years ago the Northern & Western Railroad Company wanted to build some new terminal facilities and some grain elevators down in the south-east part of town and in order to do so had to have certain rights-of-way and in order to get the rights-of-way it would have been necessary to condemn certain property, on which stood a lot of ruff houses and when the railroad made a perfectly reasonable proposition for the property it was denied."

"Yes, I remember all that, except I am not so sure that the prices they offered for the property were so reasonable," replied the old gentleman.

"That they were reasonable, Mr. Rutgers, seems to me evident in the fact that they were more than had ever been offered before and from 50 to 75 per cent more than any of that property has ever been sold for," said Mr. Robbins.

"Well, the upshot of it was that one of our local politicians took up the matter, made a political issue of it, raising the utterly absurd cry of the 'big corporation trying to rob poor home owners.' You remember, don't you Mr. Rutgers, that that politician got elected mayor on that silly piece of demagoguery and that he and his cohorts in the council kept our town in a ferment of agitation and discord for several years and the railroad, in the meantime, located its terminals and elevators down at Smithville? With what result? Smithville at that time had had not more than two-thirds the population of Jonesville. Today Smithville, according to the last census, has 48 per cent more population than we have and I wouldn't be much surprised to find that its people stack up with ours in point of quality as well as quantity."

"Smithville, you will recall, not only did not split hairs over the prices of the land for the terminals and elevators or accuse the railroad of trying to rob somebody. Its business men got together and actually made very substantial concessions to the railroad. What has happened since? I can count eight new industries, employing several thousand wage earners, that have gone to Smithville since then and not one that has come to Jonesville. Everybody in Smithville has benefited, just as everybody in Jonesville has suffered from the respective manners in which these two towns met their opportunities. We have lost industries which Smithville has gained. We have lost wages and the people who contribute to every phase of life in a community. Farmers who would have come to Jonesville, naturally go to Smithville."

"Then you take our venture into municipal ownership of electric light and power. We put the company that was serving us out of business in order to put our politicians into the business. The company was the biggest taxpayer in town and a good employer of labor. We wiped it off the tax books and spread the taxes it paid plus those our tax-exempt plant creates, over the rest of the taxpayers."

"Smithville, in the meantime, gets its power for home and business purposes from the highline of this same company. It gets rates that are lower than ours and a reliability of service with which we, with our little isolated run-down plant, cannot hope to compete. Only last month the Jonesville Furniture Manufacturing Company, our oldest and last large industry, was forced to move its plant to Smithville, chiefly because of better power and shipping facilities. How many of our best families went with it? We lost good citizens, good patrons of stores, good lodge and society and church members when we lost these people. Figure, if you can the total loss of their going and then lay it over against any possible 'gain' you may be able to find in the possession of this municipal electric plant and see what you have."

Now, another thing. You recall our people were seduced into municipal ownership by an outside professional agitator without a dime invested here. Our losses can in no way be shared by him. He got his money and whatever advantage it meant to his socialistic organization and cause, and we are left to hold the sack.

"Right here at our very door Jonesville has the makings of the most beautiful park and playgrounds to be found in this part of the state. Why has it never been developed? It would provide a paradise of comfort and pleasure for our people and would be a most inviting attraction to visitors. It has never been developed because the same pennywise and pound foolish politics have prevailed with respect to it as have governed our town in all other respects for almost twenty years."

"We have allowed small men of selfish aims and no successful experience to run the town and they have run it to the dogs. Whenever the investment dollar, a wage earner, has come to Jonesville seeking a job at fair wages and under fair conditions these small-bore men have set up barriers that have kept it out and chased it on to some other town. This spirit of parsimony, or shortsighted business policies, has killed this town and before it can ever hope to be revived we have got to get rid of this spirit. We have the resources even yet, which if properly developed, will make us the best town of our class in this section of the state."

What's wrong with Jonesville? I say again, she has failed to take advantage of her opportunities and to develop her resources. The remedy is a new spirit on the part of her people, a spirit of vision, of big, broad ideas, with a sense of fair play, a spirit that keeps politics in its place and does not let it rule everything and everybody."

