Trustees seek strategy for CCC in North Texas

Cooke County College's Board of Trustees are a step closer to naming a special Citizens Advisory Committee to assist in a major initiative aimed at making the college the educational "provider of choice," especially for workforce education and training, throughout the North Texas region.

Meeting in regular session

the North Texas region.

Meeting in regular session

Monday evening, each of the trustees submitted a list of candidates to serve on the committee and set Jan. 25 as the group's first meeting date. A roster of the approximately 30 persons serving on the committee will be released as soon as all are contacted and formally agree to serve.

released as soon as all are contacted and formally agree to serve. "What we're talking about here is a process currently referred to as 'repositioning' in the business world," said CCC President Ronnie Glasscock in discussing the committee's purpose. "It's a process of ensuring that a positive image of this college is so well placed in the minds of decision makers in our service area, and particularly along the rapidly-developing 1-35 corridor, that they automatically think of us when decisions are imminent.

"For example, if someone is looking for a place to get first-rate, relevant, affordable job training that will qualify them for meaningful employment in one or two years, we want them to look first to us. We also want to be the provider of choice among North Texas business and industrial firms seeking quality customized employee training.

"Similarly, when high school graduates are seeking a school where - at an affordable price - they can complete the first year or two of a four-year degree in a friendly, small school environment where they'll receive top quality, they'll receive top quality, individualized instruction from caring, experienced teachers, we want them to think of this college first."

The catch, cautioned Dr. Classcock is that there are other first."

The catch, cautioned Dr. Glasscock, is that there are other schools on the fringes of CCC's traditional service area who have the same goal, and that makes for a highly competitive "marketplace" when it comes to delivery of postsecondary education and training programs.

training programs.

That's particularly true, he said, in regard to all education and training programs that can be classified as

"workforce-related" - thanks to a recently-enacted piece of legislation known as Senate Bill 642, which creates a new state agency known as the Texas Council on Workforce and Economic Competitiveness (TCWEC).

"We all want a mechanism in place that will promote the cost-effective delivery of relevant job training and the development of a well-trained workforce in Texas," Dr. Glasscock commented. "On that score, we fully support the concept behind SB 642.

"What we can't support, however.

score, we fully support the concept behind SB 642.

"What we can't support, however, is the creation through TCWEC of still another level of bureaucracy - a so-called 'local workforce development board' which can be appointed by unanimous consent of elected county officials within counties comprising 'local workforce development areas' designated by TCWEC. According to provisions of SB 642, such boards could usurp the authority of our duly-elected Board of Trustees in deciding not only what kinds of workforce education and training programs this college will offer but where it can offer them as well."

Glasscock informed CCC

Trustees that he had received assurances this past week from Cooke County Judge Ray Russell, speaking for the Commissioners' Court, that the college "has nothing to fear" from the commissioners in regard to any action "that would not be in the best interest of this college which means so much to all the citizens of our county."

He reminded the college trustees, however, that designation of local workforce development areas by TCWEC is a "done deal" and that Cooke County has been included in the so-called Texoma Planning Area with Grayson and Fannin counties with neither of which, he said, Cooke County tollege, or Cooke County utself for that matter, shares much in common when it comes to future growth and development.

"It's fairly obvious that the future development and growth of this college is tied very closely to the rapidly-developing I-35 corridor, with Cooke County forming an essential linkage from the D/FW Metroplex up through Denton and into Oklahoma and points north," Glasscock said.

And yet, he pointed out, Senate Bill 642 effectively ignores the fact

And yet, he pointed out, Senate Bill 642 effectively ignores the fact that CCC has for many years served Denton County as part of its traditional three-county service area, having begun its extension program in Lewisville back in 1970. In fact, placing CCC in the Texoma Planning Area actually places these three counties - Cooke, Denton and Montague - in three different local workforce development areas.

"Frankly, we don't really know at this time just what all the ramifications of Senate Bill 642 will be," Glasscock said. "What we do know is that it's a very complex law be," Glasscock said. "What we do know is that it's a very complex law that could have some very damaging consequences for this college if we simply stand by and onothing."

According to Chairman Urban Endres, the membership of the Citizens Advisory Committee is weighted heavily with experienced business people. The intent is to get advice and input from persons with a proven grasp of what it takes to become truly competitive in today's marketplace.

