McAdoo says he is not a candidate for the Democratic nomination. Most of us have known that for several years.

The bird that bets on sport events is deprived of the pleasure and satisfaction of sportsmanship. One who loves sports for sport's sake gets the greatest out of such events, partisan though he may be. Don't bet—if you win, you lose.

If our finances were as successful as our sport predictions everything would be rosy with the News editor. He picked Tunney to win and he won handsomely and by a fine margin. He picked the Spudders to win the Dixie Series from New Orleans, and they didn't even stutter, taking four in a row. Now we are getting ready to pick the winner of the World's Series. If we lose on that guess, that will prove just how expert we are.

STIMULATING THE VOTERS

Republicans in New Jersey didn't get by with a plain they had, to make it easier to put that state back into their column. They sought to amend the constitution that the gubernatorial election and the presidential election would come in the same year, their idea being that a presidential election would serve to bring out the rural Republican vote, which doesn't turn out as it might in the off-year elections.

The voters turned it down. They should have. Not because of any question of Republican against Democrat, but because folks who have to have some special stimulus to make their vote had better stay at home.—Wichita Falls Times.

Attendance at Clarendon Junior College is now at the required minimum and bids fair to exceed the necessary enrollment to make the first year a success by ten or fifteen. This is especially gratifying to Clarendon people and the friends of Clarendon over the Panhandle, while at the same time it is a tribute to the vision of the school trustees who assumed the burden of "carrying on" and the splendid faculty that is making a success of the school. Our Junior College began with splendid facilities in the face of adverse economic conditions, but we believe in a short time we shall, as a community, bless the day when Methodist leaders became possessed with the idea of moving the old Clarendon College to another location. Let us continue to give Superintendent Burton and Dean Cooper the same brand of co-operation that has made the school a success in its first half-year.

Primal water rights of the people for city water supply, irrigation, and hydro power must be defined in Texas once and for all. The citizenship of Texas will never be content to allow the great power corporations to "hog" the water rights, and the gestures already made in that direction are being met with unanimous resistance here in West Texas, led by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Twenty years ago President Roosevelt won a great battle for the people as against the "interests" in the western states, and Texans cannot be too careful until a policy guaranteeing forever the rights of the smaller towns and of agriculture as to water rights, backed up by explicit laws, shall be fixed in this state. We need and want big capital in Texas, but this state offers large enough revenue to make it worth while to invest here without subsidizing them at the expense of the people. West Texans must be on the alert for here it is that storm waters are most valuable. There is little doubt but water rights in Texas is today's most vital question of public import.

Clarendon Fair catalogs for the two-day event here on October 14-15 are being distributed and all committees are functioning to make the Donley County Fair of 1927 the best possible for such a year as we have had. Get ready for a real surprise.

Results of the Yard Beautiful contest recently concluded by the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce are especially gratifying in the light of the excessively dry summer. With the splendid results of this year's contest to build upon there is every indication that next year Clarendon, under normal conditions, will enter a hundred lawns in the contest. We have one of the most beautiful cities in the Southwest and besides the personal satisfaction one may have in improving and beautifying his premises, there is the cumulative reward of upholding and advancing the fame of our city as the most attractive and best residential city of this section.

Amarillo, it seems, now desires to take a guarantee from the Methodists of Northwest Texas in the sum of three hundred thousand dollars as endowment for the proposed Amarillo College, if she, as a city, is to provide the site of seven hundred acres and a fund of two hundred thousand dollars for buildings. Since the Methodists were told that Amarillo was ready and anxious to build and endow the school to be moved there from Clarendon, it will be a stupendous task to raise three hundred thousand dollars in the conference, if at all. Either the Amarillo composite attitude was not correctly represented in the early agitation or there has been a great change of the popular mind in that city. It strikes us that Amarillo's present attitude is most sensible, and Clarendon people generally will endorse her demands.

ANNUAL FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Fire Prevention Week is to be held this year from October 9 to 15. Throughout the country various organizations will again attempt to train the public in offsetting the greatest menace in the United States today. Our people will do well to learn, and profit by example.

The tragedy of fire is that it is almost entirely preventable. There are, of course, natural causes for conflagrations that cannot be helped, but these are a very small percentage of the total. The greatest damage is caused by carelessness and ignorance. Billions of dollars are wasted and destroyed each year by a few people's carelessness. It would not be so reprehensible if the loss were borne by them alone. But it must be shared, directly or indirectly, by every citizen and taxpayer.

It is the duty of every citizen to co-operate in the observation of Fire Prevention Week. And it should be his pleasure. Fire loss can be stopped. And in a single week, if everyone will observe and learn, a great deal can be accomplished in the way of reducing it.

NEW PATHFINDER PRESIDENT TAKES CHAIR FRIDAY MEETING

Miss Sarah Thompson, new president of the Pathfinder Club, assumed her duties at the first meeting of the year, which was held Friday afternoon, September 23. She made a splendid address on this occasion, telling the club of the plans for the year's work. Miss Lottie E. Lane, president of the club last year, expressed her appreciation for the loyalty and co-operation of the membership in a brief but interesting talk.

The only committee which the new president has appointed up to the present time is the library committee, which has charge of raising funds for the Pathfinder Public Library. Mrs. J. T. Sims is chairman of this committee, of which Mrs. J. L. McMurtry, Mrs. Paul Snelton, Mrs. Floyd Keener, and Miss Lottie Lane are also members. Mrs. B. L. Jenkins is a new member of the club and took her place in the group at Friday's meeting.

Mrs. Tom Goldston and Mrs. Harwood Beville were hostesses for the meeting, entertaining in the former's home. At the conclusion of the business meeting they served delicious refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Watson and Mrs. E. H. Roberts of Memphis were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Greene last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Bryan of Amarillo spent Sunday here with relatives.

