Shoot Out and Parade Mark Muledays Celebration

A captive audience was subject to witness a bank robbery and several hold ups, including the old five and dime, Wednesday morning when a gang of robbers, both men and women, combed the streets of Muleshoe.

Wyatt Earp, Sheriff Matt Dillon, and Deputy Festus Hagen soon had the problem under control, following a wild chase and massive gun fight in front of the drug store.

A parade soon followed the gunfight to commemorate the victory.

Winners of the float competition were Muleshoe Medical Center, winning first place, and Raymond McGehee taking home second.

National Scout Jamboree Held August 4-10

Day three for the boys of the South Plains council has brought in reality, the things that this Jamboree has to offer. Over all, a fun sense of relaxation has set in and all Scouts are participating in the events.

If you can get past the 45,000 Scouts and visitors, the 12.5 mile area that Fort A.P. Hill sits on, and the important dignitaries like Chief Scout Executive Jere Ratcliff and U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno, it is much like a summer camp. "I've been pretty impressed with all of this, it's alot to take in, but once you get around all of the big things, it's pretty much like a summer camp at Post," said Eagle Scout Stephen Byrd, referring to summer camps for the South Plains Council in Post, TX.

Since the Scouts have been at the Jamboree, they have participated in scuba diving, repelling, merit badges, bicycling, archery, patch trading, and camp site cooking. There are many exhibits on hand for them to observe also. Military hardware, area stage shows, and conservation projects are only a few.

First class scout Nikk Anderton said about the Pioneering Action Center, "I really liked it because we

Texas Law Will Thrash Out Some Landfill Operations

In less than six months, Texas law will require cities and counties to produce 40 percent less trash a day than they do now.

Today, every Texan--every man, woman and child Texan--produces on the average nearly six pounds of trash a day. Figuring the state's population at 17 million, the six pounds adds up to about 19 million tons of landfill material annually.

The Omnibus Recycling Bill, enacted by the 72nd Legislature, requires municipalities across the state to reduce their solid waste flow by 40 percent by Jan. 1, 1994. Which means that every Texan will have to cut their daily trash output of six pounds to about four pounds.

The Texas legislators' intention was to jump-start recycling efforts at the municipal level. Critics of the bill say it lacks one crucial feature.

"It doesn't have any teeth," said Woody Raine, manager of the Texas Water Commission's community recycling program.

Despite the bill lacking any provision for fines or penalties, Raine said, it would be in the interest of many cities to start recycling efforts as soon as possible. If by the end of 1994, most municipalities haven't made the 40 percent reduction, the recycling bill stipulates forming a task force to make recommendations to the Texas Legislature. The task force would likely recommend putting a mandatory ban on disposal of leaves, grass clippings and other landscape waste in landfills, Raine said.

How are cities and counties to reduce their waste flow by 40 percent? Backyard composting of landscape trimmings is the easiest and most environmental friendly way, said Marty Baker, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Overton.

"Easy. Don't bag it Compost it," Baker said.

Leaves, grass clippings and other landscape trimmings make up about 28 percent of Texas annual landfill deposit, or about five million tons. Nearly all of the five million tons could be turned back into garden soil and mulching with home composting. Its a simple low-cost answer to the Omnibus Recycling Act, Baker said.

"The irony of this situation is that with the exception of woody brush, residents can recycle all their organic materials right in their own back yards through composting, mulching and grass cycling," he said.

Baker said the Extension Service has launched a "Don't Bag It" program that shows residents how to grow good lawns by using the clippings as fertilizer instead of bagging them up for the garbage truck. The popular program, now in its fifth year, has been adopted by hundreds of communities, including Dallas and Fort Worth, in Texas and around the country.

Baker agreed with Raine that when it comes to encouraging local composting and recycling programs, communities will be better off doing it now than later. Other than composting, the only quick way to decrease landfill volume would be to increase tipping fees or taxes or implement other, more-expensive recycling efforts.

The Omnibus Recycling Act is only one of several laws recently coming to bear on Texas landfills.

The Federal resource Conservation Act (RCRA), the same act responsible for superfund cleanups, requires operations closing landfills after October 8 to monitor leakage at the site for 30 years. Cost of monitoring a landfill will depend upon its size and soil conditions. RCRA requires operators to drill and maintain at least three wells on a small landfill. Larger landfills might require 20 or more monitor wells to satisfy the federal regulations.