Two or three days after this rather spontaneous conference on Jonesville's troubles a mass meeting of citizens was held in the town hall, at which these and other matters were gone into and a plan of action decided on, having in view the rehabilitation of the city. It was brought out that for many years, as business and industry had lost ground, taxes nobody could tell what special had steadily increased and yet benefits the increased taxes had brought. Civic improvements were at a standstill. True, the municipal electric plant was calling for larger funds each year to take up its deficits, but even that did not account for all the increased taxation although its losses plus the loss of taxes which had been paid by the company the city plant displaced, were, indeed, a big factor in increased taxation. The town was just sick and its best citizens had decided that the real reason was utter indifference to its best resources.

It is the story of many a town, of which Jonesville is but the type.

A CORRECTION

In the last issue of the News there appeared an item in the society columns which was incorrect. Miss Lorraine Patrick entertained a number of friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Patrick. The News inadvertently reported the party as having been given by Miss Katherine Patrick. We wish to correct this misstatement and assure the readers of the News that this was not done purposely.

In her divorce suit, Mrs. Charles Perron of Gray, Ind., testified that her husband went to the theatre every week, but had not taken her in 20 years.

Miss Dorothea Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Watson, entertained a group of her friends with a delightful birthday party Tuesday evening at the country club grounds. A splendid time was had by those present with a cooling plunge in the waters of the club lake. After a lengthy stay in the water the group enjoyed a period of interesting games and then all participated heartily in the delicious out door picnic lunch. After another pleasant play period the party returned to their homes, each wishing the popular hostess many more such enjoyable birthdays.

An unusual feature of the occasion was the fact that Miss Dorothea's birthday falls upon the same day as that of her father's which in turn is also the same day of Mr. Watson's mother's birthday.

Those enjoying the occasion was Misses Avis Lee McKivney, Anna Moore Swift, Laverne Lott, Mary Wood, Vivian Taylor, Louise Smith, Frances Sanford, the hostess, Miss Dorothea Watson, and Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Antrobus and Mrs. T. G. Stargel.

SUNDAY LONGEST DAY

Last Sunday, June 21, was the longest day in the year and marked the beginning of Summer. The day lasted until 9:12 p. m. before it got dark. The time would be given of the duration of the daylight hours, but the writer wasn't awake at daylight and so far has been unable to find any one who knows just what time the day dawned. Anyway Sunday was the longest day of the year and it lasted until 9:12 p. m. From the scientists standpoint Sunday marked the first day of summer, but if any one should ask an ordinary layman the scientists decision is all wet and has been so for the past several weeks.

WARFARE OF "REGULATORS" AND "MODERATORS"

Warfare between "Regulators" and "Moderators" started in Shelby county, East Texas, in 1842. Like other border counties at that time, Shelby county was a refuge for adventurers and lawless men.

The plan of the "Regulators" was to keep watch on the conduct of certain suspicious characters, call upon them when necessary and give them so many hours to get out of the country. If they failed or refused to heed the warning, they were hanged to the highest limb, after being tried by a self-constituted "Regulator" court. The intentions of the organization no doubt were good, but as time passed evil-minded men joined the band and sought to wreck vengeance on everyone against whom they held personal spite. It followed that many innocent men were hanged or driven out of the country.

INTERESTING CHARACTER VISITS HERE SATURDAY

J. F. (Dad) Luckett, with the Warner Bros. film Corporation at Dallas, was in Clarendon Saturday causing on Homer Mulkey of the Pastime Theatre, as a long-time friend and as a customer. While in the city Mr. Luckett was introduced to the News editor and from his intimate association with the theatrical men and women of a generation ago, together with politicians and newspaper men of national prominence, proved to be one of the most interesting acquaintances one is privileged to meet.

Mr. Luckett was manager of an exclusive theatre in Washington, D. C., for many years and knew intimately all the dramatic stars of the legitimate stage when it was in its brightest days, before the moving pictures displaced it in popular favor. He spoke interestingly of Richard Mansfield, Frederick Warde, William Hackett, Joe Jefferson, Burton Holmes, John L. Stoddard, Julia Marlowe, Madame Modjeska, Sarah Bernhardt, Mrs. Leslie Carter, and many others. It was in Washington that Mr. Luckett saw the first crude moving picture machine and refused stock in the concern seeking to place it before the theatrical people, giving as his solemn opinion that there was no future for such a departure from the flesh and blood drama. Mr. Luckett was also the first producer in the nation to stage a paid admission report of a prize fight, when he filled his Washington house to hear returns from Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight at Carson City, which he did after many difficulties with wire service and relay.

Along Film Row in Dallas, "Dad" Luckett, as he is affectionately called, is one of the really popular men of the industry and all operators in Texas hold his advice in highest regard and enjoy his friendly contacts and greetings.

