EUROPEAN COMMON MARKET

Recent developments in European Countries who are joining in the Common Market Treaty with relation to labor, as well as goods, would indicate that a serious economic problem may be in store for this country in the future. There was skepticism on the part of many as to whether or not Germany would enter into these agreements. However, the action of the Chancellor of West Germany, Dr. Konrad Adenaur, and his Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano in leading the way in joining the Common Market, and the subsequent re-election of Dr. Adenaur, would indicate that West Germany is most serious in two particulars. One, in working toward a program to solve some of the economic ills of Europe and, two, in bending over backwards to show itself to be a good and hard working member of the European community. One writer felt that Germany would have been better off economically to have followed Britain and become a member of a Free Trade Zone without assuming some of the responsibilities of the Common Market. However, Germany concluded otherwise and is probably right because of its substantial production of coal and steel. It could suffer from an agricultural standpoint, but it was, no doubt, felt that this would be outweighed by other benefits.

The ratification of the Treaty by France surprised many, including Frenchmen. Some looked upon it as a miracle and felt that France was on the move toward the solution of one of its most troublesome problems. Actually France had much more to gain in joining this group than to have stayed on the outside. Especially in the special provisions for French imports and the escape clause for French export subsidies. France also gained in the price it can ask from the Germans for French wheat. Some analysts feel that the concessions gained by France may cause trouble in carrying out the terms of the Treaty but all admit that it is a beginning to a cure for an economically sick Europe. They point out that Italy with its unemployment problem, Belgium with its low production costs and Holland with its agricultural surpluses will insist upon early exchanges of labor and goods in a free movement and seek the expanded market and increased prices for food. It was also pointed out that even those outside of the community but allied with it will want to speed up the operation of such a program so that British automobiles may go into Europe duty free, as well as Danish bacon and butter.

Whether the full 12 to 15 year trial period is required or whether the Common Market is in full force and effect in less time, there will be an economic impact on this country and it would be well for the matter to be thoroughly and completely debated in the early days of the coming session of Congress and before the time for extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

PASSENGER PENALTY

The commercial airlines have recently adopted a plan to penalize passengers who fail to show up for a flight on which they have a reservation. This plan is bound to run up against trouble. The fact is that the airlines have had trouble for some time with passengers who promiscuously make reservations and then fail to show up. This means that some other person who wanted to make the trip is not able to get a confirmed reservation and doesn't know until time for the plane to take off. There is no doubt that this has been a serious problem, but I feel that the airlines are going to be in for considerable criticism when they start collecting a money penalty from a passenger. This matter was discussed at length in the Congressional hearings when the Civil Aeronautics Board appeared before our Committee. At that time I asked the Chairman, Mr. Durfee, about this plan and why it was that nothing had been done in the nature of providing a penalty to be paid by the airline to the passenger when the airline sold a ticket and then denied transportation to the passenger at the last minute because the plane had been oversold at some other point, or because of some other reason in which the passenger had no control. The Chairman was unable to answer the question and, in fact, indicated that no thought had been given to it by the Board. I pointed out to him that it was my understanding the CAB had been set up to protect the traveling public, as well as the airlines, and that if the passenger was going to be penalized for not showing, then by the same token, the airlines should be penalized for failing to provide the service it should provide.

State Trappers Get 4 Bighorns For Black-Gap

AUSTIN — Two more desert bighorns from Arizona have been added to the Black Gap management area in Brewster County, it has been announced by the Director of Wildlife Restoration of the Texas Game and Fish Commission. The two latest additions are a ram and ewe. Previously two ewes had been flown into the 600 acre pasture where the Commission hopes it will be possible to produce a herd of the native southwestern sheep.

Rainwater catchments and several concrete troughs have been provided to supply water for the animals. The entire area is surrounded by a deer-proof fence.

Trapping is continuing in Arizona. It is hoped that several more sheep can be trapped before the rainy season begins. This will stop trapping because the sheep then will leave the few watering places that have been available during the summer.

