Mules Claim Victory In Season Opener

If you weren't at the football game Friday night, you missed a good game with plenty of action and excitement as the Muleshoe Mules defeated the Morton Indians 35 to 14, in the opening game of the season, in Benny Douglas Stadium.

Taking the opening kick off the Indians put the ball into play on their own 33 yard line

In the first play of the game, the Indians picked up good yardage only to have it called back due to a penalty, it brought up a second and 15. Being unable to move the ball, the Indians were forced to punt the ball away.

The Mules put the ball into play on their own 47 yard line. After picking up a first down and being penalized for holding, the Mules were forced to punt to the Indians.

Three plays later the Indians were forced to punt back to the Mules.

With 6:00 left in the quarter Jesus Flores ran into the endzone on a 55 yard pass from Ruben Gonzales. The point after kick was good and the Mules led 7-0 over the Indians.

On their next possession of the ball, the Indians were once again unable to move the ball and were forced to punt to the Mules.

With 4:22 left in the quarter, the Mules turned the ball over to Morton on downs.

The tough Mule defense continued to hold the Indians and they were forced to punt the ball away again.

The Mules took over on their own 28 yard line, and picked up two first downs.

At the end of the first quarter the Mules led 7-0 over the Indians. Opening the second quarter, the Indians punted the ball back to the Mules after three plays.

The Mules put the ball into play on their own 24 yard line, and picked up four first downs before making it into the endzone with 6:05 left in the quarter. The point after kick was no good and the Mules led 13-0 over the Indians.

Quarter back Ruben Gonzales was injured on the play and his brother, Alfredo Gonzales, came in to the game to replace him as quarterback.

The Indians picked up their first First Down with 5:48 left in the half. Two plays later Brian Field intercepted an Indian pass.

In the next few plays, the Mules received several penalties before turning the ball over to Morton with 2:02 left in the half.

Two first downs later, with :22 left in the half, Morton was forced to punt the ball back to the Mules.

At halftime the Mules led on the scoreboard 13-0.

Receiving the ball in the second half, the Mules hit pay dirt again when Daniel Garbarino raced into the endzone on a 65 yard pass. The point after kick was no good and the Mules led 19-0.

On their next possession of the ball, the Indians picked up another first down, before punting the ball back to the Mules.

The Mules picked up two first downs before Gonzales raced 30 yards into the endzone for another Muleshoe Touchdown. After a successful two point conversion, the Mules led on the scoreboard 27-0.

With 4:23 left in the third quarter, the Indians put the ball into play on their own 33 yard line. The Indians picked up another first down before being forced to punt the ball away.

High Cotton Yield Per Acre Expected

"The irrigated crops looks good," said Curtis Preston, Bailey County Extension Agent. When asked about the cotton yield, Preston responded, "This year's cotton crop is expected to have one of the highest yields per acre, we have had in several years.

"Due to the dry season we have had this season, our cotton acreage is down this year. Fifty-one thousand of our 90,000 acres of cotton have been zeroed out. This leaves Bailey County with 30,000 to 40,000 acres of cotton. There is not a lot of cotton down south where it is dryland.

"The crops in the West Camp area are tremendous, what that hasn't been hailed on.

Alternative Crop Insurance For Wheat Farmers

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC) has developed an alternative crop insurance for wheat producers. The new product is called a Group Risk Plan (GRP). GRP is based on the premise that when an entire County's wheat yield is low, most farmers in the county will also have low yields.

GRP pays only when the yield of the entire county drops below the expected county yield set by the FCIC. Payment is based on (1) the percentage of decline below the expected county yield, (2) the yield coverage level selected, (3) and the amount of protection purchased.

With this new crop insurance being based on changes in county yields, less paperwork and administration costs are expected.

GRP is being offered as a pilot test to wheat farmers in selected markets across the United States. Bailey County is one of thirty three counties in Texas selected for this pilot test. Your county extension office has additional details on GRP. GRP is being sold by the same insurance agents who market

"Farmers have begun cutting silage and are expected to begin cutting early feed corn within the next two weeks," Preston continued.

In Parmer County, Gary Patterson reported that for the most part the crops there were looking pretty good. "If we don't get some moisture the yields won't be quite as good as they should be," Patterson said.

He also stated that Parmer County has about 60,000 acres of cotton and approximately 2,000 to 3,000 acres were zeroed out. In Parmer County they are also cutting silage and preparing to cut the field corn.

The classes being considered are second semester Conversational Spanish and/or some kind of a Science class.

Worship Is A Time For Joy

It was a great day for Israel. The ark of the covenant had come home! Israel's most prized possession, the focal point of the tabernacle, the ark was made of acacia wood overlaid with pure gold. The mercy seat formed its top with two golden winged cherubim (angelic beings) stretched above it.

Focus On Faith
Curtis Shelburne

The worth of the ark, though, lay not in its beauty but in its holiness. It symbolized materially the spiritual relationship between God and his people as he promised to hear their cries and mercifully forgive their sins.

Having been captured by Israel's enemies in a foolhardy battle, the ark was finally returning home to Israel. King David himself had come to lead it on the final leg of its journey home. Scripture records that at that time "David...danced before the Lord with all his might" (2 Samuel 6:14).

