

Soil Conservation Board Sets Date For Hearing On North Texas District

Includes Portions Of Eight Counties

If Approved, Project Will Be Subject to Acceptance Vote By Landowners of Specified Area

A soil conservation district to serve the Lake Dallas and White Rock Lake watersheds is virtually assured. A recent letter from Frank A. Buckley, chief field supervisor of the State Soil Conservation Board, to J. M. Weinzapfel, local leader of the soil conservation project, advises that hearings will be conducted at Gainesville and Denton on Wednesday, August 16.

Upon the testimony of that hearing will depend the board's final approval or disapproval of a conservation project in this district. Should its decision be favorable a general election over the entire area will be called, giving landowners an opportunity to decide whether they wish to accept the service offered.

Prior to the preliminary hearings, key landowners and precinct soil conservation chairmen of this county will meet with Mr. Buckley this Saturday, August 5, at Gainesville to learn what kind of testimony, charts, maps, etc., and how many persons are expected at the hearing. The hearing must show conclusively to the board that a soil conservation project for this area is desirable and necessary and conducive to public welfare. Any person wishing to attend may do so but only a limited number is expected to testify. Similar meetings will be held at Dallas and Denton for persons in those localities.

The name given the proposed district is the Denton-Elm Fork-White Rock Watershed comprising all of Cooke county except about one fourth which drains into Red River, all of Denton county and portions of Grayson, Collin, Dallas, Tarrant, Wise and Montague counties.

It is a vast expansion of the small district proposed several weeks ago by this community as the Elm Creek project. Activity on the part of the Trinity Improvement Association at Fort Worth and the water supply interests at Dallas was instrumental in the board's decision in favor of the larger area. Silting of water at Dallas and Fort Worth by North Texas soil is recognized as a serious menace.

The attitude at Muenster indicates a vote of approval when the general election is held. A petition circulated and submitted before the state board's first meeting received instant and unanimous support in this community. That petition, it is thought, was accepted by the board as official for the enlarged project even though it represented a small portion of the entire area.

If the vote is favorable three sub-

FEDERAL WHEAT LOAN GUARANTEES AS HIGH AS 57 CENTS A BUSHEL

Farmers who want money now but prefer to hold their wheat for better prices can secure federal wheat loans with a guarantee of as much as 57 cents per bushel by storing their grain in approved elevators. Roy Endres, manager of the Muenster Milling Company, advised this week that he has official information on wheat loans and is ready to assist anyone who is not familiar with the regulations.

To a certain extent the loan provision can be regarded as a guarantee for a certain minimum price, Endres said. First grade wheat has a loan value of 57 cents. If the wheat price rises later the owner may sell it, return the 57 cents plus a small storage and handling fee, and keep the change. He does not, however, have the privilege of selling at a price which would bring a loss to the government.

At the end of the year the grain, if not sold, automatically passes into the government's possession and the farmer's obligation on his loan is considered cancelled.

A limited number of large elevators still have available storage space and are accepting wheat on the federal loan basis. Mr. Endres can assist farmers in contacting such elevators.

It was also pointed out that a penalty is imposed on inferior grades of wheat. To overcome the handicap some farmers will find it profitable to have grain cleaned in order to secure top loan value.

LINE EXTENSION TO MONTAGUE COUNTY GETS REA APPROVAL

Official approval was received this week from REA headquarters at Washington for a fifty mile extension of the local electric co-op's power line into North Montague county, provided a minimum membership of 150 consumers can be secured.

The approval was received by Superintendent J. W. Hess Tuesday, and he promptly notified leaders in the several communities.

A satisfactory project for that area is almost certain, Hess stated. Considering the towns of Bonita and Spanish Fort and the thickly settled rural district, there are about 450 prospects. With possibilities of a 9 to the mile average, he is confident he can secure well over 3 to the mile.

