189 Register for 3 Swim Classes In Muenster Pool

Muenster's free course in swimming instructions received a big welcome as 189 children and adults reported last Saturday and enrolled in three classes. There are 162 in the beginners group, 14 in the intermediate and 13 in the swimmers group.

L. B. Bruns, supervisor, points out that the local course includes half of the six phases offered in the complete Red Cross series. Other courses, which are not available here, are junior and senior life saving and instructors courses.

Instructors in the local classes are Bruns, Laurence Saye and Gretchen Hellman, all holding Red Cross instructor certificates. Assisting them are Mrs. M. D. Kaderli, Juanita Wieler, Jean Wieler, Ruth Endres and Dan Hamric, who have Red Cross senior life saving certificates. Another assistant is Mrs. Arthur Endres, who has charge of administrative work connected with the classes.

All the instructors and assistants are donating their time. However, they will be compensated with a complimentary pass to the pool for the rest of the season.

The class was organized under supervision of the county Red Cross Chapter and is conducted according to the Red Cross system of instruction.

KCs of Diocese to Have Conference Sunday at Ft. Worth

The Muenster K of C Council will be one of twenty eight represented at the third annual regional conferences for the Dallas-Ft. Worth Diocese next Sunday, June 24, according to an announcement made by James F. Houlihan, Schulenburg, the State Deputy of Texas. The meeting will be held at the Msgr. Robert E. Nolan Council Home, 904 Collier St., Ft. Worth to start at 10:30 a.m.

The conferences are state wide and are a project of the Texas State council designed to acquaint the Grand Knights and Financial secretaries with their duties and responsibilities and the order's objectives for the coming year.

Adults Urged to Accompany Kids at Swimming Pool

Small children coming to the swimming pool, or the wading pool, should be accompanied by parents, or at least by dependable older children.

That advice was given this week by Pool Manager L. B. Bruns in the interest of preventing injuries such as were sustained by two youngsters this week. In each case the child was running on the wet sidewalk, slipped and skidded into the jagged ends of the bottom of the fence. Each received bad cuts, one on a foot the other on a hand.

Brun also reminds parents that the kiddies wading pool is not supervised by the pool personnel. Those who leave their toddlers there do so on their own responsibility.

The problem at both pools, he said, is excessive energy rather than bad behavior. And that can lead to hard falls on the wet concrete. For that reason he recommends that parents accompany the younger children and help keep them in check.

WITH THE MEN IN SERVICE

Settled For Training
Donald Flusche and Tommy Herr, who enlisted in the Navy last week are together, training in California. Both have the same address. It's Co. 274, U. S. Naval Training Center, San Diego 33, Calif.

Being Transferred
Don Ray Moon, airman third class, who has been training at Lowery AFB, Denver, is here on leave visiting his father, Bill Moon. He is being transferred to Abilene AFB.

Mrs. Earl Shepherd and sons Earl Jr. and Wayne of Dallas spent Friday to Monday with her parents, the John Herrs.

Talent Monopoly Presents Problems In Little League

After three games of Little League baseball in Muenster directors of the organization are faced with a problem which they tried to avoid from the very start. The power is not evenly divided and signs are beginning to point to a one sided race, even though managers took turns in selecting their teams out of the general field of applicants.

After two games Dick Cain's Tigers, sponsored by the Lions Club leaves little doubt that it is loaded with talent. In their opener last Friday they plastered the St. Joseph Yankees 30-6. Tuesday they annihilated the KC Braves 41-6. If the trend continues in next Tuesday's tussle with the VFW Red Sox it will be a tipoff that action of some kind is needed to keep interest in the league.

Swapping players at this time, however, admittedly presents a major problem, especially as it concerns kids on leading teams. All have the winning spirit and none want to transfer.

Unless things change in the next few games the directors and managers will have cause for worry.

Earl R. Brown Dies Of Heart Attack; Rites at Saint Jo

Earl Raymond Brown, retired plumber, died at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday of a heart attack. He was 63.

His death came without warning. He had been planning to go out into the country with Eddie Hacker that afternoon and it was young Hacker who found him dead when he stopped for him shortly after noon. Brown had lived at the Wolf Hotel for the past several years. He apparently was stricken after returning to his room from town. He had been in a drug store and grocery store between 10 and 11 o'clock.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 at Scott Brothers Funeral Home chapel in Saint Jo with Rev. Johnson, Presbyterian minister, officiating. Burial was in Mountain Park cemetery.

