VOLUME VIII

MUENSTER, TEXAS, COOKE COUNTY, FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 1944

NUMBER 21

The eyes of Texas are upon us. So it seems, at least, from the announcement that a group of University of Texas economists have chosen Cooke County as a special field for their post-war plans.

Of even greater interest to us at Muenster is the fact that the eyes of Texas are specifically upon us as a community taking a special part in the county program. The experts have indicated, an interest in our agricultural development and expect us to hold up that phase of future progress.

Thanks to the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce for some well handled publicity, both the county and the community are getting an enviable break. Ideas the experts will offer plus the enthusiasm their interest will create can result in some very pleasing achievement. Another point is that all this sort of puts us in the limelight. An extra inducement to make good. Failure would be awful bitter with so many people looking on.

However, we are happy to note, the interest and publicity will affect us in degree only, not in basic purpose. Cooke county planners formulated their ideas before the University of Texas offered a hand. Muenster was headed in that direction long before the war came on. For us the only thing new is the interest created outside our own community.

And so, off to a romping, interesting program that will mark our part of the country as a wonderful place to live and to make a living.

As far as we are concerned, the soil program comes first. Ours is primarily a farming section, probably it always will be. Hence our first purpose must be to save the soil itself. Next to till it in a way that will retain the greatest possible percentage of annual rainfall. And finally to adopt a system of crops that will not only produce profitably but also return the greatest possible amount of plant food to the soil. In principle it's as simple as that. When we start applying the principle is when the expert help will come in handy.

Besides the soil, we have another resource we can't afford to ignore. Manpower. The community has a wonderful reserve of skill and talent just waiting to be put to use in new industrial and commercial endeavors. Conditions are perfect for a small factory—maybe more than one—to process farm products of the area. That in turn would create greater possibilities for retail business.

Then there are civic advancements to consider. A hospital, recreational facilities, improvements to the school system and what not, all running hand in hand with material advancements one enhancing the progress of the other.

It all sounds like a pipe dream. In fact, in its present stage it isn't much more, but it's the kind of dream that courage and initiative can bring to reality.

Muenster has all the ingredients necessary to put the program over. Fertile soil and community habits of thrift, cooperation and hard work. Those same ingredients have already given it a good start toward the goal.

The mere thought of it is intriguing. Constantly adding to our comforts and opportunities and constantly enjoying the satisfaction of accomplishing something worth while. And what a prospect for service men! Coming back they will welcome it as a means toward the hopes and ambitions that sustained them through the sordid mess.

One of the most gratifying features of the whole program is the intention to advance on our own power and not on the well known pump priming methods of bureaucratic agencies. We know it will have a wholesale effect on our pride while relieving us of political strings. We hope it will help bring the country back to a common sense economic basis.

At first that system may be a little hard to follow. The habit of accepting handout money is not easy to break, especially when a person reflects that he is going to be taxed for his pro rata share of it.

On the other hand, Muenster can consider its past experience and forego the dose with little reluctance. Twice it accepted federal aid and twice it discovered that it saved little if any money by doing so. Red tape inefficiency ran the total cost to ridiculous figures. After all there isn't much point in paying one third of a $75,000 federal assisted project when people can do the same thing alone for $25,000.

Hence, we're not making any real sacrifice when we turn down the alphabetical help. We're only taking the lead in a movement (Continued on Page 4)

Cliff C. Gardner For Reelection As Representative

C. C. (Cliff) Gardner, well known Gainesville business man, and with a background of many years as a farmer, authorizes The Enterprise to announce his candidacy for reelection to a second term as Cooke county's representative in the Texas legislature. In seeking the support of the voters at the Democratic primary election next July, Mr. Gardner points to his term in office and feels that the experience gained therein, better qualifies him to handle the legislative affairs of the people of this county in the next two years, than when he first went to Austin, quite unfamiliar with legislative procedure.

Mr. Gardner made an enviable record for himself in his initial incumbency at Austin and he voted on all public matters coming before the house, in which he believed was for the best interest of his constituents and the welfare of the state as a whole. He was almost invariably present at the regularly scheduled sessions of the house and at meetings of special committees, and he served on several important committees, by appointment of the speaker of the house.

