OPINIONS OF OUR READERS

The Enterprise welcomes the opinions of its readers and will publish, as far as space will permit, all such letters when signed by the authors.

To the Editor of The Enterprise:

Your editorial of last week concerning education, is a challenge of which we have taken notice.

You imply that pupils in Muenster are not getting what they need, and that they will not be able to compete with the products of other schools. With regard to the students who leave the tenth grade of Sacred Heart School we can say that their high standing which they enjoy in the institutions where they continue their studies is the best proof that they are getting what they need in the respective grades of their parochial school. Their letters of appreciation and the testimonials, freely given by their instructors, are most complimentary to their former teachers.

It is truly an arduous task to teach thoroughly high school students who have to spend much of their time outside of school in doing chores. For this reason we are not in favor of an extensive sports program. In sympathy with the ambitious students we rejoice when they get an opportunity to pursue their studies away from the distractions unavoidable at home. The money spent on their education is a good investment, and parents generally do not regret having sent away their sons and daughters. The associations and experiences made at such institutions could not be obtained at home.

Since Muenster is so progressive it should not be necessary for our schooled youth to leave town. Let them invest their education in their own community. Then their parents will reap in joy the fruits of their sacrifices.

At present the building of a church is an absolute necessity. However, if there is money enough obtainable for both projects, a Catholic high school building is most welcome.

Late last week Mrs. Frank Seyler was advised of the sickness of her daughter, Mrs. Rachel Hope of Fort Worth. Driving there Saturday in the company of Mrs. T. L. Anderson of Gainesville she was happy to find that Rachel, though confined to bed, is not seriously ill.

Mrs. J. P. Fisch is slowly recovering from bruises sustained when she fell from a chair while trying to dust some shelves last Thursday. For three days she was confined to bed but has been spending a few hours out of bed every day this week.

Leo Henschel, Meinrad Hesse, Jack McKinney, and Bob Wallace were Muenster guests at a fishing party sponsored by the Waples-Painter gang of Gainesville last Saturday night. Leo reports a grand time even though some few unwittingly brought their fishing tackle along.

Bill Otto is the new owner of the Allis-Chalmers All-Crop tractor that has been on display at H-5 Garage during the past few months.

Ben Seyler recently increased the efficiency of his service department by adding a new high speed drill and a new set of body repair tools.

The parochial nine of baseball talent, under the coaching of Father Francis, again gave Toney Burger's Sumacs a run for the money when they held the big boys to a 3-1 score last Friday afternoon.

For Sale—One team of mules six and seven years old; formerly owned by Bill Otto. Also a 1929 Model A Ford truck, F12 Farmall tractor with or without implements, and several used farm implements. See H. S. Wilde. (Adv. 22.)

Members of the Muenster Young Ladies Sodality spent several days this week escorting Mrs. Deal, a magazine subscription saleslady, to homes of Muenster people. For their efforts the girls enrich their treasury with a "cut" on the lady's commissions.

With the transfer of the Diamond T truck his father has been driving for the past 18 months, Edgar Fette made his start in the hauling business Wednesday. That night he left for Panhandle, Texas, to bring back a load of implements for Oscar Detten.

Flying Envoys Return From Good Will Trip To Latin Neighbors

Dallas, April 22.—Dr. Roscoe R. Hill of Washington, and Charles H. Abbott, the Pan American Exposition's flying envoys, completed their 15,000-mile flying tour of Latin American nations early this week when they arrived in Miami, Fla.

Sixteen Latin American capitals had been contacted and all of them accepted invitations to participate in the international fair, the emissaries reported. From Colombia, the next to the last stop on the itinerary, the goodwill envoys brought word that Alfred O. Andersson, retired Dallas newspaper publisher, had been appointed consul, and would act for Colombia in all matters pertaining to Pan American participation at the Exposition.

Enthusiastic responses were brought from Cuba, the last nation on the invitational tour. Slightly in advance of Hill and Abbott, sports director Bob Humphrey of Pan America landed in Havana to discuss Cuban entries in the Pan American Games which will be held at the Exposition June 30 and July 1, 2 and 3. He also returned this week, pleased with promised co-operation of Cuban athletic officials and bringing reports of much interest in the international athletic program.