LIVESTOCK DEPARTMENT TO BE FEATURE OF T-O. EXHIBITION

Wichita Falls, Texas, Sept. 28.—Plans for the opening of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair, October 1, have been completed, according to announcement by W. B. Hamilton, president and R. E. Shepherd, secretary-manager.

Indications these few days in advance of the opening point to the greatest fair since the institution was established, six years ago.

More than a dozen counties will send exhibits. More than 300 head of the finest hogs in the Southwest will be exhibited. An equal number of beef cattle and possibly as many head of dairy cattle will also be shown. In the poultry departments entries indicate more than 3,000 chickens, pigeons, and rabbits will be on parade. Never has there been such interest on the part of exhibitors.

The entertainment program is complete in all its details. The feature attraction will be the appearances of A. F. Thaviu and his band of 52 pieces. This organization will appear in grand opera productions as well as popular music. Automobile and motorcycle races, with two football games are additional entertainment features. Midway attractions will be furnished by the Lachman Carson Carnival Company. This is the first time this company has toured the South.

The Education, Women's and Art Departments will be bigger and better than ever. These buildings have been remodeled and everything is in tip-top shape for making these departments more attractive.

With the approach of the hunting season, the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture directs attention to the fact that under the migratory-bird treaty act regulations, administered by that bureau, the only shore birds that may be lawfully hunted are Wilson snipe, or jacksnipe, and woodcock. The federal season has been closed for an indefinite period on black-bellied and golden plovers and until August 16, 1929, on greater and lesser yellowlegs. There is no open season on reedbirds. A copy of the federal game laws and also a bulletin containing a synopsis of federal, state, and provincial laws relating to the protection of game will be furnished free on request addressed to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

In a recent questionnaire on the meat buying habits of American housewives, approximately 50 per cent of those questioned believed that the butchers they patronized handled either the very best or a very good quality of meat. Commenting on this opinion, economists of the United States Department of Agriculture point out that only nine per cent of the beef animals slaughtered at the Chicago market in 1924 were graded as prime or choice and suggest that "the lack of consumer knowledge of meat grades and quality was evident."

The State of Texas has a very small bonded indebtedness and all of it is owned and held by the permanent funds of the public schools and state institutions. At the close of the last fiscal year the total of this debt was $4,002,200.

GETTING FALL EGGS

Now that eggs have climbed up to a profitable price again, and no doubt will remain there for several months, a little information on this subject may be of interest.

For the next few months, the problem will be to get eggs and not how to sell them for a good price.

To get a profitable egg production, three things stand out very prominently, chickens that know how to lay, good feed and care. In this article we will pass up the first important factor for some other time.

Hens at this time of the year are in a moult or soon will be, hence you cannot expect many eggs from them the next few weeks. Early hatched pullets are your only chance for good producers in the Fall and early Winter.

Early hatched pullets will lay many eggs if given good care and feeding, especially if they are from a trusted laying strain. The "know how" must be bred into them, then good feeding and feed will bring them out.

Just what is generally meant by good feed and feeding? Some people think feeding chickens is just a question of keeping them from starvation. Good feeding calls for a variety and a balanced ration.

In some sections, nothing but munge kafir is fed, this feed alone will never make many eggs. Grains alone will not make pullets lay.

A good dry mash mixture, that is properly balanced, is necessary to make hens lay. The mash hoppers should be kept well supplied with a good dry mash mixture. It should be kept before them all the time. Plenty of hopper space should be provided, about one foot to every 10 pullets.

The scratch grains are largely fed to add a variety and sometimes to induce exercise. As far as actual feed value is concerned, the scratch grains do not provide anything that is not found in a good dry mash mixture or commercial egg mash.

A cheap mash can of course be mixed. You can take a little corn meal, wheat bran, wheat shorts, cotton seed meal and mix it, and call it a dry mash mixture. Such a mixture is a cheap mixture and it will, of course, also produce cheap results.

The important ingredients of any egg mash or dry mash mixture are meat scraps, dried buttermilk, mineral matter and vitamins. It so happens that these ingredients are also the most expensive. For that reason many, either cut these out entirely or reduce them to insufficient quantities. At least 20 per cent of any dry mash mixture should consist of animal food, like meat scraps, beef scraps or dried buttermilk. For best results and most economical production, animal food of some kind should be by all means fed.

Milk in any form is a wonderful feed for laying pullets. At the same time milk contains too much water, to be expected to supply all of the necessary animal food. A pullet would not be able to drink enough milk, to get enough animal food solids, to keep her laying heavily for any great length of time. Our recommendation is that you give them all the milk they will drink, from early morning until late at night, then if you are feeding a dry mash mixture of your own making, include at least 15 per cent of some animal protein feed. For best results, if you grow your own grains, we recommend the feeding of a home grain mixture, and a well balanced commercial egg mash, and all the milk they can drink. The milk may be given as clabber, sour, whey or as sweet skim. The main thing is to be sure to see to it that they get plenty.

If you wish to force for egg production, then we recommend only giving one scratch grain feeding a day and that preferably about an hour before sunset. Keep the mash before them in liberal quantities. In a future article we will discuss a system of feeding for early hatched pullets, of the small breeds, like Leghorns, to keep them from going into a so-called neck moult. Early hatched Leghorn pullets, if forced too much for egg production will go into a neck moult and stop laying for several weeks just when eggs bring the most money.

Green food of some kind, should be by all means provided. From now on preparations may be made to provide a green oat pasture for the flock. Collards and rape also make good Fall green food. Anything that will grow at this season of the year, may be sown as green food. On practically all farms a green oat pasture is easily provided.

Yellow corn is better than white corn, kafir or milo.

Oyster shells are cheap, yet important. Keep a liberal supply before the flock.