The board's formal charge to the committee is:

committee is:

To revisit the role, scope and mission of the college to assure that it is effectively meeting the major tenets of its mission and to report its findings and make recommendations to the president and Board of Trustees;

• To study in depth the implications of Senate Bill 642 and advise the president and Board of Trustees of what it perceives as the current and potential impact of the law on the college; and

• To examine the competitive posture of the college throughout its service area and recommend to the president and Board of Trustees strategies for enhancing the college's image and its ability to compete - to become the "provider of choice" of educational programs and services throughout the North Texas region.

One significant strategy for helping accomplish this third goal-changing the college's name - has already been put forth and has received the informal endorsement of the college trustees and, according to Glasscock, has elicited "an extremely positive reaction" from a wide variety of local civic and services organizations and other audiences to which the idea has been presented across the county. Early voting will begin Tuesday for the special election to determine if Cooke County taxes will be rolled back. County Commissioners passed a resolution this week setting early voting dates beginning at 8 a.m. Tuesday and continuing through 5 p.m. Feb. 1. Voters may cast ballots early at the Cooke County Clerk's Office, located on the second floor of the Courthouse in Gainesville.

Commissioners were scheduled to continue meetings concerning proposed budget cuts that began during the court's regular meeting this week. Commissioners issued a nemo following their meeting on memo following their meeting on Monday asking all county department heads to review their budgets and submit proposed voluntary cuts.

While commissioners said the cuts would first be targeted at new expenditures and "big ticket items," the Muenster Library was placed on the cutting block early in the first session of budget discussions along with other non-profit organizations, including the Morton Museum of Cooke County and the Cooke County Heritage Society. Those organizations have been receiving small amounts of county funding at least since revenue sharing days of the early 1970s, according to County Auditor Gloria Parrish. ## doctors at Muenster Hospital

by Janet Felderhoff
Lora Hennigan opened the December regular board meeting of the directors of Muenster Memorial Hospital on Wednesday, Jan. 5 with a prayer. The meeting was rescheduled from Dec. 29 when there weren't enough members present to conduct business.

"As far as total revenues go this was our best month since April of 1993," MMH Administrator Jack Endres informed the board. Inpatient revenues especially were up significantly. Total revenues are up 10 percent from November of 1992.

Thus far $26,000 in tax revenues have been collected for the hospital district. This was the first month that the recently re-enacted ad valorem tax for indigent funds was collected.

A laparoscopic camera and light source from Olympus are being purchased at a total coast of $20,163.00. It is being purchased from a leasing company over a 24 month period. The lease is structured so that it's basically 10 structured so that it's basically 10 percent interest over two years. At the end of the lease the hospital can let the equipment go or purchase it for 10 percent or can continue leasing it at a reduced interest.

The equipment has already been tried out and was deemed excellent and very impressive compared to the broken equipment it is replacing and to the equipment being used in the interim. Sharon Felderhoff made the motion that the board approve the lease. David Bright seconded the motion which was passed unanimously by the board.

Discussion was held on the future unanimously by the board.

Discussion was held on the future needs at Muenster Hospital to open an OB department. Mr. Endres reminded the board that it had been agreed when Dr. Currier reached the point that he would be delivering 10 babies a month, they would prepare to deliver the babies in MMH. He is about a third of the way to that each about a third of the way to that goal.

Dr. Currier has a steadily growing number of patients. They come from local areas and as far away as Oklahoma.

The search for additional physicians to practice in Muenster continues. Endres noted that resumes from physicians come on a weekly basis. Dr. Kuhmar who had considered Muenster decided on Oklahoma. Dr. Asinas, a general practitioner, is still considering Muenster. An interested family physician and his family will visit on the weekend of Jan. 15.

It was announced that Dr. Antonetti will soon mark 25 years of practice in Muenster.

Presently the Muenster Hospital pays the insurance deductible for hospital employees for any inpatient services rendered at Muenster Memorial Hospital or another hospital if those services can't be provided at MMH. That policy was put into effect whenever the insurance deductible was $300 and lots of things were done on an inpatient basis. "Now the inpatient lots of things were done on an inpatient basis. held at the St. Mary's Parish Hall in Gainesville.

Since Life Dynamics, Inc., opened its doors in Lewisville in June 1992, it has made some major waves and garnered some pretty heavy-hitting publicity in behalf of the unborn child. The organization has been featured on CNN, CBS and other national networks because of its unique strategies in helping the unborn, strategies which are under attack by pro-abortion groups. Those who work in the abortion industry have said in nationwide interviews that they are concerned about the organization's campaign to sue abortionists for abortion malpractice, charging that, 'Our doctors are under siege."