In addition, an encouraging report was received this week from L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union at Washington, wrote that the "Pan American Exposition at Dallas will be a helpful factor in promoting understanding and closer relations between the republics of the Western Hemisphere." Dr. Rowe will speak at the Pan American Student Forum's national convention which meets in Dallas June 12 to coincide with opening date of the international fair.

FLOYD GIBBONS

ADVENTURERS CLUB

Hell to Everybody

"The Entrance Sign"
By FLOYD GIBBONS

MEET Evelyn Kerr of Somerville, who is pinch hitting for her dad, George R. Kerr, of the same address. Evelyn says she has never had any adventures—not yet, anyway. If she had, she'd be glad to tell us about them.

Her dad, on the other hand, has had one of those rip-roaring experiences that make your hair stand on end for a week afterward, but somehow or other he never gets around to writing us about it. So Evelyn is writing that story up for him.

All right, dad. That makes you a Distinguished Adventurer, and a full fledged member of the club. A lot of good yarns begin with a man in the driver's seat of an automobile. This is one of them.

In 1918, Evelyn's dad, George Kerr, was working as a truck driver for a company in Medford, and one trip he made in his truck he'll never forget in all his life.

George's Truck Had a Heavy Load.

It was a warm day in September. George was driving a five-ton truck loaded with corrugated paper boxes.

There's one thing that ought to be explained here—that is, that those boxes were heavy. A truck load of paper boxes doesn't sound like much weight, but these boxes were folded flat and piled high on George's gas buggy.

It was a five-ton truck, but that load of boxes weighed every ounce of six tons.

That load of boxes was to go to Salem, and, although George had been in the nearby town of Lynn a good many times, he had never driven to Salem.

George got to Lynn in good time, and drove right on. To get to Salem, he had to cross the marshes that lie between the two towns—had to cross them over the floating bridge.

"I don't know whether that floating bridge is still there, or whether it has been replaced by a more modern—and more solid—structure.

"That bridge was built of 137 layers of board placed on the top of the swamp, and those boards kept sinking so that they had to be reinforced twice a week," Evelyn says.

It was said around those parts that nobody had ever been able to find a bottom to those marshes. But that's something George Kerr didn't know about.

If he had, he might have traveled from Lynn to Salem by an entirely different route.

Another thing George didn't know much about was that floating bridge.

The Sign That He Didn't See.

There was a sign at the entrance to it that said: "Nothing over 6,000 pounds allowed on this bridge. Anyone driving a vehicle weighing over 6,000 pounds proceed at their own risk."

But George didn't see that sign as he rolled onto the bridge approach. So, with a load alone that weighed 6,000 pounds, and a truck that weighed almost as much again, he started across.

It was George's helper who first noticed that things were going wrong. The truck was halfway across—IN THE DEAD MIDDLE OF THE BRIDGE—when suddenly he cried out:

"For Pete's sake, George, look. The bridge is sinking!"
GEORGE DID LOOK—AND HIS SCALP BEGAN TO CREEP AND FUNNY, CHILLY TWINGES BEGAN RUNNING UP AND DOWN HIS BACK. THE BRIDGE BENEATH THEM WAS OUT OF SIGHT UNDER MUDDY SWAMP WATER. AND THE WATER ITSELF WAS UP OVER THE RIMS OF THE TRUCK'S BIG WHEELS.

The next thing George heard was the helper's voice again. "Come on, George. We'll have to jump for it!" That's the last George saw of his helper for a while. He was over the side of the truck like a monkey, and George was left alone on the seat.

From somewhere behind, he could hear his helper's voice calling to him—telling him to get off that truck before it was too late. But George didn't get off.

That truck and the load it was carrying had been entrusted to his care. It was his responsibility.

He'd heard about those marshes—heard people say that anything that went down in them never came up again. But that applied to the truck as well as himself, didn't it?

Hard Decision for Him to Make.

Was he going to abandon that truck—the property of the people who handed him his pay check every week—while there was still a chance of getting it across?

On the other hand, George had a wife and five small kids at home. He owed a duty to them, too, didn't he?

What would happen to them if he went down in that swamp and never came up again?

It was a tough decision to make, but George made it. He threw his truck into low gear, fed it the gas gently, and started crawling along toward the other side.

It seemed as though he'd never make it. The bridge sagged beneath the weight of the heavy load. The truck was moving at a snail's pace, but he didn't dare make it go any faster.