More than two-thirds of the egg is water, therefore, the importance of providing plenty of fresh drinking water at all times.

Late hatched pullets may be fed one feeding of wet mash a day, to help hurry them along.

Again we caution you to make sure your flock of pullets are not infested with intestinal worms.

The total number of cattle in herds fully accredited as free from tuberculosis exceeds 1,885,000. The work of tuberculosis eradication is going forward systematically in all States. During the last month of the fiscal year the inspectors engaged in tuberculin testing applied the test to more than 800,000 cattle, of which approximately 24,000 were found to be affected with the disease. The removal of such reactors from contact with healthy cattle, followed by the slaughter of diseased animals under federal inspection, is gradually reducing the extent of bovine tuberculosis throughout the country and benefitting both the livestock industry and public health.

HOW TO GET RID OF RATS

If you don't want rats, take down the welcome sign, advises Dr. J. C. Anderson, state health officer, who reports that rat infestation seems prevalent throughout the State at this time. "Rats infest buildings and premises where they can obtain food and shelter, and if they cannot get these accommodations, they go elsewhere," Dr. Anderson stated.

"Waste scraps or other food left on kitchen tables, or cupboard shelves will draw an army of rat boarders. To prevent this, all garbage should be placed in metal containers with close fitting covers, and meat, potatoes, oatmeal, and other foodstuffs should be placed in containers that are ratproof.

"Damage by rats to produce and property in the United States is estimated by the Federal Department of Agriculture to be approximately $200,000,000 annually. Rats are also disease carriers, and are filthy and full of vermin. When infesting large areas, it takes concerted community action to get rid of these pests.

Methods
"Trapping rats with snap traps is effective in buildings and is recommended where the use of poison seems inadvisable. If other food is available to rats, it makes trapping difficult.

"The most efficient means of destroying rats is by poisoning and is recommended for use outside the home. There are a number of commercial poisons that are good, but barium carbonate is perhaps the best suited for this purpose, as it is inexpensive and slow in action. Powdered barium carbonate should be thoroughly mixed and worked into soft baits in the proportion of this mineral, one part to four parts of selected food. This poison can also be sifted over or rubbed into sliced baits. In using any kind of poison,

The longer a broody hen is allowed to sit on the nest the longer it requires to get her back into laying condition, and consequently the greater the loss in egg production. To break the hen from sitting, put her in a broody coop where she can be properly fed and watered. The broody coop should have a slat bottom in order that the air may circulate from beneath, thus keeping the body of the hen cooler, thereby tending to break up the hen's broodiness.

The New G-M-R Cylinder Head

EXCLUSIVE ON THE OAKLAND ALL-AMERICAN SIX

provides Amazing Smoothness
Silence and Power

Concave curves tend to throw the gases back into the center of the chamber, thereby retarding cooling and causing "detonation" or knock. Convex curves in the G-M-R Head have the opposite effect. They deflect the gases smoothly along the wall into the clearance space above the piston, thereby aiding cooling and reducing knock.

Deep clearance spaces also retard cooling. Note how the depth of the clearance space in the G-M-R Head has been reduced to facilitate cooling by water. Here knocking is further reduced.

The comparative effects of concave and convex curves are illustrated by a spoon held under a faucet. At the left, the water strikes the concave surface and causes a violent disturbance. At the right, the water, like the gases in the G-M-R Head, strikes the convex surface and glides smoothly away.

Everyone who drives the Oakland All-American Six marvels at the smooth and whispering flow of power produced by the new G-M-R Cylinder Head.

Specifically, the G-M-R (General Motors Research) Head accomplishes three results:

1. It reduces "detonation" or spark knock to a negligible factor while using only ordinary gasoline.
2. It completely eliminates roughness or "thump"—an entirely different engine noise.

3. It provides greater power and economy because it allows the spark to be advanced to the point of maximum efficiency. (Once set, the Oakland spark remains in proper position since it is automatically controlled.)

The G-M-R Head is only one of the engineering advancements which have created such widespread favor for the All-American Six. Come in for a demonstration of the principles involved!

HELEN MARTIN TELLS INTERESTING STORY OF LIFE IN EGYPT

A travel story by Frances Parkison Keys, herself, famous traveler and writer, could hardly be more interesting than those told by Miss Helen Martin, who recently returned from a two years' sojourn in Cairo, Egypt. While she traveled elsewhere during her stay abroad, and can describe Greece, the Holy Land, Italy, and Switzerland with more charm than the usual tourist, Miss Martin's descriptions of Egypt, and Cairo in particular, are positively fascinating. For there she lived two years, associating intimately with the highest class people of the country, learning the customs of the people, high and low, and observing the life of the country from year's end to year's end.

Miss Martin went to Egypt in August of 1925, to become a teacher in the American Mission College for Girls at Cairo. A year passed—a year filled to the last minute with interesting experience—and she had not seen one-tenth part of all the things she wished to see. She determined to stay another year and some of these at least. During the two years she was gone, Miss Martin went "up country," that is, up the Nile River to the interior of Africa, several times, visiting the famous temples and tombs in that country. One Easter holiday season she used in a trip to the Holy Land. The next summer she spent in touring Greece, Italy, and Switzerland. This past summer she spent in study in the Conservatoire Americaine at Fontainebleau, France. The traveling she and her companions did in a leisurely manner. Thus they saw much that is only glimpsed by the average tourist.

To make her story even more fascinating, Miss Martin shows her friends a most interesting collection of keepsakes she has gathered in all the places she has visited. Her museum includes marvelous looking bronzes from Egypt, costumes worn by the upper and the lower classes of Egypt and the Holy Land, bright linens from these countries, and exquisite ones from Italy and Switzerland, lovely porcelains and pottery from Palestine, marvelous looking books and Bibles made from olive wood of Jerusalem, blankets and shawls, and innumerable other things, on which one can gaze for hours without tiring. Miss Martin has an exceptional knack with the camera, and her pictures, which she brought home have all the effect of a very good number of "National Geographic Magazine," plus the added personal note.