Mark Crutcher, Life Dynamics president, thinks it's the unborn child and the women who end up with major medical and psychological problems as a result and other national networks because

The city, saying service had been oor, wanted to terminate its contract with Weik, Gores & Associates Inc., operating at that ime in Lindsay as Lake Kiowa Lable Television, L. P. and/or WGA Cable. In an unrelated matter, the city authorized Walterscheid to proceed with contacting a company which could assist the city in applying for grant money. front.

Crutcher has conducted more than 120 seminars throughout the United States and Canada on how to best articulate the pro-life position. A longtime worker in behalf of the unborn, Crutcher gave a first-time ever presentation of the organization's new campaign, called Firestorm to the Cooke County Pro Life Group, which has members from various religious denominations from Cooke and Montague counties.

"The pro-life movement was "The pro-life movement was developed to stop abortion, not to make it illegal," Crutcher told the group. "The fact is, we are dreaming if we think we can make abortion illegal as long as 1.6 million women walk into those mills every year."

The political process has been an overall failure in making major headway in behalf of the unborn, Crutcher said. The pro-life movement is outspent at least 3 to 1 by pro-abortionists, mainly because

The objective of Firestorm is to The objective of Firestorm is to stigmatize the abortion industry to the medical community in order to choke off a supply of new people who would come in to perform abortions, according to Crutcher. A second major objective is through the legal process, to choke off the supply of those already performing abortions.

"The number one impact on the abortion industry today is the problem of getting people to do abortions," Crutcher said. It is estimated that 1,400 abortionists perform 96 percent of all abortions in the United States, and that only 17 percent of all counties in the

His organization is using direct mail marketing very effectively in simply identifying abortionists within those communities where they operate. More than 100,000 postcards have been sent to medical community in the United States and another 18,000 will be sent next month to Canada discouraging the medical community from performing abortions. The organization is also encouraging people to network at the grassroots level to identify abortionists in their communities, making sure everyone knows that these people do abortions, regardless of whether they are attached to an abortion mill or perform abortions as part of a sealor english provides and the properties of the provides and the provides perform abortions as part of a regular medical practice, Crutcher said.

Firestorm's second objective is expected to get a big boost March 4 and 5 when the first ever National Abortion Malpractice Litigation Convention is held in Dallas. An estimated 250 attorneys will learn how best to litigate cases of estimated 250 attorneys will learn how best to litigate cases of malpractice abortion. Life Dynamics is sponsoring the convention and will also help to provide information to attorneys on abortionists who are involved in malpractice suits, Crutcher said. Already, the organization has found both pro-life and attorneys who coin themselves pro choice who are interested in such litigation, which Crutcher said could become

With the shift in the political climate to a United State president and a Congress working with proabortion forces, Crutcher thinks that the opportunity to win the battle over abortion could come to an end as pro-lifers become burned out and experience a greater sense of despair. Crutcher urged the Cooke County Pro Life members to identify doctors in their area who perform abortions, whether they do it on a full-tine basis or occasionally from their offices. He said his preminization has information sheets cases would win in court.

TO THE EDITOR.

TO THE EDITOR,

I began my nursing career at Muenster Memorial Hospital and have been a nurse for over 13 years. During this period, I have worked in large hospitals in Austin and Dallas, first as a Certified Rehabilitation R.N. and currently as a Certified Oncology R.N. at Presbyterian Hospital of Dallas and Muenster Memorial Hospital. Now I'd like to take the opportunity to let you know how it felt to be on the receiving end of care at Muenster Memorial Hospital.

The tests prior to my surgery, the and dealt with employees from numerous hospitals in Texas and I can tell you without hesitation that this hospital provides the best care you will find. It was a comfort for me to be where people truly cared for my well-being as an individual, not just another surgical case.

Also, Dr. Currier and his staff have been very professional and did not listen to the citizens, but raised county taxes 26.32%.

People are just fed up with the continuing increases in taxes. The law allows us to do a rollback petition anytime taxes go over 8%.

A lot of people have worked in many different ways on getting signatures for the rollback petition. Going door to door, making phone calls, handing out petitions, bringing people to sign the petition, etc. And their hard work has paid off. We had over 700 more names than was required for the petitions to call for an election. Thanks to all of you for your help.

Now, the Commissioners Court has set the date, Feb. 5, for the rollback election, when we can vote FOR the rollback in county taxes.