If a landfill is closed before Oct. 8, then the 30-year monitoring law won't apply. Closing early saves the operator tens of hundreds of thousands of dollars in monitoring costs.

The act has effectively reduced the number Texas landfills from more than 1,100 in 1989 to 430 as of June. TWC officials expect more closings this year. In anticipation of these regulations, operators have closed many smaller landfills, consolidating their collections at regional sites.

Baker said the concern is not about there being enough landfill sites in the future. The question is, will cities and counties be able to afford to operate a landfill. There are plenty of suitable sites available, but operating a landfill is likely to become much more expensive as state and federal regulations come to bear. That expense will be passed on by landfill operators to Texas citizens one way or another.

"Bagging these materials for curbside garbage collection is costly. It requires communities to spend taxes and service fees needlessly. If you don't compost, you'll be fining yourself," Baker said.

MEASUREMENT SERVICE

This office is currently in the process of completing our measuring service requests on spring seeded crops. Once you receive your Notice of Measured Acreage, you will have 5 workdays to review, make any adjustments and certify the acreage. If you do not report timely, even though you had a measuring service request, it will be considered a late file certification with a penalty assessed. Review your notice carefully, if you have to adjust any acreage, please check with this office for the exact acreage to adjust.

FAILED ACRES

Any program crop that has failed due to drought, excessive moisture, hail, or for any other reason beyond the producer's control, must be certified and an ASCS-574 (Disaster Application) filed before the crop is disturbed in order to be eligible for program benefits. Maintenance of ACR, CU/PAY and CRP

This office will be making ACR, CU for Pay, and CRP maintenance spot checks in the near future. CRP, ACR, and CU For Pay acres must be maintained throughout the calendar year for ACR, CU/Pay, and throughout the lifespan of the CRP contract. This means if weeds become a problem, it is the producer's responsibility to shred, plow, or do whatever is necessary to control the problem. NO WARNING LETTER WILL BE SENT TO GIVE THE PRODUCER A TIME LIMIT TO CLEAN UP THE WEEDS. The acreage will be considered out of compliance. This could cost you your program benefits. So please take care of any weed problem as needed to protect your payments earned.

Letter To The Editor

To The Muleshoe Journal:

Yesterday I drove thru Muleshoe enroute to Taos, NM from Lubbock. I stopped at "Connie's Place" for one of the best breakfasts I ever had. I then walked across the street to "Western Drug" to buy post cards of Muleshoe. I was delighted to hear they were free-a rare gift in these times. I then proceeded to "Joe's Boot Shop" to find lovely and reasonably priced items.

Thank you to Muleshoe, Texas and all it's friendly people, from a lady traveling alone.

Maria's Baby Gets A Chance At Life

Maria's medical condition threatens the life of her unborn baby, but the high-technology diagnostic equipment and facilities needed to monitor her condition are not available in the area where she lives.

Will Maria's baby be a victim of rural America's lack of health care facilities that provide for specialized, as well as primary care needs? Will the baby become a victim because the parents can't afford to make a one-way, eight-hour drive once a week to reach such facilities? Maria's baby will likely survive, because Maria has found The Regional Perinatal Residence, a home-away-from-home for high-risk pregnant women at The University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston (UTMB).

Sister Angela Murdaugh, a certified nurse midwife at Holy Family Birth Center in Weslaco, Tx, referred Maria to UTMB. With the opening of The Residence in December 1992, now patients like Maria have a place to stay for a night, a week, a month or longer, if needed. "On a recent tour of The Residence in Galveston, I was impressed because it meets the needs of the patients and the family. It also serves a dual role by meeting the medical needs of patients and by allowing medical students to observe the treatment of high-risk pregnant patients," said Sister Murdaugh.

After having two healthy children, Maria is expecting her third baby. This time, the life of her unborn baby depends on Maria receiving the proper medical treatment based on the results of a test performed in a specialized laboratory that is not available where Maria lives.