J. W. MARTIN FAMILY RETURNS FROM SEATTLE

Mr. J. W. Martin and daughters, Misses Helen and Mildred, returned to their home here Monday evening from their six month stay in Seattle, Washington. The party traveled some 2500 miles on the return trip making stops in the Yellowstone National park for a few days. During the entire 12 days on the road no trouble was encountered and no adverse weather conditions were found.

They seem to be glad to get back to Clarendon and state that they will be here for the entire summer. While in Seattle Miss Mildred attended Business College.

ALIMONY PLUS

While a good many men may pay large sums as alimony—the plight of an actor named Cummins in Los Angeles who is contributing rather promiscuously as a result of unfortunate matrimonial ventures, places him at the head of his class.

Under a court decree Cummins was ordered some months ago to pay $600 a month to his divorced wife. Notwithstanding this, he married again and is now being sued for divorce by wife No. 2. Pending the outcome of the suit, he must pay the second wife alimony at the rate of $230 a month.

But that is not all. The latest Mrs. Cummins has no children, but she possesses two valuable dogs which are her joy and pride. She insists that they should be provided for, also. The judge concurring, an additional $45 a month was assessed against Cummins for the support of the canines. So he is now contributing a total of $875 a month to provide the necessities and luxuries of life for two women and two dogs, without the benefit of the companionship of either.

Can you beat that for hard luck?

Dairy specialists of the U. S. Cheese factories should be placed in sections densely populated with cows, because a large supply of milk is necessary for low cost in manufacture. An abundant supply of clean, pure water is essential. Good drainage is necessary because of the waste of refuse. The cost of hauling cheese and supplies is lower if the factory is on a good road.

BAPTIST W. M. S. NOTES

The Baptist W. M. S. met in circle meeting last Monday. Interesting lessons were discussed from different mission books being studied. This morning at 3:30 the circles will meet as follows: West with Mrs. M. W. Mosely, the Rex Ray will go for a picnic, the East and South will meet at the church.

PICNIC

The members of the Beginner, Primary and Junior departments in S. S. and B. Y. P. U. went to the river Thursday for a picnic. A merry group met at the church at 5:30, found their places in the truck and cars and were soon off for Clarendon's favorite picnic grounds. Wading in the river, climbing the sand hills, playing games, made time pass quickly and then came the call to eat the delicious picnic lunch. Only one thing caused anxiety. Some shoes mysteriously disappeared and some feared they were going to have to walk to the cars bare-footed.

WOMEN: watch your BOWELS

What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It just suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles. It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients. When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all drug stores keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

 A Doctor's Family Laxative

IS BEST YEAR FOR MOTORIST

COUNTRY'S LARGEST RURAL PAVEMENT AND GRADE PROGRAM IS UNDER WAY

(By E. E. Duffy)
 With the exception of street improvements, things are being done this year for the motorist on a larger scale than ever before.

Cities, states and counties, even those that have been comparatively inactive, are taking advantage of the prevailing low construction and building material costs.

Louisiana, for instance, has already this year awarded contracts for the building of 900 miles of concrete pavements, and the end is not yet in sight. Included in the Louisiana program are four bridges and two incidental projects which will cost in the neighborhood of $2,500,000.

Texas, with the largest mileage of rural roads, nearly 188,000 miles, has already awarded contracts for the construction of 500 miles of concrete pavement, nearly as much as New York's 1931 awards. Last week alone South Carolina let contracts for the hard surfacing of about 100 miles of road, while Alabama is staging a comeback by having awarded 130 miles to contract.

In Dayton, Ohio, the B & O is to spend more than a million dollars for track elevation and rail-grade crossing separations in order to cooperate with the city in its construction of a downtown grade separation project. Altogether seven or eight viaducts will be built.

Another notable Ohio improvement will be the construction of a section of the National Road to a width of 50 feet in Columbus and Bexley.

Arkansas has already this year awarded contracts for the building of some 270 miles of concrete, while the sister state, Kansas, has 125 miles enrolled on her construction books.

Wisconsin, known as the land of contented cows and farmers, has taken action to build 300 miles of concrete pavement, and has a grade separation program that calls for the building of 80 of these life and time saving structures.

And now it is heard that San Francisco is contemplating the building of a $21,000,000 subway system for the relief of congestion in the downtown area.