Nothing to do but sit tight, hold his breath, and pray that everything would be all right.

The water rose higher and higher. It was almost up to the hub caps. What if it got into the engine and stalled the motor? George didn't want to think about that.

What if the flimsy foundation of floating planks broke out from beneath him altogether? He didn't like to think about that either.

Out of the Water to Safety.

Then, suddenly, he noticed the truck was rising higher out of the water. He was almost at the end now. Another minute and he'd be across.

George didn't breathe while they were crossing those last few yards.

Then he was on dry land again—truck and all—and he stopped and sat there a few minutes to get control of his jumping nerves.

His helper, back on the other side of the bridge, saw him get across safely, then followed on foot.

After awhile they continued on their way and delivered their load, but it wasn't until they were on their way back and passed the bridge approach that they saw the sign that read: "Nothing over 6,000 pounds allowed on this bridge."

"Then," says Evelyn, "Dad nearly collapsed when he realized just how close a call he had had."

EXPOSITION EYE-OPENER

Enveloped in a Mexican serape and wearing a straw sombrero, Gay Delys, charming Texanita of the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition which opens in Dallas June 12 for a 142 days' run, has gone Pan American from top to toe. Miss Delys was selected by McClelland Barclay, New York magazine illustrator, from more than 500 contestants as one of the lucky 50 girls who will serve the exposition as models and hostesses.

Ticket Sales Campaign Begun For Pan American Exposition

Advance ticket bargains to the Pan American Exposition went on sale simultaneously throughout the Southwest Monday, April 19, Frank N. Watson, assistant director general in charge of promotion, announced that 50 salesmen have been selected to sell the tickets in and around Dallas, issuing them in block lots of a hundred or more to stores, churches, women's clubs and other organizations.

Tickets are being sold in pairs, and actually will be worth $3.60, but will be retailed at $2.20, discounting the face value of $1.40 on each book. Two entrance admissions, two admissions to "Cavalcade of the Americas," the dramatic spectacle of the international fair, and admissions to four of the major concessions on La Ramble, the Exposition Midway, will be included in the books of tickets.

Entertainment features on the tickets will be the "Road to Rio," the $100,000 Latin American village, with picturesque plazas, lilting music and a constant fiesta in progress; The World a Million Years Ago, an exhibit of animated, life-size models of prehistoric monsters in the ancient environment; and The Bowery, an acre and a half reconstruction of the slums of New York during the Gay Nineties, replete with the Gas House, Hogan's Flats and the Night Court; also "Murder in the Red Barn," an old time melodrama produced in the Show Boat where audiences may hiss the villain and cheer the hero, and Black Forest, a Swiss village with a spectacular ice skating carnival and dining terraces and marts.

Only 500,000 advance tickets will be offered; the money realized to be used for early operating expenses of the Exposition, which open June 12, for a 142-day run through October 31.

One Way of Doing It

Thurston, the famous magician, never was more resourceful than in his early attempts to land a job. Weary of performing before the local lodge for a spaghetti dinner and possibly transportation, he borrowed $80 from a friend to defray the cost inserting the following advertisement in the New York World: "Wanted—1,000 men at $1 per hour. Appear at 10 a.m. at the N. Y. Roof Garden."

Meanwhile Thurston had managed to arrange for an interview with a booking agent at the roof garden at the same hour. Arriving early the next morning he told the assembled hundreds, "The man who does the hiring sent me ahead to amuse you until he gets here." Not accustomed to being entertained while job-hunting, the men justly expressed their appreciation. When the booking agent arrived he was impressed. The ruse may have been ruthlessly inconsiderate—but it won for Thurston a long contract at Tony Pastor's Theatre.—Cyrus B. Dingman.

New Orchestra Makes Hit With Dancers; to Play Again Thursday

A new and very unusual musical instrument was introduced to Muenster when the "Mel-Rhythm Boys," an orchestra from Dallas, made its first appearance Thursday night at the K. of C. dance. The instrument is a guitar with an electric hookup to an amplifier, and, with a talented musician strumming at the strings, ranks as the feature attraction of the orchestra.

Patrons at the dance were so enthusiastic about the newly discovered hand of melody makers that they prevailed on the dance committee to book the players for another dance in the near future. Their next appearance here is set for Thursday, April 29.