"Maria has isoimmunization, which means she has formed antibodies to a protein on the baby's red blood cells, and these antibodies could destroy the baby's cells and produce anemia. In severe cases, the baby could require premature delivery or even die in the womb," said Edward R. Yeomans, M.D., Chief of

Maternal-Fetal Medicine at UTMB and one of Maria's doctors. "The outlook is good for Maria because she is staying in Galveston where we can monitor her and make sure she receives proper care."

After a three-week stay at The Residence, Maria can go home for a two-week visit, and then return to Galveston to wait about six weeks for the baby's arrival. While Maria waits in Galveston, her children, 9-year-old Jose and 11-year-old Alberta, and her husband, Roberto, are awaiting the new family addition at their home in the valley.

"I am not sad to leave my children and husband because I know they are secure, and we are all excited about the new baby. I wanted a girl, but they told me it was a boy. Mostly, I just want a healthy baby," said Maria.

The Residence, Maria's temporary home, is a two-story, apartment-like dwelling operated by the UTMB Department of Obstetrics & Gynecology and designed to accommodate 20 high-risk pregnant women, who can stay as long as medically necessary or until they deliver their babies at UTMB. Eligible patients pay no fee to stay at The Residence. Services include room and board, help with arranging transportation to and from home, daily visits by nurses and transportation between The Residence and the UTMB Obstetrics & Gynecology clinic. The rooms include a private bathroom and shower, a refrigerator, an oven, a television and a telephone, as well as childbirth and family planning classes.

Each woman is allowed to stay with one person, age 18 or older, and there are areas where family members can come and visit for the day. Senior case aides live on-site and provide both English and Spanish translations at the facility at all times, in addition to transporting the facility's temporary residents to appointments, the grocery store, the mall and sightseeing expeditions around Galveston.

For information about The Residence, call UTMB at (409) 772-0979.

Flood Control

Floods along the Mississippi demonstrate again only a massive, long-term flood control program can protect millions who live by our greatest river.

That requires a cooperative effort by local, state and federal

The Farmer-Stockman Show Description Of Conservation Demonstrations

The field demonstrations will be interesting and an enlightening experience for everyone attending the 1993 Texas Farmer-Stockman Show, the first working farm show in Texas history, on October 12, 13, and 14, at the City of Lubbock farm, just east of Loop 289 on Farm Road 835 (East 50th Street).

A 40-acre Field Demonstration Area has been dedicated to conservation tillage demonstrations and the latest techniques in maximizing crop yields and minimizing water usage, wind erosion and water erosion. Cotton separated by wind strips has been planted on the Field Demonstration Area, and will be harvested during the show.

A state-of-the-art Low Energy Precision Application pivot irrigation system using the Potential Evapo-Transpiration Network for applications has been installed on the Field Demonstration Area. The LEPA system utilizes high frequency-low volume irrigation that maximizes use of water. Several other studies will be performed on site that will employ other methods of irrigation.

The cotton in the Field Demonstration Area is knee high, covered in squares and starting to bloom. During the show, the plot will be harvested, re-bedded using the latest conservation tillage techniques, and planted to wheat as a cover crop. All show spectators will be invited to watch the conservation tillage demonstrations.

Other highlights in the Field Demonstration Area will be a demonstration of tillage tool points and their effect on a soil profile, a cotton transplant demonstration, a cottonseed demonstration, a furrow diking exhibit, a plant growth regulation exhibit, a weed demonstration and an erosion simulation.

The Field Demonstration Area plot work has been coordinated by Texas A&M University, Texas Tech University, the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service. The entire show is sponsored by Texas Farmer-Stockman, a Farm Progress publication.

In another area of the Farmer-Stockman Show site, the Soil Conservation Service and the Texas Forest Service have jointly installed a 3-row field windbreak using the latest techniques, including water harvesting and planting with a water gun planter. The Texas Forest Service and Soil Conservation Service also planted a Wildlife Plant Species Demonstration Area. Using the water harvesting technique, this area was planted with a variety of species that have wildlife food and cover benefits.

Water harvesting involves a synthetic fabric, embedded on a tree row, that controls weeds, reduces evaporation and decreases the need for supplemental water. The water gun planter uses water pressure to make a planting hole, and waters the seedling at the time of planting.

The SCS has also planted 32 plots of grass species released by SCS Plant Material Centers. Each variety of grass is adapted to the High Plains of the United States. The plots will be clipped and analyzed by the Range and Wildlife Department of Texas Tech University for nutrient contents.

