CITY WILL EXTEND STREET TO HIGHWAY

Extension of East Broadway to connect with Highway 10 was decided upon at a meeting of the Brownwood city council Tuesday night. However, the work will not be undertaken unless public spirited citizens will donate funds for the construction of a bridge over Adams branch (the slough) and the county will furnish machinery for the work.

Earl Looney appeared before the council with the request that the work be undertaken by the city. He stated part of the money for building the bridge had been raised. Relief labor would be used for the work, according to present plans.

A committee, composed of Mr. Looney, Mayor Thompson and Chester Harrison, secretary of the Brownwood chamber of commerce was appointed to go before the commissioners court and request their cooperation.

The state highway department was asked in a resolution adopted by the council, to do beautification work on highway 10 within the city limits. Plans for the work are going forward, but the highway commission needed authority from the city before proceeding with actual work.

Monthly reports of city officials were heard and approved at the council meeting.

$12,403 IN PARITY CHECKS RECEIVED

Parity checks totalling $12,403.64 are being distributed to Brown county cotton farmers this week by County Agent C. W. Lehmberg. The 1014 checks received include all due here except about 200, which will be received later.

The payment is for one cent per pound on the 40 per cent reduction on the 1934 cotton crop and does not include prior crops. This payment completes all payments on 1934 cotton crops to Brown county farmers except those who have cotton certificates in the national pool. This amount, if any will be received at a later date.

The option checks on 1933 cotton crops are arriving daily. They are being mailed directly to the farmers.

TAX PENALTIES TO INCREASE WITH EACH MONTH'S NON-PAYMENT

Tax Assessor-Collector Winston Palmer this week again called attention of the taxpayers of Brown county to the fact that 1934 taxes now carry a penalty of one per cent, and that the penalty will be increased after February.

He urged payment of the 1934 tax and of delinquent taxes which are now payable without any penalty or interest.

After March 15 penalties and interest will be added to delinquent taxes on the same scale as 1934 taxes.

The penalty on all 1934 taxes not paid before January 31 will be increased monthly through the month of June. At that time the penalty will be eight per cent and the interest will be six per cent from February 1.

The tax schedule for current taxes will be as follows: February, one per cent; March, two per cent; April, three per cent; May, four per cent; June, five per cent. Following that the above penalty and interest will be charged.

HAUPTMANN GIVEN DEATH PENALTY ON MURDER CONVICTION

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, who has been on trial for the past month in New Jersey on charges of murdering Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was convicted and condemned to the electric chair Wednesday night by the jury of eight men and four women who heard the case.

The jury deliberated the case for 11 hours and six minutes before bringing in the verdict.

Hauptmann had been on trial since January 2. Hundreds of witnesses had presented damaging testimony connecting Hauptmann with the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby in 1932. The state contended the baby was killed when the ladder through which the kidnaper had entered the Lindbergh home broke with the combined weight of the kidnaper and the baby, and the two fell to the ground.

Hauptmann presented a number of alibis.

BROWNWOOD TO BE HOST TO FIREMEN AT 1936 MEETING

The Hill Country Firemen's Association elected Brownwood Volunteer Fire Department to membership and selected Brownwood as the February, 1936, meeting place for the association at their semi-annual meeting in Coleman Tuesday. Twelve representatives from Brownwood attended the meeting.

The following officers were elected: Chief Kelly Dalton, president; Chief Johnson of Santa Anna, vice president; Chief John Hawkins of Junction, elected secretary-treasurer of the association for life.

Those who attended from Brownwood were: Chief Pettitt, Olaf Gill, Elton Eaton, Vernon Taylor, Tom Taylor, Buster Thomas, Chalmey Giddens, Leo Nawby, Walker Swiney, Seaborn Jones, Mrs. Jack Dempsey and Mrs. Orman Means.

C OF C BALLOTS SENT TO MEMBERS

Ballots were mailed out this week for selection of directors of the Brownwood chamber of commerce for the coming year. All members who have paid dues during the present year were sent ballots containing names of all present members of the organization. Seven new directors will be chosen in the mail ballot, results of which will be announced at the annual membership banquet Thursday February 21.

Six members of the present board retire this year, and under the constitution of the organization are ineligible to re-election. They are: F. S. Abney, Dr. Ben Shelton, F. B. Greenwood, B. P. Bludworth, J. H. McKee and Ben A. Fain. Harry Knox, Sr., a member of the board of directors, died during the year.

A committee headed by Henry Gibbs will count the ballots and report the results.

Plans were moving forward this week for the annual meeting, which will be strictly a business session. A definite program for promotion of trade for Brownwood for the coming year is being mapped out by the board of directors and will be presented at the meeting. If the plan is accepted, it will form the program of the chamber of commerce for the next twelve months.

