Museum displaying new bison exhibit

A new buffalo exhibit is now on display at the Saints' Roost Museum courtesy of the Pantex Plant. Mason & Hanger geologist Mike Keck found the bones of a bison bull in the watershed of a playa lake on the Pantex grounds in Carson County in 1996. Natural erosion and traffic on a cattle trail had exposed the bones.

Keck, along with archeologist Dr. Carl Phagan and Pantex historian Kris Mitchell, worked for three days to unearth the bones, removing almost one meter (about 39 inches) of dirt. The nearly complete vertebral column and partial rib cage were sent to the Texas Tech University Museum where they were cleaned and identified as the remains of a modern buffalo.

Tech museum officials preserved the bones and built a display so they could be viewed exactly as they were in the ground. It is that display which is now being exhibited at the Saints' Roost Museum.

The bones are estimated to be 650 to 1,200 years old. Through a science known as taphonomy, Tech museum officials determined that the buffalo was partially butchered by probably a small band of Indians. Marks on the bones can still clearly be seen today where flint tools carved off the meat.

Taphonomy is a highly specialized discipline concerned with what happens to animals after they die. A taphonomist does not seek out why, how, or when an animal died but rather tries to discover how the remains were deposited, were the remains moved by natural processes, was the carcass butchered, and if so, by what method.

The Saints' Roost Museum board members are very excited about this new display and encourage everyone to come see it.

A special open house at the Museum is being planned in conjunction with the bison exhibit, and more information on that will be forthcoming.

The bison exhibit is on loan to the Museum through Memorial Day weekend. Museum hours are Saturday and Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Geologist Mike Keck arranges the bison bones of a new exhibit at the Saints' Roost Museum. Keck, along with Pantex historian Kris Mitchell, set up the display last Thursday at the Museum, and it will remain here in Clarendon through Memorial Day weekend.

Appraisal Dist. mails property tax renditions

Almost everyone with personal property in the Donley Appraisal District has now been mailed rendition forms.

A "rendition" is a report to the appraisal district that lists all the taxable property you owned or controlled on January 1 of the year. The appraisal district asks that you please complete the listing of your taxable personal property and return the forms by the April 15.

All personal property must be rendered each year even if there has been no change from the prior year. You should include cars, pickups, trucks, RV's, travel trailers, and airplanes.

If you own a business, you should also render your business inventory held for resale and other business related equipment.

The rendition must be signed and you may, although it is not required, list an opinion of market value. If you give your opinion of your property's value and the appraisal district believes the value is higher, it must notify you in writing of the higher value and explain how you can protest that value to the appraisal review board.

File your rendition with the appraisal district office located at 307 S. Sully in Clarendon or mail to PO Box 1220, Clarendon, Texas 79226.

For more information, stop by your appraisal district and pick up a copy of Texas Property Taxes: Taxpayers' Rights, Remedies, & Responsibilities.

The Federal Oil Tax: How To Make Bad Times Worse

By Sen. Phil Gramm and Texas Railroad Commissioner Charles Matthews
We are very concerned about an item in President Clinton's budget proposal, and we hope that the Administration will have the good sense to abandon it before it begins to inflict serious damage on the Texas oil industry. In short, the President has decided to collect $4 billion in new taxes from oil producers. Needless to say, the President's idea is the worst possible idea at the worst possible time, and we plan to vigorously oppose it.

The unfortunate fact is that oil operators all over Texas are going out of business, many of them never to return. In fact, in the last year nearly 5,000 oil field workers filed for unemployment. The oil business has always had its ups and downs, but there is a full-fledged depression in the oil patch right now.

The situation is so critical that the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates oil and gas issues for the State of Texas, is urging our Legislature to suspend state severance taxes on oil production, and the governor has accorded the bill emergency status.