Yet in the face of the present lowered costs, only a few cities are making noteworthy progress in providing needed motoring facilities. New wide streets, widened streets, grade separations and pedestrian tunnels are so greatly needed that highway and traffic authorities are everywhere urging municipalities to plan immediate construction.

Corn is more resistant to cold when grown on soil rich in plant food. Both young and mature corn plants are less likely to be injured by cold weather if the soil is well fertilized.

A LAW SCHOOL AFLOAT

Such relics as the Magna Charta, the Domesday Book, Shakespeare's will, and the records of Joan of Arc's trial will be viewed by the group of American lawyers embarking on the French Line steamer France, which is to become a floating law school early in July.

Any member of the American bar is eligible for this traveling post-graduate course, which includes lectures on board by prominent American lawyers and a program in Europe of receptions by the President of France and our Ambassadors Edge and Dawes, among others, and visits to such places as Westminster Hall, the Inns of Court, Scotland Yard, the Palais de Justice, and the Peace Palace.

In London, the Lord Chancellor will receive the party at Westminster Hall. Sir William Phene Neale, Lord Mayor of London, has arranged for a reception at Guildhall. At each historic place visited, some notable Englishman will speak to the party.

A reception by the French Bench and Bar at the Palais de Justice will be one of the Paris features. The lawyers will be received by Marshal Lyautey, governor general of the Colonial Exposition, at a special evening devoted to the gigantic display. There will also be a gala night at the Opera, and numerous garden parties, receptions and lectures. Ample opportunity will be given the guests to visit the battlefields of the World War.

The tour should prove to be another means of promoting international good will.

HOW ARE YOUR DECIBELS?

Noise may be measured in units called "decibels," by machines devised by a New York commission which has started a campaign for a less noisy city. If an automobile or truck produces more than 99 decibels—well it's just too many. Everyone knows that excessive noise is an enemy of nerves and health, and motor vehicles are among the greatest producers of unnecessary clatter, bang and racket. A well kept vehicle is comparatively less noisy than a neglected one, and it is quite proper that authorities should try to suppress the noisy kind.

But not all motoring "decibels" are made by automobiles themselves. The worst noises are caused by cars and trucks plunging into depressions made by digging up streets to connect or repair gas and water mains. These are not only nerve-shattering, but injure vehicles and often cause dangerous accidents.

Engineers have found a way to eliminate these unsightly street scars and their consequences by laying the mains behind the curb line on both sides, so the surface of the street need never be torn up.

The progress made in this direction in recent years indicates that in the future all streets will have gas and water mains so placed, and the street surface will be left intact for smooth, quiet transportation for which it was intended.

YELLOW BIRD MONUMENT

Plans for transatlantic flights this summer by both men and women are inevitable reminders of the current anniversaries of those few successful feats of overseas flying.

Two years ago, Assolant, Lefevre and Lotti, the first French aviators to cross the Atlantic, took flight in the Yellow Bird from Old Orchard, Maine, on the 13th of June and landed 29 hours later on the beach of Oyambra, near Comillas, Spain. Two days afterwards, still with Arthur Schreiber, the stowaway who had been discovered while the airplane was above the ocean, the Yellow Bird set off first at Mimizan, in the south-western part of the country.

The Aero Club of the Landers country, in which Mimizan is situated, is preparing to raise a monument there to be paid for by public subscription. Just as the Spanish people have placed a market at the spot on the Oyambra beach, the Mimizan monument is to stand at the precise spot where the Yellow Bird came to rest after its transatlantic travels.

The necessary subscription of funds has been organized on a national scale and the amount obtained thus is approaching the goal so rapidly that dedication of the monument is in prospect before next Fall. It is fitting that the feat of the Yellow Bird and its intrepid crew is to be thus commemorated.

If epithets uttered by an opponent are considered as boosts, as some profess to believe, the radical group in the United States Senate got a fine send-off at the hands of Lieutenant-Governor Williams of Nebraska recently. He referred to Senators Norris, Borah, Bookhart and LaFollette as "the most accomplished hell-raisers the world has ever seen."

SPORTS SLANTS

By Sam Braswell, Jr.

