Water crisis eases, library gets good news

by Dave Fette

Current water rationing procedures in Muenster seem acceptable to most citizens, according to city administrator Chris Yosten. He reported to the city council Monday night that the water supply in city storage tanks is adequate for fire protection and residential and business use. "I think it might even be okay to allow two hours of landscape watering per day instead of only one hour allowed during the previous weeks," he said. The council decided to keep the rationing plan of one hour per day in effect, however, until pumping capacity is increased or the demand is decreased. Recent rains have temporarily helped but they want to play it safe.

Yosten described how peak use when the crisis started last month, was approximately 700,000 gallons of water per day. Current pumping capacity in city wells is only 600,000 gallons and current storage is 300,000 gallon. "We can't stay ahead of peak use very long with our current systems," he said. He recommended that the city immediately start planning to add another water well and storage tank to the system. The city's newest well was drilled 12 years ago.

The council discussed the fact that a proposed water tower on the north side of town by former city administrator Steve Moster years ago was turned down because of the estimated $200,000.00 cost at the time. Residents on the north side of Muenster frequently complain of low water pressure to this day.

Yosten said increased pressure in the system would almost surely cause some water main breaks in old pipes, especially in the six inch main under north Main Street and that the old storage tank on North Main was in too poor a condition to be used.

The council introduced a letter written by Gary Fisher citing the need and responsibility for the city to provide adequate water for residential and industrial use for the future of the city. At the city's request Herkey Biffle delivered specifications and recommendations to the council for a new well. He estimated the cost at approximately $35,000.

In spite of the high costs anticipated, the council will seek bids for a new well, additional water storage and necessary pipelines. Included will be a possible engineering study. The city is not committing to the project at this time but they want to have accurate costs at hand when planning the next annual budget in September.

The council next turned its attention to the Muenster Public Library. Previous reports to the Cooke County Commissioners' Court suggested that it was illegal for county library funds to be paid to a municipal library and Muenster's library stood to lose $4,000.00 of current funding from the county. Precinct 4 Commissioner Virgil Hess, along with several others requested possible legal alternatives from the county attorney. Augie Boto did find a simple solution in the form of a contract in which the Muenster Public Library provides free services to all county residents in return for county funding. This is authorized by the Texas Local Government Code.

The Muenster Library currently receives annual funding of $5,000.00 from the city of Muenster, $4,000.00 from Cooke County and about $2,000.00 from miscellaneous sources. Library board president, Andy Cherry, was present to describe expenses facing the library such as cataloging, need for more space and handicapped accessibility. He requested increased funding for the 1994 budget hoping to get $6,000.00 each from the city and the county. The request was added to the list for budget workshops in the near future.

Other discussion and action included:

- Herb Knabe told of the need for new five-inch hose to supply the fire departments main pumper truck. Current three-inch hose from the hydrant to truck is not sufficient. Projected cost is about $6,000.00. Knabe thinks the smaller hose can be sold for about $1,500.00. Council will give budget consideration.

- Arguments raised by Rufus Henscheid led to an amendment to the zoning ordinance. The change allows subdivision and sales of 25 foot building lots instead of requiring the sale of only whole lots. Building locations must still adhere to the minimum 75 foot rule. Additional land may be sold (for example an 80 foot location -- five extra feet) without going to the zoning board for an exception.

- Possible increases in water and sewer rates will be considered in the new budget.

- The current tenant on the north farm property was given a renewed three year lease. The council was pleased with the tenant and declined to award the lease to a new applicant for a slightly higher bid.

- Tracy Stoffels resigned as fire marshal. Volunteer fireman Alan Baldwin will replace her. The fire marshal job includes interpreting building codes, determining causes of fires, conducting fire inspections and public relations.

- A request by a citizen's group to re-stripe parking places around Sacred Heart Church and School on Main and Sixth Street was denied.

- The city accepted a rural fire fighting agreement with Cooke County. The city will receive $2,750.00 for the next year's service.

- The city will issue a resolution entering into an agreement with the Texas Highway Dept. for beautification projects along Main Street and Highway 82. The city will act only as the submitting agent. All planning, work and fundraising are to be handled by the

Area water problems continue to vex county

by Elaine Schad

Despite the welcomed relief of a little rainfall this week, some areas of Cooke County continue to struggle with their water supplies, while the situation is improving in other areas.

Bolivar Water Supply Corporation notified members this week that an emergency rationing program will become effective beginning on Friday and continuing through Sept. 6. All outdoor water usage is prohibited for the month with the exception of watering livestock. Bolivar Water Supply provides water to several areas of Cooke County, including the city of Valley View, to portions of northern Denton County, and to some parts of Wise County. Voluntary compliance with an odd-even watering schedule during the past two weeks has worked well in Lindsay, according to Lindsay Mayor Robert Walterscheid. The city is still having some sporadic problems with water pressure on occasions, but the water supply has been holding up so far, he said.

The City of Gainesville has had no problems so far with water pressure or storage, but received information this week from the Texas Water Commission that the city's water supply contained coliform bacteria according to water samples tested in July. The city has put additional chlorine in the water and more samples have been sent for testing, which will hopefully alleviate the situation.

The water situation in the City of Muenster has begun to stabilize somewhat, although city officials remain cautious in monitoring the city's water wells and water storage. Muenster residents are being asked to restrict watering to one hour per day. Those residents with odd-numbered houses may water in the morning while those with even-numbered houses may water in the evening. The city on a couple of occasions since mid-July has banned all outdoor watering when water storage could not keep up with the demand. In a related matter, the Muenster City Council this week authorized the city to advertise for bids for the construction of a new water well.

MMH makes preparations for future visits

by Janet Felderhoff

Muenster Memorial Hospital Board of Directors met with a full board Wednesday, July 28 for the first time since the death of Dr. Enrique Juarez in March. Sharon Felderhoff was appointed to complete his unexpired term. She was sworn in at the meeting.