PLOWIN' Out the CORNERS

by Uncle Zeb

Again this year we had the wonderful privilege of attending, along with the same good friends, the Annual Banquet of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. This is the high point of all the affairs we have had the joy of attending the last few years. The friendly folks of Pampa reach way up on the top shelf and really go all out to make this something for everyone to never forget.

E. O. "Red" Wedgworth the local manager for this wide awake organization never shows up on the program but we understand by way of the grapevine that he is one of the hardest workers through the year to make this such a wonderful affair. Anyhow, thanks to everyone including our hosts, the Whales.

"Don't take a rumor at face value. Treat it like a check; be sure that it is genuine before you endorse it." Actually it is most always better to never endorse one at all; especially the bad rumors. They are always like a bad check; bounce back to us.

Most of us have to learn the lesson for ourselves that these so-called "Easy Payments" always have to be paid the hard way.

"Some people grow under responsibility while others only swell."

"A wise man gets learning even from those who have none themselves."

"God gives every bird its food but He does not throw it into the nest."

Mrs. R. E. Boone from way up in Columbus, Ohio sends us the following quote;

"We have carried all our burdens to the Lord in prayer, but the mistake we have made is that we have carried them away again."

The above is so very true; just too true for our own well-being. We say that we have faith then when we have taken our problems to God through the little faith which we do have, we then like the Apostle Peter when he tried to walk upon the water, we falter and doubt and try to carry away the same burdens and continue trying to solve them in our own feeble way.

We have just received another member into our Ain't Smoking Right Now Society; that of R. W. "Dick" Shackelford of Tulia, Tex. Dick admits being one of our readers for several years. If he can stand that for several years no wonder that back when he quit smoking that was no chore at all we bet. Anyway, we are glad to know we have him for a reader and a member of the club.

"Common sense is genius all dressed up in working clothes."

DONLEY COUNTY SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

Returning burs and trash to cotton fields is now accepted as a good farming practice. Farmers who tried it have collected handsome dividends. They say land treated with burs will usually outproduce non-treated land by 20 to 25 per cent. Their claims are supported by test results at agricultural experiment stations and on private industry farms. Across the state there will probably be twice as many farmers utilizing burs and trash this fall as before. Last year in the Donley District, nearly all the burs from the Hedley gins went back on the land and most of the burs from the Lelia Lake gin were used. However the farmers ginning at the two Clarendon gins missed an opportunity and let many burs be burned. All gins in the Donley

District are equipped with fans which are about 100% effective in killing pink bollworms. This leaves the spreading of undesired weed seeds as the chief danger in using burs and gin trash. This danger can be overcome by piling the burs, wetting them and allowing decomposition to set in, which will kill the seed and also make the burs more valuable. However, unless there is a real danger of noxious weed seed being in the burs, the extra labor and expense involved in composting them makes the practice of doubtful value. With increased use of gin trash and burs, obtaining sufficient amounts will become a problem. Ordinarily it takes the burs from 10 acres to properly treat one acre at the rate of two to three tons per acre. Most of the burs have been used in this District to cover shallow or sandy spots in fields. By keeping these trouble spots under control, often the whole field can be kept from blowing. Of course an increase in production is another main objective. No doubt some of those reading this have seen Verney Wade's cotton southwest of Hedley where he applied burs at two different rates and where none was applied. This should open most farmers' eyes as to the need for organic material in our soil. In a later District column, it is planned to give the increased yields resulting from this and other conservation measures. For example, it is known that Earl Myers applied many loads of burs to land which would have blown had it not been for the burs, but no production figure is available as yet on this land. The application of burs and other organic material is just one of numerous ways of improving and maintaining the soil. Let your Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service technicians assisting the District help you work out a plan to put CONSERVATION to work for you on your land.

GABIE BETTS BURTON LIBRARY NOTES

By May L. Prewitt

The Gift of the Foundation of Foreign Affairs this week to the Library is a biography of Major General Patrick J. Hurley. The biography is by Don Lobeck. You will enjoy this for two reasons—he is a very colorful character, having been influential in the political life of our nation and the book is exceptionally well written. We receive some valuable books from the various Foundations. Our two thirty dollar Bibles were given by Foundations.