The President's proposal, which was contained in his budget submission to Congress, seeks to reinstate the oil spill liability tax that expired in 1995. The 5-cent-a-barrel levy was used to fill a $1 billion fund overseen by the Treasury Department. President Clinton is asking to reinstate the tax for another ten years and to let him collect at least $4 billion more from hard-pressed oil producers. What he's really asking Congress to do is dramatically accelerate the rate at which Texas oil producers go broke.

Texans are especially vulnerable to the oil crisis, in part because most of the 170,000 wells that operate in our state are "stripper" wells, which pump fewer than 15 barrels a day. Whether you pump a barrel a day or hundreds of barrels a day, the cost of electricity, waste and water disposal, maintenance, insurance and other overhead is the same.

Moreover, cities, counties, and school districts, which rely on a local tax base, are being hammered because when the bottom falls out of the oil business, the tax base drops away with it. In 1998, oil and gas producers contributed $170 million to the Texas Permanent School Fund and $78 million to the Texas Permanent University Fund. Ninety-five school districts get at least half of their property tax income from oil and gas production. That explains why when you talk to school superintendents, particularly in the Panhandle, there is almost panic in their voices. They see school funding evaporating before their eyes.

The restoration of stability in the world economy will go a long way toward helping Texas oil producers, and so would adoption of the U.S. Energy Economic Growth Act introduced by U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison. That legislation is aimed at using tax credits and exemptions to help producers offset the cost of keeping stripper wells in operation and restarting inactive wells.

At a time when the budget is projected to generate surpluses as far as the eye can see and at a moment when oil state lawmakers are working to cut taxes, it's very difficult to understand why struggling oil producers are the targets of a new tax from the Administration. That the President doesn't recognize this is beyond comprehension.

We want there to be no doubt that this oil tax is a non-starter, and we intend to fight it as hard and as long as it takes to kill it. We won't allow the Texas oil industry, Texas schools and Texas cities to be taxed to death.

Short, simple bills end up being the most important

Sometimes, Congress passes bills that are so thick and complicated you have to be either a lawyer or specialist to decode them.

Occasionally, however, Congress will pass a bill that is short and simple and to the point. These short and simple bills sometimes end up being the most important.

For example, last week the House Armed Services Committee passed, by a vote of 50 to 3, a bill, which plainly states that "it is the policy of the United States to deploy a national missile defense."

If words really mean anything, the 17 words, which make up this bill will have a big impact on our national security in the years ahead.

More and more countries are acquiring missiles, which can reach our shores. What a lot of Americans don't realize is that we have no defense - of any kind - to stop a missile after it has been launched. We are at risk today.

Now some people in Washington still believe it would provoke the Russians if we have a defense against missiles. They think old treaties with the former Soviet Union are more important than being able to defend ourselves. Well, the Soviet Union doesn't exist anymore. But the threat of our being attacked by a missile increases with each passing day.

Others say, "Oh, it will never work." But we have already done a lot of research. What's needed now is a decision and some old-fashioned backbone. It doesn't require long, fancy words. It just takes a commitment to do what is right for the nation and to make sure our people are secure.

Donley farmers to discuss forming Marketing Club

By Leon J. Church, County Agent

A meeting to discuss the formation of a marketing club to help area agriculture producers sharpen their marketing skill will be held March 9, 1999, at the Paymaster Gin in Lelia Lake beginning at 7:00 a.m., said Leon Church, Donley County Extension Agent for Agriculture. Coffee and sweet rolls will be provided.

Anyone interested in participating in this new marketing club should contact him at (806)874-2141, Church said.

The passage of the 1996 Farm Bill ushered in a new era for farmers, Church said. It is set the stage for a new environment for economic decision-making by the producer. "The American farmer, who has always been faced with the complex challenges of producing, is now also confronted with greater challenges in marketing and risk management. The producer who survives in this new economic environment must have superior skills in risk management," the Extension agent said.

"The new federal program lets farmers plant for the market, but its new planting flexibility is likely to bring an increased level of volatility," explained Dr. Steve Amosson, economist and marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Amarillo.