Progress is being made in getting the paperwork completed so that the physician recruitment firm hired by the hospital board at their June meeting can begin recruiting. Board President Don Flusche reported that a meeting was held last week with himself, Jack Endres, Margie Starke, David Bright and a representative of the recruiting firm. More criteria was given as to what the hospital board and community will have to do. "We have to do the recruiting," said Flusche. "They're going to get the doctor up here but we have to recruit him. It's up to us to show him the town."

Flusche appointed Margie Starke to chair the recruiting project. Lora Hennigan and Sharon Felderhoff were appointed to assist her, but board members were told that they were all members of the committee and would all have a job.

"We may only have one opportunity 'cause they don't have a doctor visit twice," stressed Flusche. "A doctor comes up here and visits one time and that's it. They get a decision out of him at that time. These doctors may come from California, Canada or wherever. If we like him all we have to do is say and they'll sign him up."

Since the board could possibly have only a few days to prepare for a physician's recruitment visit the board agreed that they had to be prepared and know what they wanted to do to show Muenster at its best. Community help and ideas are needed and welcomed for this important project. Anyone interested in helping or sharing ideas should get in touch with any hospital board member.

There will be a meeting in Austin on August 19 with the Board of Medical Examiners to discuss when Dr. Currier will be released from his mini-residency program. It is anticipated that he will be released in September after a six month program.

It was announced that the hospital is sponsoring a Health Fair on Saturday, August 7 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. There will be many services offered free of charge and some reduced cost lab tests. All board members were encouraged to attend.

Administrator Jack Endres reported on the financial data for the month of June. The hospital suffered an operating loss of $44,515.00.

The hospital will be purchasing an upgraded computer system that will allow them to come on line to correct any problems with accounts being billed electronically to Medicare or Blue Cross. This will be required by Medicare within the next year. The new equipment should cost between two and three thousand dollars.

The next regular board meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, August 25. Everyone is invited and encouraged to attend.

Participants sought for Watermelon Parade

Forestburg's 13th annual Watermelon Festival and Homecoming will be Saturday, Aug. 21. A parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. at the Forestburg School building. The parade theme is "Schools," "History" or "History of Schools."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
Why was an ad run in the Muenster Enterprise and paid for with city tax dollars for sealed bids on the city farm?

The highest bid received was nearly $2 an acre higher than the one that was accepted. It seems to me that maybe some of the council members are more for helping their friends than for helping the city.

I know that $2 an acre doesn't amount to all that much money over the 3-year lease, but please recall the many, many times that we have heard the Council squeal over a lot less.

Yes, I am the one that bid the higher bid and, yes, it ticks me off. You may say that I didn't get the land because my father works for the city, but before I submitted my bid I went to City Hall to find out if I could bid and was told that I could.

So, the next time that the council passes a new tax or raises an old one, please recall that they themselves have failed to raise funds when they had the chance.

Thank you for printing this letter.

My very dear friends,

It has been, so it seems to me, a long time since I had a little chat with you, but I assure you that you have been in my thoughts, prayers and in my heart daily.

Nothing spectacular has happened in my life since then, unless I call July the 11th by that name. On that day, I had the immense pleasure of seeing, hugging and chatting with so many friends from Muenster, as well as many other places on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee of Sr. M. Agnes Voth, OSB as well as five Sisters who celebrated their 60 years in the Divine Service. These Sisters were: Sr. M. Veronica Studer, Sr. M. Jerome Loker, Sr. M. Florentine Temple, Sr. M. Benedicta Breckmann and Sr. M. Genevieve McConnell.

I could also have called June the 15th spectacular since on that day we elected a new Prioress. Her name is Sr. M. Henrietta Hockle, a citizen of Jonesboro. She chose as Subprioress Sr. M. Eileen Schneider, also a citizen of Jonesboro.

I was extremely happy to see that my subscription to the Muenster Enterprise has been renewed for another year, and for this I want to thank Mrs. Elfreda Fette a million times.

My heartfelt Congratulations to Dr. Martin Kralicic and Dr. Alfredo Antonetti for having served so heroically, one might say, for 29 years and 25 years, respectively, as Doctors at the Muenster Memorial Hospital.

Also read the letter written to the citizens of Muenster by the Administrator Jack Endres of the Muenster Memorial Hospital. It was indeed a very serious message and it should be heeded by the citizens of Muenster before it is too late.

I always enjoy reading the letters sent to the Editor of the Muenster Enterprise, and I suppose most of the Readers do, because on July the 11th I heard of all the guests who came from Muenster or neighboring towns: "We enjoy your letters very much and look forward to the next."

Now, I must, by all means, stop my chat with you, because it is already too long.

Lots and lots of Love and Prayers, your old friend,

G'day Mates, July 19, 1993

If you ever want to see kangaroos in Australia, I know right where to find them in large quantities. If you are ever in doubt as to whether or not there are large numbers of roos in Australia, let me assure you that as of today, the population of roos is verging on too large to be healthy in many places. I had been a bit skeptical of this fact until I discovered the truth with my own eyes. I suppose you could compare gray kangaroo stats with white-tailed deer stats of the USA. In some places they are scarce, other places moderately populated and, in others, they eat everything due to their high numbers and are a bit of a pest.

On the highway through South Australia between Adelaide and the New South Wales border (near the town of Broken Hill), there are lots of kangaroos. We were about two hours outside of Adelaide when I spotted a roo or two. But then I saw a dozen or more at once. Then there were groups of up to 20 roos, both on the left side and on the right. Not even 5 minutes could pass without another herd of roos showing up off the road a piece. In the space of 15 minutes, I had seen well over a hundred roos, all from the highway. There's no telling how many there were further off the road. And, yes, a few were right on the roadside as well, grazing to their bouncy heart's content.