We purchased "The Unforgiveness" by Alan Lee May. Hamilton Basso says: "With the exception of 'The Big Sky', I cannot think of any novel in this field that has impressed me as much." This novel is based on the lives of the cattle drivers of the Texas Panhandle in the 1870. It includes, in part, the story of an Indian raid at the time of the Kiowa Moon. This was likely a serial in the Saturday Evening Post.

We now have on our memorial shelves, "Profiles in Courage" by Senator John F. Kennedy. This was given in memory of Mrs. Nannie Egerton Kitchen of Childress who was a relative of Mr. Carl Allmond. You recall that another book was given in her memory a few weeks ago, "The Bible As History" by Werner. Our book of the month from Doubleday Dollar is "Twelve Girls In the Garden" by Shane Martin. Only fair with several murders and other tense actions. On the back of the jacket is "A Book Speaks," and the page is excellent food for thought. We have some excellent winter reading for you.

EDITORIAL Water Bonds Deserve Every Voter's Support

There is not a man, woman or child in Texas but who has been adversely affected in some degree or other by the protracted drought conditions of the last eight years. The underground water table, which supplies many scores of community water systems and is depended on by a large population rural area for their water needs has been deeply affected by the impact of the long-time drought and failure of needed replenishment.

The story of the drought, broken for a time by this spring's record rains, is a story of many millions of loss to the Texas economy on which every Texan depends. It has been tragic for farmers and raisers of livestock. It has cost inconvenience and hardship to many hundreds of thousands in cities and smaller communities which have had to resort to water rationing, or have had to have water hauled in from other places to meet the simplest wants.

Many Texans long have been deeply concerned over water, which they well know is the number one problem of this, the nation's largest state.

Industrial development has been affected by dearth of water, and several large industries of the state have faced an emergency which meant, last year, that for a time they were threatened by having to close down when supplies were reduced to weeks, even days. Only the arrival of long-delayed, but dependable rains, enabled them to keep going, and keep an unestimated number of personnel on the job instead of being forced out of work.

Water scarcity has a direct effect on many kinds of jobs and the continued employment of those holding them. Next Nov. 5 the voters of Texas will have an opportunity to make a vital decision, that of passing the $200 millions bond issue amendment submitted by the last Legislature for the development and conservation of the state's water resources.

It involves a plan to assist communities and districts otherwise unable to finance a program of their own.

The bond issue will be painless. The money will be repaid in easy stages as the work of constructing projects proceeds, the last 10 per cent of these jurisdictional obligations to be paid back on certification by the State Board of Water Engineers that the work is completed and is satisfactory.

Every safeguard has been provided to insure that none of the money will be misused.

We think every qualified voter of Texas should support this measure which, after more than a score of years of talking about it and agreeing that the problem ranks as the number one Texas problem, now is being submitted in a form that deserves the support of everyone aware that unless this opportunity is seized it is possible for a drought, dredging even deeper than the one we have gone through and may continue to go through, to create havoc with the state's economy.

Governor Price Daniel, keenly aware of the emergency character of the problem and the need for the amendment, has called upon the citizens of Texas to be diligent to be foresighted, to be practical and determined that this opportunity shall not pass Texas because of the failure of voters to see the handwriting on the wall.

and Senate.
The reason for the coolness of many of the members is unknown, and one can only speculate as to why this was true. It would appear, however, that the end result of this attitude on the part of so many of the members might make passage of the Governor's program very difficult.
LOBBY BILL CERTAIN OF FINAL PASSAGE

In my opinion, final passage of a lobby bill appears certain prior to the end of this special 30-day session. I am not sure yet, however, whether or not the final draft of the lobby bill will be very effective, but I do feel certain that we will have some type of lobby registration act.

The big hassle to come will primarily be on the question of reporting of expenditures. The arguments will be (1) Who must report, and (2) Will they report all or only portions of their expenditures.

I, of course, campaigned during the last election for a lobby registration and control act and thus consequently, I shall be doing all I can during this special session to insure passage of a workable and stringent Lobby Act.