"As farmers in the U.S. and abroad react to volatile prices, we could see large swings in acres planted to different crops. The marketing and risk management skill of U.S. producers must improve if they are to successfully compete in the changing worldwide agricultural industry of the next century."

Helping to improve the risk management skills of farmers is a high priority of the Extension Service, requiring intensive educational programming. The formation of marketing clubs is one way to improve the marketing skills of producers.

A marketing club is usually made up of 15 to 25 farmers who meet once or twice a month with the common goal of increasing their knowledge of marketing and other risk management concepts.

The members learn from each other and from the presentation of various educational programs. The members will watch markets and learn to evaluate various alternatives at any point in time. The meetings will include outside speakers, regular interaction among the members, and possibly some group trading of options.

The meeting March 9 in Lelia Lake is to determine if there is adequate interest to start a club. There will be a discussion of what the marketing club will do and the club will be organized. Each person present will be asked to complete a brief survey to indicate what day of week, time, and location would be best to hold such meetings. There will also be a discussion of what topics should be studied and information regarding the Futures and Options Workshop to be held March 18.

Anyone interested in learning more about how to deal with the risks of producing and marketing agricultural products is welcome to attend this meeting. Additional information may be obtained from the county office of the Extension Service.

Hrbacek places fifth at San Antonio Show

By Leon J. Church, County Agent

Travis Hrbacek, from Hedley recently exhibited the fifth place middle weight Chester white barrow at the 1999 San Antonio Livestock Show & Rodeo, February 15-20.

The barrow was sold at auction for $900 on Saturday, February 20. More than 2,500 market barrows were entered in the San Antonio stock show with only approximately 300 qualifying to sell through the auction sale. The barrow was bred by Travis' grandfather Tracy Sanders also of Hedley.

Travis did an excellent job of representing Hedley Jr. FFA and all of Donley County youth. He helped others in the county with exhibits by driving or leading their animals through the weigh in and classification process. Congratulations to Travis.

Drug tested to slow progression of Parkinson's disease

HOUSTON - A drug for Lou Gehrig's disease/ALS is being studied as a possible treatment to slow or stop the progression of Parkinson's disease.

"Current Parkinson's drugs treat only the symptoms," said Dr. Joseph Jankovic, director of the Parkinson's Disease Center and Movement Disorders Clinic at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "This drug, riluzole, might offer a way to block a brain chemical contributing to nerve cell death."

Parkinson's disease, a progressive neurodegenerative disorder, affects movement and is characterized by tremor, slowness of movement, rigid muscles, and balance problems. It is caused by deterioration of the brain's nerve cells that release dopamine, a chemical necessary for normal movements.

"Parkinson's patients have increased activity in a brain region called the subthalamic nucleus," said Jankovic, a staff neurologist at The Methodist Hospital. "This overactive area produces too much glutamate, a brain chemical that in excess can over-stimulate nerve cells and cause them to die."

Researchers hope that blocking the release of glutamate will slow or stop Parkinson's-related nerve cell death. Riluzole is known to prevent the release of glutamate.

"In studies of animals with experimentally-induced Parkinson's disease, the blocking of glutamate has lessened the disease," Jankovic said.

In a pilot study at Baylor, riluzole appeared to be well tolerated by Parkinson's patients. However, the study was too small to determine if the drug was able to slow progression.

The current multi-center study will involve approximately 1,050 patients in 11 countries. Forty-three US centers are participating.

"Each center will enroll patients with early-stage Parkinson's disease who have not been treated with the standard Parkinson's medication, L-dopa, or with other dopamine-related drugs," Jankovic said. "Symptoms of resting tremor, rigidity, or slowness must have been present less than three years."

Early stage patients taking L-dopa or other Parkinson's drugs can be considered for the study if they stop their medication one-month prior to entering the study.

Participants will receive either riluzole or an inactive medication for two years and will have several clinical evaluations. A subset of patients will have brain images, called PET scans, taken at the beginning and end of the study. The imaging will allow researchers to see the condition of nerve terminals in the brain that release dopamine.