Cooke county citizens who visited Austin during the time the legislature was in session, or who made observations on other occasions, are convinced that Mr. Gardner stands high in the estimation of his colleagues and heads of the various departments of government, by reason of his courteous and affable disposition, his earnest desire to render a good accounting of his stewardship, and the sound judgment he manifested in consideration of and voting upon, matters of importance to the welfare of the people. It is known that not only Mr. Gardner, but mutual friends in the county, have received by letters or personal statements, high commendations regarding Mr. Gardner's services at Austin, as well as his exemplary conduct at all times and the sincere manner in which he studied legislation before voting upon it. He has reflected credit upon Cooke county as a legislator and there are many persons who believe that he richly deserves reelection as a reward for past services, plus being prepared by experience to render better service in the future. There is no question but that a majority of the men and women with whom he worked at Austin, would welcome his return to the legislature.

Mr. Gardner was born on a Cooke county farm and has spent nearly all his life in this county. He received his education in the public schools of the county, plus two years at Vernon. Since 1923, he has engaged principally in the operation of service stations, also, has been representative of firms manufacturing tires, batteries, automobile accessories and house-

Experts Here Thursday For Session and Lunch With Local Leaders

Mapping of the future of Cooke county in a planning program began last week at the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce under the direction of a group of University of Texas professors in the first "laboratory" of post war planning in Texas, and by the end of the week the first phase of the work was completed.

More than a hundred citizens of the county, including principally business men and farmers, met with the university staff, operating in groups to work out problems concerning highways, agriculture, marketing, government and community building generally.

The visiting staff of experts, along with businessmen from Gainesville and this city, met here Thursday at noon for a luncheon in the City Hall and for a meeting at which problems of the community were discussed.

Mayor J.M. Weinzapfel presided at the gathering here and in his address explained the operation and success of the various cooperative systems flourishing here, and told of other plans that are being made for the western part of the county. He gave praise and credit to the women's organization for help in civic affairs and introduced to the assemblage Miss Olivia Stock, president of the Civic League and Garden Club, and Mrs. T.S. Myrick, a past president. He outlined briefly the histories of the cheese plant, REA, hatchery, fire insurance company, refinery, motion picture theatre and school system.

Rev. Thomas Buerger was the next speaker. He told about the Muenster school system, and added that Mr. Weinzapfel, who is the guiding force behind the local cooperatives and their success, has never received the credit that is due him, adding that he is a quiet man and doesn't talk much.

Dr. John Frederick, professor of transportation at Texas U. and president of the Austin Chamber of Commerce, was introduced and in his address offered thanks in behalf of the Austin group for the courtesies extended by the Muenster citizens and for the sumptuous meal. He concluded with "you have proof here of what a community can do when its citizens work together. People must feel that they have a part in the work that goes on and by working together thus you people have accomplished much".

Other speakers were J.W. Hess, president of Muenster's Refinery, Inc., and Dr. T.S. Myrick, local physician. The latter told of the need for a hospital here, and his hope that after the war this will be one of the projects receiving attention. Mr. Hess, also a supervisor of the Upper-Elm Red Soil Conservation district, spoke briefly on that subject.

After adjournment the visitors inspected places of interest in the community and through the courtesy of Father Thomas were presented with Muenster Histories.

In attendance at the luncheon and meeting were the following: Dr. John Frederick; Prof. W. T. Rolfe, chairman of the department of Architecture and Planning; Dr. C.A. Wiley, professor of economics; Dean T.H. Shelby, professor of educational administration and dean of the Division (Continued on Page 4)

Members of the Young Ladies Sodality will volunteer as blood donors for the county plasma gathering during the 5-day visit of the mobile-unit in Gainesville, they decided at their regular meeting last week. Miss Gladys Wilde, chairman of the Apostolic committee, is in charge of registrations.

Other business discussed at the interesting session were plans for a Mother's Day program, and the organization of a softball team. Miss Katie Mae Walterscheid was placed in charge of the latter, and girls interested in playing ball are asked to see her.