Committees on membership and right of way easements are now active at Bonita, Spanish Fort, and the Valley View and Prairie Point school districts.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Endres and daughters, Mary-Elizabeth, Florentine and Dolly, are leaving Friday for a trip to Carlsbad Caverns, Old Mexico and South Texas.

At dawn police stormed the barn only to find that Allen had escaped. He was captured Tuesday.

REFINERY PREPARES FOR INSTALLATION OF CRACKING UNIT

With power to spare since its new 250 horse power tube boiler was put into use last Monday, the Muenster Refinery is now looking forward to its most important improvement, a cracking unit. According to Gus Mattson no arrangements have been made to date, but the unit is definitely planned for the near future.

The cracking unit will bring the local institution up to the standard of major refineries in quality and efficiency and will permit it to distill all of its gasoline. At the present time it makes only the white gas and buys the bronze gas from other refineries.

During recent weeks the refinery has been operating on a 24 hour schedule, distilling about 1,000 barrels of crude daily. Most of the crude comes from the Voth field.

LIGHTS BURN AGAIN ON MAIN STREET AFTER LONG REST

Street lights are again in use at Muenster. Last Saturday night, after the lights had been discontinued for several years because of the expense and inconvenience of upkeep, they were turned on at every street intersection between the parish hall and the depot. Another light has been installed at the intersection near the K of C hall.

Installation and maintenance of the lights has been turned over to Texas Power and Light Company at a uniform monthly rate.

Among out-of-town friends attending the funeral of C. W. Walterscheid Wednesday were Mrs. J. W. Adams and children, Billy and Agnes, and Fred Hoedebeck, formerly of this city, Pete and Frank Krebs and families, formerly of Lindsay, and Mrs. E. V. Stovall, all of Tishomingo. The group visited with Muenster and Lindsay relatives and friends before returning to their homes.

CITY WATER WELL EXPECTED TO BE IN USE NEXT WEEK

Muenster's new water well will probably be in use some time next week. At noon Wednesday Mayor Seyler stated that further progress was held up only by the delay in a shipment of special shafting. A centrifugal pump, capable of moving 100 gallons of water a minute, has been received and awaits installation as soon as its concrete base is finished.

Ralph Richards completed his drilling job on the well early Tuesday, setting casing down to 618 feet through 48 feet of Trinity sand.

The flow line, consisting of 390 feet of 4 inch, 17 pound welded pipe leading from well to reservoir, will be completed this week.

CITY SLICKERS AND HICKS TO PLAY BALL FOR CEMETERY FUND

Another comedy of errors such as featured the fat-lean ball game last year is in store next Wednesday night when local city slickers take on their hick friends from the surrounding community. It is a benefit game sponsored by the Ladies Civic League to raise additional money for the cemetery beautification fund.

The purpose of the League is to put on a show rather than a good ball game. For that reason it is not extending invitations to persons who have been playing in softball circuits.

Furthermore it is trying to sign up the older men and the fatter men who are less likely to do a good job of playing.

Admission charges will be 5 cents and 10 cents.

THROAT INFECTION FATAL TO DAUGHTER OF LEO HOEDEBECK

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock from Sacred Heart Church for Jacqueline Hoedebeck, 4-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hoedebeck of Tishomingo, Okla.

The child died at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Yosten at 2 a. m. Friday from a streptococcus throat infection. She was ill only 24 hours. Mrs. Hoedebeck and her children were here to spend a week's vacation with relatives when the little girl was stricken.

Rev. Frowin Koerd officiated at the funeral. Pallbearers were Misses Philomena Hoedebeck of Tishomingo, Beatrice Reiter, Dorothy Mae Yosten and Rose Marie Endres.

The child is survived by her parents, a sister and a brother. Also grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Yosten and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoedebeck.