"Since Parkinson's patients normally lose these nerve terminals, we hope to see that patients on riluzole have greater preservation of those areas in the brain," Jankovic said.

Patients wanting study information can call 1-800-220-8610.

Lady Bulldogs finish season with win over Redlands

The Clarendon College Lady Bulldogs snapped their 13 game losing streak in their final game on Saturday in El Reno, Oklahoma, against Redlands College.

Clarendon was hot from behind the arc in the first 20 minutes. Sophomore Corey Knorpp of Clarendon sparked the Lady Bulldogs scoring three three point shots and making four of four free throws for 13 of her 17 points in the first half. The Lady Bulldogs led at halftime, 45-32.

Clarendon College continued to play solid defense in the second half, and continued to work the ball well to their post players. Freshman post Roni Henderson from Tulia, scored 12 in the second half and had a game high 22 points. The Lady Bulldogs went 13 of 15 from the charity stripe to secure their 84-73 victory.

Leading the scoring for the Lady Bulldogs were Roni Henderson, 22; Corey Knorpp, 17; Kiri Neptune, 14; Wendy Russ, 12; Shayla Weatherly, 11; Dana Davis, 8; and April Gardner, 2.

"The girls played very well on Saturday. We executed our offense well and played pretty good defense. I was proud of several of the girls for stepping up and showing what they are capable of doing. This season has been a challenge for the whole team. It was great to end the year on such a positive note," said Head Coach Joel Zehr.

The Lady Bulldogs played Howard College on Monday night. The score at the half was 24-39 in favor of Howard. Clarendon fared better in the second half but were defeated, 52-63.

Leading the scoring for Clarendon were Kiri Neptune, 25; Roni Henderson, 12; and Shayla Weatherly, 6.

Clarendon hosted South Plains College on Thursday in their final conference game of the season. South Plains led at the half, 32-35. Clarendon had a tough time defending the three point shot in the second half as South Plains hit six and won the game, 64-79.

Leading scorers for the Lady Bulldogs were Corey Knorpp, 13; Kiri Neptune, 13; Wendy Russ, 11; and Roni Henderson, 10.

The Lady Bulldogs finished their season 1-13 in conference play and 7-15 overall.

Chefs talk beef domination at the foodservice level

Twenty-four of Texas' top chefs learned how to expand beef restaurant servings far beyond its dominating 7 billion a year at a recent conference co-hosted by the Texas Beef Council, through the beef checkoff program, and Texas A&M University.

The chefs learned new utilization for undervalued cuts from the chuck and round sections. They also received information on how beef continues to offer new foodservice possibilities.

Bulldogs to play in NSCAA National Tournament

The Clarendon College Bulldogs had their backs against the wall on Saturday as they tried to secure a bid in the National Small College Athletic Association (NSCAA) national tournament. The Bulldogs had to win their last game on the road in El Reno, Oklahoma, against a good Redlands College team in order to be eligible for the tournament.

Clarendon and Redlands played each other evenly in the first 20 minutes. The Bulldogs made two more free throws in the first half and were up 38-36 at the break.

Redlands kept up with the Bulldogs in the second half and tied the score at 68 at the end of regulation to force overtime.

Clarendon dug down in the OT and came up with 10 extra points to Redland's seven to win the game, 78-75.

Scoring for the Bulldogs were Danny Anaya, 19; Jauron Moreland, 14; Byron Dixon, 13; Nate Jones, 12; and Tim Marshall, 10.

"It has been a tough last three weeks for the team. We've sustained injuries to key players. The guys have showed a lot of character through the injuries and when they have been fatigued physically. I think we played well at Redlands, and I'm proud of the guys for not lying down and quitting," said Coach Joe Mondragon.

The Bulldogs' road win earned them the eighth seed in the NSCAA National Tournament in Salina, Kansas. Clarendon played their first game of the double elimination tournament on Wednesday, March 3.