A small playa designated for wildlife is being managed for the Wetland Demonstration. The area has been planted with many varieties of plants that will provide food and cover for migratory waterfowl, pheasant and quail.

Another area of the Farmer-Stockman Show site will be the Info-Plaza, a sort of 'town square of information' comprised of 8 tents sponsored by various agriculture and public agencies including the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Each tent will have a different theme, such as the Agriculture Competitiveness Tent, which houses displays on a variety of subjects such as soil testing, grape and wine production, computer software in ag marketing and many other diverse topics. The Environment and Water Quality Tent, which will display information regarding air and water quality, from feedlots to pesticide contamination, and several other tents covering a wide variety of subjects, from health and well-being to conservation in lawn watering, will also be open to all show spectators.

During the three day event, show hours will be from 8:00 a.m. until 5 p.m. each day. A camp ground area will be available for self-contained units. Show admission will be $3 a day for adults or $5 for a three day pass, and those under 18 will be admitted free. A courtesy shuttle will be provided from the Lubbock International Airport.

A floral arrangement of greenery and purple floral napkins accented the table.

International Mail Floods Little Town In Minnesota

Each week hundreds of letters arrive in Waseca Minnesota from all over the world! Men and women are writing Robert Mishek, founder of International Pen Pals, and asking him to help them find a Pen Pal here in the USA!

Letters arrive from every continent. They arrive from men and women between 20 and 90 years of age, who are anxious to write to someone here in the USA.

In response to these requests, International Pen Pals has just completed two unique directories with hundreds of these names. Each name includes the age, sex and complete mailing address! Every address is current since the directory has been compiled from mail received in the past few weeks! The directories have been compiled by age groups. Directory #1 includes names and addresses of men and women between the ages of 20 and 54 years of age. Directory #2 includes names and addresses for men and women ages 55 to 90 years of age.

Both International Directories are available today...to any adult here in the USA who would like to be a Pen Pal with someone in another country. Owners of the International Pen Pal Directory are free to write to as many Pen Pals as they wish and from any of the countries included in the directory!

Now, Robert Mishek is looking for adults here in the USA who will write letters to answer the mail that continues to flood his Waseca mail box. It's easy to do by using the new directories he has compiled.

A Taste for Blood

In his Letter to the Galatians, the Apostle Paul reminds us of the tremendous freedom Christians have through Christ -- true freedom, freedom to love the Lord and his other children unreservedly without fear. Indeed, he writes that "the entire law is summed up in a single command: 'Love your neighbor as yourself'" (Galatians 5:14).

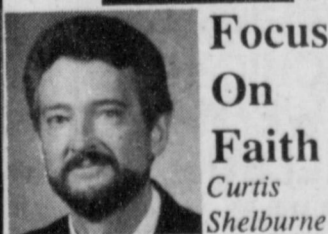

another layer of blood, and another, until the blade is completely concealed by frozen blood.

"Next, the hunter fixes his knife in the ground with the blade up. When a wolf follows his sensitive nose to the source of the scent and discovers the bait, he licks it, tasting the fresh frozen blood. He begins to lick faster, more and more vigorously, lapping the blade until the keen edge is bare.

"Feverishly now, harder and harder the wolf licks the blade in the arctic night. So great becomes his craving for blood that the wolf does not notice the razor-sharp sting of the naked blade on his own tongue, nor does he recognize the instant at which his insatiable thirst is being satisfied by his own warm blood. His carnivorous appetite just craves more--until the dawn finds him dead in the snow!"

What a graphic warning to those of us who are sometimes tempted to take a bite out of a brother down the pew or across the street! If we do, the taste we acquire will ultimately be a taste for our own blood.

Curtis Shelburne is the minister of the 16th & D Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

But then Paul warns us very sternly of the consequences of a refusal to love: "If you keep on biting and devouring one another," he says, "watch out or you will be destroyed by each other." And if we destroy the body of which we are a part, what do we do to ourselves?