I spent the last four days out at Kelvin Falls property (a ranch in Texas language). You see, I'm on vacation now, with one more week to go. Anyway, this is about a 2-1/2-hour drive west of Brisbane, in the hills west of the Great Dividing Range near the towns of Warwick and Stanthorpe. I had gone for a hike in one of their paddocks (pasture), and had sat down on a rock for to sit a spell and pray a rosary, when all of a sudden it was roo time! A dozen or more big grays came bounding over the hills, disappearing in the gullies, then reappearing suddenly over the crest of another hillside. Have you ever seen the movie, "Bambi," and recall the scene of the march of the stags? Well, this was a lot like it, except I was there in person and these weren't deer, but were gray kangaroos. A few stopped just in front of me long enough for me to click off a picture, and then they were off again. Let me tell you, they are magnificent creatures and awesome to watch in their own element.

Also at Kelvin Falls, I took another hike up above one of the water falls which gives the property its name. I padded through the bush up a hill like a white aborigine, and I still don't know how many wallabies and gray roos I spooked along the way. I thought I was in SA again. I would walk 10 paces, and another two or three would bound off. There must have been a good 30 just on that hillside alone. That evening, I was going up an adjacent hillside and saw more of the same, but also a surprise. On that hillside I saw his majesty, the largest of all marsupials in the world, the big red kangaroo. He was a massive roo, lots bigger than the big boomer grays. He was an incredible portrait of sheer power and strength as he effortlessly bounded up the steep incline of the hill. It was as if I was watching it in slow motion. Praise the Lord, I love this country, the granite belt of south-central Queensland.

Well, hope you enjoyed the roo show. Catch ya later.

Dear Editor:

In response to a recent letter writer alleging that conservatives are being less than truthful about Clinton's budget proposal, in all due respect it is obvious that the writer has not been reading the CBO and GAO reports which conservatively confirm republican and democratic apprehensions alike.

On the subject of jobs, we need to keep in mind that the Texas economy, in spite of severe displacements within the petroleum industry and unprecedented migration from the recession-ravaged east and midwest, grew continually during the 1980s. Escalating workers comp, skyrocketing business taxes and increased regulation drove most of the jobs from Texas mentioned in the letter.

The Clinton budget, if passed, will cost the U.S. economy between 1.1-1.3 million jobs and will fall far short of projected revenues. Hence, whereas the deficit is now receding, it will instead expand at an even faster rate under the new budget. "Soaking the rich" is simply a political ploy to extract more taxes out of the middle class, while the wealthy and successful scramble for tax shelters and more friendly foreign investments.

Not only should Congress scrap Clinton's tax and spend, job-destroying "deficit reduction" bill, it should immediately lower capital gains taxes and the fraudulent indexing that is now obstructing trillions of investment dollars from being put to work. Both jobs and increased revenues and, with better fiscal constraint from Congress, a shrinking debt will be realized. And that's the truth!

Sincerely,

Do you qualify for survivor benefits?

The Teacher Retirement System of Texas is looking for former annuitants - widows or widowers of deceased members or retirees - whose survivor benefits stopped when they remarried prior to 1980. A new Texas law has now restored their benefits.

State law previously required that benefits stop when a surviving spouse remarried. That law was changed in September 1980 permitting benefits, in future years, to continue for surviving spouses who remarried; however, those who had already lost benefits before that date were not included.

The 73rd Texas Legislature this spring rectified that inequity and passed House Bill 2711 restoring payments to those beneficiaries whose benefits stopped when they remarried.

TRS, however, does not have record of these individuals since their names were dropped from the system database when their benefits

Expanded dialing planned for 817 area code

Beginning in early 1994, all telephone customers in the non-metro area (outside Fort Worth Metro) of the 817 area code will have to begin dialing "1+817+seven digit number" or "0+817+seven digit number" on all long distance calls within the 817 area.

Alvin Fuhrman, president and general manager of Muenster Telephone Corporation, explained that in the past non-metro 817 customers did not have to dial the area code for long distance calls within the same area code. "That is changing," said Fuhrman. "Southwestern Bell is developing a new dialing plan as we run out of new phone numbers in the 817 area."

"We'll put out additional information through the news media, in bill messages and letters to long distance companies and cellular telephone vendors," Fuhrman said. "In many cases, telephone equipment owned by customers will have to be reprogrammed to enable the new dialing arrangement."

Fuhrman added that the new dialing procedure will not be necessary until January 1994. However, on a strictly optional basis, customers may start dialing the 817 area code beginning Oct. 20, 1993. Customers will be encouraged to start dialing the area code, while it is still optional, to ease them into the process. Speed Dialing and Call Forwarding

The Clinton Five and an invasion of myths

Washington is currently being invaded by myths -- Clinton's myths. Five of our Texas Congressmen, bowing obediently to the Washington establishment, assisted the myths as they made their way through Congress, then cast a "reality vote" so they could go back home and proudly proclaim their opposition to the new tax plan they helped to pass.

The Clinton tax package is bad news for families and businesses -- not because of what it claims to do, but what it actually would do. The discrepancy between myth and reality is astonishing. A quick examination uncovers five of the myths which have invaded Washington in recent months.

Myth #1: Higher taxes will help the economy. The president's budget package is chock-full of new taxes. As they have worked their way through Congress, these taxes have taken on different shapes and forms, but they are still there: 1) New energy taxes, either in the form of a hidden tax on all energy, or a tax on transportation fuels; 2) Corporate tax increases; and 3) raised income tax rates. These last increases will be especially damaging because many small businesses -- the chief job creators of the 1980s -- file personal (as opposed to corporate) tax returns.

President Clinton claims that these new taxes will reassure financial markets that the deficit is on the way down and that this will keep interest rates down. But the reality is that higher taxes have never, ever helped the economy. This is simple economics: raising taxes cools down the economy; lowering taxes heats up the economy.

Myth #2: The "rich" will pay the new taxes. Washington promised the same thing in 1990, the last time tax rates were raised and the result was that high-income taxpayers paid 64 less in taxes in 1991. That means that the rest of us paid more, about 18 more.