No meeting of the board was held this week, since President B. P. Bludworth and Secretary Chester Harrison were in Comanche Wednesday attending a highway meeting. If plans for the annual meeting have developed far enough for submission to the board, a meeting will be held Friday at noon Mr. Harrison said.

SCHOOLBOY MEET WILL BE HELD MARCH 22-23

Friday and Saturday, March 22 and 23, have been set for the annual Brown County Interscholastic League meet by the league's executive committee, according to announcements by C. F. Wesner, director general.

The playground baseball and tennis contests, which are a part of the League's schedule of contests, will be held Saturday, March 23.

English is displacing French as the first foreign language taught in many Prussian schools.

At Trial of Doomed "Poison Witch"

Prosecutions in the mass murders of Debreczen, Hungary, were climaxed with the sentencing of a 73-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Juliana Nagy (center, in light coat), called the village's "poison witch," to be hanged. She was convicted of poisoning members of her family and supplying deadly poisons to others. Beside her in court sit other suspects.

GINNERS WOULD BE ALLOWED A SUBSIDY FOR BANKHEAD WORK

Cotton ginners would be reimbursed for additional expenses under operation of the Bankhead cotton control law during 1935-36 under terms of a bill introduced in the U. S. Senate by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

The bill provides that in event it is established to the satisfaction of the Secretary of Agriculture that additional expenses have been incurred, he is authorized to make such payments to ginners, representing such additional expenses as he deems fair, out of any money available for administrative expenses under the act.

Ginners have complained of obligations placed on them by the Bankhead law of giving bond and responsibility for cotton not accompanied by certificate. Representatives of the ginners were here some weeks ago asking that they be reimbursed $1 a bale for the last year.

Ginners were made responsible for collecting the tax due on excess production, issuing bale tags, all of which required much book-keeping.

Chairman Marvin Jones of the House Agricultural Committee said that some provision should be made for reimbursement of ginners for expenses incurred.

Senator Smith of South Carolina believes ginners should be relieved of all the work incident to operation of the law, and that the department should have it performed by an agent of the Government.

Another feature of the Harrison bill would permit transfer or assignment of exemption certificates to any other cotton producer in the State where the certificate was issued originally. Under the Bankhead law the transfer of exemption certificates is limited to the county where issued unless the certificates were placed in the cotton pool.

A further provision is that if a farmer's allotment is less than three bales no tax shall be imposed for excess production up to three bales.

Investigator Looks Over CCC Camp

J. S. Billeps, special investigator from the office of the director general of all CCC work in the United States was in Brownwood Monday and Tuesday inspecting the CCC camp at Lake Brownwood park.

The road from the park to Byrds, which is in bad condition as a result of heavy rains, is being covered with caliche by a crew of boys from the camp this week.

From ten cents worth of pecans planted by Mrs. Will Mattingley member of the Tarzan home demonstration club in Martin county, 61 little pecans will be set beside the surface tank at the Mattingley home as shade for the fish that are in the tank. Plums and peaches, from seed, are growing by the pecans in the plant bed. Eleven grape vines are already started from cuttings this year.

POULTRYMEN TO HAVE SECOND MEETING TO PERFECT SHOW PLANS

A second meeting of poultrymen in Brown county will be held on Friday night, February 22, to perfect plans for holding a poultry show in Brownwood sometime in December. Decision to hold the second meeting was reached last Friday night, when bad weather held down the crowd at the meeting, and no action was taken.

Officers of the county association will be elected at the meeting February 22, it was announced, and committees appointed to make preparations for the show. The Brownwood chamber of commerce and county agent and home demonstration agent have promised cooperation in staging the show.

The National Cornish Club also will be asked to hold its annual exhibit and convention here, which would attract about 500 additional birds.

RAIN DURING WEEK TOTALS 3 INCHES

Beneficial rains which have fallen every day except one since last Wednesday totaled 3.02 inches brought the depth of Lake Brownwood at the dam up to 62.7 and spread the lake waters over considerable countryside, and put the small grain crops that survived the freeze of ten days ago in splendid condition.

Water in the lake reached an elevation of 1,392.7 feet Tuesday, the highest point since the lake was drained last summer when the flood gates jammed. The gates were opened to release water sold to rice growers along the gulf jammied, and were repaired only after the huge lake was completely drained.

The lake now covers approximately 1500 acres of area, and contains more than 17,500 acre feet of water. Before being drained, the lake contained 65,000 acre feet of water, which stood at an elevation of 1,411.3 feet, or 19.1 feet higher than it was on Tuesday of this week.