Altogether, Miss Martin is a most entertaining conversationalist. And no wonder! What could be more broadening than two years in the melting pot of the East? Miss Martin and her fellow teachers in the College had an advantage which is enjoyed by few. The five hundred students in the College were daughters of the wealthiest and, in most cases the most distinguished men of Egypt. (The mothers count for little, it seems.) The greater number of them were daughters of pharaohs the highest title bestowed in Egypt and corresponding closely to the English title of lord. Some few of the girls were daughters of boys, who come next highest in the scale of things. For the most part, these girls were of truly aristocratic, refined families, all of them immensely wealthy. Some few, she says, could claim no other distinction than great wealth. The student enrollment represented practically every race found in the mixed population of Africa, and among them: Egyptians, Syrians, Armenians, Greeks, Persians, Italians, Turkish-Egyptians, Jews, Spaniards, Bulgarians, British-Maltese, French, Algerians, and Russians. Every religion of the Orient and Southern Europe, is also represented by students. Classified as to religion, they were: Mohammedans, Confs, Protestant Christians, Greek Orthodox, Armenian Orthodox, Syrian Orthodox, Bahuists, Jew, Russian Catholic, Roman Catholic, and Gregorian.

Miss Martin speaks frequently of the almost overwhelming hospitality of the citizens of Cairo. This hospitality and the exceptional cordiality of the people with whom she was associated made it possible for her and her fellow teachers to really enter into the life of Cairo. Families of the pupils asked them to their homes for teas, meals, parties, weddings and all manner of celebrations. Many of these same people went with the teachers to the various points of interest and showed them many other courtesies. The Americans, she says, were treated with much more cordiality than the English, for age-old political reasons.

The letters which Miss Martin wrote from Egypt and from the other places she visited were kept by her father and her sisters, and they tell the story in the most interesting way it could be told. Written while the places and events described were uppermost in her mind, they tell the story most vividly. Excerpts from these letters are given below, because of the impossibility of giving them entire.

The first two or three weeks in Egypt were spent at Sidi Bishr, at a camp owned by the American Mission. From there Miss Martin wrote: "Out here it is all sand, with 'Bedlam' huts everywhere, and a few palm trees. The houses between here and the city are beautiful summer homes with lovely gardens around them. A lot of people wear European clothes with a 'fez', and we also see many of the women veiled."

"Fleas seem to be a custom of Egypt. One of the pupils remarked to one of our teachers that she thought the fleas and flies should be returned to Egypt from America—that they were a pest sent on Egypt and that we had no right to them. Of course the teacher replied that we would gladly return them if we could."

This again from Sidi Bishr: "The last two nights have been serenaded all night—if you could call it a serenade. At the Mosque, between here and the sea, the people have been celebrating the birthday of some prophet, and have spent two nights and three days there. On the little roads around they have all sorts of bright colored flags and decorations. Part of the day and all night, or as long as I am awake to hear, they beat on big drums and blow some kind of flutes. There is no rhythm, no music to it, just noise. There is a burial ground near the church and today when we passed there on our way to the sea all these people were sitting around the graves just wailing and yelling; you could hear them a mile. The girls say that is the way they end their ceasing period, by spending a day of wailing in the cemetery."

Arriving at Cairo, she wrote: "When we got ready to leave the camp all heavy baggage was sent by express, as there is no checking system in Egypt. For that reason, everyone carries dozens of things; the five of us had twelve pieces besides kodaks, umbrellas, etc. But you never carry them yourself because it would be beneath your class, and, too, you can get shayals (red caps) to carry them and watch them for hours for a few piasters. A piaster is five cents. Our camp guard sent his women over to carry our hand luggage to the station. They carry it on their heads, sometimes as many as three or four heavy bags. But they seem to enjoy it and love to have their pictures taken."

"Monday morning the girls took us to the 'Muski,' the native bazaar shops. It is the old part of Cairo and is thoroughly Egyptian in its little crooked, dirty streets. The shops, themselves, are tiny things with one side open; but they have such interesting brassware, native things to sell. After we left the Muski we went to the European section to shop. The streets there are exceptionally wide and the department stores compare favorably with ours. They carry English and French things. It is funny how nice the people are to us as soon as they find out we are American and not English. I was having my hair cut the other day and every few minutes the barber would say, 'Nice America! Beautiful America!' We also notice this in the shops. You know there is a little hard feeling between the English and the Egyptians because of the government."

"On Wednesday after tea, Miss Besdar, the head Syrian teacher, took us to an Egyptian amusement park. We got a table and chairs in a pavilion right on the bank of the Nile and listened to the music and watched the people. This Arabic music is terrible—just the same thing over and over. This place, however, was middle class. Last night a number of us went with some fellows from the American University to a nicer place here in the city. You know the Egyptian idea of being amused is to go to some place where they can drink tea, eat, and watch the people. This place, Grappi's, has a good orchestra that plays American music, and has a good specialty dancer from Australia."

"Yesterday we had a trip to the Pyramids, a very interesting trip. We took camels and rode all around them and over to the Sphinx. We were there just at sunset and it was beautiful. There are three big Pyramids and several smaller ones, all on a hill overlooking the Nile, which is now high, making the fields wonderfully green and pretty. By the side of the biggest Pyramid they are making new excavations, said to be more wonderful than those of the King Tut tomb, but these are not open to the public."