Myth #3: The Clinton budget plan will cut spending. President Clinton likes to claim that his plan makes difficult cuts in government programs. This is not true. The only major category of the budget which incurs significant budget cuts under the Clinton plan is defense. In fact, the Clinton plan would increase spending on a host of programs. Using creative language (such as including new taxes on Social Security in spending cuts), Clinton claims that his tax plan cuts spending $1 for every $1 of tax increases. In reality, the plan raises at least $3 in new taxes for every $1 in cuts. Back in March, the liberal Congressional Budget Office (CBO) pegged the distribution at $4.85 in new taxes for every $1 in cuts. The Senate-passed version of the plan raises $3.18 in taxes for every $1 in cuts. The House version, more in tune with Clinton's original plan, is even worse. It raises taxes $6.35 for every $1 in cuts. All the taxes would be raised immediately; most of the promised spending cuts wouldn't materialize until 1996 and beyond -- after the next presidential election!

Myth #4: The Clinton tax increase will reduce the deficit. This is perhaps the most troubling myth of all. Americans are less hostile to new taxes if they think the new revenues will go strictly toward reducing the deficit. But the reality of Clinton's plan is that even with the new taxes, the budget deficit will continue to run out of control. By the president's own estimates, the deficit would decline in 1997 to just under $200 billion. But by the end of the decade, the deficit would be back above $300 billion per year. Independent estimates put the deficit much higher. The Dallas-based National Center for Policy Analysis, for example, estimates that the annual deficit would top $400 billion under the Clinton plan by the end of the decade.

Myth #5: Conservative Democrats from Texas voted against the Clinton tax plan. Texas Congressmen Chapman, Edwards, Geren, Laughlin, and Wilson (the "Clinton Five") supported the Clinton tax bill by voting for a closed rule which prohibited amendments which could have improved the bill by eliminating or reducing taxes or spending. By voting for the closed rule, they guaranteed that the final bill would include the Clinton taxes. The "Clinton Five" made sure the taxes would be in the bill, satisfying their cronies in Washington, then voted against final passage, so they could have it both ways when they visit their districts in Texas. As the Wall Street Journal said, "A vote for the closed rule is a vote for the largest tax increase in American history."

The bottom line is that the Clinton tax plan is bad news for business and bad news for families. And, thanks to the "Clinton Five" the government appetite for higher taxes and spending will continue unchecked, and the higher taxes will kill jobs.

But there is good news: the Clinton plan can be stopped. The Senate and House must each vote on the tax plan again, after the conference committee writes a compromise between the two versions. This "compromise" can be defeated. Remember, the original plan passed the House with just four votes to spare, and the Senate with no votes to spare.

The only way to defeat the Clinton tax package is for concerned Americans to demand their representatives vote against the taxes. This is not as difficult as it might seem. A massive outpouring may scare sense into some legislators who bowed to the demands of the liberal business-as-usual Congressional leadership by voting for the closed rule and the taxes the first time around.

Either the good news or the bad news will soon become reality. They are mutually exclusive. A victory for the small but organized forces of the status quo in Washington -- bigger government, bigger deficits, and fewer jobs -- would be disastrous. The outlook for the alternative -- smaller government, lower deficits, and a stronger economy -- looks impossibly bleak, thanks to the "Clinton Five" who, like politicians everywhere, are calling one tune in Washington, and singing another song back home.

CCC student survey results announced

by Elaine Schad

Cooke County College officials said they are not completely pleased with the results of a recent student survey, but are working on ways to make improvements in those areas where a need for improvement has been indicated.

This is the second year the college has conducted a survey of students attending the college. The same instrument was used to survey students as was used in the preceding year, giving college officials fairly valid comparisons, according to Eddie Hadlock, dean of student services.

CCC President Ronnie Glasscock called the survey a "good piece of research". He said it provides the college with some good information, and indicates some areas that need to be looked at more closely. Hadlock said the administration and department heads are looking at the survey results closely to see how things can be improved. While there were some good points listed, Hadlock said the survey was not favorable enough and that some changes have already been put into effect with hopes of improvement.

Despite some area of concerns listed by students in the survey, a strong 93.7 percent of those surveyed said they would recommend Cooke County College to their friends. Demographically, 55.4 percent of CCC college students surveyed were female and 44.6 percent male. Day students comprise 76 percent of those surveyed while 23 percent attend evening classes. Of those surveyed, 51.5 percent drive more than 15 miles to attend CCC.

In the survey, 94.3 percent of students surveyed this year gave a favorable rating to the quality of classroom instruction, down from a 98.5 percent rating in 1992. Of students surveyed, 64.4 percent rated the cost of attending CCC as moderate while 26.7 rated cost as inexpensive. In the services area, the library received the highest rating, with 94.7 percent of the students rating library services as favorable. In the area of attitudes of office personnel, the food service received the most favorable rating, with 96.6 percent indicating they were pleased.

An area of concern listed by the students was parking facilities, in which 42.7 percent of those surveys indicated an unfavorable rating. Enrollment growth has cramped many of the parking areas.

Hadlock said the college is working toward getting a full-fledged advising system in place by the fall. This is expected to help with the satisfaction of students toward those services. In the survey, 45.4 percent of the students said they were not satisfied with the help they received with course and degree planning. Another area of concern was in the attitudes of some office personnel, with 29.7 percent rating the financial aid office personnel as unfavorable. Of those surveyed, 33 percent also rated financial aid services unfavorably. The college has hired a new person into that office with the hope of increasing service in that area, Hadlock said.

A new telephone system has been in place for about a month which should alleviate problems in that area, Hadlock said. Of those students surveyed, 32.6 percent said they had to sometimes wait for five rings before an operator answered. The old telephone system was on the verge of total collapse due to its age and overload, and that attributed to many of the problems.

CCC, Weber Aircraft host 2nd 'Career Transition' Workshop

As a follow-up to a successful workshop series held last month, Cooke County College and Weber Aircraft, Inc. are again sponsoring a career planning workshop, set for August 12-13.

"Career Transitions: Easing the Impact of Job Loss," is designed for employees and former employees of Weber Aircraft and anyone experiencing or planning a career change. The seminar will be held in the CCC Library Lyceum.