Look at the sheer joy of the great king! His act of joy becomes an act of worship and praise to his God affirming that God is the God of joy and salvation, the God who is worthy of praise. So, as God-given joy overflowed the banks of

Agriculture Organizations Involved In Farm Show

Several agricultural organizations will come together in a unique showplace at the Farmer-Stockman Show, the first working farm show in Texas history. It will be staged near Lubbock October 12, 13, and 14 on the City of Lubbock farm, just east of Loop 289 on Farm Road 835 (East 50th Street).

In the southeast corner of the show grounds will be the Info-Plaza, a group of tents arranged by topic or concept to give a "hands-on" look at farm technological advancement from turn-of-the-century cotton farming to cutting-edge theory in agri-business today.

Each tent will be aimed at a broad topic or concept, such as Conservation of Natural Resources, Environment and Water Quality, Water Conservation, Health/Well Being/Life Quality, Agricultural Competitiveness, Innovations/Occupations/Organizations/Education, and Efficient Lean Animals Support Modern Lifestyles. The Hub area will be a focus spot for speakers and special programs.

The Info-Plaza will be landscaped and feature a solar powered geyser and waterfall, garden trees, plants and places to relax. It will be created by several organizations, including Texas Agriculture Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service, West Texas A&M, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board, High Plains Underground Water Conservation District, Texas Department of Agriculture, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Texas Tech University and Texas Forest Service.

The Department of Agriculture will also have a tent on the show grounds that will be of interest to producers with information ranging from seed quality and certification displays to worker protection standards. Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Rick Perry is scheduled to speak.

The Soil Conservation Service will have displays on subjects from wind breaks to environmental concerns. Texas Agricultural Experiment Station will feature information on topics from wellhead protection to displays on hazardous waste-source reduction. Texas Tech University will join with Texas A&M University to provide information on each of their academic agricultural programs.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department professionals from the Panhandle and South Plains region will have a display and be on hand to discuss conservation, protection, restoration, and enhancement of fish and wildlife resources. Information on wildlife programs, fisheries, law enforcement, resource protection and public lands will be available. The Texas Forest Service will feature information on rural fire protection and wind breaks.

Plains Cotton Growers will join the Experiment Station in cotton plots that will show a number of cotton varieties and the progression of the crop over the last century. West Texas A&M will have an alternative energy exhibit and the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board will have one on soil and water quality.

Other organizations will have displays in the Health/Well Being/Life Quality Tent, with information from figuring your finances to minding the P's and Q's of child safety.

The Info-Plaza is only one part of the Farmer-Stockman Show. Other things to see during the three days will range from demonstrations on conservation tillage and ag machinery at work in the field to erosion simulations and waterfowl environment conservation.

According to Farris Hightower, show manager, the crops in the field demonstration area are progressing well. "The rain in this area has been timely. The cotton is in full bloom and setting bolls, and the corn and grain sorghum are maturing well," he said.

During the three-day event, show hours will be from 7:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. A camp ground area will be available for self-contained units. Show admission will be $3 a day for adults or $5 for a three-day pass. Those under 18 will be admitted free. A courtesy shuttle will be provided from the Lubbock International Airport.

Floyd A. and Mattie B. Grimsley of 310 W. 9th St., Muleshoe, TX, celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary on Saturday, September 4, 1993.

The couple met in Rochester, where Floyd first remembers seeing Mattie going into a store with her dad. On their first date in 1925, on a Sunday afternoon, they went for a ride in the country and took pictures. They were married September 4, 1928 at the Methodist Parsonage in Rochester, TX. Floyd was a builder as a young man, and later went into farming. He farmed approximately 21 years, including about 10 years in Bailey County. Mattie was a homemaker, and had the Grimsley Dahlia Gardens. She raised and sold dahlia bulbs for years, and also worked at St. Clair's for a few years. The Grimsleys are active members of the First Baptist Church, where Floyd is a Deacon. They both taught Sunday School classes for many years. They have two sons and one daughter, Joe R. Now, Leukemia

The federal center of disease control in Atlanta has announced smoking can cause leukemia, sometimes fatal.

The agency went so far as to state smoking is now thought to be the leading cause of leukemia, a form of cancer.

As more and more evidence piles up of the many fatal results caused by tobacco addiction, it's increasingly hard to understand those who continue to smoke.

Glib nonsense that one will die one way or the other, etc. is rationalized ignorance--a refusal to face facts. Anyone can kick tobacco addiction with self control and self discipline, if enough determination is exerted.

Lubbock Alzheimer's Family Care Center Presents Seminar

Memory disorders in the elderly and how to deal with them will be the focal point of a three-hour community seminar in Littlefield September 16.

Sponsored by the South Plains Association of Governments and staged by the Lubbock Alzheimer's Family Care Center, the free seminar will be from 8-11 a.m. at the Lamb County Electric Co-op, 2415 South Phelps Avenue in Littlefield.

Although there is no charge for attending the seminar, organizers ask that community leaders and laypersons wishing to attend make reservations by calling 806-792-4819.

The seminar will answer a range of questions about memory disorders ranging from how to help the victims improve their lives to coping with the personal, family and community stresses associated with delivering the help.

Sharon B. Cannon, Ed. D., and Jim Palan, M. Div., both members of the Board of Directors of the non-profit Lubbock Alzheimer's Family Care Center, will lead the seminar.

Cannon received her Master of Science in nursing and doctorate in education degrees from South Illinois University-Edwardsville and has taught communication and stress management to professionals and the general public in hospitals, nursing homes and schools of nursing in Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, West Virginia, Alabama and Texas. She is a Board Member of Garnet and Associates and has developed and initiated employee, volunteer and client programs for the Lubbock Care Center.