The Oct. 1, 1993, Texas Farm Bureau paper had an article that property taxes in Texas increased by $1.3 billion in 1992. That figure represents the largest annual increase in the state's history. The total property tax levy in the state was $11.3 billion in Mat is the property tax increase for 1993? What will it take, a taxpayers' tax revolt, to stop these continuing increases?

John Q. Citizen's influence on government of any kind is limited indeed. There are very few checks and balances. Too, every person and every organization thinks they need more money. Also, it is easier for me to spend some other person's money than it is to spend my own money. This philosophy lends itself to the "tax and spend" phenomena so prevalent in all forms of government today.

All we read in the local newspapers is a bemoaning cry about what the tax rollback election will cost. The commissioners court knew the law and that they were vulnerable to a rollback election when they exceeded an 8% increase in county taxes. So, quit your crying -you asked for it.

In my vocabulary, the opposite of love is not hate - it is anathy, and the apathy of a lot of unregistered, non-voting, 1-don't-want-to-get-involved people in Cooke County is a crying shame.

My plea is simple - vote in all elections and, by all means, vote on Feb. 5, 1994. Let your wishes be made known. There are two sides to any coin and, in this tax issue, it is democracy in action. Too, there only two absolutes in life - namely, death and taxes.

Dear Editor:
In last week's paper you indicated FMW Insurance Agency as the former agent for the City of Muenster's coverages. We have not handled the coverage for the City since the 1988 policy year. The City took bids and chose to move the coverage at the end of 1988. That carrier subsequently went bankrupt as they failed to properly price their carrier subsequently went bankrupt as they failed to properly price their products. They had offered the City the lowest bid.

FMW has always attempted to place coverage through companies that demonstrate financial responsibility. This is extremely important for entities responsible to taxpayers or stockholders. We strongly recommend carriers regulated by the Texas Department of Insurance, with backing from the Texas Property & Casualty Guaranty Fund. By use of such carriers, insurance buyers are assured the State is watching their financial condition, and that the Fund will back claims and return of unused premiums if the carrier does rund will back claims and return of unused premiums if the carrier does get into trouble. A buyer using an unregulated carrier has no such protection and must understand the risks of doing so.

by Mayor Bill Miller
I know you are getting bombarded with news about the community development grants but, since this is an important issue, I hope you will have patience until we get this worked out at City Hall.
First of all, if the City would have had the foresight to save money, we would have the money in the bank to update our public works systems, without the grant.
Secondly, a housing construction grant is not even being considered.
On several occasions in the past, private enterprises tried to get government housing units built in Muenster and the projects failed to pass the Zoning Board. Because of all the problems other towns have pass the Zoning Board. Because of all the problems other towns have with the housing units, I am against ever considering construction of housing units in Muenster.

Instead of applying for a housing construction grant, we voted to apply for a home improvement grant and a first-time homeowner grant. We receive 40 points for applying for these grants. If we don't take the home grants along with the water well and ground storage grant, we would not be able to compete with the towns that do, since the grants are awarded by a total points system.

Towns like Pilot Point, Texas, for instance, have been awarded both instance, have been awarded both types of grants regularly since 1982.

The home improvement grant we applied for works like this: a minimum of 12 qualifying homeowners will receive loans for up to $11,833.00 to repair their existing homes. This money does not have to be repaid.

The first-time homeowner grant works like this: Five qualifying persons purchasing new or used homes for the first time will receive $5,000.00 to be used for a down payment on a home mortgage loan. After living in the new home for 20 years, the loan is forgiven. After living in the used home for 15 years, the loan is forgiven, and does not need to be repaid.

years, the loan is forgiven, and does not need to be repaid.

Since Muenster is not in compliance with public works systems regulations, we need to apply for these available grants to make the improvements. It is the only way we will be able to purchase all that we need to meet both residential and commercial usage demands, without having more of the patchwork systems of the past.

Now, I would like to address Mr. Paul Hesse's suggestions of increasing the water bill to pay for a water well. Most people cannot afford to pay an increase in their water bill. Also, if you increase the bill just for people with higher usage, they will drill their own wells to water the lawn and we still would not have enough income to pay the note off.

Just a new water well will not meet our commercial water demands. We also need the ground storage tank. The north side of town needs an elevated storage tank and older sewer and water mains need replaced.