Much small grain was destroyed by the freeze in January, when the temperature dropped to 8 degrees above zero, but some of it withstood the freeze, and now is flourishing. Where the grain was destroyed, the rains of the past week have provided a splendid season for spring planting.

LAW SCHOOL
of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Brown, Tuesday night at the law firm of Adams, Williams, Young & Co. of Brownwood, Tex. The divorce was granted by Judge W. R. Ely.

While Judge Ely's term expires this week, Governor Allred has indicated that he will not take action on the appointment of a successor until some time later, which encourages the hope among Ely's friends that he will be named to succeed himself.

Although the jury has not yet made its regular report to the court, it has completed most of its work for this term. Of those indicted one, Ralph Moore, is in the county jail. He is charged with burglary in connection with a theft of some canned goods from a Walker-Smith warehouse. He was arrested at Belton and has been in jail here since because of failure to make bond. His bond was set by Judge Miller at $2,000.

In the Ozark regions of Missouri and Arkansas, parts of Tennessee, Kentucky, and Alabama, the bitterweed, Helianthum tenuifolium, yields plenty of golden honey to bees, but it is as bitter as quinine.

FANS TALKING NEW HPC COACH AS BE CONSIDERS CHIEF

As reflection upon the character or reputation of any person or corporation which may appear in this newspaper will be promptly published when brought to the attention of the publishers.

So popular with the Brownwood fans is the new coach, Joe B. ... following the announcement...

As an ordinary policy, we do not favor the creating of new bureaus or commissions. But the importance of soil erosion work in Texas is such that unless this, or some other corrective measure, places facilities for such work within the means of every farmer in Texas, we are going to witness a continued depletion of our natural resources which ultimately will lead to virtual bankruptcy for everyone within the state.

It does not take any economist or student of agricultural conditions to recognize the importance of this work. One needs only to drive through any section of Texas and view present farming conditions, then compare them with conditions that existed some ten or twenty years ago, to realize the damage done by erosion.

During the past week heavy rains have fallen in West Texas. These have, in the most part, been gentle rains, doing the greatest good. But in spite of this, thousands of dollars of top soil has been carried off the West Texas farms.

As important as is the highway building program to Texas, we consider soil erosion a more important measure, for what will it avail us to build fine highways past deserted farms; to make accessible to shopkeepers a devastated population; to provide a road to market for those who have nothing to sell?

European railroads are taking a lesson from the sad experience of American lines that have seen their passenger business slip away to the buses. They have established a series of Diesel powered buses, operating over their rail lines.

American railroads might yet have an opportunity to reclaim this business through the establishment of a similar service, although America now is thoroughly bus-minded. It appears to us, however, and it always has, that the traveling public would prefer the comfort and safety of rail travel, provided it were made as economical and convenient as travel by bus.

A few years ago some effort was made to provide one-car service by the railroads. But the vehicles resembled more the old-fashioned street cars, with their lack of comfort. The public, then thoroughly sold on buses, failed to respond.

We believe the loss of business is largely the fault of those directing the railroads. They took a sinister attitude toward the new buses, inaugurated without much financial backing, without benefit of political standing, without the ability to float large bond issues, without the advantage of established connections in the transportation field. But they failed to reckon with the fact that the American public was growing more used to travel upon the highways; that economy of travel is a governing factor in the majority of cases. The railroads failed to offer anything new, and, depending upon their old equipment, antiquated methods and with an indifferent attitude, they saw their business go before they started to do anything about it.

Railbus service might be the answer. Certainly, the European railroads, probably through being forewarned, are meeting the situation with more intelligence than did the great railroad leaders of this country.

An interesting insight into the changing attitude of the public mind toward prohibition is contained in a news item from Oklahoma City, in a dry state. Recently in a court trying a liquor case, the evidence was overwhelming against the defendant. So overwhelming, in fact, that the defendant's lawyer decided to give up.

"We don't deny the presence of the liquor," the lawyer told the jury; after declining to present witnesses, "so we suppose the only thing left for the jury to do is declare the defendant guilty."

The jury deliberated a few minutes, and returned a verdict of "Not Guilty."

SWEATSHOP NATIONS

(San Antonio Light) Secretary Hull's plea of internationalism in the face of a dangerous shrinkage in certain key export items recalls the historic spectacle of Nero fiddling while Rome was burning up. Although even in the peak years, 1927-1929, exports amounted to only 6 per cent of the national income, shipments abroad were of crucial importance to a few American products, notably cotton.

Almost under our very eyes in recent months established American export markets for cotton goods have shriveled up and all but disappeared. American manufacturers, complying with the cost raising humane standards which have been adopted in this country, expect counter-balances to protect them from competitors who still employ coolie labor.