Judging from the warm reception the players received, and feeling that the patrons of last week will scatter the good news about, the K. of C. dance committee is looking forward to a considerable increase in attendance for the dance.

SHOULD WE HAVE A SCHOOL TAX?

TWO EVENTS of last week serve as a warning to Muenster people. A report from the deputy State superintendent of schools reminds them that the school system here is inadequate. A consolidation of three school districts north of Muenster indicates that outlying communities are trying to combine their efforts and build a better educational system.

The past few years has witnessed this kind of activity all over Cooke County. People in all those localities realize that only by combining their efforts can they keep pace with the times.

Many people here have similar ideas but important difficulties have resulted from the parochial school situation. In supporting that school citizens are carrying a much larger burden than taxpayers in consolidated districts. They gladly assume their burden because they feel the urgent necessity of providing religious teaching for their children.

But at the same time it is undeniable that neither the parochial nor the public school here offers the variety of courses for higher grades that children should be able to get in a community of this size.

For years we have evaded the bitter reality of imposing a second tax on ourselves. The time is fast approaching when that tax must be assumed or Muenster will be definitely left in a rut. With other surrounding districts waiting for Muenster to make the move, it seems most probable that Muenster will lose their support completely unless she accepts it soon.

Other neighboring districts are already taxed, most of them higher than the Muenster district would need to be taxed. If Muenster offers them an improved school system along with a lower tax rate sound judgment will force them to fall in line. But if Muenster continues to ignore a school tax and consolidation she not only forfeits the support of her neighbors, but also exposes herself to the possibility of having her district invaded by other highly taxed districts.

If people here will not consider consolidation they should at least consider a minimum tax as a means of self defense.

FOR THOSE INTERESTED IN BOYS

THE ANNUAL Scouts' course for Cooke County is again in progress. Last Monday night a number of citizens of this county attended the first meeting of the new training course in the American Legion rooms of the City Hall. Other similar meetings are to be held during the next four weeks.

To determine the merits of the scouts' training course one needs only realize the splendid work being done by the Boy Scout organization in building future citizens. This group studies the needs of children, studies also their likes and dislikes, and then proceeds to direct youthful energy in constructive work. Instead of permitting children to loaf or get into mischief Scouting encourages activities that are profitable now and later.

We can recall Scout work here during the past year that is highly commendable. The boys repaired old toys and sent them to an orphanage at Christmas time. They collected a purse for flood sufferers. On their hikes they learned many useful things that are not to be learned in their school books. And above all they were out of mischief.

More power to the Scout program! May this year's training course at Gainesville result in greater interest in their cause.

THE CRUSADE FOR RIGHTS

IN CONNECTION with the Knights' Crusade Movement that was begun early this year, the supreme council launched an endless crusade Sunday night in New York for the purpose of defeating the "most damnable organization in the world."

Martin H. Carmody, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, expressed a thought that has become quite prevalent during recent weeks in blaming Communism for the industrial hardships that have resulted from the labor demonstrations in automobile plants. He further charged that the sit-down strikes were not begun by employes of the motor companies but by imported labor agitators.

The more one considers the workings of the John L. Lewis organization the more he can see in them the sinister influence of Communism. The tactics throughout are of the Moscow calibre.

For the man who is not convinced in his own mind that the sit-down strike activities were Communist a few questions like these may help to shed new light on the subject:

Did the workers have a just cause for striking when they were already enjoying the best wages and working conditions in the nation? Or did they permit themselves to be influenced by the imaginary grievances of a few hand-picked Lewis followers?

What was accomplished by the strike? Nothing except that Lewis collected a fortune in membership fees and won almost dictatorial powers.

Did the workers improve their condition? Decidedly not; their strike placed on them a financial handicap that they cannot recover from for two or three years.

What was the effect on the motor industry and the nation as a whole? Manufacturers lost millions of dollars and business over the entire country was injured.

It is safe to say that the only group benefiting from the entire strike situation was John Lewis and his band of organizers.

Some have wondered why Lewis and his gang did not launch their "improvement" campaign in the mines district from whence they came. Is it possible that money and power were their only goal? As badly as help was needed in the mining conditions John Lewis directed his energies where the most personal gain was to be found. It is apparent that his mind was not on the public welfare.