"Tuesday night Miss Martin, the principal, took us new girls to a 'Muled,' the celebration of the birthday of the prophet Mohammed. It reminded me more of a big carnival than anything else—swings, slides, merry-go-rounds, and in the middle of the square some tents we could not go in. They had the prettiest fireworks I ever saw. And such crowds of people! For blocks the streets were jammed with them, and when we attempted to drive through, we had to go in low gear for blocks and honk the horn constantly. We did not leave the car and go in because it would not be safe, for they would know we were not Mohammedans."

In the same letter is this interesting item: "I am to lose one of my pupils this week, an eighth grade student about fifteen or sixteen years old. She is to become engaged this week, and will be married by Christmas. Here the father makes all such arrangements and pays the man a big dowry to marry his daughter; so it is very much of a disgrace if a girl is not married by the time she is twenty. Another of my pupils is engaged, but is going on to school, while the man to whom she is engaged takes the dowry and goes to school in England on it. Sometimes the girl never sees the man until the engagement ceremony, which is as big a ceremony as the wedding."

The Christmas trip "up country" to the site of ancient Thebes was one of the most interesting expeditions she made. A clipping from her letter describing the trip runs as follows: "The morning after our arrival at Luxor, from Assuit, we crossed the river in a sail boat and took donkeys and a carriage, taking turns riding. First, we stopped at the Temple of Sethas, just ruins now but very interesting. Then we went to the Valley of Kings and here went down into six tombs. They were all very much alike, so I shall describe only one. We went down fifty or more steps and over a bridge that has been built across a well. You know these tombs were built with great secrecy in order that no one could steal the treasures buried with the bodies, and this well is supposed to have been dug as a blind, so that no one could find the tomb. After crossing this, we went down more steps to the main room where the sarcophagus or coffin was, with the mummy in the center. The walls of the whole cave were covered with hieroglyphics showing the different victories of the king, his sacrifices to the gods, etc. All this was electrically lighted." A visit to Karnak Temple, the Temple of Isis, and King Tut's tomb, she says, is not comparable to the others she visited.

"The most exciting thing that has happened this week was having about two hundred tourists visit us on Wednesday. They were people from the Christian Herald tour. One bunch arrived while we were having chapel, popped their heads in the door, and looked at us as if we were animals in a zoo or antiques in a museum. The girls were quite amused but the Syrian teachers were indignant. Some of them—the tourists—do and say such crazy things."

"This is a very exciting season here. It is the birthday of the Prophet Mohammed and a big celebrating time for all Mohammedans. It lasts a month and during that time they fast all day and at all night. At midnight they shoot guns and a man comes around beating on a tin can to wake up everyone to feast. All day they stay in but at sunset come out and shoot firecrackers and walk around carrying small lanterns. Every four days this week there have been about twenty beggars lined up along the outside of our wall, and at sunset they are fed by a wealthy family across the street. If you feed forty people, you save your soul, you know. There are many vacant places in the dining room at noon and the tourists—many of the girls are fasting."

"When I wrote last week I believe I was getting ready to go to a Mohammedan wedding. It was a big affair. The groom is the Poet to the King of Egypt, and according to authorities, the upper four hundred were there, although I did not recognize any of them. Anyway, it was a lovely home and all the women wore gorgeous gowns and jewels. We did not see the men except by peeping over the balcony into the tent where they were smoking and drinking. We were first taken to the bride's new home, which is across the street from her mother's. It is a gorgeous, big place, with everything furnished, and was, of course, a part of the dowry from the bride's people. About ten o'clock we went in to the feast. There was a long table running the length of the room, which was literally covered with food. The rest of the evening, until midnight when we left, we just sat. There is no ceremony except that at two or three o'clock the groom comes into the room for the bride. In olden times this would have been the first time he had seen her, but of course, that rarely happens now."

The letters from Greece, Italy and Switzerland were interesting, too, but in selecting the paragraphs to reprint, an effort was made to choose those which describe things most foreign to us and most characteristic of Egypt. The above excerpts are the result and give only a faint idea of the colorful, delightful stories Miss Martin tells.

FAIR CATALOG NOW COMPLETED

COMPLETE PRIZE LISTS AND SCORE CARD FOR VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS IN BOOK.

The catalog for the Donley County Free Fair of 1927 was completed the fore part of this week and is now ready for distribution through the office of the Chamber of Commerce and through the efforts of Miss Eula Key, Home Demonstrator for the county. It is thought that sufficient booklets were supplied to allow for all those most interested to secure a list for their own benefit and for the benefit of the community in which they reside.

The men of the city who have been out over the territory for the past few weeks state that there are more and better crops than they could have ever expected by the rainfall coming so late in the growing season. The fair will in all probability prove to be a revelation to many who felt that the county was due for an absolute failure in all lines.

As has been stated before, the fair will be held in the old school building at the southern end of the business section of the city. Booths are available to all those of the business men who care to prepare them for the inspection of the public. Many have already made their intentions known and have stated that they will have a place in the fair. The community and club exhibits are progressing nicely through the efforts of Miss Key and it is thought that there will be a number of these for the public to inspect at the opening of the fair.

The catalog that was prepared contains twenty pages and cover and was made possible by business men of the city taking spaces in the booklet. Secretary Boykin of the Chamber of Commerce, or Miss Key will be glad to supply one of the booklets to those who desire them.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ellis were in Amarillo Thursday.

Miss Greta Crabtree and I. B. Pierce Married the 24th

An interesting event of the week was the marriage of Miss Greta Crabtree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Crabtree, and I. B. Pierce of Carlsbad, New Mexico, which was solemnized Saturday evening in a simple wedding at the Baptist parsonage. The Reverend S. R. McClung, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated in the ring ceremony. Following the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce left for Carlsbad, where they will make their home.

The bride has lived in Clarendon for a number of years and has a large circle of friends in the city. She is a graduate of Clarendon High School. For more than a year she was with the telephone exchange of the city. There and elsewhere that she has worked she made many friends. On Friday afternoon preceding the wedding she was honored at a party given by Mrs. M. T. Crabtree.