A recent issue of Leadership journal recounts Paul Harvey's rather chilling tale of how an Eskimo kills a wolf. "First," he says, "the Eskimo coats his knife blade with animal blood and allows it to freeze. Then he adds

Texas A&M Scientists Show And Review Onion Varieties

Onion growers, master gardeners, seed company representatives,

Texas A&M and Texas Tech University onion research specialists and faculty members will be able to evaluate both transplant and direct-seeded long-day onions at 10 a.m. August 17 at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center on FM 1294, east of Interstate 27 at the Shallowater exit.

Dr. Roland Roberts, professor and extension vegetable specialist; Dr. David Bender, associate professor with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station; and Stanley Young, Lubbock County extension agent, will show maturing long-day varieties and review cured and dried samples of short and intermediate-day varieties saved from earlier harvests.

The newest onion introductions of the major onion breeders like Aristogenes, Crookham, and Petoseed will be compared to established long-day varieties such as Sweet Perfection, Ole, Bravo, and Dai Maru.

"Our onion variety plots are growing well," Roberts said. "The long-day varieties are maturing more rapidly than usual with these warm days we have had. Yields and quality of new hybrids are impressive."

Addressing A Credit Crisis

Once you have recognized that you have a financial crisis, there are seven steps which will help you begin the process of addressing the problem.

1. Take Your Financial Picture

If you're in a credit crisis, you need to know the financial facts about your situation. Prepare a financial statement for yourself, showing all your income, all your expenses and all your assets. Also list all your outstanding debts. Be complete, and be accurate. You can't plan to change things if you don't know the facts about your financial life.

Nominees In Teacher Of The Year Program Reach All-Time High

The number of classroom teachers recognized by the Texas State Teacher of the Year program has reached 242, an all-time high for the state program and a 77 percent increase compared to last year, when 137 teachers were nominated by their school districts. The number of school districts participating rose as well, from 137 in 1992 to 170 this year, a 24 percent increase.

Since 1969, the Texas State Teacher of the Year program has recognized excellence in the teaching profession across the Lone Star State. One of the most inclusive programs in the country, the Texas state program recognizes educators statewide and presents them with cash awards at an annual awards ceremony every November in Austin.

Major corporate support for the state program is provided by Southwestern Bell Telephone, with additional support from Encyclopaedia Britannica and statewide educational associations. The state program is affiliated with the National Teacher of the Year Program in Washington, D.C., the oldest and most prestigious recognition program in education. Every spring, the President of the United States introduces the National Teacher of the Year at a Rose Garden ceremony.

The 242 Texas educators were chosen as their school districts' Teachers of the Year during the 1992-93 school year. These teachers advance to regional competitions in one of the state's 20 education service regions. Regional selections will be completed by the first week of September, and from the regional semifinalists, six state finalists will be selected. The finalists will come to Austin in October for interviews before a panel of judges, who will select a State Elementary Teacher of the Year and a State Secondary Teacher of the Year for 1994. The panel also will select Texas' nominee for recognition in the National Teacher of the Year program.

Area schools that had teachers nominated from their districts included Tulia ISD, Lubbock ISD, and Muleshoe ISD.

TxDOT Publishes 1993 Specifications Book

TxDOT employees and contractors looking for construction specifications will no longer find the "yellow book" on the shelf.

The department recently replaced the bible of industry specifications with the 1993 Standard Specifications for Construction of Highways, Streets and Bridges, which now sports a blue cover, replacing the yellow cover from the 1982 edition. The specifications book is used by state, county and city governments as well as suppliers, contractors and other construction-related businesses.

The 1993 version is the sixth edition of the specifications book, which the department has been updating about every 10 years since 1938. TxDOT's Division of Highway Design oversaw the five-year project.

While the new edition includes information updates as well as additions and deletions, the

Rotary Hears Report From Texas Cattle Feeders Association

President David Tipps opened the regular Tuesday noon meeting of the Muleshoe Rotary Club. Many guests were welcomed, with one visiting Rotarian, Wayne Barnett from Dallas.

J.D. Cage, in charge of the program for the day, introduced Dr. Richard McDonald, executive vice-president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association. McDonald was born in San Benito, TX; attended A&M University, receiving his degree in animal science, and received his Doctor degree in animal breeding from Luis St. University.