Letters of public opinion are urged by CC Pro-Life Group

Aléxander Loce. The case will ask the court to answer the question of "when life begins".

Loce's fianceé became pregnant several months ago and expressed her desire to have an abortion. Alexander Loce filed a civil suit to prevent her from aborting their child. After being denied an injunction by the New Jersey Supreme Court on the night before the scheduled abortion Loce went to the clinic and physically obstructed the entrance to the operating room. He was arrested prosecuted and convicted.

During his trial several witnesses were allowed to testify that life begins at conception. Witnesses included the internationally renowned geneticist, Dr. Jerome LeJune from Paris; Dr. Bernard Nathanson, a former abortionist/doctor; and Dr. Russell Hittinger a professor of philosophy. The municipal court judge stated at the conclusion of the testimony that witnesses had proved beyond all doubt that life does begin at conception and that the eight-week all doubt that life does begin at conception and that the eight-week old child in question was a unique human being, separate in existence from his mother.

Still the judge stated that he was compelled to convict Loce because of the ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court concerning the legality of abortion. The judge referred to abortion as, "the legal execution of a human being."

This could prove to be of great importance to the Pro Life cause. During Roe v. Wade, the justices said that they didn't know when life began, and that if at some future point it was scientifically determined when there is life, then Roe v. Wade would need to bealtered. If it could be proven beyond a shadow of a doubt that life begins at conception, then the child has due a shadow of a doubt that life begins at conception, then the child has due process of the law. In that case Loce can't be convicted of trying to stop his child from being aborted.

The Court will receive letters from the public for one week, Jan. 19 - 26, 1994. until the justices' conference and decide whether or not to hear the case. All supporters of Pro Life are urged to flood the Court with letters in support of taking the case of New Jersey v. Alexander Loce.

Glasscock requested that commissioners refrain from creating commissioners refrain from creating a local work force development board as enabled through the legislation. The bill allows the formation of such a board by the county's highest elected officials to oversee planning that involves the junior colleges in the state. Glasscock said the college feels the

Republican Party chair resigns

by Elaine Schad
George Silvernale has announced his resignation as chairman of the Cooke County Republican Party effectively immediately.
Pat Peale, party vice chairman, has been appointed as the new chair of the Cooke County Republican Party, Silvernale said.
Silvernale has served as party chairman for almost two years. Time restraints was among reasons listed for his resignation. Silvernale's resignation comes at a time when the Republican Party in Cooke County has the largest slate of candidates in recent history running for the Republican Primary election. During Silvernale's tenure, the Republican Party also expanded its number of voting precincts around the county. its number of voting precincts formation of such a board would usurp the authority of the CCC board of trustees and would allow other counties authority in determining how the college is run. County Judge Ray Russell assured Glassock that the commissioners court would not do anything to jeopardize the college and is well aware of the benefits CCC brings to the county.

In other business, the commissioners court during their regular January meeting:

--Requested that the county's landfill committee make recommendations for providing solid waste disposal in unincorporated areas of the county. The Gainesville landfill will close in April, but the city will make a transfer station available to the county and county residents, Judge Russell said. Commissioner Virgil Hess said he had obtained cost estimates on placing convenience stations in various areas of the county, but would have to update those figures. A convenience station would possibly include a compactor and four to five rolloff bins. The county would probably have to add some employeees and contract with a landfill or private company to some employeees and contract with a landfill or private company to empty the bins on a regular basis, Hess said.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Readers of "Texas Highways" magazine, January 1994, enjoyed and appreciated seeing a horizontal centerfold color picture made by Frank Moster, of a local landscape. Formerly of Muenster, the son of Mary and the late Steve Moster, Frank is now a resident of Denton and a Science teacher in Middle School of Pilot Point for the past six years.

Another scene from a nearby location, also made by Frank Moster several years ago, appeared in a magazine in California and was sent to Mrs. Herbert Meurer by her sister, Lil Gallery, and given to Mary Moster.

Four of Frank Moster's photographs are also featured in "Texas On My Mind," a full-color book published by Falcon Press, now available at Muenster Public Library.

There is only one morning, and only one evening per month, when this type of photo can be accomplished due to the synchronization of sunlight on the foreground and the moon being low enough above the horizon. Other factors must cooperate also: no clouds, very little wind etc.

cooperate also: no clouds, very little wind, etc.