In Japan, for example, more than 50 per cent of the employees in the textile industry are women; more than 20 per cent of these employees are under 16 years of age, and it is understood that many of these young girls are indentured to the industry for a term of six years virtually on a subsistence basis.

Our problem is to diminish total unemployment rather than augment it and since the government has been chiefly responsible for destroying the cotton industry, we urge some intelligent suggestion on the part of the brain stormers at Washington towards restoring it.

Washington should at least give encouragement to the Philippine legislature when during this year it again considers legislation to protect American cotton in the island trade.

Like-wise, in negotiating reciprocal trade agreements with our Caribbean, Central and South American neighbors, the state department should take into consideration the interests of the American cotton textile exporting trade.

From Brazos county comes this story of improved farm conditions—a farmer leaning against a bank building said to C. L. Beason county agent, "I have been owing this bank five years and this is the first fall I've been able to pay out."

True Ghost Stories

By CONNIE MACK Baseball Manager

CONNIE MACK as he sat in his office with its many windows, through which streamed sunshine and light, did not seem to be a figure about which the eerie could hover. Robust for his years, his face ruddy from outdoor life, he seemed rather a tall tower which pointed to things as definite as north, south, east and west. Yet he had a strange tale to relate about a visual prophetic omen.

"In the fourth game of the World series in 1929, the Philadelphia Athletics played the Chicago Cubs on a Saturday at Shibe park in Philadelphia," he began.

"I dreaded not only the impending loss of the game, but also the trip to Chicago, which would have to be made if we lost. The picture of the train already made up flashed across my mind. The train seemed to be coming toward me. The image was vivid and portentous.

"Simultaneously with the flash of the picture, Simmons came up to bat. The game changed in our favor in the last half of the seventh inning. He hit a home run. Then Poxs batted, and they went right down the line until they came to the pitcher. The pitcher was replaced by a pinch-hitter.

"Then we started at the top of our batting order. When it came to the seventh batter, Jimmy Dykes, the score was a tie. The bases were filled. Jimmy made a two-base hit, driving in two runs, leaving two men on bases.

After Cochrane went out for the second out, Simmons made a two-base hit. Foxs was walked purposely. Then Miller hit a two-base hit, driving in the winning run, and we had won the ball game, 3-2."

Kingsville — Terrace lines have been run on a 20 acre hill side field on the King Ranch in Kleberg county, according to W. L. Wilkinson, farm demonstration agent, and the terraces will be built as soon as the grader and tractor belonging to the ranch are available for that purpose. Robert J. Kleberg, Jr., found that a field of Rhodes grass on the hill side was not doing so well because the slope was so steep that the rains were washing the soil away from the roots. He decided that the field should be terraced to prevent this to conserve the moisture, and to bring the production up to an equal with that of the fields having a heavier soil and more level slopes, so he secured the help of the agent to run the terrace lines.

Edna — Good farming practices go a long way toward offsetting adverse conditions such as the drought, in the opinion of Charles Brandes, Jackson county farmer. Mr. Brandes made an average yield of 30 bushels of corn per acre over his entire corn acreage this year, according to D. I. Dudley, farm demonstration agent. He plants his corn in seven foot rows with a row of peas in the middle, but he attributes his success this year to proper seed bed preparation and thinning the corn to 30 inches or more in the drill.

Angleton — A two year old improved pasture seeded to dallis grass, carpet grass, lespedeza, white Dutch clover, and California burr clover mowed twice a year has carried an average of one and one-fourth head of grown stock per acre from March to October this year on the Barnes farm near Angleton, according to J. H. Sandlin, farm demonstration agent. In several places the dallis grass and carpet grass were so tall that the mower topped them in September when the second weed cutting was taking place.

Wheeler — Not only did Joy Bill Riley of the Briscoe 4-H club in Wheeler county plant a spring and fall garden, but she also canned 211 quarts of five varieties of foods this year and set out 20 trees, 100 berry vines, and 300 grape vines, according to Miss Viola Jones, home demonstration agent. Joy Bill did not sell any vegetables, but she sold 55 gallons of berries and made a profit of $11. "Club work has meant so much to me. I have learned to can, to sew, to cook and to do many other interesting things," Joy Bill says.

Brownsville — A smooth, even carpet grass lawn in the place of a spotty one of Bermuda has been achieved by Mrs. Rena Knaveley of Cameron county during the past year, according to Miss Dorothy Porter, home demonstration agent. The Bermuda grass was a poor quality volunteer grass that would not cover the area under the trees as was desired. Without removing the existing Bermuda, runners of carpet grass were laid and covered with about one inch of soil. This was kept well watered for several weeks. It was weeded by hand several times and was mowed frequently. The front lawn is now completely grassed over.