WATER PROGRAM HIGHLY CONTROVERSIAL

The state-wide water program will probably be the most hotly debated and highly controversial item in the Governor's program for this special session.

The reason for this is the fact that although everyone is interested in water, the solutions to our water problem vary a great deal. Subsequently, the interest of the various groups and sections over the State are quite widespread. For example, I am anticipating some difficulty between the cities and our rural areas over certain provisions of the water bill.

I would hate to venture a guess as to whether or not the water bill will be finally passed by this special session. I do believe, however, that if one is passed it will not be until the last couple of days prior to adjournment.

SECOND SESSION LOOMS ON SEGREGATION

The segregation issue and Eisenhower's use of Federal troops in Little Rock is the subject of much discussion between the individual members of the Legislature. Governor Daniel has hinted quite strongly that there may be a second special session this fall to deal with segregation matters.

As yet it is only in the speculative stages but a second called session is certainly possible. It seems to me that something concerning our rapidly vanishing states' rights needs to be accomplished in the near future. More about that later.

SOCIAL SECURITY INFORMATION

Clergymen who have failed to elect social security coverage as self-employed persons now have another chance to secure old-age, survivors, and disability insurance protection for themselves and their families. John R. Sanderson, manager of the Amarillo social security office declared today.

An amendment to the Internal Revenue Code gives them, in general, from August 31, 1957, through April 15, 1959, to elect social security coverage, he said. Ministers who file waiver certificates during this extended period will be mandatorily covered for 1958 and for all subsequent years in which they have net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more, including earnings from the practice of their ministry.

In addition, Sanderson points out, a minister who filed a waiver

RUGGED VERSATILITY—The Army Quartermaster Corps' new York-lift truck needs no landing docks or railroad sidings. It can move in surf or five feet of water, work in sand, mud or snow, tilt or move sideways, pick up loads angled on hill-sides and carry them up or down the hill at an even level.

Duck Conditions Now Excellent

AUSTIN—Conditions right now for a good duck hunting season this fall are excellent, according to J. R. Singleton, Wildlife Biologist of the Game and Fish Commission. Singleton is stationed in the Gulf Coast area, where he has been studying the duck and goose conditions for several years.

"There has been enough rain to bring on natural food and right conditions for growth," he said. "The summer showers over the area have been very beneficial. The rains of recent weeks have put new water on the ground to provide feed for the birds. Flooded fields make much more food available."

Pintails and teal are on schedule, with some spoonbills coming in, the Biologist said.

He will make his first flight over the coastline to estimate duck population about October 15th.

Singleton also is asking duck hunters of Texas to cooperate with the biologists again this year by filling in questionnaires on their hunts.

A careful tabulation of the answers from these questionnaires has been most helpful in bringing about extensions of the seasons and increased bag limits on geese he said.

He who is prejudiced is usually down on something he's not up on.

after April 15, 1957, and before August 31, which was valid for 1957 but too late to get coverage for 1958, may still get coverage for 1958 by filing a supplemental waiver.

The law now provides that ministers will include as net earnings for social security purposes, (1) the rental value of a parsonage or rental allowance furnished them as part of their compensation and (2) the value of meals and lodging furnished them for the convenience of their employer. This change in the law applies only to the amount of a minister's earnings which are covered by social security; it does not affect his liability for income tax. This provision is effective for taxable years ending on or after December 31, 1957.

Curtis M. Watts, Field Representative, will be in Clarendon at the Courthouse Monday, October 28th at 9:30 A. M. If you need information of any kind pertaining to social security, Mr. Watts will be glad to help you.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM your State CAPITOL

By VERN SANFORD

Texas Press Association
 AUSTIN — Gov. Price Daniel apparently is going all out to get the balance of his 1957-58 program adopted into law. Special legislative session begins Oct. 14.

In recent speeches over the state Daniel has plugged for lobby control and a crime commission. More talks were scheduled—one on water conservation in San Antonio and another in Liberty.

In addition, the governor has made some outspoken statements on federal-state relationships. Excerpts from his busy round:

CRIME
 Present criminal code, says the governor, "is so antiquated that it protects the convicted criminal more than it protects the public."