Bearers were Lou Wolf, Lee Husband, Hubert Harwood, Andy Reeves, Ocie Collier and C. H. McGrady.

Brown, a veteran of world war I, was born in Whitewright on Dec. 26, 1892, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown, and engaged in plumbing until he retired from active work. He spent most of his life at Leonard.

He is survived by one daughter who lives in Arizona; three sisters, Mrs. W. A. Cotton of Denton, Mrs. W. C. Davis of Electra, and Mrs. Pearl Burr of McLean; and one brother, I. M. Brown of Commerce.

Over 500 Visitors Attend Open House At Electric Co-op

A crowd estimated at least 500 persons came to see the new Cooke County Electric Co-op office-warehouse at the open house reception marking its formal opening last Sunday. A check of the guest register showed 392 names exclusive of children and many adults who declined to wait for their turn to sign the book.

Escorts for the guided tours through the 13 rooms of the office wing and the big warehouse were directors and employees of the co-op. Ladies of the staff had charge of registrations and serving punch.

Among out of town visitors were three representatives of the Brazos Electric Power Co-operative, Manager R. W. Miller, Assistant Manager Hollis Dalton and Chief Engineer M. R. Ankley, all of Waco; Bill Lewis of Austin, an officer of the Association of Texas Electric Cooperatives; and a number of representatives of the Denton County Electric Cooperative including Manager T. R. Qualls and Director Fred Hopkins and their wives.

Mr. and Mrs. Urban Endres returned last Saturday from a five day meeting of the Ford Dealers advertising committee at Colorado Springs. Endres is vice-president of the organization in the Dallas district.

Co-op Membership Retains Directors; Klement Is Prexy

The board of directors of the Cooke County Electric Co-operative Association remains unchanged after the annual general meeting of the co-op membership Monday night in the Muenster High auditorium.

Jack Crownover, R. M. Felty and T. P. Skinner were all re-elected for a three year term. Other directors serving with them are J. A. Klement and Doye Doty, who have one year remaining in their terms, and Joe Bengfort and Al Wiesman, who have two years remaining.

In another meeting immediately following their election, the directors selected officers as follows for the coming year: J. A. Klement president, Jack Crownover, vice-president, and Al Wiesman, secretary-treasurer.

A special feature of the meeting was the presentation of a silver bar signifying 250,000 man hours of work without a lost time accident for addition to the safety plaque on display in the Co-op's lobby. Guy Herring, an executive of the Employers Mutual Insurance Company of Wausau, Wis., made the presentation and also gave Manager M. D. Kaderli a certificate as honorary citizen of Wausau.

A report on the year's business showed a gain in membership of 132 and a gain in revenue of $68,828.

Registrations revealed an attendance of 201 members. Wives, children and other visitors raised the total attendance to almost 600.

The method employed in the traditional drawing for attendance prizes was different from that of previous years. Instead of receiving specified prizes the winners were allowed to select from all remaining prizes.

Winners were D. C. Cooke, R. H. Knabe, John Sicking, Ed Sicking, Albert Hess, Dick Cain, Julius Hermes and Lee Toothaker of Muenster; L. O. Martin, J. G. Browner, H. M. Leatherwood and W. D. Dowd of Saint Jo; J. F. Zimmerer, John Neu, B. Hermes and J. C. Schmidtkofer of Lindsay, H. O. Atteberry and W. B. Sills of Forestburg; Julius Allman of Gainesville and W. F. Snodgrass of Prairie Valley. Prizes were 1 roaster, 1 rotisserie, 2 steam irons, 3 mixers, 3 electric ice cream freezers, 7 electric skillets, and 3 electric kitchen clocks.

Mrs. Thornton, the former Mary Elizabeth Quillan, was married to Mr. Thornton on Dec. 20, 1910. She came to Cooke county in 1905 from Harrison county where she was born Oct. 25, 1876.

Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Lish McElreath of Sivelts Bend, four grandchildren, and two half brothers.

Resident Deputy Appointed for City

Muenster's long awaited deputy sheriff apparently will be on the job soon. Sheriff O. E. Whisnand disclosed this week that a Greenville man has accepted the position and is due to begin here on July 1.