LY HISTORY OF TEXAS OWN FROM THE AUSTIN PAPERS

small scrap of news from his friends and relatives is testimony to the inaccessibility of the new settlement, and to the inadequacy of the existing methods of communication. His first letter, dated May 12, 1830, is in reply to one from his uncle written on February 12, exactly three months earlier, which had just come to his hand.

Ira Ingram and his brother Seth took active part in the development of their chosen country, and cast their fortunes willingly with those of the new settlement. Seth became the official surveyor of Austin's colony between the Brazos and the Colorado, and laid out the town of San Felipe, as well as surveying much of the land on the old Caney and Peach creeks and on the lower Colorado. Ira was more politically minded, and was the first alcalde, or mayor, of the town of Matagorda. He served in the Congress of 1836, and was speaker of the House of Representatives. He died in 1839; Seth died in 1857.

In his first letter to his uncle, Ira Ingram outlines the activities of himself and his brother for the past several years, and indicates briefly his philosophy with regard to the future:

"... You ask me for information respecting myself and brother. To be concise, and yet comply with your request: my brother moved from Tennessee, where he had spent two years in acquiring a mathematical education, to this country, in the spring of 1822. When Col. Austin commenced colonizing, he embarked in the business which he had in view when he left the United States, of the north—He is still in the same employment, that of surveyor of public land. He is the first of the profession who stretched a chain in conformity with law, between the Grand and Sabine rivers; is now in the vicinity of the Bay of Galveston, with his company and company is making money very fast; was in good health when his last messenger to me left him, and is still unmarried.

"As to myself, I am wifeless and childless. I married in the city of New Orleans, in March, 1823—and in April, 1824, lost my first child; in the October following, I buried my wife. She fell, one of the last victims of the yellow fever, for the year 1824.

"My wife was my idol. She was

Services Halted By Church Fire; Damage Estimated At $600

Damage estimated at $600 was done by a fire which started in the upper floor of the annex of Cozgin Avenue Baptist church during services Sunday morning. The loss to the building, $500, was covered by insurance, but the contents of the building damaged to the extent of $100, were not insured.

No one was in the annex when the fire, ignited from a gas stove left too near the woodwork, started. Sunday school classes had been completed in the room some time before. When the blaze was discovered the occupants left the building with a minimum of confusion and the blaze was checked soon after the firemen arrived.

A specially prepared bed in which she systematically roots cuttings; the use of native shrubs; a definite plan for landscaping the farmstead; and the expenditure of $3 together with some sure, enough work has given Mrs. B. F. Curry, home demonstration club member of Matagorda county a lovely yard.

young, beautiful and accomplished. Her name when married to me, was Emily B. Holt. In her grave were buried my hopes and my prospects of happiness. An uncommon buoyancy of spirits, however enabled me to recover from the blow in part, by removing to, and establishing myself in Texas. As to my property, it is difficult to say what it is worth. I have a large tract of very valuable land eligibly situated, and superlatively rich.

"As to property, I have a plenty and have too, the knowledge of and industry in business, to acquire more.

"I am actively employed, and intend to be, while I live.

"If life and health are spared me for ten years, I shall then be prepared to commence the downhill of life, with ample means to pave the passage with every comfort and every luxury, that the epicure or the man of refined taste could wish. As to my brother, his property and prospects are the same as my own; we participate in each others business and speculations so as to make our gains in the country equal."

In plucking the eyebrows be sure you don't lose completely their natural line. The eyebrows, in most cases, grow in a line from the top of the nose. If all the hairs are plucked right at this point, the brows assume an unnatural line. Have your eyebrows as thin as you like, but avoid distorting them.

SECOND QUARTERLY CONFERENCE MONDAY

Rev. Chester Wilkerson, Methodist pastor at Blanket, makes the following announcement:

"Our second quarterly conference could not be held at Green's Chapel with the roads to that place as they are. So we are announcing that the conference will be held February 18th at 7:30 p. m. in Blanket. The business of the conference is such that we need to have it soon, so with the good rains falling and the fine roads of Brown county that lead to Blanket in all kinds of weather, we make the change of the conference. We appreciate the fine rains, but we are grateful for good roads so we say 'On with the program.' Dr. J. T. McClure will bring a short message and then hold the conference afterward."

Is your car losing its original pep? Overheating on long runs? Then, a little time you use PYROIL.