Equipment used was a 35mm camera, a 300mm lens, which is equivalent to a six-power pair of binoculars and makes the moon large enough in the sky, a sturdy tripod and Fujichrome 50-slide film. Before taking the horizontal photo used in Texas Highways, I took some vertical ones when the moon was higher. One of these vertical shots was used in the 1991 Audubon Engagement Calendar. I am often asked if this is a combination of two photos - it is not. If you had been there, you would have seen it exactly as it appears in the photo.

deductible is $1,000 and many of the procedures that once required an inpatient stay are done on an outpatient basis," said Endres. "Therefore it is becoming less and less meaningful. I'd like to have approval for the hospital to pay the deductible for inpatient and outpatient services other than routine lab and radiological studies that are provided here at Muenster or at another hospital if they can't be provided here. This is mainly just to make sure that the benefit we are

Electric Co-Op Youth Tour Contest open for entries

High school age youth living in homes served by Cowck County Electric Cooperative have a chance to win what previous participants have called "the trip of a lifetime."

Cooke County Electric Cooperative is planning its fourth annual Washington Youth Tour Contest, the winner travels on the Texas Electric Cooperatives Government in Action Youth Tour, an all-expenses paid trip to Washington, D.C. June 9-21, 1994.

In previous years, the contest has received strong entries from across the Cooperative's service area. The first winner was Kimberely Bryan of Gainesville High School. Marlene Hess of Muenster High School won the contest in its second year and Greg Brooks of Callisburg High School was the 1993 winner.

All three winners speak enthusiastically when asked about the impact of the trip. They returned from the tours with valued inspiration, memories and friendships. They strongly encourage students with writing and speaking skills to put a lot of effort into a contest entry.

The trip includes six days of sightseeing in writing and speaking skills to put a lot of effort into a contest entry.

The trip includes six days of sightseeing in Washington, D.C. and interaction with outstanding young people from all across Texas.

young people from all across Texas.

To be eligible for the trip, a high school student must be 14-19 and live in a home served by Cooke County Electric Cooperative. Previous winners and children of Cooperative directors are ineligible.

Students enter the contest by delivering an essay to the Cooperative by 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 23, 1994. The essay must be an original composition by the student on one of the following topics: (1) How electric cooperatives improve the quality of life in rural America (this can be either a current or historical perspective); and (2) Wise use of energy for a better economy and environment.

Anyone who wants to enter should contact Eric Williams, member relations specialist, at the Cooperative office on Highway 82 East in Muenster. Telephone numbers are 759-2211 and 1-800-962-0296.

Williams will provide source materials, detailed rules and forms to be submitted with the essays. He's available to speak, answer questions and show a video about last year's tour to groups of interested students, teachers or clubs.

Carroll Dill had the misfortune of receiving painful injuries Wednesday evening. The report I have is that Carroll went to Dallas with his wrecker to help James Landers where his truck had stalled. It seems Carroll ran out of gas before he got there and, as he was seeing about getting gas, he was hit by a car. His left arm was broken and his right foot injured. Carroll was taken to the Methodist Hospital in Dallas. His arm was set last week. Doctors operated on his foot and put pins in it Monday. Carroll is recovering normally from his accident as of this writing.

Tax Talk

by: Duane Knabe, CPA

This week's topic is "sprinkling" trusts. Tax savings can be achieved in trust arrangements through the powers given a trusce to direct the disposition of income and principal during the life of a trust. Trusts involving these powers are popularly known is "sprinkling" trusts and more echnically as discretionary rusts.

If some members of a family income and the many largely eaten up by taxes. Other group members, however may not be so inancially secure. If they are now tax brackets, the income listributed to them will be ubject to lower taxes. Through rooper exercise of the sprinkling owers, beneficiaries in the lower tax brackets can be favored ith trust income even if a disribution to high-income beneficiaries would be largely wasted.

Perry: Be aware of new diesel fuel's effect on farm equipment engines

equipment engines

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said recently that farmers should be aware of two types of diesel fuel being sold - a low-sulfur fuel required by the federal, 1990 Clean Air Act for use in all highway vehicles and a high sulfur fuel allowed for use in farm equipment.
Because of complaints about lubrication and engine problems associated with low-sulfur fuel in farm equipment, Perry said farmers should ask their diesel dealers which type of fuel they are selling.
According to the Petroleum Marketers Association of America, the high sulfur fuel is to be dyed blue and can only be used in non-blue and can only be used in non-highway vehicles. The federal low-sulfur fuel mandate, which requires new diesel engines used on highways to emit substantially less smoke, went into effect Oct. 1.