He is Buck Anderson, married, 30 years old. He has had seven years of experience in police and sheriff work besides service with the MPs while in the army.

Council Delegates Lions to Plan for Pool Dedication

The date for the formal dedication of Muenster's municipal swimming pool has been set for early in July, but no more details are known at this time.

Members of the Lions Club at their Tuesday meeting decided to take on the project after being informed that the city council the night before had voted to let them take charge.

More details are forthcoming Thursday night when a special committee of Lions will meet to plan the program.

A special event at Tuesday's meeting was the appearance of Norbert Koesler and his son, Dennis, who returned last Sunday from a two weeks stay at the Texas Lions Camp for crippled children at Kerrville. Mr. Koesler said the lad returned with memories of a grand time, souvenirs of his own work in handicraft and about ten pounds more of weight. He displayed the souvenirs, a clay moulding, a hammered metal tray, a basket and a woven pot holder. He also expressed appreciation in behalf of his son and the family for the fine project sponsored by the Lions of Texas.

Many Miss Show In Roof Lifting Schedule Speed-Up

The all important and fascinating job of lifting the roofs on two new buildings is complete. It was finished three days ahead of schedule, to the disappointment of dozens of persons who expected to see the show any time before Friday. The roofs were up Tuesday night and lifters were on their way the next day.

The reason is that they started two days ahead of schedule and used one day less than expected.

Rigging up for lifting started on the Weinzapfel building on Friday morning. Early Saturday men and equipment were ready but it was discovered then that adequate power connections were not available. After some hours of delay the lift was barely started by quitting time. The job was finished in a few hours Monday morning.

Next came rigging at Luke's building, requiring until Tuesday noon. The lifting took up the rest of the day.

Basically the lifting job is simple, but the wires, hoses and gadgets used to power and control it bring on the complications. The machine is the same in principle as an old fashioned screw jack, except that it has two threaded rods reaching down to lift whereas the old model has one pushing up. A geared wheel supported by a collar at a fixed level turns, like a nut on a bolt, on the threaded rod pulling up the oversize bolt. Hydraulic pressure powers a "motor" which has a chain connection to the geared wheels.

That's the business part of the contraption. The rest consists of gadgets and gauges to keep the lift under control.

One such jack is mounted on each post and connected to a cast steel collar in the roof. Then the entire group is synchronized through a central control panel. Because of the number of posts two control centers and two operators were used here.

Deanery CYC Will Meet Here Sunday

Young people of the Sherman deanery Catholic Youth Council will gather here Sunday for a social event that includes swimming, a picnic and a dance.

The group will meet at the swimming pool at 3 o'clock for the first activity on the program. From there they will go to the parish picnic grounds for their outdoor evening meal, and then to the parish hall for dancing.

Everybody attending is reminded to bring a basket lunch.

Residents Invited To Develop Street Paving Projects

More paving for residential streets of Muenster will be available in the near future, City Manager Steve Moster revealed this week.

Lea-Far Paving Company of Terrel, Okla., has been engaged for parking lot surfacing jobs at Hofbauer's store, the NTPA plant and the Electric Co-op, and will be ready to take on any other projects that develop.

Persons wishing to have their streets paved are urged to report to Moster. To get the paving job they must have a project of at least a block and more than half the footage must be applied for. Municipal regulations permit the city to go on and complete the project in such cases and charge the cost of paving against the property concerned. The cost is 7½ cents per square foot.

In one important respect future paving will differ from the former local project. Only full width paving will be allowed from now on. The city council reached that decision after considering maintenance costs on narrow paving. In many places edges are breaking away. On the other hand, curb to curb paving is all holding up satisfactorily.

As before the city will pay for paving at intersections and alley crossings. It will also provide all necessary base material. The contractor will shape and pack the base and apply the surfacing.

Lea-Far is the company which recently completed paving of about 2 miles north of Lindsay. That job, unlike most other F-M paving, was not a contract job. Commissioner J. B. Klement handled it as a precinct project, providing fills and base materials then turning it over to Lea-Far for shaping, packing and surfacing.

City's Water Use Sets New Record; Supply Plentiful

With the completion of an overhaul job on the city's No. 1 well a plentiful supply of water is practically assured for Muenster.