"During the last workshop, local career planning experts offered attendees suggestions for coping with job loss, including tips for surviving financially and emotionally through a career change," said CCC Dean of Continuing Education Linda Mast.

Several CCC counselors shared personal stories of how they managed to cope with job loss in their own families, and a representative from the Texas Employment Commission answered questions about unemployment benefits.

"The seminars were very informative. Based on the positive feedback we received, we decided to offer the program one more time," Mast said.

Participants may choose to attend one of the workshop's two repeat sessions: August 12, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.; or August 13, 9 to 11 a.m.

Topics to be addressed include: "Coping with Stress," presented by CCC Counseling Staff; "In Depth Budgeting and Dealing with Creditors," presented by Consumer Credit Counseling Service; "Résumé Writing, Job Search Planning and Interviewing," presented by Job Training Partnership Act; "Unemployment Benefits and the State Job Referral System," presented by the Texas Employment Commission; and

"What Businesses Are/Will Be Hiring In This Area, and How To Get A Job With Them," presented by Gainesville Chamber of Commerce.

Weber was pleased with the response at the first workshop and hopes the second will continue to help participants make a smooth career change, said Director of Human Resources Gary Allen.

The workshop is sponsored by CCC Continuing Education and Counseling offices, and Weber Aircraft. Although it is free, advance registration is required, by phone or in person, through the CCC Continuing Ed. office, 668-7731, Ext. 272.

St. Mary's School names new principal

by Elaine Schad

Longtime educator Sister Herman Marie Siebenmorgen, SSND, has been named principal of St. Mary's School in Gainesville for the 1993-1994 school year, school officials have announced.

A native of Conway, Ark., Sister Siebenmorgen attended both the Catholic elementary and high schools there. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in English and a minor in Philosophy and Latin at Notre Dame College in St. Louis, Mo. She earned a Master's degree in Education at St. Louis University.

Sister Siebenmorgen has been involved in education for 44 years, serving 16 of those years as principal of Catholic schools in five states. She is beginning her second year at St. Mary's School, serving last year as a fifth-grade teacher and assistant principal. She will replace Frances Piercey, who has accepted a position with Irving Catholic schools after two years as principal at St. Mary's.

Sister Siebenmorgen is the second person in her family to serve at St. Mary's in Gainesville. Her sister, Sister Dolores Siebenmorgen, served as pastoral assistant at St. Mary's parish for nine years before leaving last summer for a similar position at Holy Family parish in Abilene.

numbers can be reprogrammed to include the 817 area code anytime after Oct. 20.

Fuhrman explained the dialing of the 817 area code will become necessary in 1994 because new dialing prefixes that resemble area codes will be created to make new phone numbers available to meet growth in the 817 area of Texas.

"The new prefixes will have an '0' or a '1' as middle digit, as do area codes. Local number prefixes in this area do not have such a configuration at this time," Fuhrman explained.

Nuptial Mass solemnizes vows July 3

...nee Julia Beatrice Bright...

Julia Beatrice Bright and Brian Hensley Beattie of Medford, Oregon were married in a Nuptial Mass in Sacred Heart Church on July 3, 1993 at 5 p.m. with Father Joseph Weinzapfel, uncle of the bride, officiating also for the traditional double-ring vows.

The date chosen by the couple as their wedding day was only one day beyond the bride's parents' 40th wedding anniversary.

The bride is the daughter of David and Juanita Bright of Muenster. She is a graduate of Muenster High School and a graduate of Baylor University with a BBA in Business Administration; and a 1986 graduate of the University of Texas with a Master's degree and is a Credit Analyst for the Union National Bank of Texas.

The groom is the son of John and Donna Beattie of Hendersonville, North Carolina. He attended the Bitburg American High School and graduated from the University of Texas in San Antonio with a Bachelor of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering and is currently employed in Construction Sales and Engineering with Erickson Air-Crane.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a floor-length wedding gown of antique white chiffon designed with a banded neckline and long sleeves. Tear-drop pearls, beads and sequins accented the neckline, bodice and sleeves. The same accents followed the fitted waistline and the three-tiered straight skirt which fell to the floor. Front and hem edges of each tier were similarly accented with pearls, beads and sequins.

Her floor-length veil of tulle fell from a headband of flowers and pearls. A second layer of tulle draped from the headband to form an elbow-length pouf.

She carried an arm bouquet of ivory roses, larkspur and calla lilies accented with Queen Anne's lace. A satin ivory ribbon, entwined through the stems, decorated the bridal bouquet. For "something old," she carried her Grandmother Julia Weinzapfel's rosary from Lourdes. For "something borrowed," she wore her sister Lola's pearl earrings.

ATTENDANTS

Lola Rust of Justin, Texas, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Laurie Kelly of Charlotte, North Carolina, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. They wore tea-length voile pale peach dresses with lace overlay, designed with lace collars, square neck, short sleeves and dropped waistline. Each carried an arm bouquet of ivory calla lilies, peach Gerbera daisies and Sonya roses, with Queen Anne's lace and ivory satin ribbon.

The oldest niece of both the bride and groom were junior bridesmaids. Jessica Bright, also the bride's godchild, carried the wedding rings. Shannon Kelly presented the Unity candle during the processional. They wore matching knee-length ivory satin dresses, with ivory lace trim at the sleeves, neckline and hem, and an ivory satin sash tied at the waist. They wore fresh flower wreaths of peach mini-carnations, larkspur, baby's breath and ivory satin ribbon.

Herbert O'Connell of Everett, Washington was best man and Norman McNeely of Fort Worth was groomsmen. Both are close friends of the groom.

Ushers included David Jr. and Sam Bright, brothers of the bride, and Scott and Kyle Beattie, brothers of the groom.

Mass servers were Russell Fette and Stephen Bartush.