Mr. Pierce is a former resident of this city and he, too, is very popular. He attended Clarendon High School and Clarendon College and has been prominently associated with musical organizations of the town. He is a painting contractor in Carlsbad. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, who recently moved from this city to Carlsbad.

Miss Greta Crabtree, Bride-Elect, Honoree at Party and Shower

On Friday afternoon preceding her marriage to I. B. Pierce Saturday evening, Miss Greta Crabtree was honored in a delightful shower party at the home of her aunt, Mrs. M. T. Crabtree. After registering in a lovely bride's book and writing a favorite recipe in a cook book for the bride, the guests were entertained with the game, "Pleased or Displeased," and the young ladies mounded that Miss Crabtree go to the ball and bring in a basket she would find there. This basket contained a shower of pretty and useful gifts. Dainty refreshments were served.

Bridge Benefit Was Enjoyable Affair and Financial Success

Besides adding something over $37 to the fund which will be used for Christmas gifts to the disabled soldiers in Texas hospitals, the bridge benefit given Saturday afternoon by the American Legion Auxiliary, Aubyn E. Clark Post, proved to be one of the most enjoyable social affairs of the week. The benefit party was given in the attractive home of Mrs. James Trent, which was made lovelier for the occasion with a profusion of gorgeous dahlias, late roses, and other garden flowers. Fifteen tables were in the game, and late in the afternoon delicious refreshments were served. In the house party with Mrs. Trent were Mrs. John Clark, Mrs. Clyde Douglas, Mrs. Nat Perrine, Mrs. Ralph Kerbow, and Mrs. Charles Trent.

Miss Ruth Stocking Honoree at Informal Party Saturday Evening

Miss Mae Lumpkin entertained a number of friends informally at dinner and bridge Saturday evening, in compliment to Miss Ruth Stocking, who left Monday for Medical School at Galveston. Floor baskets filled with sage and summer poi-setta formed unusual and very pleasing decorations or the three rooms in which the guests were seated. A three-course dinner was served, and afterward bridge was played by the following: Miss Stocking, guest of honor, Mrs. Kate B. Carroll, Miss Katherine Patrick, Miss Thelma Lee Rippey, Miss Helen Beck, Miss Eula Key, Miss Rena Freeman, Miss Mayme Seery, Miss Sue Brown Anderson, Miss Julia Lewis, and Louis Halloway, John S. Mrs. Kate B. Carroll was hostess at one of the loveliest parties of the week. She entertained the Matrons' Dinner-Bridge Club and a few other friends Tuesday evening.

A basket of roses and dahlias in shades of pink centered the table, and dainty colonial perfume bottles at the plates repeated the colors. The decorative place cards were also in the rose tints. LOYD BLACKWELL, AMARILLO, LEADS BOOSTER CLASS STUDY

The Booster Class of the First Christian Sunday School had the pleasure of having with them at their regular meeting of Tuesday evening, Mr. Loyd Blackwell of Amarillo, who came to the city for the special purpose of leading the study at this meeting. Mr. Blackwell was the founder of the Booster Class and was formerly one of the most influential members of the congregation of the First Christian Church in this city. He has the reputation of being a very fine speaker and an excellent teacher of the Bible. He talked Tuesday evening on "The Lost Love," taking his subject from the second chapter of Revelations. Members of the Booster Class took part in the discussion and the meeting was one of the most interesting the class has had in months.

Delicious refreshments were served after the lesson hour. The meeting was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Adams. Those in attendance were: Mr. Blackwell, the Reverend A. B. Crocker of Panhandle and formerly pastor of the local church, Messrs. E. W. Moreman, W. F. Dubbs, J. R. Tucker, S. B. Arnold, Homer Mulkey, G. A. Anderson, and J. D. M. Adams.

MOTHERS' STUDY CLUB TO MEET FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7

The Mothers' Study Club will hold its second regular meeting of the year Friday afternoon, October 7. The study for the day will be on ethics and will be one of the most important of the year. The meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. H. T. Burton and will begin at 3:30.

Year books recently issued to members of the Mothers' Study Club indicate that this group will have a most interesting year. Child psychology and child training are the principal subjects of study for the members of this club, and the programs planned for the club year just opened are not only enjoyable but thorough. Three new members have recently been added to the club. These are Mrs. Richard Wilkerson, Mrs. U. J. Boston, and Mrs. O. T. Smith.

See F. B. Thomas for corn, maize, hay, wheat, oats, cotton seed meal, cake, and different kinds of chops, fresh ground corn meal at all times. (41c)

FIRST NUMBER OF LYCEUM TO BE GIVEN TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4

The first number of this season's lyceum course will be a concert by the Artells Dickson Company, which will be presented in the Junior College Auditorium Tuesday evening, October 4. The artists presenting this concert are Artells Dickson, large an offering as we can. Our and Helen Hunt, violinist and soprano singer. The program will include arias, ballads, piano solos, violin solos, pianologues, negro spirituals, vocal solos with violin obbligato, Scotch songs with singers in costume, character readings, and sketches. The variety of this program will recommend it to the most exacting, and presented by artists of such ability as the members of the Dickson company it should be most entertaining.

The lyceum is being given under the auspices of the Pathfinder Club, for the benefit of the Pathfinder Public Library.

BUFFALOES BEAT BULLDOGS 44 TO 0 IN PRACTICE GAME

Although the big end of the 44 to 0 score went to their opponents, the bulldogs of Clarendon Junior College did some good football playing in the game with the Buffaloes of W. T. S. T. C. at Canyon, Saturday. Fans in attendance said the game was very good for the first three-quarters, at the end of which time the score stood 18 to 0. Eleven fresh Canyon men came on the field for the fourth quarter and the resistance of the Clarendon team continued for little. The bulldogs are to be commended for their never-say-die spirit and the fine, clean game they played. Captain Blocky Parker was the outstanding player of the team.