Steve Moster, waterworks superintendent, said Wednesday that the system is ready to meet a peak demand at any time and still have water to spare. . . . except, of course, in case of electrical or mechanical failure. Even then the city could handle the emergency by calling a temporary halt to sprinkling.

The overhauled well has been producing steadily at the pump's rated capacity of 150 gallons a minute and the other two wells have a combined output of about 260 gallons a minute.

Booster pumps likewise are more than able to keep pace with the peak load. Lately they have been running about 60 per cent of the time to meet a demand which has exceeded last year's peak. Tuesday's consumption here was 360,000 gallons as compared with a 355,000 peak in August of last year.

The city this year expects a peak of near 400,000 gallons if the drought continues. This represents about two thirds of the total capacity of the system. Combined output of the three wells is about 600,000 gallons a day and booster pumps can handle about the same volume.

Cogburn Announces For County Sheriff

A. E. "Boss" Cogburn, a former deputy sheriff of Cooke County, this week authorized the Enterprise to announce his candidacy for the office of sheriff.

His formal statement to county voters will appear in a later issue of this paper.

SCHEDULE OF COMING EVENTS

FRIDAY, June 22, Little League Yankees vs Red Sox.

SUNDAY, June 24, Trapshooting, Parish Park.

TUESDAY, June 26, Little League Tigers vs Red Sox.

Announcement that a new textbook which sings the praises of an old kind of Americanism will be available to a million school kids at the opening of the coming school year raises the hope that perhaps we are nearing a return to the kind of thinking which built this country.

The book, entitled the "ABCs of American Industry" is intended to give youngsters a clear idea of the elements which go into business, their interrelationship and the responsibility of each in making the American economy tick. It will tell how the old virtues of hard work, thrift, wise investment, emphasis on excellence, fair dealings, self reliance, self improvement, etc., produced the wonderful standard of living that we know today. Likewise it will reveal the unwholesome consequences that have developed from creeping paternalism, socialistic trends and the belief that individuals should do less and less for more and more, that the world owes all a living and "haves" should be required to divvy with the "have nots."

The inspiration and the money behind this idea is American business, which has come to realize that the survival of free enterprise depends on a more general understanding and appreciation of the factors which make it go. It regards education as a necessary ingredient for continued success, like research and advertising.

What these business leaders are actually doing is introducing an American variety of "brain washing," a clean and dignified variety as distinguished from the kind that we have heard so much about in the past few years. In fact, this is real brain washing, a cleansing of minds, a removal of falsehood which, after all, is nothing but intellectual filth.

By way of defending the selection of that word, the column here and now declares that the basic meaning of words remains the same no matter how much the agents of evil seek to pervert it to their ugly purpose. Democracy means what it used to in spite of communism's way of using it. A people's government means what it says even though it is a favorite expression of tyrants. Likewise, brain washing in its strict sense means removing error from the mind, not smearing on false doctrine.

Incidentally, we can, if we wish, find a certain satisfaction in the use of such a word. Reds have been notorious for taking our good words and applying their repulsive meaning. Here's our chance to take one of theirs and un-twist it to its proper use.

Regardless of the word we choose, however, the idea of teaching fundamental American economy to American kids is a good one. Society will be more secure if they grow up with a better understanding of the basic principles upon which their way of life is founded, and a greater appreciation of the virtues and factors that combine to keep the free enterprise system operating smoothly.

Young people need to clear their minds of the fallacy that industry is a constant clash between labor and management, that the object of each is to exploit the other as much as possible. Rather, it is a matter of co-operation, of concern by each for the other's welfare.

Youngsters need to know also about the source of funds that start and maintain industry, that the money in every case represents savings, of a few or many, invested to create more wealth and more jobs. They need to know that investors who risked those savings are entitled to fair share of business earnings, also that the share of investors is much lower than most people think.

On the other side of the picture, kids need to realize also that the working man, in return for his honest labor, is entitled to a decent living, including good working conditions as well as a pay scale that will support him and his family in dignity.