Thomas Bright and Joseph Bright, brothers of the bride, gave the First and Second Readings in the Liturgy. James Bright read Prayers of the Faithful and Offertory Petitions. The David Bright Jr. family presented Offertory gifts. After the Communion Meditation, Sam Bright read "A Prayer for a Christian Marriage," as a memorial to the bride's deceased maternal grandparents, Joe and Julia Weinzapfel, who recited the prayer every day of their 64-year marriage.

Wedding music included vocalists, organ, flute, guitar and trumpets. Two vocal selections, "Come and Journey with Me" and "All I Ask of You," were sung prior to the service by Pam and David Fette, accompanied by John Dill on the organ. John Dill played Pachelbel's "Canon in D" for the bridesmaids' processional and "Fanfare and Processional" by Wagner for the bride's entry. "May Your Lives Be Blessed" was sung for the Unity candle ceremony. Flutist Terry de Garmo played a solo, "Meditation," by Donjon after Holy Communion. Pam Fette sang the Schubert "Ave Maria" when the bride and groom visited the Blessed Virgin Mary's altar. Clarke's "Trumpet Voluntaire" was played on trumpets by Ronnie and Tina Weinzapfel, accompanied by the organist, for the recessional.

RECEPTION

A garden reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Morgan Bright and Stacey Kelly, nieces of the bride and groom, presided at the bride's book and guest registry.

The reception area was decorated with white mini-lights in trees and bushes. A buffet table of pick-up foods; guest tables scattered throughout the yard; an old-fashioned street lamp; and a full moon added to the aura of celebration. Fresh ivy decorated the buffet table. Lighted candles nestled in ivy centered each guest table covered with a white cloth.

Vocal and instrumental music was presented on the patio with flute and classical guitar by Terry de Garmo and Pam Fette.

The bride's four-tiered cake was frosted in white, decorated with ivory roses and ivy and placed on separate stands. The groom's chocolate, hexagon-shaped cake was covered with slivered almonds and chocolate-dipped strawberries.

The couple has returned to Medford, Oregon following a four day cruise off the coast of Southern California to Catalina Island and Ensenada, Mexico.

The rehearsal dinner at The Wooden Spoon in Lindsay was hosted by the groom's parents. It was also a surprise 40th wedding anniversary celebration for the bride's parents. They were presented several gifts representing highlights of their 40-year marriage.

In addition to the groom's parents and all of the bride's and groom's brothers and sisters, most of whom traveled very long distances, there were many other out-of-town guests. Relatives of the groom who were able to attend included an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnson and son Eric of Tulsa; an aunt, Shirley Hazlett of Ballinger; a cousin, Kathy Hazlett of Cedar Hill. Out-of-town relatives of the bride included an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Birden of Denton; a cousin and his spouse, Mr. and Mrs. Jon Birden of Corinth; aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jackson of Azle; cousin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roper of Hendersonville, North Carolina; cousin and spouse, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weinzapfel of Dallas. Many other special friends traveled long distances to share the occasion.

Vows exchanged in Bryan on June 12

...nee Evelyn Jean Rickenbacker

Evelyn Jean Rickenbacker and John Richard Herr were united in marriage on Saturday, June 12, 1993, at half after two o'clock in the afternoon at The Victorian in Bryan. Rev. Terry Teykl officiated for the double-ring ceremony. A reception followed at The Victorian with music by the Darren Ross Trio.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Rickenbacker of Houston. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Herr of Muenster and the late Joyce Herr.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk shantung and re-embroidered Alencon lace, which was fitted to the knee before flaring to the floor and drifting into a train. The dress featured a portrait neckline of Alencon lace embellished with sequins and seed pearls.

Complementing her gown was a veil of imported white illusion which fell from bows of lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of bridal white roses, pale pink roses and lily of the valley. A cross belonging to the groom's mother, Mrs. Richard Herr, was entwined with the bouquet.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Pat Davis of Fort Smith, Arkansas, sister of the groom, and the bride's friend and former college roommate, was her matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Rachel McClung of Bryan and Anita McNeill of College Station. They wore tea-length floral dresses complemented by bouquets of pale pink roses and alstromeria. The dresses were made by Rose Schmidtkofer, sister of the groom.

Eric Dankesreiter of Muenster served his longtime friend as best man. Groomsmen were James Herr of Muenster, groom's brother, and Robert Rickenbacker, bride's brother, of Houston.

The bride is a graduate of St. Agnes Academy in Houston and received her Bachelor of Arts degree in English from Texas A&M University. She is currently employed by Information Development Incorporated.

Lindsay Secular Franciscans host clergy from India

Jean Haverkamp hosted members of the Lindsay Secular Franciscan Fraternity for their July 7 meeting at 2 p.m. It coincided with a visit to Lindsay by Msgr. Varghese Puthemparakal of the Diocese of Alleppy of Kerala, India, who attended the meeting.

Communications read during the business meeting included a card of thanks from Father Stephen Eckart, OSB, for a "going away" gift; a letter from Father Martin Wolters, OFM; a Mass offering to Father Tom Gardner, OFM; a request from Chaplain Peter Secheloki of Anderson, Texas for black, brown or white rosaries for inmates of correctional institutions; and a card of thanks from Provincial Treasurer Leonard J. Brown, SFO, for the per capita tax of $240 sent to headquarters.

Msgr. Varghese told the fraternity he comes to Lindsay at the personal request of Bishop Peter Chenampampel of India. During his talk, he described the two seasons of their year, the monsoon season and the dry season, both fraught with disaster. He explained that many of the poor families are turning to raising chickens for a living if they can get a small loan. Formerly fishermen, they are deprived of this livelihood because fish population in rivers has been depleted by catching even the smallest fish. Therefore, poor families become even poorer.

He said hunger and malnutrition are widespread, and sanitation is very bad. Population in that area is at least 6,000 per mile. Traditionally, parents still practice the age-old custom of finding marriage partners for their children.

There is no courtship. Msgr. Varghese told that the Ralph Di Orto Hospital is still not completed.