MRS. LEISBERG HOSTESS TO LADIES AID SOCIETY, 28TH

The Ladies Aid Society of the First Christian Church met Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. O. D. Leisberg. Ten members and one visitor were present. An interesting lesson in the last three books of Epistles was led by Mrs. G. A. Anderson. A delightful social hour followed the lesson and short business meeting, and delicious refreshments were served. HEIDELBERG FOREST IS CENTURIES OLD

From the foresters' point of view the most notable feature of Heidelberg (Germany) is the city forest, writes Dean Franklin Moon of the New York State College of Forestry in the July News Letter of Syracuse University. This forest, says Dean Moon, dates back to 1392 and contains 3,200 acres, but as the Forstmeister Kratina, a very able forester, informed me, that since the primary object desired by the city fathers was a recreation forest, he was able to make a very indifferent showing as far as financial returns were concerned. Since 1810 much soft wood has been introduced by clear cutting the area and planting. On this forest the American species to be found are red oak, tulip poplar, black locust, hemlock, white pine, sequoia and Douglas fir, the last being the best. Another interesting factor is that while the yearly cut has increased from three cubic meters to 1.5 cubic meters per hectare, the growing stock has increased from 69,000 cubic meters in 1851 to 111,000 cubic meters in 1910, proving that under good forest management both capital and dividends have increased.

Here Forstmeister Kratina made one very significant statement, and it is always interesting to get the point of view of a foreign scientific expert owing to a long range perspective, that within a period of from 75 to 80 years the American consuming public would thank God for wood cellulose in any form in which it came, whether maple, spruce, pine, or any other species that could be easily reproduced and would grow rapidly.

LITTLE MERCANTILE COMPANY OPENS STORE IN WELLINGTON

The Little Mercantile Company, one of Clarendon's most prominent business firms for many years, is establishing a store in Wellington which will be opened in a short time, possibly by the latter part of this week. The Wellington store will have the same name as the Clarendon business house. Men's furnishings, ladies' ready-to-wear, and shoes will be the main lines carried in the store, according to information received from members of the firm. The store will occupy the A. V. Coker building.

The Little Mercantile Company of Wellington will be under the direct management of Mr. T. M. Little, who will be assisted by his son, Milus. They have been in Wellington for the past several days making necessary arrangements.

CARE FOR THE DRY COW

The condition of the dry cow in regard to flesh should determine the amount and kind of feed to give her. Cows producing 10,000 pounds or more of milk will need a considerable amount of both grain and roughage during the dry period. Cut down on the roughage considerably a week or ten days before calving as too much bulk may add to the discomfort of the animal. At this time feed a laxative grain ration. High producing cows, when dry, should have plenty of good legume hay or pasture, which is rich in protein and lime, and the grain ration should contain considerable quantities of bran and linseed oil meal, which are rich in phosphorus.

Carried veal is a good dish to serve when lima beans are in season, because the flavor of curry goes well with lima beans. Cut two pounds of stewing veal into small pieces and simmer in water enough to cover until almost tender. Then add two cups of fresh lima beans. In another pan cook one medium sized onion, chopped fine, and one-half a green pepper, chopped, in a small amount of butter. Add to the meat. When the beans are done, thicken the liquid slightly with a little flour which has been mixed with one-fourth teaspoon curry, one and one-half teaspoons salt, and a little cold water. Add one cup diced cucumber and cook a few minutes longer. Sprinkle chopped parsley over the top when serving.

About 3 days before farrowing the sow should be confined in the pen or house she will occupy during the farrowing period. Thoroughly clean the pen, which should be about 7x7 feet in size, and see that it is dry, well ventilated, and provided with a guard rail made by placing 2 x 4 inch pieces around the inside of the pen about 10 inches from the floor and from 4 to 6 inches from the sides. This will often prevent the sow from crushing a pig when she lies down. Remove all bedding, sweep the floor and sides, and wash with scalding water and lye. When dry, bed the pen with good, clean

"Old Home Celebration" for Former Dallas Residents During The 16 Days of Texas State Fair

Former residents of Dallas are being sought throughout the United States and urged to return for an "Old Home Celebration" to last during the sixteen days of the State Fair of Texas.

The celebration is under the auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the young men are working with their usual pep and enthusiasm to make it one of the outstanding features of the fair period.

Dallas citizens are preparing lists of friends who have moved away and turning the names over to the committee who are sending special "Come Home to Texas" invitations to the wanderers.

The Old Home Celebration is statewide in its scope and all former Texans are being sought and urged to return at this time, when they may observe the progress the state has made since their departure.

Hereafter seats for all performances in the Auditorium during the State Fair will be for sale on the grounds, as well as down town, it is announced.

REVIVALIST IS

REVEREND BAUER AND SINGER
ATTEND LUNCHEON AND ASSIST IN ENTERTAINMENT

The Lions were regaled Tuesday of this week with a fine luncheon at the regular hour and made merry all through the luncheon period. Visitors of the day assisted materially in making the hour pass quickly and entertained the gathering with their talks.

First to be introduced was Rev. S. R. McClung, Rev. L. C. Bauer and Gospel Singer T. Carroll. All of these responded when they were called to the floor and made merry through the whole hour. The solo and remarks of Singer Carroll were especially enjoyed.

Rev. Bauer was at one time the pastor of the Baptist Church in this city and is well known to the old timers of the town. He stressed in his remarks the importance of the churches to the community and the especial importance of the Service Club members in their affiliation with some of the organizations of that nature. An invitation was extended to all the members to attend the services at the church at all times and an especial invitation was given the members to attend the meeting that will be held Sunday afternoon, when a very much talked of subject is to be discussed.