There are lots of other things that youngsters should learn if they are expected to apply mature judgment to the problems of adult life. First and foremost is the fact of socialism's dismal failure. Some have heard the idealistic theory of "from each according to his ability and to each according to his need," but

The American Way

Senator Bender Strikes Out
 By George Peck

Recently in his weekly column, "This Week in Washington," which is carried in newspapers throughout his state of Ohio, U.S. Senator George H. Bender (Republican), said the following:

"We have witnessed attacks upon the Supreme Court frequently in American history. All of us remember vividly a famous speech in which a President of the United States proposed the increase of Supreme Court Justices to fifteen as a method of compelling obedience to his will. Our national reaction to this proposal, irrespective of political affiliation, was prompt and decisive. Republicans, Democrats and Independents sensed, almost intuitively, that this effort to compel the Supreme Court to knuckle under to the Executive Branch of our government was at sharp variance with the fundamental traditions of our country.

"The South is disturbed over the Court's stand on segregation. There have been other occasions when sectional problems have been irritated by the Court's views. But we have not resorted to the technique of wrecking the Court because we disliked its decisions any more than we would eliminate umpiring from baseball because we objected to crucial rulings. Over the decades, the Supreme Court has been a stabilizing element. It should be sustained even when we dislike its decisions. Only in this way can we safeguard the Constitution." So that no one may allege that I am being unfair to the Ohio Senator, by lifting something out of context, the above is the complete quote of what he said regarding the Supreme Court.

It is most fortunate that Senator Bender drew an analogy between the Supreme Court and Baseball — not for him, however. That analogy proves just the opposite to what the Ohio legislator was attempting to deduce from it.

As this columnist understands it, and his understanding seems to be shared by a great number of folks, the U. S. Supreme Court is an umpire. The Constitution so ordains, but that same Constitution stipulates that it must umpire according to the rule book—that rule book being the Constitution itself. Nowhere in the Constitution is the Supreme Court authorized to make rules or to amend rules — those functions it delegates solely to the legislature branch (the Congress).

In recent years, our national umpire, the U. S. Supreme Court, has usurped this prerogative of Congress — it has not contented itself with simply "calling the decisions," it has thrown away the Constitutional Rule Book and has been making its own rules.

The baseball umpire has a book of rules drawn up by the baseball owners and he must "call his decisions" according to those rules. Can you imagine what would happen if a baseball umpire threw away the rule book and made his own rules? For instance, suppose for the welfare of baseball, he decided that two strikes were enough for any batter and called the batter out after two strikes instead of three. Or suppose, "his umps" feels that three balls entitles the batter to a walk instead of four and sends the batter down to first. Or suppose he figures that it is unfair to the outfielders to call "home run" when the ball is hit fairly out of the playing field, and calls the batter out.

Any baseball umpire taking such liberties would be properly spanked by his league president. He'd be told to get back to the rule book or else. The league president would not eliminate umpiring, he would simply make that umpire "call the decisions" by the rule book, or replace him with one who would.

And so, thanks Senator Bender, for that baseball umpire analogy. No one wishes to wreck the Supreme Court, but we the people have a right to insist that the "Nine Old Men" obey the Constitution. Surely obedience to the law is not too much to ask of the supposedly-top jurists of the nation. When we, the people, wish change or changes in the rule book we will do so by Constitutional Amendment, not by the whims of nine Supreme Court Justices.

High Time He Got That Ticket

With Senator Bender's Statement, "It (the Supreme Court) should be sustained even when we dislike its decisions," I agree. But I do not believe that it should be sustained when it makes decisions on its own rules.

Senator Bender ended his statement on the Supreme Court by stating that the Supreme Court must be sustained, that "only in this way can we safeguard the Constitution." This columnist maintains that it we sustain the Supreme Court in its rule-making by not registering our protest with our legislators, we will be guilty of destroying the Constitution.

Conclusion: It kind-a-looks as though Senator Bender "struck out" with his baseball umpire analogy.

How To Teach Children To Pray

By Mary Reed Newland, author of WE AND OUR CHILDREN

RADIO AND TV announcers have been telling the story of a young child saying her prayers. It seems that as the child reaches the end of the Lord's Prayer, she lisps innocently, "And lead us not into Penn Station."

It is humorous to hear youngsters get confused in prayers they have memorized. But it would be wrong for us to make our attitude towards our children's prayers one solely of gentle amusement.

OUR TASK of getting to know, love, and serve God is vitally important. The first and final steps to God are made through Newland intimate prayer. The perfect time to start man's course to God is when the man is still a child.