Arriving in Lindsay on July 6, Msgr. Varghese was a supper guest of Theresa Hermes and the William Flusches. On July 7, he offered Mass at 7:45 a.m. in St. Peter's Church. He attended the July 7 meeting at the home of Jean Haverkamp. On July 8, at 7:45 a.m., he celebrated Mass with Father Eugene Luke, OSB, and was a guest for breakfast at the William Flusche home. He and his hosts visited later in the morning in Muenster with the Koesler family and Carl Mages. Mr. Mages took them to lunch in Lindsay. In the afternoon, friends from Dallas came for him and, on July 9, took him to DFW for his return flight to California.

After his talk, they all enjoyed a covered dish supper in the Haverkamp home.

Daughter of Lindsay residents marries in Wisconsin

Nancy Ellen Tepera of Palmyra, Wisconsin and Timothy Arthur Anderson of Madison, Wisconsin were married in a Nuptial Mass and double-ring vows in St. Mary's Catholic Church of Palmyra on July 25. Father Robert Buholzer officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Tepera of Lindsay. She is a 1986 graduate of Van Alstyne High School and a 1991 Magna Cum Laude graduate of Creighton University. She is a Mortgage Banker and has been employed with First National Bank of Omaha, but is now moving to Wisconsin.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Anderson of Geneva, Illinois. He is a 1982 graduate of Geneva High School and a 1986 graduate of North Central College in Naperville, Illinois. He is employed as Sales Manager for Gallo Wine by General Beverage, Inc. of Madison, Wisconsin.

Presented at the altar by her father, the bride was wearing a formal wedding gown of ivory and gold imported brocade. The fitted bodice had a Basque waist and a portrait neckline with self-fabric roses spaced around the neckline. The formal-length skirt swept into a chapel train. The European hemline had matching fabric roses spread around at, and also accenting, the edge of the train. Fabric roses accented the crown of her imported illusion veil. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses, tulips and eucalyptus.

ATTENDANTS

Mary Rebecca Tepera of Lindsay was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Karla Greaves of Crosby, Texas, bride's cousin; Colleen McLaughlin of Chicago, bride's friend; Susan Crutcher of Amarillo, bride's sister; and Janet Moeller of Houston, bride's sister. They wore identical gowns of ivory satin with self-fabric rosettes complementing those on the bride's gown.

Mary Frances Tepera was the flower girl.

William Anderson Jr., brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were friends of the groom, James Seidel of Flossmoor, Illinois; Donald Rickert of Aurora, Illinois; David Schaberg of Chicago, Illinois; and James Larsen of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The bride's brothers, twins James Tepera of Lubbock and Michael Tepera of College Station ushered guests.

The bride's brothers, Mark Tepera and Steven Tepera, were Mass servers.

Wedding music by organist Peg Hooper and vocalist Kathy O'Malley included traditional organ preludes, and "Trumpet Voluntaire" for the processional; and the recessional "Resuscito."

Vocal selections were Schubert's "Ave Maria;" "On Eagle's Wings;" the Unity song "Wherever You Go, I Will Go;" and the Communion song "Panis Angelicus."

Liturgical Readings from Genesis, Colossians and St. Mark were given by Katherine Anderson and Dena Anderson.

RECEPTION

A reception, dinner and dance followed at "Old World Wisconsin," hosted by the bride's family for 175 guests. The reception area was resplendent with freshly-cut wildflowers.

The ivory wedding cake was decorated with flowers complementing the bride's bouquet.

When the couple returns from a wedding trip to Wisconsin Dells, they will make their home in Madison, Wisconsin.

From My Side of the Fence

by Ed Cler

Anyone who enjoys seeing wild animals running loose on the range can have a field day driving through Fossil Rim Wildlife Center, a 2,900-acre preserve in Glen Rose dedicated to the preservation of many endangered species. There are almost 1,000 endangered, exotic and threatened animals roaming free in these expansive pastures that are divided into four major areas, to keep peace between the different species.

One can never be sure what will be seen over the next hill, or around the next bend in the road.

There is a 16 mph speed limit throughout the park. This low speed is to insure one's own safety as well as that of the animals that are apt to cross the road at any time.

Our luck was to have a huge male ostrich step into the middle of the road, in front of our car, and refuse to move. We soon found this great bird seemed to like our Chevy a great deal, as he went into his mating dance. Facing the car, he went into a sort of rhythm, as he moved up and down and from side to side, at the same time bobbing his head and flapping his wings. This continued for several minutes, until one of our guests lowered the car window a few inches and said, "I have a headache!" Believe it or not, the big bird stopped, stood there a moment, and then strode off the pavement, and rejoined the rest of his group.

Taking the drive through the preserve is a continuous series of surprises as different animals come into view. There are zebras, giraffes, wildebeests, many of the deer family, elands and even white rhinos that have recently been introduced into the park. These last are fenced separately. They also have one of the most successful cheetah breeding programs in the USA and a number of them are easily seen in an area that is securely fenced, for obvious reasons.

About midway through the drive, safely fenced areas with a restaurant, shops and a petting park are available for one's comfort and well-being.

This is a dandy place to spend a few hours enjoying an outing and at the same time supporting a good cause. I would recommend it to any nature lover or camera bug.

For more information, write or call Fossil Rim Wildlife Center, P.O. Box 2189, Glen Rose, TX 76043, phone 817-897-2960.

Pro Fishin' Tips

When you take kids fishing this season, leave the live bait at home. Instead, let them cast ultralight crankbaits.

These little lures, all weighing less than a quarter-ounce, are effective on everything from sunfish to spotted bass. And they're easy to fish, which makes them perfect for a youngster.

Another advantage to using little crankbaits, as opposed to fishing live bait under a bobber, is that while the youngster is having fun catching fish, he or she is also learning about proper presentation and getting plenty of casting practice.

An ultralight spinning rig with four-pound line and a handful of little crankbaits are all you need. Some of the best plugs to try are those that imitate small crawdads. Try sometime soon to get any kid hooked on fishing.