He began his presentation by presenting the fact that 6.2 million head of cattle, or 25% of all cattle in the U.S. are raised in Texas. In simple terms, if you lined them all up from head to tail, they would stretch from New York to San Francisco, back and forth three times. To narrow it down 86% of all Texas cattle are raised in a 100 mile radius around Amarillo. Within that area, 82 feedyards feed 34% of all cattle in the U.S.

A lot has been heard about the cattle being raised in California and Arizona, but facts show that these five counties produce more cattle than California and Arizona combined:

- Deaf Smith-747,260
- Castro-503,098
- Parmer-407,252
- Hansford-402,315
- Moore-313,500

The reason for the vast production of cattle in this area are

- ample feed grain
- abundant feeder cattle
- favorable year-round weather
- experienced management
- strong market
- support industries
- attractive business climate
- ample financing

The average size feedyard feeds approximately 20,000 head, and on an average, the cattle are turned approximately 2.2 times a year. Fourteen million pounds of beef are produced in the panhandle--that's enough to feed 234,000 people.

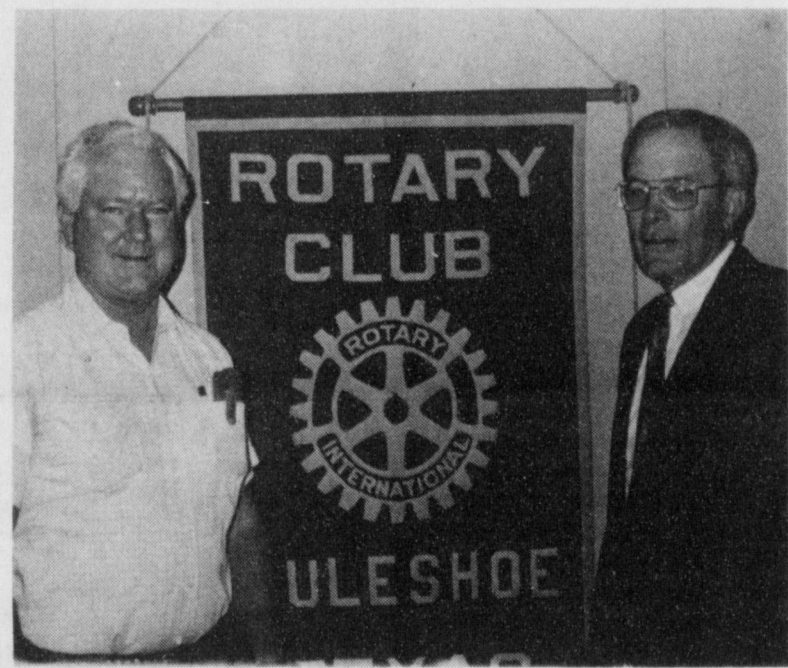

Compared to other food items, beef tops the charts in retail sales.

- Meat-17.5%
 - Produce-9.9%
 - Dairy-8%
 - Frozen Foods-6%
- Restaurant sales show:
McDonald's-12 billion
Burger King-5 billion
Pizza Hut-3.3 billion
-the top three in sales, sell more beef than any other restaurants in America. They produce 1/3 of all beef sales.

Beef is exported to Japan (48%), Canada (19%), Mexico (15%), South Korea (12%), and others (6%).

Consumption by Americans shows beef to be the priority at Beef-bone-in 67.2, boneless-63.5
Chicken-bone-in 65.4, boneless-45.2,
Turkey-bone-in 18.5, boneless-14.6
Pork-bone-in 53.7, boneless 50.4
Fish-bone-in 16.5, boneless 16.5

Texas is beef country. Support your local beef producers.

ROTARY HEARS PROGRAM FROM TEXAS CATTLE FEEDERS ASSOCIATION-J.D. Cage, Rotarian introduced Dr. Richard McDonald, executive vice-president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association. He presented facts about the feeders and producers of Texas.

Frank Holzmann, associate executive director, said the 1993 book "is not a Band-Aid job." "We basically tore it up and started from scratch," he said.

Due to the extensive amount of rewriting required, the project took five years. TxDOT employees from divisions and districts across the state contributed to the project. Representatives from several transportation-related associations provided input as well.

The first edition of the specifications book was published in 1938. The department continues to revise it to meet the evolving needs of the construction and transportation industries.