Father Richard, spiritual director, gave a talk on "Christian Modesty" and led the opening and closing prayer.

MARCELLA FLUSCHE, S. SGT. PAUL FETSCH WED HERE MONDAY

A pretty church wedding here Monday morning at 9 o'clock united Miss Marcella Flusche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flusche, Sr., and S. Sgt. Paul J. Fetsch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferd Fetsch of Munday. Rev. Thomas Buegler, pastor, officiated at the nuptial high mass and performed the double ring ceremony, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the couple.

The church choir, with Sister M. Leonarda at the pipe organ, rendered music for the mass and the traditional wedding procession and recessional were given by the organist.

The bride wore a becoming floor length dress of white jersey, made with a long, fitted waist and full skirt, and long sleeves pointed at the wrist. Her full length veil of illusion fell from a halo of seed pearls and she carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations. Her only jewelry was a gold cross and chain, a gift from the bridegroom, and for "something old" she carried a sapphire rosary belonging to her mother.

Miss Armella Flusche, twin sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was attired in a frock of blue taffeta, made identical to the bride's with the exception of short puffed sleeves. She wore a headdress of pink net with a shouffler length veil and a corsage of pink carnations.

Attending Sgt. Fetsch as best-man was his brother, John Fetsch of Munday.

Following the rites the bridal party were guests at breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, and during the day an informal reception honored the couple. Dinner was served to a large assemblage of relatives and close friends. The bride's table carried out her chosen colors of white and blue and was centered with a large decorated wedding cake, flanked with arrangements of bridal wreath.

On Tuesday Sgt. and Mrs. Fetsch left for Munday and Rhinecland to visit relatives and will return here the latter part of the week for a brief visit before departing for Mitchell Field, N.Y., where he is stationed with the army air corps as an engineer. He is a native of Rhinecland, attended school there and entered the service in January, 1942, receiving his training at Sheppard Field, Texas, and Chanute Field, Ill. They will make their home at 18 Denton Ave., East Rockaway, N.Y., a town near the field where Sgt. Fetsch is stationed.

Mrs. Fetsch is a native of this city, attended Sacred Heart School and took active part in work connected with the Blessed Virgin Sodality. For traveling she wore an aqua blue frock with black accessories.

Out of town relatives at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs.

Ferd Fetsch, John and Mary Fetsch, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Fetsch, and two children of Munday; Messrs. and Mrs. L.W. Alois and Conrad Flusche and families and Mr. and Mrs. Urban Flusche all of Decatur; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Flusche and family and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Blumberg of Pilot Point; Mr. and Mrs. Joe J. protein meal to an individual. The requirement regarding the use of more than 500 pounds of protein meal monthly in mixed feeds also is eliminated.

This situation has been effected by revocation of Director's Order No. 2 of Food Production Order 9 Revision 3, which was issued December 24, 1943. On that date, the 500-pound plus deliveries were prohibited in New Mexico and certain counties in West Texas, unless given special approval by County Agricultural Conservation Committees. On January 1, 1944 the area was extended to include Oklahoma and the entire State of Texas.

Sanitation Saves Chicks

Systematic sanitation in the brooder house and poultry yard at the present time may save a lot of chicks for the 1944 laying flocks. Albert Brient, County Agent, says that death among chicks just now will be due largely to coccidiosis, a disease which attacks them between the fourth and eighth weeks.

Birds are affected and droopy and listless with sagging wings, and behave as if sleepy. They walk stiffly and pass bloody droppings. The disease originates with a one-celled organism in early coccidia, and its spread rises with the advance of warm weather and wet periods. The reason is that the coccidia depends upon warmth and moisture for development. After they pass from an infected chick these coccidia must incubate 24 to 72 hours where it is warm and damp before they become harmful. The amount of damage depends upon the number of the organisms a chick picks up. A few has no noticeable effect and may even build up resistance to the disease. But it should be remembered that a bird raised to maturity free from coccidia may die from coccidiosis if allowed to run on contaminated soil.