PYROIL does immediate wonders for any car—new or old. Simply added in small quantity to gasoline and oil supply, PYROIL establishes a heat, wear, dilution proof surface of self-lubrication on every moving metal part. Actually builds lubrication into the metal. PYROIL withstands the withering heat of the motor head where ordinary oil burns into carbon. Hence, it supplies constant lubrication to valves, stems, gages, pistons, cylinder walls that no motor heat can affect; that can't wear off as long as substance that can't wash off. Frees sticky valves at once. Seals rings, adds compression. Banishes hard carbon. Makes your motor better every mile you ride. ### Mother Dionne Gets a Priming

The world's most famous mother must look her best when curious eyes of thousands of Chicagoans are centered on her, so Mrs. Elzire Dionne leaves it to the beautician to pretty her up for her public appearances. Winding up her session in the beauty parlor, she's shown here under the drier after her hair has been waved.

Holder also made a cutting bed of roses, evergreen and flowering shrubs.

Adds to Foundation Planting
 In order to screen her wash pot wood pile and part of the barn lot Mrs. M. L. Smith, yard demonstrator for the Zephyr Home Demonstration Club, has added a dozen Amour River Privets to her screen planting and two Eucalyptus, two Jasmine, 2 Nandinas, 2 Wax leaf Ligustrums and 4 flowering shrubs to her foundation planting. Mrs. Smith moved her fence back, in one side of her yard, making the yard much larger. Honeyuckle was planted by this fence to screen out other undesirable views.

Yard Plans on Paper
 It is necessary to put yard plans on paper because it is a long time job, and Mary Louise Smith, yard demonstrator for the 4-H Girls at Zephyr, has plans which call for the following: 1. Make flower beds wider (4 feet wide and 1 foot deep) 2. Plant some foundation planting. 3. Add to your screen planting. 4. Level the yard. 5. Make flower beds. 6. Widen the steps.

Great Salt Lake contains 400,000,000 tons of salt in solution, it is estimated by the University of Utah.

CHAPTER ONE THE BLACK PANTHER

the school, although opposition by no means ceased, recognition came more readily. Unlike the vast majority of the great who have made revolutionary discoveries of benefit to mankind, Dr. Still lived to see the fruit of his labor—to see his science generally recognized. In the little city of Kirksville where he lived the citizens referred affectionately to him as the "Old Doctor" and the honored him as few men are honored during their lives by erecting a beautiful bronze statue of him. He was a scientist and a man. Dr. Still died December 12, 1917, at the age of 89.

SPRING GARDEN

Work in the garden is a source of health and a means of saving money on living expenses. You can work with the least effort and obtain the best results if you use the proper implements. In our store there are all sorts of garden tools. Everything from horse cultivators to trowels — all quality implements at unusually low prices. See us before you buy.

FENCING THE FARM

Nothing adds to the value of the farm more than modern fencing. The old days of rail fences, and property lines marked only by a row of weeds, have passed forever. Our stock of fencing is made in a wide variety of mesh for all purposes, from chicken wire up to a grade suitable for stock enclosures and industrial uses. See our stock.

SPRING SPORTS

Golf — Baseball — swimming — tennis and fishing. All are just around the corner. But there is no need to wait to buy your equipment for your favorite sport when our stock is so complete and untouchable this early in the year. And the prices — as low as you will find them anywhere — not to mention that extra quality you get in whatever you buy here.

SPRING BUILDING

Spring is the season of renewed building activities. The music of the hammer and the saw is heard everywhere. The greatest aid to building is good tools, and the best tools to be found in our store will play an important part this spring in building, just as they have for the past 59 years. Buy your building tools when the experienced buyers buy.

A strange, hatched-faced woman rapidly made her way through the grove of swaying elm trees and determinedly headed for the Copperfield home. She peered into the parlour through the window and saw, sitting by the fire, a young, lovely woman, dressed in mourning weeds. She looked up, her eyes meeting those at the window and jumped to her feet, startled. With a brusque gesture the figure outside directed her to open the door. "I am Betsy Trotwood," the woman announced, entering the house. "you've heard of her I dare say."

"I've had that pleasure," Miss Trotwood marched into the sitting-room and glanced around inquisitively. "David Copperfield was my favorite nephew," she said, "and I was mortally offended when he married a wax doll — of course, I'd never seen you. What will you call your girl?" "But perhaps it will be a boy." "Don't contradict! I have a presentiment it will be a girl. She shall be christened Betsy Trotwood Copperfield."

Mrs. Copperfield suddenly leaped weakly over to one side. Then she faintly. "And after many hours of suspense, while the elm trees swayed more wildly than ever, with Doctor Chillip going about his tasks swiftly and silently, Aunt Betsy left off her steady pacing back and forth and approached him as he entered the sitting-room, a non-committal smile of greeting on his face. "Mercy on the man!" she burst out. "What's he doing? Can't he speak? How is she?"