Many people underestimate the ability of children to grasp spiritual truth. They are not surprised when little Jimmy makes a profound remark about his father or mother. It should not surprise them that children can learn a whole lot about God.

I HAVE FOUND from my own children that they can learn to memorize the Lord's Prayer at quite an early age. But the chances of their understanding its meaning are remote. However, it is possible to use the general pattern of the Lord's Prayer and give children a means of conversing with God in a way that makes sense to the child.

When the child says "Dear Jesus" he grasps that he is speaking directly to a Person. "Forgive us our trespasses" of the Lord's Prayer becomes for the child, "I am sorry, Blessed Jesus, and please help me not to be cross again." Right here pre-schoolers can learn that goodness is something which comes only with God's help.

EVERY CHILD will offer petitions for his parents. "God bless Daddy and help him with his work. God bless Mommy." My husband and I teach them the petition, "Please help us all to be saints." Sainthood looks fairly easy to a child, and children naturally desire to be saints. Only the adult appreciates how hard it is to be truly holy.

As I tuck in little John, I offer him something to think about. "Before you fall asleep, think about Baby Jesus and how He was just the same size as our Peter." It is helpful to remind children that Jesus helped His Mother with the dishes; that He probably had a cat to feed, and a garden to weed.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, a lot of people who never bother to pray themselves seem to feel that praying has a place in the child's training. Couldn't these parents take a lesson themselves from what they teach their children? After all, prayer is meant for all of us. No one outgrows his duty of serving God.

Children must be taught to eat proper food, and to keep themselves clean. They must brush their teeth too. But they must also be taught how to pray. This is one lesson no parent should fail to give his child.

FORD sets 500-mile record at Indianapolis Speedway

Again proves nobody outperforms Ford

... dramatic demonstration of the kind of performance and roadability that makes all your driving more fun in a Ford!

Ford's record was timed and certified by the United States Auto Club

A Ford V-8 hurtled across the brick and asphalt surface of tough and testing Indianapolis Speedway . . . whirling through the tight turns and flashing over the straight stretches . . . to set a mark that no stock car ever reached before!

Previous to Ford's record run, no other stock car had gone even one lap at Indianapolis at 100 m.p.h., but one of Ford's laps was timed at the electrifying speed of 113.7 m.p.h. And Ford averaged over 107 m.p.h. for the full five hundred miles . . . close to the average set by the extremely costly, specially-built racer which won the Memorial Day "500"!

Ford fully realizes that the welter of claims and counter claims about "racing victories" (many of them completely contradictory) must be confusing and disillusioning to the public. Ford ran this race against time, over the true "Classic" distance and at the most famous track in America, in order to dispel this cloud of doubt and disbelief and prove that no one outperforms Ford!

Peter de Paolo, leader of the team of drivers that piloted the winning Ford, states flatly: "No other stock car could have equalled this performance!" And Pete de Paolo should know, for he was the first driver to win the "500" Classic with a better than 100 m.p.h. average. And now he comes back with a group of drivers to establish a stock car record with the great '56 Ford!

Ford wrote this new mark large and bold in the record books. And the whole Ford did the trick. From the hood-full of throbbing horsepower to the road-hugging rear end, Ford demonstrated that it has what it takes to make your driving more enjoyable. Convince yourself that driving a Ford can be real fun. Test drive a '56 Ford. There's a set of keys waiting for you, so come in and see us soon.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH
TERRACES
This is the time to build terraces. Most of the harvest has been completed and the time is ripe to lay out and build terraces on the sloping fields.
Terraces are one of man's best tools to combat the forces of erosion. On a sloping field, ter-aces divide the water and move it slowly to a grass-covered outlet area so that a minimum of soil is washed away and so that the water is given a longer period in which to soak into the ground. Legumes in the crop rotation also help get water into the earth and prevent erosion by slowing down run-off and by conditioning the soil so that its water intake is increased.

Soil and water that leave the farm will grow no crops, so keep them at home with soil, water and plant conservation practices.

Frank Needham has taken another step in applying a complete coordinated conservation plan to his farm north of Muenster. Nearly 11,000 feet of field ter-aces are now under construction in the sloping fields to aid in protecting them from erosion. Over a mile of terraces were built earlier this year on another field on this farm. The terraces are the wide, low, easy-to-farm channel type and outlet onto two Bermuda grass waterways which were sodded for that purpose. These waterways also are a part of the pasture and furnish much extra grazing, so they serve a dual purpose.