CRENSHAW LEASE BOUGHT BY REFINERY

In a transaction completed this week with Crenshaw Oil Company the Muenster Refinery became owner of that company's holdings on the refinery property, consisting of an oil well, two storage tanks, and the lease with mineral rights. Formerly the refinery held only half royalty on the well's production.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Trubenbach left this week on a vacation trip. They will visit with relatives in Chicago and tour Colorado on their return. They will be gone 2 weeks.

DISTRICT KNIGHTS GREET REV. FRANCIS WITH FAREWELL VISIT

The Knights of Columbus meeting Wednesday night was a farewell party for Father Francis. Responding to invitations sent out by District Deputy Herbert Meurer a group of thirty visiting knights from Gainesville, Denison and Sherman joined about fifty local members in wishing their state delegate a pleasant trip to the order's national convention at Seattle. Father Francis will leave next Sunday in the company of four members of his family.

As a parting gift from the Muenster council Deputy Grand Knight M. J. Endres presented the honoree with a leather traveling bag. The Denison delegation presented an insurance policy as financial protection in the event of any mishap during the journey.

In referring to the knights' annual picnic contemplated for Columbus Day, October 12, Father Francis mentioned an orchestra featuring accordions that proved especially popular in connection with an amateur program sponsored at the recent Catholic Congress at San Antonio. On his recommendation the council will attempt to secure the orchestra for the Columbus Day dance.

Discussion on the weekly radio program over station KRRV and sponsored by councils of the district revealed that it is proving popular. Father Paul Charcut of Pilot Point was announced as the speaker for next Sunday.

25 MODEL PLANES TO APPEAR IN AIR SHOW SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Muenster crowds will have an opportunity next Sunday to become acquainted with a new and fascinating sport, model airplane flying. A field meet in which about twenty-five of the tiny gasoline powered machines will compete for honors will be held at the Bob Yosten farm north of town.

While the little crafts do not offer the breath-taking dangers usually associated with races, they do, nevertheless, provide plenty of thrills in their unpredictable dives, crashes, etc. Besides, they are fascinating, rushing to a take off under their own power and climbing gracefully in sweeping circles until their soaring descent after the motor has stopped.

Such is the show offered by the plane enthusiasts Sunday. No one knows what will happen when the tiny motor begins buzzing, but whether its a crash or a perfect flight it is thrilling.

Leonard Yosten will be unable to resume his work in the oil field for about three weeks due to an accident Saturday in which he broke his ankle and sustained a heel injury.

Dies Early Tuesday In Sherman Hospital

Funeral Service At Home In Tishomingo, Okla., Before Funeral Party Drives To Muenster

C. W. Walterscheid, 58, of Tishomingo, Okla., formerly a resident here, died at Saint Vincent's Hospital, Sherman, at 4 a. m. Tuesday following a week of illness. He had been in bad health for the past three years.

Mass of requiem was held at Tishomingo Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock with Rev. Father Louis, O. S. B., pastor, officiating. Burial was at Muenster in Sacred Heart cemetery at 10:30. At the burial services Father Louis was assisted by Rev. Francis Zimmerer of Muenster. Six nephews of the deceased were pallbearers namely, Al and C. M. Walterscheid, Adolph and Theodore Walterscheid, Ed Walterscheid and Alphonse Walterscheid.

Mr. Walterscheid was born in Carroll County, Iowa, September 25, 1881. He came to Muenster with his parents at the age of 6 years and attended Sacred Heart School. In 1909 he married Miss Molly Hilz of Pilot Point and after residing here a year he moved to Fort Worth where he lived for 11 years. He returned to Muenster and was engaged in machine shop and filling station work with his nephew, C. M. Walterscheid for 10 years. Nine years ago he moved to Tishomingo with his family and engaged in farming.

He is survived by his wife and three children, Mrs. John Wieler of Muenster, Otto and Miss Isabel Walterscheid of Tishomingo, two grandchildren and 4 brothers, Henry, Joe, John and August Walterscheid of Muenster.

A large number of friends from Tishomingo and Muenster were at the burial service.