"She's a maid," I apprehended you had known. It's a boy." "There was a loud gasp and Aunt Betsy struck Doctor Chillip square in the head with her bonnet. Then, jamming it on her head, she stalked out of the room and house like a discontented fairy. "Eight years later, little David Copperfield sat in the sitting-room reading to his nurse Peggotty. He was silent for a moment in sad remembrance of the father whom he had never known. Then he spoke hesitantly. "That man in church today with mother is — is like a black panther in my animal book, Peggotty."

"She lowered her eyelids discreetly. "Hush, that's Mr. Murdstone — a friend of mama's. Now read me some more." "He had no more than started when the doorbell rang. Flying in to his mother's arms he kissed her affectionately, but stood aside as he saw Mr. Murdstone. That gentleman would have shaken hands with him but David hung back rudely, while his mother glanced at him in reproach. "Later, in David's room, while she washed him, Peggotty suggested that he come with her to the fishing village, Yarmouth, to visit her brother."

The next day, as the cart moved over the country road, David looked eagerly about in all directions for he was feeling the thrills of a boy on his first journey away from home. "And so the Yarmouth beach rose before them out of the surrounding landscape. The busy fishermen and the proud sailing vessels occupied David's wide-eyed attention. They were met by Peggotty's nephew, Ham, a strong young fellow with an honest boy's face and curly light hair. "You're our house Master Davy," he said. "It was an old converted barge, attractively painted and fitted out. A half hour later, after tea had been served, Mrs. Gummidge sat by the fire, complaining of the smoking chimney while Ham told fortunes with cards Peggotty worked on her sewing and Little Em'ly pointed out the pictures to David."

The door was pushed open and Dan Peggotty, a large hearty man, entered with a druffie bag which he placed on the floor. "Then he brought out a string of beads for Em'ly. "Blue like your eyes, my pretty," he said fondly. "They've come in a big ship from France." "Mr. Peggotty," David asked, "did you give your son the name of Ham because you lived in a sort of ark?" "Why no, sir. 'Twas given him by his father — my brother Joe." "Well —"

Austin. — Endorsement by the Texas Press association at its Austin convention of the $3,000,000 Centennial appropriation bill has strengthened the Centennial project substantially and the house appropriations committee probably will get hearings on the bill started during this week. The editors adopted resolutions especially approving the suggestion of Walter D. Cline, chairman of the Centennial commission's executive committee that a third of the $750,000 Centennial advertising fund be earmarked for expenditure in Texas newspapers. Cline logically argued that since from a third to a half of the Centennial attendance would come from Texas, newspapers that have loyally donated space during the formative months ought to get some revenue from the show. He found the editors responsive also to his suggestion that the advertising fund be spent under direction of a board of three members, one from the press association, one named by Texas Advertising clubs, and one named by the governor, with two advisory members appointed by the Centennial commission.

Living in the governor's mansion has its humorous side, as well as its glamorous aspect, the governor told the newspapermen in a little "off the record" address. One night soon after the inaugural, the Allred family and guests went to a lecture, leaving the governor's father in charge of the mansion and the Allred children. The ranger who guards the mansion had been changed that night and the elder Allred hadn't met the new man assigned to the job. So, after he had retired, when he saw a stranger prowling the hall opposite his room, he decided to investigate. The stranger stepped outside on a porch. Mr. Allred, in pajamas and overcoat, followed and overtook him. He thrust his hand into his overcoat pocket, pointed his finger at the stranger and told him to "stick 'em up" in approved west Texas fashion.

The startled ranger complied and soon identified himself. Later he told the governor about it. "And Governor, I was scared to death," he confessed. "I was afraid your father's gun might go off any minute." "And I haven't told him yet that my dad's gun was only his finger," laughed the governor.

Friends of the race-track betting law sustained three severe blows within 24 hours last week, and gained one slight victory. After a committee hearing that lasted until the wee small hours, a house committee pitched the repeal bill out into the house with an overwhelming favorable report. Next morning the governor lured details of an investigation by Texas rangers of operations of an alleged "dope ring" at certain Texas tracks, reported to have been "charging" horses with shots of narcotics and altering saliva test reports designed to prevent such practices. Later, he announced he would send up a special message advocating repeal of the pari-mutuel betting law. Unofficial canvass of the house membership indicates likely passage of the repeal bill in the house. The track operators and horse owners hope to head off the

Mrs. Micawber, a thin faded woman, hung out the window, in a state of mournful excitement looking at the moving van. "If Mr. Micawber were at home they wouldn't dare. Oh to see Mama's beautiful bed so desecrated," she spied David. "Oh welcome Master Copperfield. This is my family. But you must be impatient to see your room."