Palan, who received his Master of Theology degree from Luther Theological Seminary in St. Paul, Minnesota, has taught communication skills at North Dakota State University, Texas Tech University and Luther Theological Seminary. Currently, he has a private practice specializing in marriage and family therapy.

In addition to the seminar in Littlefield, sessions are scheduled during September in Plainview, Brownfield, Levelland, and Lubbock.

Yes, There Certainly Is Life After A Heart Attack

By Dr. Robert Ketrick

Cardiac rehabilitation means training someone who has had a heart attack to lead a normal life. It is a very positive procedure and involves not only those responsible for the training but also the patient.

It is definitely a two-way street. The restoration concerns mental and physical strength. The patient may have to be retrained for another job. For example, the man who is a heavy machine operator must be retrained. Easier said than done perhaps, but that should be the aim.

Because of refinements in the diagnosis of coronary heart disease, doctors are now diagnosing minor degrees of heart attacks that would have been missed years ago.

Increasing numbers of diagnosed coronaries are slight, although I would not want to gloss over the seriousness of coronary heart disease in general.

Thirty years ago, a person with a recognized coronary was put to bed and kept there for four to six weeks, hardly allowed to move hand or foot. Now the patient is allowed out of bed a few days after the attack, provided that pulse, blood pressure, EKG readings and other signs are not grossly abnormal.

Movement around the bed and then through the halls is monitored, and any deterioration dictates a return to total bedrest for a few more days.

Within a few days, he may be doing knee bends at the foot of the bed under the watchful eye of the physical therapist, and encouraged to think the attack has already been overcome.

Of course, progress is relevant to the severity of the attack. In over-simplified terms, pain, shock and sometimes collapse depend on the degree of blockage of the affected coronary artery, as well as the degree of interference with the heart muscle and its effectiveness in pumping blood around the body.

A massive blockage of an important coronary artery is a sledgehammer blow which a patient may not survive. The involvement of a less important artery, with a relatively smaller clot, may also cause the patient chest pain and discomfort for a few hours or even days.

Patients who have had a minor attack respond well to early rehabilitation. They go home with instructions to gradually increase their movement about the house and to take walks outside.

Some hospitals have reported excellent results by bringing patients back weekly to rehabilitation classes in a hospital gym, where they are encouraged by physical therapists and cheered up by talking to other patients in a similar situation.

Hopefully, the patient may resume work in six to eight weeks, after which time it is safe to drive a car.

Back-To-School Prevention Against Skin Infection

One item parents can add to their children's back-to-school list is prevention against a common skin infection.

"Parents should be aware of impetigo, a contagious bacterial infection," said Dr. Andrea Dominey, an assistant professor of dermatology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "Although the problem is not serious, if left untreated, it can go deeper into the skin and cause complication."

Impetigo is spread easily via skin-to-skin contact, especially in summer and early fall.

"Insect bites at this time predispose people to the infection allowing bacteria an opening in which to multiply," Dominey said. "Children under age 6 are especially susceptible since they get more insect bites."

Warmer weather also means that people wear less clothing. Exposed skin increases the chances for contracting impetigo.

Minor scrapes and cuts to the skin while playing can also contribute to the spread of the infection. For this reason, small epidemics can occur in schools at the start of the year.

Impetigo accounts for about 10 percent of the skin problems seen by pediatricians. It is caused by one of two bacteria--Group A Streptococcus, a cause of strep throat, or Staphylococcus, a culprit in other skin infections.

A simple culture can determine whether the infection is caused by Group A Streptococcus or Staphylococcus.

Dominey said the symptoms for impetigo vary depending on which bacteria is responsible.

"Group A Streptococcus causes small red spots with honey-colored crusting, whereas Staphylococcus-caused impetigo results in small to large blisters on the legs, face, and trunk," Dominey said. Impetigo also may itch, burn or sting.

"If it is limited to one or two areas, a topical antibiotic is applied to the infected area two or three times a day for a week or two," she said. "For more extreme cases, oral antibiotics are given."

Dominey recommends that people with recurring episodes of impetigo shower with an antibacterial soap, and wear a clean pair of pajamas each night until the infection clears up.

Pillowcases, towels, and wash clothes should not be shared and should be cleaned after each use to prevent spreading. Children should be prevented from touching or scratching the affected skin and should be kept out of school until 24 hours of treatment has elapsed.

She advises parents to take their child to a pediatrician if impetigo is suspected. "Awareness is the first step to making a 'good grade' in the prevention of this infection," Dominey said.

saturated fats in butter in raising total blood cholesterol levels and, in some cases, lowering blood levels of HDL, or "the good cholesterol."

What Are Trans-fatty Acids?

According to Kelli Cochran, R.D., dietician at Methodist Hospital, trans-fatty acids are the result of "hydrogenation," which is the process of adding hydrogen molecules to a liquid fat to make it semi-solid and spreadable.

Hydrogenation is used in packaged cookies, crackers and snacks to help make them crispier. Hydrogenation is also used to prevent a bad smell and taste that some cooking oils give off.

Tips To Cut Down On Fat

"Even though we receive updated information each day, the one message that has remained constant is that you should restrict fat in your diet," Cochran said.