Wotta wrestling match that one was in Amarillo last Monday night. That boy Reynolds certainly does know how to protect himself. He wouldn't mix it with Cal because he always came out with the worst end of the deal, but when it comes to the art of backing off and making the ropes take care of himself the champ has no equal. But those things are the privilege of a champion, and we can't blame him particularly for using them in the protection of the title. Farley outwrestled the champion, but for generalship and smartness the ring has never seen the superior to this boy Reynolds. He has been dubbed the Fox of the mat, and Monday evening he showed every one of the 7,500 fans present just why he has that moniker tacked to his name. He can take punishment—and did for two hours at the hands of Cal, but what is two hours to the champion who knows just a little too much and the right trick to slip out of the torturing holds applied by his opponents. That's why he is champion of the world and the reason why he will likely retain his title as long as he desires.

Cal Farley showed the fans he is on a par with the champion in so far as swapping holds, and a better aggressor, but the advantage of the champion not having to win a fall proved too much of a disadvantage for the little Irishman to overcome. It was a tough break for Cal when he lost the first fall. He had outpointed and fought the larger and heavier Reynolds, and had taken the Champ for an airplane spin above his head, but when he tossed the Fox to the mat he tripped himself and plunged to the floor on his head. The blow knocked him unconscious and the champion rolled over on his shoulders to win the fall and the match. In the last seven minutes the little Irishman came back with the fury of a tiger and applied headlock after headlock and body slam after body slam, but the champ's uncanny sense of balance together with his retreating defense carried him through the storm until the two hour bell ended the great match.

of action will be crowded into their best two out of three fall match.

The ring has already been constructed and the seat sale is already started. Advertising matter has been printed for the event and has been distributed to the towns of the Panhandle, and a large delegation from Memphis, Wellington, Childress, Pampa, Claude and Shamrock is planned for.

In the preliminary matches the curtain raiser will be a battle royal between five local colored battlers. This event will attract considerable interest throughout the wrestling fans and will add just the right variety for an affair of this type.

A match which promises to vie with the main event is that of Jack Jones and Densil Davis who will engage in a thirty minute one fall match. Both of these local boys know plenty about the wrestling game and will hand the fans one of the most interesting bouts witnessed in this section of the country.

An added attraction will be the appearance of Cal Farley, Panhandle wrestling idol, who will be the third man in the ring in the main bout. His presence will insure the proper conduct of the match, and will give the fans a chance to see him work as a referee instead of one of the contestants.

Just talked to Cal Farley over long distance and he makes an announcement which will meet with the approval of all the fans in the Panhandle. Due to a bad knee Cyclone Mackey will be unable to meet Paul Rod in the match here July 2nd. No the match wasn't called off—but the old matter of the ring—Dutch Mantell has been substituted to take his place against Rod. Cal asked me how it would suit the local fans for Dutch to take who dusted off the Whittish club to the tune of 15 to 3 Sunday afternoon. The occasion of the baseball contest was in honor of the father's 67th birthday on Monday. But a little thing like 67 years proved just the right tonic for a splendid exhibition of good baseball from the old gentleman and his sons performed their task in like manner. Uncle Bob played right field throughout the game and acted in the capacity of manager for the team.

Mr. Clemmons resides at Amarillo while Jack, Dudley and George came from LeFors to participate in the days events. The other members of the family live in Donley county. Players and their positions follow: John, 1st base; George, 2nd base; Dudley 3rd base; Vernon, s. s.; Vodie, pitcher; Jake catcher; Donley, c. field; I. B. left field and Uncle Bob r. field.

Others enjoying the day were Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Garrett of Amarillo and Miss Florence Clemmons.

When Ida, a famous ostrich of the London zoo, passed away some time ago, to the grief of all who knew her, there was much speculation as to the cause of her untimely death. To try to determine the matter, a postmortem examination was held, according to the Associated Press, which re-

Well who knows anything about the knife A. N. Wood lost Monday? We understand it was a pretty good knife with a pretty sharp blade that would cut good. Let's see where was it lost? On the Golf course. Well I heard of another supposed to be golfer who was on the course the same day. Who was it—I can't remember just now. Oh yes! I am pretty sure it was that laundryman named Wilson—yes you're right—Windy Wilson. Well you know him—maybe he can shed some light on what happened to the piece of cutlery. This column hopes you get it back, A. N.

Considerable local interest was manifest in the match between Cyclone Mackey and Billy Hallias, terrible Greek from El Paso. The fans got their eyes full of the ability of Mackey in this match, and are awaiting with interest the bout here on Thursday evening, July 2nd between the Cyclone and Paul Rod, Indian expert.

Although Mackey lost the match to Tallias his work in the ring was much smoother and better than the Greek. Billy likes to make his match a free-for-all type of battle, while Mackey is the same sort of wrestler as Cal Farley, clean and fast.

