WORDS TO LIVE BY

"In a world where it is increasingly taken for granted that the end justifies the means, we must argue for and live up to the principle that honorable means are just as important as worthy ends in any society or any era that aspires to be civilized. In a world where blasphemy is considered smart, we must let more of reverence in us dwell, and show all who will see the worth of that reverence. In a world where falsehood has now become the accepted custom, we must constantly show the value and the necessity of truth.

"And all of this must not add up to merely a passive and negative quality of refraining from doing what is evil, but to a positive and active quality of opposing evil wherever it is found. This does not at all mean trying to impose on others our ideas of what is good. But it does mean working in all practicable and honorable paths to prevent bad men from imposing their evil ways on us, or on others, who do not like them." These words, from the latest bulletin of The John Birch Society, should strike a chord of harmony for all patriots.

CAN'T TAKE IT AWAY FAST ENOUGH

In considering the enormous size of the Federal Income Tax bite, we sometimes become so overwhelmed with shocked amazement that we forget to realize "as big as that tax is, it's not the biggest thing on earth."

The biggest thing on earth is the ability of our Washington bureaucracy to get rid of money. Even the biggest of big taxes has not been enough to satiate the ravenous appetites of these "Spendermaniacs."

At a time when we should have enjoyed prosperity, and should have saved for a future war, famine or "what have you," they have not only spent all they could lay their hands on, but they've mortgaged our country to such proportions that we've become a defunct nation. Our national debt is about $300 billion, more than the debts of all other nations combined, and it's still going up every minute of the day and night.

Some snakes have been known to live for one or two years without food by absorbing the fat of their own bodies.

NOT FAIR PLAY

For many, many years, we've voiced the opinion that "fair play" toward all men and all sides of a problem, would settle any situation.

But we are convinced that in the case of the labor union's charges against many employers, recently, the cards are stacked in favor of the unions and leaves management's hands tied.

Union organizers can stand by company gates and hand out literature to employees every day and all day, if they wish, and often this literature makes an attack on the management inside the gates.

But let management circulate to its employees any type of letter or literature defending its position, and the National Labor Relations Board is on the company's necks.

It would seem that the deck is stacked against management, in many such cases. This is not fair play.

TROUBLE SHOOTERS

In their determination to overtake the United States, the Soviet leaders have been rushing young men through Russia's engineering schools. There has been much talk about Russia's exceeding this country in numbers of engineers graduated.

However Insider's Newsletter indicates that the Reds may be getting quantity at the expense of quality. It seems that Red engineers have been working for a year on some bugs in the heating system of a school at Shum, Russia.

The results, so far, as described by Leningrad Pravda: "In the central boiler rooms, water was for some reason not in the boilers but on the floor. . . The white-stone buildings gradually began to fall to pieces. The water flowed not only into the stoker's boots but into the boiler furnaces. . . Water began suddenly to flow through the ventilating system on all three floors. . . Apparently Mr. Khrushchev would do well to delay burying us long enough to run this batch of engineers through school again, but this time more slowly.

Dallas, Texas, Morning News

A stranger, while traveling thru Texas, noted the dry, dusty appearance of the country. He asked: "Doesn't it ever rain here?"

"Rain? Rain?" questioned the native. "Why, say pardner, there's frogs in this town over 10 years old that ain't learned to swim yet.

True Meaning Of Conservative

An excerpt from Senator Carl T. Curtis' brilliant definition of a conservative follows:

"A conservative is one who seeks to conserve the forces of progress.

"A conservative believes in the dignity, ability, intelligence and destiny of the individual; that the individual, with the aid of Divine guidance, plus education, vision and hard work, can meet his responsibilities in life with a minimum reliance on government.

"He believes that individuals can be trusted to own property, that equitable rules should govern the economic contests among men and that in such contests government should be the umpire and not a participant. He believes that men ought to be masters of their government and that government should be limited to the public needs of the people as a whole."

THE LADY'S NOW NUMBERED FOR LIFE

A lady on our street got a check the other day. It was a semi-annual dividend from a mutual company in which she owns stock.

At the bottom of the check was a box for her Social Security or Internal Revenue Service number. On the back of the check, above the space for endorsement was a note saying the check would bounce if no number was included.

The lady's father called the Treasurer in her behalf, and asked for a number. He was told that since she had never worked for a living, she would have to fill out Form 3227, which would be mailed.

Form 3227 has such questions as the name she uses in work or business, the name she was born with, the parents' full names, living or dead, assorted other questions, and the usual squares marked Do Not Write In This Space.

These were all filled in except for the one calling for her usual signature. Since the lady is illiterate, her father signed for her.

So now the lady, aged four, has a number that will stick with her all her life. And the government has a record of the fact that, twice each year, in July and January, she gets a check for 25 cents. And no deductions.