Here are some helpful hints:

- Whether you use butter or margarine, use as little as possible.
- Choose a soft tub margarine instead of a stick margarine.
- Try using olive oil instead of butter or margarine as a spread for butter.
- Look for low-fat or no-fat cookies and crackers.
- Watch for the words "hydrogenated" and "partially hydrogenated" on food labels.

AARP's Tax-Aide Program Seeks New Volunteers

This year, more than 1.5 million Americans-including nearly 40,000 Texans-received free tax-filing assistance from some 30,000 trained volunteers in the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) Tax-Aide Program.

Having just completing its 25th year of service, this successful program is seeking more volunteers to serve as Tax-Aide counselors, and coordinators during the 1994 tax-filing season.

Volunteers will receive free training from the Internal Revenue Service. They then will be asked to serve just four hours per week from February 1 through April 15, 1994. All program related expenses will be reimbursed.

Tax-Aide volunteers come from an amazing variety of backgrounds. They include retired teachers, bookkeepers, homemakers, bank managers, CPA's, business owners, hospital dieticians, retired generals, plant managers, salespersons, and even IRS employees.

But all of them share certain qualities that make them successful Tax-Aide volunteers: They like to work with numbers, they are dependable and accurate, they know how important it is to protect the confidentiality of taxpayer information, and--most important of all--they enjoy helping other people.

Many of them enjoy it so much that they return year-after-year. More than ninety percent of all Tax-Aide volunteers have worked in the program for more than a year--some for more than a decade.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,
 All too often in our daily living we fail to adequately appreciate things around us. Recently I had the privilege to receive professional health care services at Muleshoe Hospital. Privilege? Emphatically, YES! No one ever welcomes illness or accident, but when it comes you want excellent care. No metropolitan hospital can offer us what MAHD does. Not only is the staff to patient ratio better than any big city hospital, the level of concern, the sincerity, and the degree of dignity with which you are treated cannot be matched anywhere. In Lubbock or Amarillo would they ask about your children by name or even care about the answer? Would they know you recently lost your family pet or care? Would one of your friends be working there and say, "I'm praying for you and hope things turn out well"? Would the staff all offer words of encouragement and cheer as you are wheeled down the hall?

Would they hold your hand when you're in pain and tell you that it's going to be better soon? Do they look you in the eye and sincerely ask if you are comfortable or in need of anything or do they use one of those "Have a nice day" voices when asking if there is anything else you need.

As a friend of mine who recently had 3 surgeries in major city hospitals would surely agree, just because you're bigger and more advertised doesn't mean you give adequate care. Perhaps YOU think that because this is a small, rural hospital the quality of care or level of professionalism is inferior to those other hospitals. Does that mean that YOU are a lesser quality person or professional because YOU live in this rural area? NO!

These highly qualified professionals are just like you and me. They are not here because they couldn't "make it" in a big city. They are here because they CHOSE to be. Not only have they chosen to be here, but they have enticed outstanding doctors from respectable specialty groups such as

Out-Of-School TEAMS/TAAS Examinee Registration Set

The out-of-school examinee registration packets for the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills (TEAMS) and the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) exit level tests are now available at Muleshoe High School. During each regular exit level test administration, individuals who are no longer enrolled in school and have not previously passed all sections of the TEAMS or TAAS tests, but have met all other graduation requirements, may retake the necessary section(s).

Individuals who are no longer enrolled in a Texas public school and wish to register to retake the exit level TEAMS or TAAS tests may pick up a registration packet at any high school campus, district central office, or education service center. The test registration form must be completed and returned in the pre-addressed envelope and must be received in Iowa City, Iowa, no later than 5 p.m. on September 28, 1993. The Texas Education Agency and National Computer Systems will not be responsible for registration forms that are delayed or lost in the mail. To ensure that individuals are registered, forms should be sent either by registered mail or certified mail.

Questions concerning out-of-school examinee testing should be directed to Linda Marr, Counselor, Muleshoe High School, telephone 272-7571.

Lubbock Digestive Disease Associates and a leading Lubbock cardiology group to come to MAHD clinic on a rotating basis in order to serve the special needs of our community.

Our hospital is not only a fine health care facility but a viable economic part of this community. It supplies jobs for many Muleshoe, Sudan, Lazbuddie, Earth, and other people. These people, in turn, buy groceries, fill their car with gasoline, eat out, etc. here in Muleshoe, putting money back in our community. This facility and its employees deserve our respect and our patronage.

To the Muleshoe Area Hospital District board of trustees, the physicians, administrators and staff, I give my sincere thanks for their dedication to making MAHD not just an adequate facility, but an outstanding one that offers "heart" like no one else can.

Sincerely
 Debbi Hutto

A Family Tradition Continues

Joseph J. Bryant, Extension Communications Specialist

Family owned and operated businesses are a scarce commodity in the 90's, but Texas agriculture is proving itself to be a forerunner in the preservation of this tradition.

Bamert Seed Company, located outside of Muleshoe, is a two generation family business specializing in the production of native grasses. The father-son team lives up to its commitment of quality people selling quality seed and is respected as a leader in the seed industry.

The Bamerts hosted a luncheon and tour for the Great Plains Agricultural Council (GPAC) forestry committee during that group's recent annual meeting at Lubbock. The council is a joint alliance of land grant universities, several federal and state agencies and others involved in the economic and environmental productivity of the Plains. The Forestry Committees' annual meeting discusses new practices and trends in tree use in the Plains area of the United States.