Mr. Brient says there is no type of medication which will stop the disease. But daily cleaning of the brooder house and avoidance of overcrowding it during an outbreak will cause the infection to decline. Also moving feed and water containers several times weekly within the house and on the range is helpful. Another thing to remember is that sunlight is effective in destroying coccidia and other disease organisms. But in case of an outbreak see your county Extension agents.

The Record:

Largely responsible for this record is the teamwork which the Lone Star Organization, working together over a period of years, has developed.

And you, the customer, by using approved appliances and taking good care of them, work hand-in-hand with this team to keep the service functioning smoothly and economically. This is important in these days when our full energies and abilities are dedicated to the job of providing dependable fuel service to war plants as well as to business and the home.

Right now is the time to clean, check, cover and store for summer all heating appliances. Storing them clean and ready for another winter of satisfactory service is one means of making sure the gas you use is used wisely. Remember, just because the cost of Lone Star Gas Service is less today than at beginning of the war is no reason why it should be wasted.

Thirty-three high school sodalists participated in making a three-hour devotion on Good Friday from 12 noon to 3 p.m. During the three hours the stations of the cross were made outside, rosary was recited at the cemetery and time was spent in meditation on the seven last words of Christ. The cooperation of Sodalists who attended the three hours was gratifying, and they may be assured that their time was well spent.

Introducing Johnnie Arendt: (If he needs introducing) I suppose there is nothing nicer in this world than a polite boy and Johnnie Arendt is one of those. He is always "Johnnie on the spot" when there is anything that needs to be done. If he has to be found in a "flash", one will usually find him with his head buried in an encyclopedia trying to find out the downfall of Germany in the last World War. Now don't think Johnnie is one of these perfect book worms — not at all. He is a lover of baseball, volleyball, and hunting — the female type. Now that Lent is over, I bet Johnnie will be seeing that cute little blonde again, won't you Johnnie? Johnnie being six-foot tall, and having a full set of teeth, and apparently being healthy, both mentally and physically, he will probably pass the army tests in the near future. For sure, he will faithfully serve in any branch that he is put into, and all of the students wish him lots of luck. Johnnie has taken a great interest in the welfare of the Sodality acting as prefect of the organization for the past school term.

Miss Wanda Lou Brown of Gainesville spent the weekend and Monday with her sister, Mrs. Herman Fette and family.

Miss Catherine Seyler of Dallas and Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Hope and baby of Fort Worth were here to spend the weekend with their mother, Mrs. Frank Seyler and other relatives, and also visited their sister, Mrs. John Mosman and family at Saint Jo.

plish more than those who usually require one session in getting acquainted with the procedure. He believes that he is sufficiently well versed to get more done for Cooke county in his second term than in the first and he is ambitious to have an opportunity to do so.

Mr. Gardner is 39 years of age, youthful and active in body and mind, yet with a judgement matured by years of experience in business and of dealing with a large proportion of the public of this community, to whom he feels a debt of gratitude.

He invites the people to inquire of those with whom he served at Austin, or of the heads of the various state departments, concerning the reputation he made as Cooke county's representative, and he is willing to abide by a decision at the polls based thereupon. To those who have become of voting age since the last election, he submits his record as a legislator and as private citizen, and pledges himself to a continuation of honest, sincere efforts to make this county the best representative of which he is capable. Misses Miriam Koesler and Elizabeth Walterscheid returned to their duties at St. Vincent's hospital in Sherman Wednesday after being here for a visit since Sunday evening.

In relation to our soil conservation program, approval of our methods by a man like Louis Bromfield is almost equivalent to a guarantee of success. He definitely knows what he's speaking about. Years of study are backed up by the practical experience of converting his own farm from depleted waste to abundant productivity. Today he is the nation's foremost exponent for preserving and reclaiming our vanishing soil resource.

Incidentally, this column's views on public hand outs is also advocated by Bromfield. A convenient article to check on is that by himself in the current Reader's Digest. Reading it a person may find himself recalling the old proverb, "God helps those who help themselves." Or is that really the case? Maybe such people just seem to be getting Divine help because they are doing so much for themselves.