He asked for a state law enforcement study commission that would make recommendations to the next regular Legislature on how crime and highway accidents can be reduced.

Texas crime rate is rising faster than its population, 46 per cent of it by juveniles, said Daniel. (A recent FBI survey showed that during the first half of 1957 Texas has had an increase, up to nearly 10 per cent over 1956, in every type of major crime.)

LOBBY CONTROL
 Opponents of this bill are trying "to picture it as a struggle between business and labor," said the governor.

"This is ridiculous — the bill would require registration of those employed by both labor and industry to influence legislation. "Vast majority of Austin lobbyists are legitimate operators who identify themselves and honestly perform their work. They have nothing to fear from this bill."

Opponents of the bill, said Daniel, are "modern-day carpet-baggers who hide their identity and improper expenditures."

FEDERAL SCHOOL AID
 "Full responsibility for the operation and financing of public schools should be exercised by the states and their political subdivisions."

Governor Daniel sent a resolution to this effect to the Federal State Action Committee meeting in Chicago.

"With federal dollars comes federal controls," commented Daniel. As a single exception, Daniel favored federal aid for schools with a heavy enrollment from U. S. military installations.

LITTLE ROCK CONTROVERSY
 Governor Daniel suggested that both President Eisenhower and Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus had fumbled in handling the school integration problems there. Neither, he said, had "exhausted every means at their command" to avoid a violent showdown.

"Of course, here in Texas," said the governor, "we would have sent a couple of Texas Rangers to handle the situation."

BRIGHT FUTURE
 Texans can look forward to more money, but a little less elbow room in the next few years. So says U. S. Sen. Lyndon Johnson in predicting a population of 12 million for the state by 1975 with a total personal income of $24,000,000,000. This compares with a $9,000,000,000 income for some 9,500,000 people in the past few years.

Senator Johnson forecasts a 1975 farm output of $2,900,000,000, up a billion from now, and factory production worth $8,600,000,000, nearly three times present production.

But, said Johnson, we cannot operate a $24,000,000,000 state on the basis of our present water use. The rosy prospects for the future will quickly banish unless we act to control our water resources.

"Texas," he said, "is a growing giant wearing last year's shirt. It's going to strangle, he said, unless there is quick action."

WEATHER TOLL
 Cost of Texas' natural disasters in 1957 would be $12 for every man, woman and child in the state.

Latest Civil Defense Department reports put the year's toll from blizzards, floods, tornadoes and Hurricane Audrey at 61 dead, 638 injured and $100,000,000 in property damage.

Once again, said Department Director William L. McGill, Texas holds the "dubious distinction of being first in the nation in major disasters."

TB IN TEXAS
 Startling facts revealed about tuberculosis in Texas came from Dr. Patrick McShane, head of the state's TB hospitals.

In a twin-panel session composed of newsmen and doctors, Dr. McShane reported that 22,000 Texans have active tuberculosis. One out of three yersons has TB germs in his body.

"Texas spends $6 per patient per day on its TB hospitals," Dr. McShane advised. "And we rank in the bottom fourth on what is spent in trying to get them well."

AUSTIN — It may come as a blow to the male ego, but the facts are inescapable: men belong to the weaker sex—outnumbered, outwitted, and outlived by the sturdier female.

Are women biologically more resistant to disease and death than men? Is the male animal shortening his life by greater aggressiveness, greater exposure to stress and disease, or by ignoring the laws of health? Can anything be done to reduce male mortality?

Male birth rates—106 boys for each 100 girls—as well as death rates have always been higher than the female rate. It has long been assumed that women are biologically more resistant to disease, tolerating pain and illness better than men.

There are also striking sex differences in causes of death. Lung cancer kills six times more men than women. The male peptic ulcer rate is four times as high, and tuberculosis and syphilis are twice as high. Three times more men than women commit suicide or are murdered. The odd thing is that higher male mortality, compared with females, extends to most animal species as well as to humans.

If differences in longevity of men and women were due solely to female biological superiority, the difference in death rate should remain constant. But instead, the female death rate has actually declined more rapidly