As of press time the exact time of the game had not been set. Results will be in next week's CLARENDON ENTERPRISE. The stats for the Bulldogs' games on Monday, February 21, and Thursday, February 25, were not available at press time.

Owls fall to Kress in Bi-District game

The Hedley varsity boys basketball team traveled to Caprock High School in Amarillo on Tuesday, February 23, to play the Kress Kangaroos in a Class A Bi-District basketball game.

The Owls started out well in the first quarter against the Roos. The game was close with each team taking the lead at different points in the ball game. At the end of the first eight minutes, the Owls were ahead, 18-17. However, in the second quarter, Hedley just didn't seem to have their heart in the game. They quickly fell behind Kress with the halftime score showing 22-45.

But the Owls weren't ready to give up yet. They came back in the third quarter to match Kress perfectly, both teams scoring 15 points. Then in the fourth quarter, Hedley took Kress by surprise when the Owls came out and got within 13 points of the Roos. But it was not enough to pull off a win. The Owls lost, 57-80.

Scoring for the Owls were Jeremy Wells, 20; Roger Wade, 13; Dustin Monroe, 8; Cody Graves, 8; Russell King, 3; Josh Collins, 3; and Creed Stephens, 2.

Holden participates in Child Welfare Conference in D.C.

Williams Holden, President of the Donley County Child Welfare Board, of Clarendon recently attended the Child Welfare League of America's 1999 national conference in Washington, D.C.

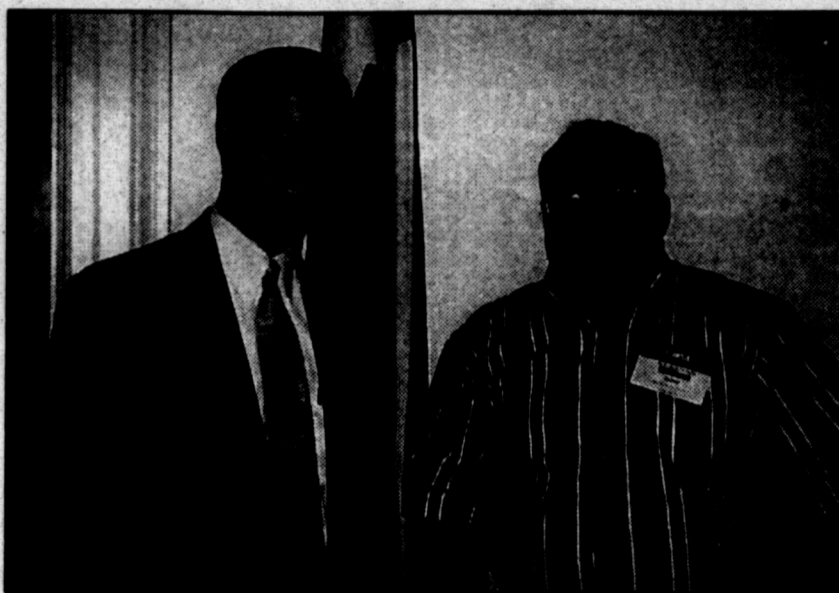

The conference, "Children 99: Countdown to the Millennium," brought together more than 1,800 child welfare professionals and child advocates from across the United States and Canada to address the needs of abused and neglected children served by the child welfare system.

Participants in the February 24-26 conference attended workshops that covered numerous topics, among them the relationship between child abuse and juvenile delinquency, successful adoption of children with special needs, preventing teen pregnancy, the role of housing in moving vulnerable families to self-sufficiency, linking the child welfare system and substance abuse treatment services, issues in managed behavioral health care and child welfare services, helping young children with violent behavior, and lessons learned from the overhaul of the nation's welfare system.