Bamert Seed Company is a member of their Soil and Water Conservation District focusing on the education and promotion of conservation and wise use of land stewardship to are producers. The Bamerts work closely with the Soil Conservation Service and supplement their district budget through the sale of windbreak trees, says Nick Bamert.

Bamert Farms is 6,000 acres of irrigated and dryland farming growing 30 different species of grasses for seed production. They have 800 to 1,000 acres planted in grass.

"We send out 200,000 pounds of grass seed per year and primarily use crops in a rotation program for grass," said Bamert.

Bamert Seed concentrates their marketing efforts towards golf courses, which grow primarily Buffalo grass, and highway projects. Buffalo grass has been their primary crop because of its adaptability to the High Plains.

Buffalo grass is a warm season native grass which is heat and cold resistant, drought tolerant and environmental friendly.

Bamert said that growing trees was a natural extension from the wildlife in the area. They began tree planting in 1987.

"We try to plant at least two rows of trees everywhere to create windbreaks," said Bamert. "In the last seven years we've planted seven miles of trees."

Governor Supports Texas PTA's Advocacy For All Children

Gov. Ann W. Richards has proclaimed September PTA Membership Enrollment Month in Texas, and Texas PTA urges all citizens to "Put Your Heart in PTA--For All Children." With 829,000 members, Texas PTA's membership goal is to reach 1 million members.

"Texas PTA's more than 2,600 local units make it an easily accessible avenue for all people to get involved in education and child advocacy," the proclamation states. An organization of volunteers-- parents, educators, community leaders, grandparents, and other citizens, PTA works to provide better environments For All Children.

"With 2,600 local units throughout our state, the grassroots members are responsible for submitting resolutions and legislative positions which are voted on by PTA delegates at the state convention in November," Texas PTA President Dixie Surratt said.

"Because of this grassroots involvement, PTA is more effective in advocating for all children."

Issues being addressed by PTA in the 1990s include: site-based decision making, the immunization crisis in Texas, comprehensive school health, HIV/AIDS prevention education, gangs, alcohol and other drug abuse prevention, cultural arts, school finance, child abuse prevention, school bus safety, and much more.

During the 73rd Legislative Session, PTA's legislative efforts proved very successful with Gov. Richards signing into law 44 of the 129 PTA-supported bills. Texas PTA took action on 147 bills filed in the 73rd Legislative Session, supporting 129 bills, opposing 12 bills, and speaking "on" (could not totally support nor oppose) six bills. All of the bills that PTA opposed failed to pass.

PTA's legislative successes include the following issues: keeping current pupil-teacher ratio at kindergarten through fourth grade at 22 to 1 or lower; requiring at least one supervisor per school district to be licensed to administer pesticides inside or outside the school building; retaining current six-week restriction to participate in extracurricular activities if a student does not pass all subjects; declaring schools to be drug, alcohol, and weapon-free zones and doubling penalties for violations; creating a Texas births defects registry; suspending the license of any driver suspected of driving while intoxicated who refuses to take a breath or blood-alcohol test; requiring all children to be immunized; establishing one or more TEA pilot projects to test the effectiveness of telecommunication instruction without the use of advertising or commercialization in the classroom; enhancing enforcement of child support laws; enhancing the penalty to anyone who passes a school bus while loading or unloading passengers; setting standards for building schools over closed municipal solid waste landfills; and allowing the Department of Public Safety to establish a bicycle safety program that could be administered by PTAs.

For a complete listing of Texas PTA's legislative successes during the 73rd Legislative Session, legislative priorities, membership information, or other resources, call the Texas PTA state office at 512/476-6769.

With more than 800,000 members, Texas PTA is the largest child advocacy organization in the state and is affiliated with the National PTA of more than 7 million members.

New Poison Center's 9-1-1 Response Will Save Lives, Needless Expense

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) and the Advisory Commission of State Emergency Communications (also known as the 9-1-1 Commission) will combine their expertise in creating six regional poison control centers to serve Texas. When operational, the centers will be lined to the state's 9-1-1 emergency systems to ensure the fastest possible telephone response to poisoning emergencies.

More than 160,000 Texans, about 60 percent of whom were children, suffered accidental poisoning last year. According to health officials, the state's existing poison centers, have long been underfunded and overloaded.

Galveston's Texas State Poison Center, which was called upon in more than 32,000 poison crises throughout the state last year, has lost its national accreditation because it has had to compromise the quality of its services, primarily its capacity for rapid response. Also because of an overload (more than 70,000 calls last year), the North Texas Poison Center, funded by Dallas' Parkland Hospital and the Dallas Hospital District, was forced to charge for services outlying cities and counties, refusing services to areas which did not pay. El Paso already has been forced to close its center for lack of funds. Limited services remain available in Amarillo and Temple.

Dennis Perrotta, chief of the TDH Bureau of Epidemiology, said, "Poison control in Texas has been in an emergency condition of its own. Even EMS and emergency room personnel have been getting busy signals during life-threatening emergencies."

Perrotta said that the 73rd Legislature came to the rescue of the poison centers by creating new funding to establish a network of regional centers in Galveston, Dallas, El Paso, Amarillo, Temple and San Antonio. The state will collect a surcharge on intrastate long distance calls to fund the new centers. The state's 9-1-1 services already are funded through a similar surcharge.

Perrotta said that the exact rate of surcharge is not yet final, but the Advisory Commission on State Emergency Communications has proposed a rate of .3 cents per $1 charged for intrastate long-distance calls. If approved, this rate would provide about $6.5 million annually.