SUMMER LEGUMES

Summer legumes to build up soil fertility and prevent land and water loss are going into the ground in the Muenster-Saint Jo area. Cooperators of the Upper Elm-Red Soil Conservation district who have planted Chinese Red Cowpeas for soil improvement and protection include Jim Dennison, Tony Walterscheid and Bruno Fleitman.

Tony Trubenbach Jr. has planted 40 acres of his farm at Hood to guar. This is a summer growing legume crop that is gaining in popularity in areas to the west. It is very drought resistant and grows well during the hot summer. It is a soil building crop and will produce a heavy tonnage of green manure in a 90-day period and a seed crop in 120 days. Guar is a legume and should be inoculated and phosphated at the time of planting.

KR HARVEST

A check of several plantings of King Ranch Bluestem last week reveals that in most cases the grass is producing a fair to good crop of seed. Some of the landowners working with the district program are making plans to harvest the high priced seed. The seed can be combined, or it can be baled and scattered next spring, on areas where it is desired to get the grass established.

Roy Kingery of Saint Jo is baling seed hay on the seven acre KR plot on the Jack Seibold farm southwest of Saint Jo. Kingery plans to scatter the seed hay over some land he recently cleared of brush on his ranch near Dye Mound.

Buddy Reiter plans to bale his KR again this year for seed hay. The seed hay from this plot last year has produced some good stands of grass this spring.

After a slight delay in their building program, local Baptists will start work on their new church early next week. Defective wiring caused blaze that resulted in minor damage at John Bezner's farm home Monday. Mrs. Paul Fisher undergoes surgery. Virgil Streng is enroute to Korea with the army. Wilfred Luttmner receives medical discharge from the army. Eleanor Schad and Frank Felderhoff marry at Gainesville. Twenty-five young people finish Bible school at Marysville. The cost of hauling milk in cans is 40 cent per 100 pounds as compared with 25 cents per 100 pounds for hauling tank milk, thus a saving of 15 cents per hundred.

Elimination of wastage of milk spilled or left in the can at the plant is 7 cent per 100 pounds.

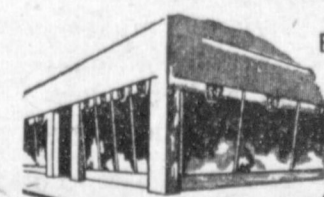

Improved butterfat test gained by selling all the cream instead of leaving some of it sticking to the can and lid account for another 6 cents per hundred.

THIS GIVES A TOTAL SAVING OF 28 CENTS FOR EACH 100 POUNDS OF MILK HANDLED. THIS 28-CENT A HUNDRED SAVING WILL PAY FOR YOUR DARI-KOOL.

A producer with an average of 10 cans of milk (86 pounds each) a day will sell 25,800 pounds per month. At 28 cents per hundred saving, he will be ahead by $72.24 each month.

Dairy Association Improves Pedigree

A new arrangement offering higher pedigrees in artificial breeding became available to members of the Cooke County Dairy Association this week when American Breeders Service, represented in more than 30 states, took over the services formerly provided by Dr. David Smokler of Dallas. The change, recommended by Smokler was promptly approved by directors of the county group.

Smokler informed the directors that as a small operator he could not afford to buy the highly pedigreed sires desired for artificial breeding, so he will quit the business.

Paul Fisher said Wednesday that the change affects only the association's source of supply, not its operation in the county.

Fisher Herd Among Top BF Producers

Paul Fisher's herd was in second spot for high butterfat production during May when the DHIA report of that month was compiled. The H. H. Moody and J. L. Masten herds tied for champ honors with 41 pounds nudging the Fisher cows by only one point. Pete Prescher's Holsteins were next with 39 pounds. Moody's herd led in milk production also with 1250 pounds, Prescher's was second with 1230 and Masten's was third with 1140 pounds.

Twenty-two herds were tested during the month. The 598 cows in milk averaged 33 pounds of B.F. and 873 pounds of milk per cow. The number of cows producing 45 pounds of butterfat or over was 142.

The May summary was released by Supervisors Carl Kemplin and Bob Fuhrmann.