DIRECTORS APPROVE, MEMBERS TO VOTE ON NEW FMA STORE

A new store building for the Farmers Marketing Association has the approval of the FMA directors and is subject to final approval by the general membership in a meeting this Thursday night, August 3.

Present plans, which will also be subject to general approval, call for a brick structure about 60 x 60 with liberal use of plate glass and ornamental tile at the front. The location is that now occupied by the store. Its cost is estimated at about $4,000.

Gainesville Good Will Party To Visit Here Friday Night

A good will get-together spiced by an hour and a half of entertainment awaits the people of this and neighboring communities Friday night, August 4, when a group of Gainesville citizens will appear under the ball park flood lights in a special program sponsored by the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce under the supervision of County Superintendent Randolph O'Brien and with the co-operation of J. M. Weinzapfel, Leo Henscheid and Paul Nieball.

The program is the second of a series sponsored to cement a more friendly relationship between Gainesville and its neighbors. A similar meeting at Valley View last week was enthusiastically acclaimed by a crowd of more than 500 persons.

According to Clifford McMahon, secretary of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce the best talent available to Gainesville is selected for the entertainment staff. Radio artists, community circus members, and the outstanding school age talent will appear in musical numbers, dancing acts, monologues, and what not. "And the program will not be cluttered with long, tiresome speeches," McMahon assured.

Upon arriving in town the party is expected to assemble somewhere near the Main and Highway intersection and march to the ball park with the community circus band as an escort. Muenster people in town at the time are invited to fall in line on the way to the park where a truck bed with piano and loud speaker system will serve as the central platform.

Refreshments will be available all through the program. Members of the Ladies Civic League will sell candies and iced drinks to raise money for their cemetery fund.

Some entertainers who will appear are the Circus Band, Betty Dickerman, songs; Bert Davis, juggling; The Gainesville Trio, Betty Lou Tatum, Bessie Ruth Tatum and Shirley Gore; Verna Ross Cook, accompanist; Leazer Trio, Marie, Ruby, and Jean Pace; Chester Reeves, songs and guitar; Red River Melody Four, string band; Bobby Eggleston, accordion; Corn Husking Four, Bud Hughes, Bill Tanner, Paul Giraudin and Roger Martin; and Mrs. John Saffel and Miss Mary Sue Williams of Saint Jo. Miss Katie Mae Walterscheid has been invited to participate as a guest artist with her accordion.

As a nightcap for the evening's program the local softball circuit will have its regularly scheduled game.

A special invitation is extended by the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce to all communities within a convenient distance from Muenster.

WHAT ABOUT HOSPITALIZATION?

What about this group hospitalization service? As a person thinks it over he finds worth while views to support both the pro and the con sides.

In theory it is ideal. It provides for general community support of a hospital with service available to many a person who is not financially able to pay customary hospital charges. For hospitals it presents a better opportunity to keep up with its collections, for it is well known that a normal person will keep up his assessments in any kind of insurance rather than forfeit his protection. Perhaps this latter point explains the whole hearted support given to the movement by most hospitals. Many of them were threatened by financial ruin unless some more dependable means of support were introduced.

On the other hand group hospitalization has a tendency to make a lot of softies and cranks out of its membership. Trivial afflictions that are now given mere passing notice might become excuses for unreasonable demands. Cases would be somewhat similar to those connected with compensation insurance. Doctors can name case after case of men who received several treatments for slight wounds and laid off work for a week or two. Without compensation they would have demanded far less medical care, perhaps administered a bit of home first aid, and returned to work. Another example is the WPA. Everyone knows that WPA is a sort of federal insurance for the man who happens to lose his job. Actually it has become just another job. People get on the rolls and stay there, apparently unmindful that they are supposed to be looking for another job while accepting relief.

Any kind of group insurance has a tendency to destroy independence and initiative. The person who follows the path of least resistance will not accept responsibility for his health or his income if another has already agreed to do it for him.