TDH will manage the financial grants to the centers with the 9-1-1 Commission, conduct poison prevention programs and lend technical assistance. The 9-1-1 Commission will coordinate rapid communications between local emergency units and the poison centers. Funds are required to be available through grants by September 1994.

"One of the most exciting features of the new regional poison center system will be that calls about poison emergencies will be automatically channeled to the appropriate poison center when they are received by 9-1-1 operators," Perrotta said.

He explained that because of differences between regions in the numbers of expected poisoning incidents, the centers will vary in both funding and in hours of operation. "However," he said, "since all of the centers will be linked, if one center should be closed or overloaded at any given time an emergency call comes in, another center will automatically take the call. This way, we for the first time can guarantee a response from poison experts on virtually every call."

Perrotta added that assuring poison center availability not only will save lives of victims needing emergency treatment, it also will reduce the number of needless and costly emergency room visits, ambulance trips and precautionary treatments. "Many incidents, such as a child's swallowing some harmless substance, are mistaken for accidental poisonings by panicked parents. By calling 9-1-1, parents and their doctors can get immediate advice on toxicity and home treatment. As many as 80 percent of calls to the Dallas center last year were resolved with home treatments, leaving emergency room and ambulance personnel available for real emergencies."

An added benefit to TDH will be that the centers will provide the Bureau of Epidemiology with important poison incidence data which can be used in preventing future poisonings, Perrotta said.

NOTICE OF CALCULATION OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE, ESTIMATED UNENCUMBERED FUND BALANCES, AND DEBT SCHEDULE

This notice presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate used to DETERMINE 1992 PROPERTY TAXES. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same amount of taxes on the same properties as last year. This year's rollback rate is the highest tax rate the school district may set before it must hold a rollback election. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes and state funds by the tax base with adjustments as required by state law. You can inspect the full calculations at Bailey County Appraisal District, 104 East Ave. C, Muleshoe, Texas.

ADR:

An Attractive Alternative

Lawsuits, in many ways can resemble war. They are often unavoidable, and the results can seem devastating. And in the end, as in war, it may be hard to distinguish the winner from the loser.

But that doesn't always have to be the case, if you'll pardon the pun. "Alternative methods of resolving disputes are becoming more and more popular," says Wichita Falls Attorney Lonny Morrison, president of the State Bar of Texas.

Many people are taking the advice of Abraham Lincoln: "Discourage litigation. Persuade your neighbors to compromise, whenever you can. Point out to them how the nominal winner is often a real loser--in fees, expenses and waste of time."

Alternative dispute resolution (ADR) is defined as the use of a neutral third party to facilitate the settlement of a dispute outside of a formal court of law. And with a legal system described by former Chief Justice Warren Burger as "too costly, too painful, too destructive, too inefficient for a truly civilized people," ADR is a welcome option.

The Federal Arbitration Act and the Texas General Arbitration Act set the legal framework for ADR. But more recently, the 1987 Texas Alternative Dispute Resolution Procedures Act made it the state's policy to encourage early resolution through voluntary settlement procedures.

In addition to the 1987 Texas ADR Act, chapter 152 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code established in 1989 a county by county system for the creation, funding and administration of an "alternative dispute resolution system" known locally as community dispute resolution centers.

Under the Texas ADR Act, which has received national attention, all ADR procedures are nonbinding, confidential and flexible. "Even under court-ordered ADR, parties cannot be compelled to settle," says Morrison. "If a settlement is not reached, then the case proceeds to trial."

The procedure varies according to the nature of the dispute and the limitations imposed by the disputants or the courts. "Some of the procedures require client participation and others are structured as formal hearings with lawyers presenting all case information," says Morrison. ADR is used primarily for civil disputes.

"The Texas ADR Act requires attorneys to be informed of all ADR procedures and to inform their clients of all settlement options, including ADR," says Morrison. Texas attorneys are also obligated to prepare for and participate with their clients in ADR.

The mediator, or third-party neutral, must complete 40 hours of ADR training. Third-party neutrals are usually attorneys. Often, however, they are experts in other areas. For example, mental health professionals sometimes serve in ADR cases involving families, and people with business or technical expertise quite often serve on arbitration panels.

ADR procedures may be used at almost any point in a lawsuit, and are particularly favorable when the disputants have an ongoing business or personal relationship, a need for privacy, or are under economic pressure.

"Even if an agreement is not reached, the ADR process may still be well worth the time," says Morrison. "If the case does go to court, the ADR process has usually limited or clarified the issues and the trial process is speeded up." In addition, the ADR process often helps the disputants retain a good, communicative relationship in the future.

Price is another advantage of ADR. Community dispute resolution centers offer ADR services at little or no cost. If clients have limited financial resources, many ADR facilitators will accept pro bono cases or will adjust their fees on an individual case basis.

In 1989, the state legislature took ADR a step further by enacting a bill requiring counties with populations greater than 150,000 to hold two Settlement Week per year. "Texas has always been a leader in ADR," says Morrison. "Settlement Week is a perfect example." During Settlement Week, held by most counties in conjunction with Judicial Week in September, parties and counsel in selected lawsuits meet with third-party neutrals and attempt to resolve disputes.