In recent weeks he has turned his activities to the Texas oil fields. Fortunately he is meeting prominent difficulties from that group of level headed workers who have learned to think for themselves and see in his organization nothing but a menace to industry.

The entire sit-down program is a Communist program intended to create discontent and cripple our present industrial system. The method of Communism is to convince the masses that they are downtrodden when in their own minds they know that workers here enjoy a far better life than the social and industrial slaves of Russia.

The Knights of Columbus Supreme Council merits the highest praise for its newly begun activity in protecting religion, home life, and industry here in America. It is to be hoped that other Christian organizations will join in the defense of the Christian social order.

Bustle is reported returning to fashion. It is to be hoped that it finds its way over into industry.

Wilfred Funk overlooked two more badly overused words, "Please remit."

State Health Officer Advices Special Care To Prevent Diphtheria

Austin, April 22.—A health slogan applicable to May Day-Child Health Day, "Immunize Now—Stamp Out Diphtheria," is designed to intensify the campaign against one of the most deadly foes of children, diphtheria, according to Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer.

If parents would have their family physician administer toxoid to their child as soon after it reaches the age of six months as possible, much suffering and many deaths could be prevented.

The administering of toxoid is a very simple procedure and causes the child little or no discomfort. In approximately 90 per cent of the children receiving toxoid, there will be established a life long immunity to this disease.

To be sure, four to six months after the final dose of toxoid, the child should be Schick tested so that parents will know definitely whether their child is immune. The test consists of just a few drops of diphtheria toxin between the layers of their skin. If the child is immune, no reaction will be noticed. If not, there will appear redness at the sight of the test that reaches its height the third or fourth day.

Uncle Sam Knows His Money

For those whose paper money has been charred black by fire, mutilated by the laundry, chewed by the dog or torn to bits by the baby, Uncle Sam's Treasure Department has a redemption office where skilled workers, often making use of the microscope to identify pieces, paste them upon a sheet of paper the exact size of the original bill and in approximately their true position. If three fifths of the original can be accounted for, it will be redeemed at its full value; if two fifths, at half value.

In exceptional cases, one who presents affidavits and a certificate of good character may get full value even when less than two fifths of the bill remains. But woe to him who, redeeming a bill now, hopes later to cash in on the remainder. Uncle Sam's files are complete; recently one fourth of a $5 bill was presented but the files revealed that $5 had been paid for the other three quarters 28 years ago.

This completes his improvement, Bill having had the interior of the home redecorated several weeks ago.

Across the way, south of Lindsay Wm. Fleitman has added value and comfort to his farm by erecting a new hen house and a wash house. Both buildings are painted white, thus keeping in line with the color scheme of the house and surrounding buildings.

PRESIDENT CHESTER A. ARTHUR RAN TWO MILES BEFORE BREAKFAST EVERY DAY OF HIS TERM AS CHIEF EXECUTIVE!

Miss Maxwell was struck at ten in the morning as she was leaving her home to go shopping. She suffered only a slight burn on the shoulder, but her dress was ripped almost entirely off. At three in the afternoon she was knocked down by a bolt while sitting on her porch telling neighbors of the morning experience. Eight hours later, shortly after she had retired, a bolt struck the bed in which she was lying, splintering it and paralyzing her right leg. She was never able to walk again and died three years later.

The rabbits just happened to be sitting together. Cheney was using a shotgun, of course.

Herbert Meurer Given Bum's Rush But Takes High Score at Party

Herbert Meurer was enjoying a Sunday afternoon nap and was properly attired for one spending a warm afternoon in the privacy of his bedroom when a gang of his friends broke in to give him a first class bum's rush on his birthday. Following the initial roughhouse he was invited to calm his nerves with a box of cigars and to ease all bruised portions of his anatomy with medicinal alcohol.

Featuring the party was a birthday supper prepared by Herbert's wife. It consisted of fried spring chicken with all the trimmings and ice cream with more trimmings. The entertainment program consisted of a lively sheephead session in which scoring honors went to Herbert Meurer and sympathy went to F. E. Schmitz.

Those who were in on the astonishing were Ben Seyler, F. E. Schmitz, C. J. Kaiser, R. N. Fette, Paul Hellman, and John Chandler.