Lion Patman stated that the Chamber of Commerce had been put in a position similar to the one where a man has a visitor and asks him home to dinner on wash-day, knowing full well that there will be little welcome for them when they arrive at home. The same relief is felt when the visitor declines the invitation, saving both manners and reputation of the man who did the inviting. As is well known, the Chamber of Commerce proffered the services of Secretary Boykin for a half time job with the school and with the Chamber of Commerce. To the relief of the Chamber of Commerce, a man was secured and Secretary Boykin will be retained by the Chamber of Commerce as in the past and will give his full time to the place.

Lion Burton stated that there would be a football game here on October 7, with the Bulldogs of Clarendon College and the Jackrabbits of Wayland Baptist College playing in one of the oldest grudge gridiron battles that has been waged here since the organization of the two schools. The Wayland team is practically as strong as it was last year, while the Clarendon College team is made up of practically all beginners. The attendance on the Wayland games that were played in Clarendon in the years past has not been all that could be desired, but the full attendance of everyone is urged to see that the college here gives the boys a run for their money. The Wayland team has never won from Clarendon College on the College park, but there is every indication that the teams will be very evenly matched this year.

Lion Cooper made the announcement that the Clarendon Junior College was going over very nicely and that it seemed at present that the required sixty credits would be in the school by the end of the week. The loan scholarships that have been offered in recent weeks have made quite a difference and the boys and girls of the Panhandle are watching the new school with more than ordinary interest and thought that the enrollment will be more than seventy-five by the beginning of the Christmas holidays.

The postponement of the opening of the Hall County Fair was announced to the club by Lion Boykin, much to the evident relief of the Lions who were planning to make the trip to that city to assist in the opening of the fair. The date was set for Wednesday instead of Tuesday.

Adjournment was had in the usual manner.

MACDOWELL CLUB
RESUMES WORK

MISS RUTH DENNISON DIRECTS
WORK: MRS. BRYAN, MISS
MARTIN, ACCOMPANISTS.

The cold and rain of Monday evening did not dampen the ardor of the members of the McDowell Club, who met with Misses Helen and Mildred Martin. Twelve new names were added to our roll and we hope to be able to report more in the near future.

The club has been very fortunate in securing the services of Miss Dennison as directress and Mrs. J. L. McMurtry as assistant directress, with Mrs. Allen Bryan as accompanist and Miss Helen Martin as assistant accompanist. Our Thanksgiving program was discussed, and everything points toward a successful year for this organization. The club will hold their next meeting in the home of Mrs. J. L. McMurtry on October 3, at seven o'clock. Each member is urged to be present and to bring her dues.—Reporter.

The McDowell Club, which was organized early last Fall, received a letter during the summer from Mrs. Marion MacDowell, widow of the famous composer for whom the club was named. This letter, which was addressed to Miss Sarah Thompson, secretary, is given below.

New York City, June 5, 1927.

Dear Miss Thompson,
Only serious illness kept me from at once thanking you for your note and check—much as I value and need the latter, yet even more I appreciate the thought of me that prompted your club to do this gracious act. Your check has gone to our treasurer, and you will undoubtedly hear from him.

It has been a hard struggle, this pulling along the work of the colony, but it gives me fresh courage to know that far off clubs like yours have the desire to help. I kept wonderfully well all winter in spite of forty-seven recitals, but Chicago winds gave me influenza, and as a result, an attack of plebitis which has laid me low for weeks, with intense pain, but I hope to go to Petersburg this week, and strength will soon come. Forgive this scrawl—one of the first letters I have written since April. Tell your club I hope some of its members may be in New England this summer, and be sure to come and see the work you are helping.

My warm regards,
Gratefully yours,
MARION MACDOWELL

TRIPLE EXTRA OF-FER CLOSES 9TH

they are putting into their work and the speed they are showing. As fast as one club member fills one book, she starts right out on another, determined to fill as many as possible and to turn in all subscriptions humanly possible before the stroke of 9 p. m., Monday.

This is true not only of the club members in Clarendon but of those in the outside communities as well. In fact, those club members in the outside towns and counties have the advantage of having their entire community to look to for support, without having to divide the results of their efforts. These communities are behind their nominee to a man, and so it looks like a pretty battle of ballots to determine the winner of that beautiful Chrysler two-door sedan.

There are storms of credits gathering in Ashtola, Lelia Lake, Hedley and Giles and many other places along the rural routes, that will break with considerable fury when the final check-up comes. Club members outside the city of Clarendon have the advantage of having their entire community to look to for support, without having to divide the results of their efforts. These communities are behind their nominee to a man, and so it looks like a pretty battle of ballots to determine the winner of that beautiful Chrysler two-door sedan.

Watch the Count

Today's standing of credits, not including the extra credits earned up to date, was tabulated by the Campaign Manager at 12 noon yesterday. The next count will appear next week and there will be undoubtedly some startling changes by that time.

The great race is attracting intense interest and commanding attention for miles in every direction from Clarendon. Many remarks concerning the new and unusual plan, the fairness of it, the easy matter of getting subscriptions, and the fact that everyone who enters the race is guaranteed a prize or a handsome sum in cash. New club members are coming to the front and enrolling daily.

The subscription list of The News is mounting higher and higher and is doubtless if there will be any homes within many miles from Clarendon that will not be receiving The News when the campaign is over.

The spirit of friendly competition is pushing the club members onward, upward, forward in their struggle for supremacy, to outdo each other in the battle of ballots; right now is the time to start. No one club member has to date a commanding lead whatsoever and what little lead one might have can easily overcome in just a mighty short time. Remember it is not when you start in this race that counts, but