Informal Job Market Helps Boost Economic Health

Finding a job is tough in this economy. For men and women in the developing world, prospects are even tougher, and the future is daunting. By the year 2000, 800 million new jobs must be created to adequately employ the world's work-force.

"Millions of non-literate men and women have little hope of finding work in the formal job market," says Marshall Bear, who manages small business programs for CARE, the world's largest private relief and development organization. "But there are opportunities--if they know where to look."

"Thousands of mom-and-pop shops are sprouting up throughout the world's poorest regions," says Bear. "Because these small businesses are run on a shoestring, owners can't afford to pay the high salaries of experienced workers. Instead, they search for diamonds-in-the-rough, talented employees with limited experience who can be taught new skills and ideas."

These hiring practices not only translate into lower operating costs for new business owners, but also help staff develop their capabilities and grow professionally.

According to development experts, thousands of small businesses are started every year with loans of $100 or less from local banks and community chests. Organizations like CARE serve as guarantors. When these businesses succeed, they make it possible for desperately poor people, many of whom might otherwise have had to depend on hand-outs, to support themselves and their families.

Business opportunities are especially important for new arrivals to overcrowded urban centers throughout the developing world. Local governments were ill-equipped to take care of the 50 million farmers who left their villages to seek work in the cities in the last decade. Social services

The ADR Committee and the ADR Section of the State Bar of Texas has played a major role in promoting and instructing county courts on Settlement Week. The committee and section promote simplified methods of dispute resolution by assisting in the drafting of ADR related legislation, researching ADR programs around the state and providing informative materials on ADR for the public as well as for attorneys.

Across the nation, approximately three-fourths of the cases brought to community dispute resolution centers reach agreement. In Texas, even the cases during Settlement Week, when time is limited and ADR occurs in the later stages of litigation, are settled about half the time. But, says Morrison, it is important to note that ADR should be considered an alternative to, not a substitute for trial by jury.

Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor stated that "the courts of this country should not be the places where the resolution of disputes begin. They should be the places where disputes end--after alternative methods of resolving disputes have been considered."

ADR facilitators can be found through a variety of sources including local bar associations, community dispute resolution centers and the Texas Association of Mediators. For more information, contact the State Bar of Texas at 1-800-204-2222.

and sanitation systems are too burdened to accommodate the needs of these new urban poor.

"Thousands of impoverished city-dwellers live without running water or electricity in shanty-town shacks," Bear explains. "Sociologists call these people, 'marginal,' because they never quite make it into mainstream society. But it doesn't have to be that way."

Bear notes that CARE helped turn 22,000 desperately poor people into successful business owners last year by providing them with more than a million dollars in collateral-free loans. The organization also trained fledgling entrepreneurs in business management, marketing and accounting. These new employers in turn created more than 31,000 jobs that helped impoverished workers improve their standard of living.

November Bond Election Key To Continued Texas Veterans Benefits

Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro told the American Legion of Texas recently that the state's three special veterans benefits programs have "never been more popular with Texas veterans" but that because of a record-setting pace for home loans the programs may be "out of money by November."

"Unless we get the authority to issue new bonds to finance new loans, the Texas Veterans Land Board programs, the best veterans programs in the country, will be dead," Mauro warned.

Mauro said Proposition 10, a constitutional amendment which authorizes the VLB to issue $500 million in general obligation bonds to continue funding veterans home loans and $250 million to continue funding for veterans land loans, will be on the ballot in November. Voters will determine the fate of that and other proposed amendments on November 2.

"The future of these programs depends on the American Legion, the DVA, the VFW, and our county veterans service officers getting the word out to their membership and their community about the importance of this election," Mauro said.

"In 1985, the last time Texas voters were called on to support funding for these programs, more than 70 percent voted for that bond issue," Mauro said. "I predict that we will have the voters support once again but we cannot take the best veterans programs in the country for granted."

Texas veterans now have a $90,000 total benefits package that allows them to get low-interest loans at below-market rates to buy a home, land or make home improvements. Since the VLB was started in 1949, more than 137,000

Texas veterans have received loans through the program.

Mauro said the Texas veterans programs are not only beneficial to Texas veterans but also to the overall Texas economy.

"The VLB is one government program that works," Mauro said. "It works for Texas veterans and it works to stimulate the overall economy by creating new jobs in real estate and construction."

"Economists have called our VLB loan programs the best government economic development program in Texas," he said.

"The $2 billion we've loaned since the program began in 1949 translates into $14 billion in additional economic activity. Every loan we make means new jobs in construction and a boost to the real estate industry in every area of the state."

"This is a loan program that is paid for by Texas veterans," Mauro said. "It has never cost taxpayers a single penny--and it never will."

He said legislation which raised the ceiling on VLB home loans from $20,000 to $45,000 and competitive interest rates - currently 6.49 percent on home loans made through VLB lenders and 7.79 percent on land loans - were responsible for a big jump in loan activity over the past 18 months.

"During that time we've made more than $161 million in home loans to more than 3000 Texas veterans to help them realize the dream of owning their home," Mauro said.

"We're on our way to a record setting year for home loans," Mauro said. "We'll end up loaning over $140 million in fiscal year 1993 alone--a ten-fold increase in loans over the previous year."

"That's the good part. The bad part is we have approximately $90 million left in housing bond money to get us through summer."

"That should be enough to get us through the first week of November and the bond election," Mauro said.

What's The Best Way To Get A Raise?--Work!

Looking for a surefire way to get that coveted raise or promotion? Ask for more work, advise 82 percent of top managers in a new nationwide survey.