Conference keynote speakers and special presenters included General Barry R. McCaffery, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy; Sandra L. Trurman, director of the Office of National AIDS Policy; Congressman Thomas Allen (D-ME), who talked about reducing child deaths and heightening public awareness of preventable deaths of children and teens; and former teacher/guidance counselor Arturo Hernandez, whose acclaimed book Peace in the Streets: Breaking the Cycle of Gang Violence offers eight steps to a gang-free community. Special awards were presented to Alaska Governor Tony Knowles, Sen. Pete Domenici (R-NM) and Sen. Paul Wellstone (D-MN), Rep. Robert "Bobby" Scott (D-VA) and Rep. Constance Morella (R-MD).

doned, and otherwise vulnerable children and their families. CWLA advocates on Capitol Hill for federal legislation to help at-risk children and families, sets standards of practice for agencies, trains social workers, and presents numerous conferences and meetings each year, conducts original research, and is the largest publisher of child welfare materials in the world.

The Region 1 Panhandle Contingency of the Texas Council of Child Welfare Boards met with area Congressional members and Senator Kay Bailey Hutchinson, to discuss concerns dealing with child abuse and the protection of abused children. Bill Holden met with Congressman William "Mac" Thornberry to advise him of the progress of the newly formed Donley County Child Welfare Board and its upcoming programs.

Historical Commission to hold meeting in Amarillo

AMARILLO - Larry Oaks, the new executive director of the Texas Historical Commission (THC), and other THC staff members are holding a public meeting in Amarillo on Thursday, March 11, from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. at the Potter County Courthouse Jury Room (510 S. Fillmore) to introduce a new agency initiative, the State of the State of Preservation.

The THC is conducting a statewide survey to determine what constituents see as the condition of their historic resources and what their preservation-related goals are for the next five years. The results will determine how the THC can best assist communities across the state in the coming years.

"We are laying the groundwork to build preservation partnerships for a new millennium," said Oaks. "By talking with people across the state to learn their needs, we can determine how to most effectively channel our agency's resources towards the com-

SBA Disaster Loan filing deadline approaching

LUBBOCK - Businesses in some Texas counties have until March 23, 1999, to file applications for low-interest disaster loans from the US Small Business Administration (SBA).

The SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loans are available for businesses dependent on farmers and ranchers sustaining crop losses from drought that occurred from June 1, 1997, through July 8, 1998, and continuing; and flooding, hail, and high winds that occurred on May 25 and May 26, 1998.

Farmers and ranchers are not eligible for these SBA loans. However, nurseries that are victims of drought disasters can apply.

Businesses in the entire state are eligible to apply for the drought from June 1, 1997, through July 8, 1998.

Applications and further information can be obtained by calling the SBA toll-free at 1-800-366-6303 or TDD 817-267-4688 for the hearing impaired.

mon goal of protecting and preserving the archeological, historical, and cultural resources of Texas."

The goals of the State of the State of Preservation public meetings are to:

- Learn what various communities see as their biggest challenges in preservation, and how the THC can help.

- Ask what assistance local communities need most to save their historic and archeological resources.

- Bring attention to preservation tools that the public may not know about.

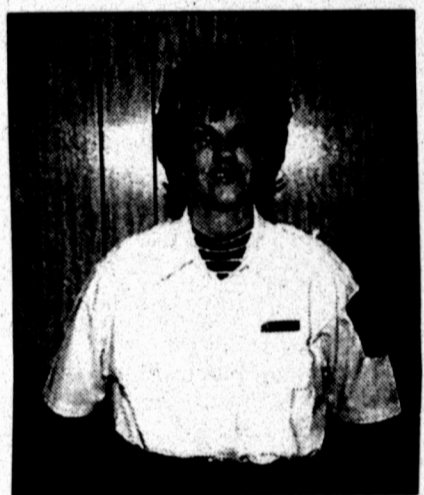

- Identify the elements of a new vision for preservation in Texas and determine what training is necessary to empower local communities and the THC to fulfill a shared mission.

For more information on THC programs, call 512/463-6100 or see the agency's web site at www.thc.state.tx.us.