County Agent's Report

by Craig Rosenbaum

Mid-Winter Wheat Ratings
This past week, we evaluated the wheat variety plots located on the Alois Fuhrmann farm north of Lindsay. The purpose of these ratings was to look at plant tillers, plant height, and disease presence.

Tillering is very important to small grain plants for several reasons. Tillers are the growing areas for head production. Wheat plants have the ability to produce a head per tiller. Also, plant tillers and vigor assist those producers who graze livestock. Those plants that tiller to a great extent have an increased ability to cover the ground. This provides extra footing and possibly prevents trampling during wet weather periods. Plant height is important in that it shows the plant's ability to produce large amounts of forage which is very important to producers who are in stocker cattle grazing operations.

And, disease is always a factor that limits both forage production and grain production in any small grain operation grain production in any small grain operation.

Several new varieties look good for disease resistance so far. The Coker 9134, Agratec 91W, Ogallaha, Coker 9543, and the Coker 9803 varieties showed very good resistance to both Leaf Rust and Septoria Leaf Spot. The rest of the varieties showed some disease presence but in minor amounts. Those varieties showing the greatest amount of results during this midwinter rating period were Cimmarron and MBS 822. It should be noted that this is just a midwinter rating and additional ratings will be taken on the plants during the spring and at harvest.

The following chart shows the various varieties and their relationship to the aspects mentioned in this article.

Road and Bridge fund will have surplus funds remaining of $62,933.
The Precinct 2 Road and Bridge fund will be running a deficit of $21,000 by this September when the budget year ends, according to projections from the county auditor's office.
Each road and bridge precinct fund was proposed to be cut by $25,000, with each commissioner determining how those cuts would be made. Courthouse renovations costing $100,000 would be put on hold, which includes stonework on

Other smaller cuts recommended included subsidies to the Muenster Public Library in the amount of $4,000; Cooke County Historical Commission, $1,000; Morton Museum of Cooke County, $5,000; Mental Health Mental Retardation; County Judge conference expenses, $1,000.

$1,000.

New to the budget this year is a 3 percent cost-of-living increase granted to all employees and elected officials which added about $90,000 to the current budget. Commissioners were hesitant in cutting those raises, concerned that it would affect employee morale. Total new budget expenditures of about $100,000 were added for all county departments combined.

Anytime one leaves home and travels for some distance, there are always some things that are seen or happen that cling to one's memory.

One such incident came about as Aileen and I were making our way from Snohomish, Washington to Glacier National Park in northwestern Montana. We had stopped in Spokane and visited with Claude Lehnertz about

We had stopped in Spokane and visited with Claude Lehnertz about mid-afternoon and then got back on U.S. 82 that leads to Glacier. Later that evening we came to Newport, Washington where, after finding a nice motel, we decided to spend the night.

The next morning, Sunday, July 5, 1987, we started through Newport and, seeing a service station, I stopped to fill the gas tank and remarked that it would be nice if we found a Catholic Church and could attend services.

Just then a rather frail old gentleman wearing a black suit and a Roman collar, seemingly in a very agitated state of mind, walked up and spoke to the attendant.

As I had guessed, the man was a Catholic priest, and when I asked if there was a church nearby, he said, "Yes, yes, would you take me, please? I have a flat on my car and I am afraid I will be late." I told him if he would get in the back seat and direct us we would have him there soon.

In a few minutes we arrived at the one tas we minutes we arrived at the church and he directed us to the back door. He told us to enter the church there, that we should walk through the vestry and sacristy to get to the scating instead of walking to the front of the building.

Most of the congregation was already seated and we could feel their eyes upon us as we made our way to a pew.

In a few minutes, Fr. Tim made hts appearance and began to talk to a congregation that seemed rather surprised to see him. It seems that Fr. Tim had been retired by his bishop but was very unhappy about that, and had prevailed upon the bishop to let him spend the rest of his days ministering to the same people he had been with for many years, people that he dearly loved and who loved him as well.

It was a very touching incident and, after Fr. Tim's talk, his people gave him a standing ovation. It seems they were as glad to see him as he was to be back.

After the services, several of the

as ne was to be back.
After the services, several of the folk caught up with us, introducing themselves, wondering, after seeing our Texas tags, how it was that two strangers from Texas had come to bring their much-loved pastor back to them.

After a brief explanation about being in the right place at the right time, we said our goodbyes to our new friends and again started on our