The survey was developed by OfficeTeam, a national staffing service specializing in high-skilled temporary office and administrative professionals. It was conducted by an independent research firm, which polled 150 human resource and other executives from the nation's 1,000 largest companies.

Executives were asked: "What do you feel is the single best way for employees to earn a promotion and/or raise?" Their responses:

- Ask for more work and responsibility 82%
- Publicize Achievements 11%
- Work longer hours 2%
- Other 5%

"By asking for more responsibility and an increased workload, employees demonstrate

"It'll be close but I think we'll make it."

Mauro said that while placing the constitutional amendment on the ballot was the most important VLB item passed by the Legislature this session, another measure supported by the American Legion also was approved.

"We were able to amend the law to extend benefits to include surviving spouses of veterans whose home of record was Texas and died in the line of duty or are missing in action - if those spouses have not remarried. I'm sure you agree that this change is long overdue," he said.

Mauro said the continued support of Texas veterans is crucial to the success of the VLB.

"We've offered veterans low-rates, good service, and programs that are simple and easy-to-use," he said. "We're constantly trying to cut red tape and we're always looking for a better way to do things and give better service."

"There's a constant reassessment here to make sure our programs fit the real world needs of our veterans," Mauro said. "I'd like to think the popularity of these programs indicate that we're succeeding in our goals."

that they're self-motivated and enthusiastic about their jobs," said Andrew Denka, executive director of OfficeTeam. "Managers recognize and reward employees who display that kind of initiative and personal investment in their companies."

One way to show initiative, Denka said, is to take an extra step when doing a task, as in the case of an administrative assistant who volunteers to set up a new, computerized database when asked to reorganize existing files.

He added that requests for more work suggest that an employee can manage his or her schedule efficiently, achieving more in the same amount of time.

OfficeTeam is the nation's fastest growing staffing service placing highly-skilled temporary and permanent administrative and office support professionals.

Notice of Public Hearing on Tax Increase

The LAZBUDDIE INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1993 by 357 percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on September 14, 1993 at 8:15 p.m. FOR the proposal: Bobby Redwine, Robert Gallman, Tommy St. Clair, Gail Morris AGAINST the proposal: None PRESENT and not voting: None ABSENT: None

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the 1992-93 tax rate that the unit published on September 3, 1993. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	$ 19,095	$ 18,965
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	$ 5,000	$ 5,000
Average taxable value	$ 14,095	$ 13,965
Tax rate	.362 /$100	1.2933/$100 (proposed)
Tax	$ 51.02	$ 180.61 (proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would increase by $ 129.59 or 354 percent compared with last year's taxes. Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by $ 93.13 per $100 of taxable value or 357 percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Criminal Justice Mandate (for counties):
The County Auditor certifies that County has spent $ in the previous 12 months beginning , 19, for the maintenance and operations cost of keeping inmates sentenced to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. County Sheriff has provided information on these costs, minus the state revenues received for reimbursement of such costs.

Optional for school districts:
*This percentage increase does not reflect 1992 taxes levied by the now-abolished county education district (CED). In 1992, the CED levied a portion of the taxes used for school purposes, and the school district levied the remainder of school taxes. In 1993, school districts will levy all school taxes. For an explanation of the increase, attend the public hearing scheduled above or call your school district.

Explanation of Conversion from County Education District Taxes

County Education Districts have been abolished. In order to compare school tax rates from last year to this year, it is necessary to compare the combined school tax rate below to the school district's proposed tax rate for this year.

Last year the Lazbuddie School District's tax rate was .3620

Last year the Parmer County Education District's tax rate was .8250

The combined School District and County Education District tax rate was 1.1870

The proposed tax rate for Lazbuddie School District for this year is 1.2933

Comments Sought On Mallards

In a separate action, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service recently issued a notice of intent to review regulations pertaining to the release and harvest of captive-bred mallards and invited public comment on the issue.

Currently, regulations allow for the release of captive-reared mallards provided they are properly marked. These birds may be harvested without a permit, in any number, and at any time within the confines of a state-licensed shooting preserve.

The Service has become concerned, however, that shooting preserves may be allowing captive-bred mallard: free range over a wide area, raising the possibility that the birds could spread diseases such as avian cholera and duck plague to wild waterfowl population. In addition captive bred mallard allowed free range may be serving as live decoys that can attract wild mallards. Federal hunting regulations prohibit use of live decoys.

The agency is also concerned the large numbers of captive-reared mallards may be affecting the Service's annual waterfowl population and harvest surveys in some areas. And there is a question whether captive-bred ducks could alter the genetic make-up of wild mallard populations in some areas, as well as lead to hybridization with other species such as black ducks.

The Service's Notice of Intent was published in the June 1, 1993, Federal Register.

Intelligence does not always accompany the degrees that some people acquire.

A SYMBOL OF SAFETY

When the ship is in danger, we can depend on the life-boats to take us over the seas to safety. It is comforting to glance at the life-boat when the seas are rough.

Our Armed Services are a symbol of safety when our country is in trouble, when war threatens to raise its ugly head. In the past, when war has come, our servicemen have not hesitated to give their lives to protect and defend us.

There is a special Day each year when we remember and honor our servicemen who have died in the defense of our blessed country. Let us not forget, as individuals, to honor these dead and give thanks to God for those who protect us even now. Remember them as you attend church this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