For some reason, many people seem to think that the only fish kids can catch are bluegills, crappies or other sunfish. Bass will hit kids' baits, too.

And that's a good reason to make a point of taking some youngsters bass fishing this season. Probably the best time to go is when you know largemouths will hit spinnerbaits and crankbaits.

Both are easy for kids to fish properly, and both are capable of fooling trophy fish any time. Let your favorite little angler throw a spinnerbait into some flooded trees or a crankbait along a rocky shoreline the next time you go out. One aggressive strike is all it will take to make an angler for life.

Keeping Pesticides Out of Groundwater

Is your groundwater vulnerable to contamination from pesticide leaching? Certain chemicals and soil conditions are more prone to chemical movement in the soil than most.

A combination of chemical selection, soil properties, site characteristics and management practices contributes to the potential for pesticide residues to move into groundwater. Key factors you should consider when making a pesticide application decision include:

Chemical Selection -

Some chemicals adsorb or bind readily to soil particles and organic matter. The higher the adsorption rate of a certain chemical, the less likely it is to leach down into the groundwater. Also, some chemicals are more persistent, or last longer before they are broken down, than others. The more persistent a chemical, the longer it is subject to the forces of leaching or runoff.

Soil Properties -

If your soil texture is porous, it could allow large quantities of water to move through it rapidly. Downward movement of water is greater in soils with low water-holding capacity, such as sand. Soils with more clay and organic matter tend to hold water and chemicals longer. Also, the amount of organic matter influences how well chemicals will be held or bound in the soil.

soil surface. Also, sinkholes or abandoned wells in your fields could provide a direct route for pesticides to move into the groundwater.

Management Practices -

Properly storing, mixing and applying pesticides... Carefully rinsing and disposing of chemical containers... Knowing what to do with equipment rinse water. These are all essential ingredients of water quality protection. Safe use of pesticides is good common sense and good business - plus it's a front-line defense for your drinking water.

Whenever using pesticides, always remember to check the label for warnings about the chemical's potential to leach to groundwater. If you can't find the information you need, your pesticide retailer or the product manufacturer can answer your questions.

Site Characteristics -

Extra precautions need to be taken to protect the water supply in those areas where the water table or groundwater is close to the

Texas Agriculture Facts

Texas cattle feeders reported 2.34 million head of cattle and calves on feed for the slaughter market on June 1, up 14 percent from a year ago. This is the largest June 1 inventory on record. Producers placed 685 thousand head in commercial feedlots during May. Texas commercial feeders marketed 490 thousand head during May, an increase of 15 percent from May 1992, but 5 percent less than marketings during April. May placements in the region totaled 573 thousand head, up 89 percent from April, while marketings decreased 7 percent from April to 380 thousand head.

Recent statistics from the American Association of Poison Control Centers reveal that overuse of certain kinds of insect repellent can be hazardous to your health.

The active ingredient in many of these products is diethylmetatoluamide (DEET). It is readily absorbed through the skin, and can cause muscle cramps, skin rash, irritability, confusion and lethargy, among other symptoms. Children are especially susceptible. The Environmental Protection Agency warns consumers to use repellents containing DEET sparingly and only as directed. And, always wash off insect repellent as soon as you come indoors.

Tax Talk

by: Duane Knabe, CPA

Duane Knabe will discuss a different topic each week. Any questions should be directed to him at 759-4010.

This week's topic is involuntary conversions, which includes condemnations (or the threat of), casualties, thefts, and the sale of livestock due to drought or due to disease.

Any gain on the conversion need not be recognized if an equal amount is spent to acquire property similar or related in service or use to the converted property. Loss is deductible if the converted property is used in a trade or business or for the production of income. Casualty or theft losses on personal property may be deductible.

Residential property that is involuntarily converted and replaced is subject to the involuntary conversion rules. However, gain from the condemnation of a residence may be treated under other nonrecognition rules.

Conserving Moisture in the Home Landscape

Drought conditions are prevalent in many areas forcing homeowners and gardeners to make a difficult decision. How can a limited water supply available for irrigation be best utilized in the home landscape? In some areas, certain plants may have to be sacrificed to save others.

In general, the plantings in the home landscape can be categorized as lawn and ground covers, shrub borders, flower beds and trees. Since trees usually serve a multipurpose role in the landscape providing enframement, background, screening and shade, they are of great value and difficult to replace. It requires years to produce trees that are large enough to be effective in the landscape whereas a lawn or shrub area can be replaced in a season or two. For this reason, if the water supply is limited, available water should be used to keep the trees in a healthy condition even if it necessitates sacrificing other choice plantings.

Certain cultural practices will aid the homeowner in reducing water needs and conserving water. Even if the water supply is not restricted, these practices will be of benefit to him and aid in reducing the size of the monthly water bill. Some of these practices include:

1. Use a mulch whenever possible. This reduces the surface evaporation and keeps the root zone cooler. Material that can be used includes pine bark, wood shavings, straw, hay, gravel, permeable plastic film, mulching paper and others. Use whatever is readily available in your area.

2. Use drip irrigation, soaker hoses or flood irrigation if possible. Sprinkler irrigation during the daytime and on windy days will result in high moisture losses due to evaporation.

3. If sprinkler irrigation is the only practical method available, use sprinkler heads that will allow the soil to take up the moisture as fast as it falls. Sprinklers which apply water faster than the soil can absorb are wasteful, resulting in huge water losses to runoff.

4. The evaporation rate is usually lowest from late evening to early morning. Sprinkler irrigation is most efficient during these hours. True, there is a greater chance of plant disease problems but proper use of fungicides can reduce the problem to a minimum.

5. Water thoroughly when irrigating. Frequent light applications of irrigation water are more exposed to evaporation and encourage shallow root growth. Water as infrequently as possible by letting the plants indicate when to irrigate. When watering, use enough water to soak the soil to a depth of six to eight inches before moving to a new location. Deep soaking encourages deep root penetration and allows the plant to better utilize the available water.