While Speaking about the local match we would like to make it plain that the card is one of the highest type ever staged in a small city. Both wrestlers are at home in a large city ring where the crowds are counted into the thousands, but through the efforts of Cal Farley they have consented to do their part in their usual high class manner before the Clarendon fans. It is seldom the small town fans have the privilege of watching men of their ability tangle in a match outside a city. Both Mackey and Rod know their holds and plenty Mackey's place—and I told him it was fine and a splendid move. I believe it is because everybody knows Dutch and where ever he appears the fans are insured of a real show. Old Dutch is a real wrestler—one of the best ever in a ring, and all his matches are spiced with the unusual Come on Dutch—you are welcome.

We would like to have Cyclone with us, but we can't help but believe Mantell's presence will put the first local match over in grand style.

WITH HELENE IN A RACE THE QUESTION IS WHO WILL COME IN SECOND

Helene Madison

DURING THE PAST YEAR MISS MADISON HAS BROKEN MORE THAN A DOZEN WORLD'S RECORDS

ports that the following assortment of material was found in her ample gizzard.

"Two women's handkerchiefs, a man's handkerchief, three gloves, three feet of cord, an empty film spool, a four inch nail, an eight-inch lead-pencil, four half-pennies, two farthings and a French coin, part of a celluloid comb, part of a rolled gold necklace, a collar button, a bicycle-tire valve, a brass winding key for an alarm clock, a dozen bits of wire, metal staples, screws, small nails and copper rivets, glove fastener and a piece of wood four inches long."

The dispatch did not disclose just what the verdict was, but a mere layman might venture the thought that Ida had suffered something akin to indigestion.

ASK ME ANOTHER

Some of the "ask me another" question lists now current carry informing answers, while many of them are extremely trivial and merely tend to clutter up the mind with useless facts.

A writer in the Boston Transcript has dug up a list of old-time questions, showing the trend of inquiry in the Middle Ages. Here are a few:

"Why did God not will that a man should be hungry only once a week?"

Answer: Hunger is a punishment for Adam's sin.

"What makes beasts mad?" Answer: Looking at a certain star on the 21st day of the March moon.

"Why did Noah bring serpents into the ark?" Answer: In obedience to God, who, having created them for his glory, did not wish them destroyed.

"What language does a deaf-mute understand in his heart?" Answer: Adam's, therefore Hebrew. A child brought up without being taught any language would speak Hebrew spontaneously.

"If my parents had not existed, how should I have been born?" Answer: The number of living things are foreseen from all eternity, hence you would have been born from other parents.

"When God made Adam, how old was he? (No Answer.)"

While the propounders of the questions appeared to claim an

TOO HANDY WITH GUNS

Another most regrettable double killing by a quick-triggered deputy sheriff is reported from Oklahoma, where two Mexican youths, one of them a cousin of President Rubio, were slain on the public highway.

The slayer and another deputy accompanying him say one of the boys drew a pistol as the officers approached their parked car to question them as to what they were doing. Whether this be true or not, the boys are dead and can not give their side of the case.

When a person is halted on the public highway, he does not know whether he is being held up by bandits or officers of the law. In either case if the citizen makes any show of resistance he is likely to be killed.

Innumerable killings and woundings of innocent persons by peace officers in recent years indicate that many of these handy hands, the readiness of bandits to shoot officers makes the latter's position difficult at times.

GROCCERS DOWN GASSERS 8 TO 3

LAST HALF OF CITY LEAGUE OPENED FRIDAY-TUESDAY GAME CALLED OFF

The last half of the city league baseball circuit opened last Friday afternoon with the Grocery nine chalking up its victory at the expense of the Gassers by a score of 8 to 3. The game was fast and well played with Reed of the Grocers having the edge on Jackson, hurler for the Filling Station crew.

The batting eyes of the Grocers came to life for the first time in several weeks to crash out hits when men were on bases—something they have failed to accomplish heretofore. The pitching of Reed, new hurler for the Grocers showed the fans and the opposition that he has plenty of stuff, and but for an occasional streak of wildness, the Gasser sluggers were held in check satisfactorily.

The Tuesday game between the Baptist Babies and the Dry Goods club, winner of the first half was called off because insufficient players of both teams reported for the contest. Enough players however were on hand to have a ball game and the final score of this game was 15 to 14, more of a football type than baseball.