If such is the case, is group hospitalization such a great economy after all? When greater demand are made on hospitals their expenses increase and they, in turn, will demand higher rates. Group hospitalization would reduce the individual cost for many a person but it would vastly increase the aggregate cost in the community. It has merits and faults.

BEER ELÉCTION

Saturday of next week the qualified voters of Cooke county will have another opportunity to place the control of beer in the hands of proper authorities. Undaunted by previous defeats, a group of law and order advocates has presented to the commissioners' court another petition for an election to determine whether the sale of beer shall

There are dries in the county who do not accept this view of the beer election. They contend that to legalize beer is to introduce it into the county, and that to introduce beer is to give a free rein to drunkenness and vice. As in all previous beer campaigns, that argument will be making the rounds again. Unless fewer people are misled by it legalization is doomed to another defeat.

A point that dry leaders consistently overlook is that beer is here. It will stay here regardless of the most drastic dry enforcement. At times it may be a little hard to find, but it will be here just the same. The trouble is that, while it is illegal, it will be handled by bootleggers, some of them respectable business men who should not be penalized for supplying a commodity in popular demand, some of them unprincipled fellows who make no attempt to maintain order and decency in their joints.

Let us hope that reasonable and conscientious dries will study over the situation this time. Regardless of whether they care for an occasional beer, they can understand that the real issue in this election is not beer itself but legalization, that there are places in this county where beer will be sold regardless because there is a popular demand for it, and that precincts totally opposed to legalization can always create their own "dry spot in a wet county."

Another point is worthy of consideration. Wets will concede that there is less drinking when beer is less easily secured. But in the same breath they contend that the moderate drinkers, not the drunkards, are the ones who drink less. Respectable people have been known to forego a stein because they do not wish to go to a "honky-tonk" for it, or because they do not want to drive 20 or 30 miles to a respectable tavern. But the drunkards and rowdies are not hindered by such handicaps. Isn't it a fact that our present attempt at prohibition prohibits only the temperate man?

In behalf of its moderate drinkers, Muenster hopes that reasonable men of the county will see the real issue and vote for legalization.

WHAT PRICE EDUCATION!

A substantial increase in the state ad valorem tax levy for the school fund, possibly to the constitutional maximum of 35 cents seemed assured last week when the State Board of Education for the third year set the apportionment of state aid at $22.00 per capita. That figure was maintained in spite of a current deficit and in spite of the fact that it could be met only by a drastic tax raise to liquidate this year's estimated deficit of $3.00 to $3.80 per capita. Some teachers and board members, it is reported, insisted on the legal maximum of $22.50 per capita.

Certainly no one can deny that the Board of Education is keeping pace in the modern tendency to get as much as possible out of the public purse. It also shares with other departments the opinion that the only way to balance a budget is to increase the revenue.

The $22 per capita is only one form of state aid, however. There are special allowances for transportation, special courses and what not until the state school bill adds up to a tremendous burden. The general public has no idea where all the money goes, nor how much of it is spent foolishly. It does not know that the school system has been enriched by more than $5,000,000 since 1932 by increases in gasoline, cigarette, and other occupational tax levies, and by an almost equal increase in local taxation. In other words school expenditures have been increased $10,000,000 in the past seven years but educators still are not satisfied. Neither does the public know that only one state in the Union has a higher annual school bill than Texas—New York, with a population two and a half times as great.

The public may not know all those things, but still it is entitled to a fair deal. People who carry the burden are forced to new economies every day in order to balance their private budgets. Conscience and common sense dictate that the ones in charge of their public budgets should practice corresponding economy. Individuals have to meet deficits by less spending. At the same time the Board of Education meets its deficit by demanding more revenue. Is it consistent?