Reaching the attic-shaped chamber that was to be David's room Mrs. Micawber displayed it as though it were fit for a king. "No luxury but simple comfort." Suddenly, there was a strange noise from above. The children clung to their mother in alarm. Through the skylight there appeared two stout booted legs. Then a large round face beamed down. Mrs. Micawber screamed, "Mr. Micawber! Children, it is your papa." Instantly she rushed into his outstretched arms.

"Having been driven over roof and chimney," Micawber said in high spirits, "by the machination of our enemies — I — in short, I have arrived." He noticed David and greeted him with booming heartiness, offering their domestic comfort and privacy. David smiled. "Thank you sir." Then Micawber went on to tell of the termination of his connection with the haberdashery. But he continued serenely, he had cast his eyes over the entire world of business and had selected — Beer! Mrs. Micawber was delighted. If there was anything at which her husband was calculated to shine she declared proudly, it was malt and hops.

Suddenly David remembered the letter. He gave it to Mr. Micawber who left the room, singing merrily. Mrs. Micawber was just telling David of the E-NOR-MOUS profits to be made in beer, when she was interrupted by a series of frightful cries emanating from the throat of Mr. Micawber. The children's eyes bulged with horror and David stood transfixed as the blood-curdling screams mounted in intensity. "Clickett rushed in. "Oh, oh. He's cuttin' his throat. Mr. Micawber is cuttin' his throat."

measure in the senate, but admit they have a hard fight. They gained a modicum of comfort from the senate's quick confirmation of Paul Waggoner of Fort Worth a member of the racing commission, after opposition to the appointment had been forecast.

This column last week reported certain current political rumors including the one that Gov. Allred might oppose Senator Morris Sheppard for renomination next year, Congressman Wright Patman — Texas soldier bonus advocate — is now reported almost ready to announce for the same place Lieut. Gov. Walter Woodul of Houston, is said to be ambitious to serve as state attorney general when Atty. Gen. Bill McCraw seeks higher fields for his talents.

McCraw and his aides last week did some fine backstopping for the governor in the latter's efforts to show that the state is amply able to handle the problem of oil control without turning the oil fields over to Mr. Leaks. When two Travis county district judges issued temporary restraining orders, directing the railroad commission not to molest East Texas operators in the movement of oil which the oil owners claimed they had on hand prior to the date of the order requiring commission permits to move it, a flood of oil threatened. Millions of barrels could have been moved under the protection of the "temporary restraining orders" before a hearing could have been had in the district courts. McCraw and his assistants appealed to the court of civil appeals, showed that the "temporary restraining orders" were in effect actual injunctions granted without even giving the state a hearing. The higher court vacated the restraining orders, halted the movement of the oil, and incidentally read some law to the district judges. Able lawyers throughout the state pronounced the attorney general's legal strategy sound and timely.

Art And Taste Feature Film's Gorgeous Sets

No less than thirty-five different, elaborate sets were built for the Grace Moore starring production for Columbia, "One Night of Love," showing at the Lyric Theatre Sunday and Monday. This film was made on an elaborate scale; no expense was spared in any branch of production.

Discussing the sets, Miss Moore describes her favorite one — her room in her Vienna apartment. "In this beautiful white bedroom you will see the art of the interior decorator as it is expressed in the best Vienna mode. A rich, carved ivory bed is set on a three-step platform. A soft, white canopy is artistically draped over the bed. Tall, gracefully carved ivory flower stands are placed on either side of tall, beautifully curtained French windows, which open out on a balcony.

"A soft, white chenille rug extends from the bed to the Greco-decorated chest of drawers, Greco dresser, vanity, bench and night stand. An antique ivory armchair is upholstered in red damask. Other chairs are upholstered in rose damask. Every bit of the furniture is in white ivory, which makes the effect very striking. Other articles of furniture include a serving table, Dresden lamps, candlesticks, chaise longue and a paneled mirror set in a carved frame."

CROSS CUT ROAD TO BE INCLUDED IN 1935 HIGHWAY PROGRAM

County Judge A. E. Nabors, County Commissioners Chas. B. Palmer and H. L. Stapp, State Highway Division Engineer Leo Ehlinger and Chester Harrison, secretary of Brownwood Chamber of Commerce, made up a delegation from Brownwood which appeared before the Texas Highway Commission at Austin Tuesday to discuss matters pertaining to Brown county roads.

Assurance was given them that the project for paving seven and one-third miles of the Cross Cut-Brownwood road will be placed in the 1935 program of federal emergency work.

Approval was given the project by the commission several months ago, but since it is a federal project it must also be approved by the federal roads bureau.

Mr. Harrison conferred with D. E. Colp, chairman of the Texas State Parks Board regarding the next six months program of work of the CCC camp at Lake Brownwood Park. The present period of the camp ends March 31, but it is believed that a six months extension can be obtained.