The first part of the 1,187 page book, General Provisions, covers basics such as definitions of terms, instructions to bidders, scope of work, and measurement and payment. Part two, Construction Details, delves into the specifics of highway, street and bridge construction. The six subdivisions in this part cover earthwork, subbase and base courses, surface courses or pavement, structures, incidental construction, and lighting and signing. Each subdivision is further divided into related items.

To order a 1993 specifications book, call 512/465-7326, or write the Texas Department of Transportation, attention Division of Equipment and Procurement, 125 E. 11th Street, Austin, Texas 78701. The book costs $4.89, or $8.14 with tax and postage.

Report From Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry praised the formation of a coalition of farm organizations and agricultural businesses called AG for NAFTA. The coalition will promote NAFTA's passage through Congress and conduct a public information campaign on the free trade act.

"Contrary to what some are saying, we're not going to hear a great sucking sound of jobs leaving America with the passage of this free trade accord," Perry said. "However, if we turn our back on Mexico now, we are going to hear a loud slam of a door shutting off opportunities for increased trade and job creation for Americans and particularly for Texans.

"Rejecting NAFTA will send Mexico—the nation's third largest overall trading partner and major agricultural customer—into the arms of our trade competitors, Europe, Japan and other Pacific Rim countries. Clearly, we can't afford to let this happen because exports are necessary to help our economy grow. In fact, U.S. exports have created the majority of U.S. jobs in the past few years," the commissioner said.

Mexico consistently ranks as Texas' number one trading partner. During the last five years, exports of crops, livestock and processed food from Texas into Mexico has almost tripled.

More than 100 agricultural groups including the Texas Department of Agriculture have joined AG for NAFTA.

Travelling With The Texas Angler

by Keith Warren

I've just returned from a fantastic offshore trip out of South Padre Island. The summer winds were virtually nonexistent and the gulf was as calm as a lake. The dark clear blue water was close to shore, about a 1/2 mile from the beach.

My plan was to go for red snapper aboard a party boat named the Thunderbird. Captained by Matt Murphy, this relatively small boat would comfortably fish 40 people. Aboard the boat were only 17 paying customers, so there was plenty of room for everyone.

The Thunderbird leaves out of the Sea Ranch area on the Island every morning at 7:00 a.m. Provided for each fisherman on the trip is an electric reel on a snapper rod with all the bait you'll need. The cost of a full day trip is $ 60.00 per person.

After a 90 minute trip offshore, we were setting up on an area where Captain Murphy had located some snapper a couple of weeks earlier. We were only about 4 miles offshore in 60 feet of water.

The anchor was dropped to keep the boat from moving and the crew began to throw cut bonito in the water to chum up the fish. Within minutes, hundreds of trigger fish were in a frenzy feeding on the chum. Included with the triggers were red snapper.

Captain Murphy said that the chum had two purposes. First, it would get the fish in a feeding frenzy, and second, the aggressive trigger fish would feed on larger pieces. This would keep them away from baited hooks long enough for the snapper to bite.

While everyone on the boat began using cut squid and bonito for bait, I tied on Strike King's new Rattlin bootlegger Jig and pigtail trailer. Electric reels were whining and the fish were biting, but few snapper were being boated.

My plan was to try out this new bass jig. Spooled on my reel was the new Stren Kevlar braided line. Everyone on board was getting bites, but they were missing lots of fish. This was primarily due to line stretch and trigger fish stealing the bait.

Once my lure had dropped about 10 feet, a hungry snapper immediately struck. With a quick hook set, the fight was on. It weighed an impressive 11 pounds. The next cast boated a 15 pounder, then a 10 pounder. By now everyone aboard had noticed why this combination was so successful.

While others were rebaiting, I was catching fish (with relatively clean hands).

Everyone on board limited out, but it only took me 7 drops to catch a limit of 7 red snapper that weighed 72 pounds.

"For Me to Live is Christ"

"And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in draught, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not."

Isaiah 58:11.

"For me to live is Christ" is to be living for a purpose—to serve God by drawing out my soul to the poor, lonely, hungry, and lost. "For me to live is Christ," is to lead men everywhere to Jesus Christ who is the fountain of the water of life. And He has promised that when I am in His service He will guide me, and satisfy me, and I shall be like the flowers in this picture, like a watered garden, sustained by Him.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