Educators ought to listen to a few of their own group such as Professor W. L. Hughes of A. & M. College. He says: "The school folk of Texas, so far as I know, have never devoted a program to school finance except to discuss new sources of school revenue, new forms of taxation. No program has ever been devoted to an inquiry as to how we are spending our school funds. The taxpayers of Texas are by no means stingy in the support of our schools, but they are beginning to doubt our ability to give them value received for their money."

Confetti

By CON FETTE

If we had the equipment to make our own pictures of local scenes we could print one that would be really something—but it would make certain people sorta see red. Sometimes human nature revolts against publicity that isn't quite flattering.

Of course, it would not be our intention to rub anyone's fur the wrong way. We would merely want to call attention to a condition that should not be permitted to continue.

The picture we had in mind would be the city's new water well, snapped at such an angle that three neighboring structures, all of Chic Sale design, would appear in the background.

Not knowing to what extent contamination can spread through the ground nor if there is any chance of pollution in the city water, we do not pretend to say that something must be done. Just on the principle of the thing we intimate that the landscape could be vastly improved by the removal of those buildings. It might be hard to convince some water users that it doesn't make any difference.

Not only that. The appearance of the whole town could be improved by removing several dozen more such buildings. Yes, there we go again—back on the same old sewer propaganda. Only this time we are not advancing any ideas on ways and means. We've done enough of that, only to discover that there is no reaction at all, only a few off-hand remarks about pipe dreams, insanity, or an intention to poop off public money.

It seems our ideas on methods aren't so hot. So we'll wait for someone else to have a brainstorm and in the meantime contend ourselves with an occasional reminder. Not a single person challenges our idea that a sewage system would be a fine thing to have. In fact, it would have been here years ago if mere wishing could do the job. What we have to wait for is the time when people are sufficiently interested to do something. When we have a will, we'll have a way.

If a distress call should go out one of these days about another water shortage don't stock up until you've checked the water tower gauge. It may be a trick to boost the city's water revenue. Judging from remarks overheard last week that procedure can always be depended upon for a few thousand extra gallons. It worked that way during the recent shortage. City officials, hoping to make their limited supply last as long as possible, asked people to be very sparing. The result was an almost immediate drain. They used water like they've never used it before, filling almost every tub and kitchen utensil in town.

A postcard from Gerald Stelzer advises that his pet skunk is recovering nicely after a major operation. Gerald, now living at Bryan, apparently discovered that his new neighborhood would not tolerate the animal until it was deodorized.

For several weeks before he left here Gerald had terrorized the town by going into business houses with his little friend. The kitten, or pup, or skunkling (what's the correct name for a baby skunk?) was a pretty little thing. Everybody liked him—at a distance. But at close quarters he wasn't a bit popular. Well, Gerald himself became slightly terrified a few times for fear the little fellow would become unruly and go into a desecrating act, after which he and some building might share the pet's unpopularity.

It has been said that a skunk is about as friendly and as useful a pet as a person can have, that he's fond of attention and will nail a rat or mouse quicker than a cat. Maybe Gerald's got something there.

Gainesville has a rumor about a job of fleecing neat enough for a veteran crook to be proud of. It seems that a happy-go-lucky, free-and-easy blew into town with a yarn about the fleet of trucks he would be sending through Gainesville in the near future. He called at two filling stations and worked out very satisfactory deals for a big volume of truck service business and ended each conference by negotiating a loan for expense money to carry him through his shortage the next day or two. Next he worked up a deal for several new trucks with a car dealer and ended that visit by borrowing a used car to get around in.

Late in the day, long after the borrowed car and prospect were due to return, the dealer became suspicious and called the town in Oklahoma that was named as the prospect's business address. Neither the man nor the business were known. Then the police were put on his trail.

The joker in the deal is that no one has a case against the fellow. The men who loaned him the money did so of their own free will without obligating him in any way. The dealer too loaned out the car. If and when he finds it he can take it back, but that's all. Of course there is a slight chance that he will satisfy himself with a few swings at the man's teeth.