Are We Racing Our Motors?

Would it be completely corny to suggest at least a partial return to old-fashioned simplicity and morality as a possible way out of our current problems?

Would it be a confession of horse-and-buggy thinking to wonder if too many of us aren't racing our motors when we ought to be hitting the brake a bit?

Sure, we are living in the space age. Sure, everything today has to be fast, fast, fast. Sure, we have to realize that times have changed and so have social customs, philosophies and values.

But does this mean that we have to work so hard to make so many things so complicated and so breathless — and often so devious?

Would it really be in the national and international disinterest to try to state things in such simple and forthright terms that they could be clearly understood by one and all — including even the man in the street?

Would it be utterly and in flagrant violation of the Madison Avenue image to try to sell things on the basis of actual need, common sense and cold facts instead of status symbols, nonsense and hot copy?

Would it be reasonable to current custom to try to simplify things rather than to complicate them? To make comprehensible rather than unfathomable?

Would it be crude and unsocial to approach our personal civic and even national problems from the angle of "What is the Right thing to do?" rather than from "What's the smart way to handle this?" or "What's in it for me?"

It has become the accepted custom in this country, and elsewhere, to do everything bigger and faster and more and more in the self-interest.

It might be interesting and refreshing to see how many of our tough problems would move toward a solution if plain talk and friendly understanding were substituted for double-talk and dedicated confusion.

Anyone for giving it a try?

MORE 'APPEASEMENT' OF COMMUNISTS

As we recall it, the Soviet Union has owed the United States around $11 billion dollars since World War II for previous "aid" extended to the Communists who would "bury" us. If there is any financial responsibility left in Washington where is it?

After nearly 3 months of reported "deadlocked" negotiations between our government and Russia over the wheat sale, it is finally revealed that we have made one concession after another to make it possible for the Communists to get our wheat, even to furnishing the money by loans to a deadbeat government, if necessary.

Congress during the holidays finally yielded to President Johnson's demand to remove all restrictions on granting credit to Russia in a wheat deal in which all of the concessions have come from the U.S.; and in the same foreign aid bill Congress provided another 3 billion of taxpayers' dollars to "fight the spread of Communism throughout the world." How ridiculous can we get?

BUREAUCRATS AT WORK!

The favorite pastime now with government agencies and others must be the mailing out of questionnaires for the harried businessman to fill-out.

Bureaucrats with nothing more to do, sit in Washington or Columbia and dream up time consuming and expensive projects such as one we have before us from the Department of Labor.

Perhaps they don't realize that much time is now taken-up needlessly in the filling-out of paper-work. They should be trying to cut-down on the time demands on today's businessman rather than deluging him with yet another batch.

Hardening of the arteries and blood clotting in hogs is being studied at the University of Illinois because swine have a circulatory system similar to man's. Half a group of hogs on a high-fat diet get regular workouts on a treadmill; the others do not. The theory being tested is that exercise increases the size of certain blood vessels and reduces the danger of arterial disease.

In Texas . . . after bowling, beer is a natural

After you've bowled a game or two, or when you're winding up the evening at the neighborhood bowling center, it's good to relax with friends and compare scores. What better way to add to the sport and the sociableness than with a refreshing glass of beer? However you take your fun—skiing, skating, or at your ease in the game room—beer always makes a welcome addition to the party.

Your familiar glass of beer is also a pleasurable reminder that we live in a land of personal freedom—and that our right to enjoy beer and ale, if we so desire, is just one, but an important one, of those personal freedoms.

Mrs. Lyons Visits Relatives, Friends On Ten-Day Trip

On the go, seeing relatives, and helping a great-granddaughter celebrate her birthday filled ten days of vacation for Mrs. B. G. Lyons on a visit to South Texas, Oklahoma and Old Mexico.

Back at home she recounts some of the highlights of her trip. She left on Jan. 27 accompanying her daughter, Mrs. Marie Stiles to San Antonio where they spent the night with another daughter, Mrs. Vivian Maupin who took them to Alta Loma the next day to visit another daughter, Mrs. W. O. Grant and family, and then on to Houston to see Mrs. Maupin's daughter and family, the Robert Moores.

From Houston they went to Big Spring, via Kerrville where they stopped to see Mrs. Lyons' old neighbor, Mrs. Fannie Johnson and her sister, Miss Mary Haberman. They spent two days in Big Spring visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Holcombe who are patients in the hospital since being in a car wreck early in December. Mrs. Holcombe is able to walk some now. Leaflet Available On Good Grooming For Young Girls

Good grooming counts. The effect of a lovely garment often is spoiled by a lack of good grooming. On the other hand, a garment which in itself is not particularly distinctive may become attractive when worn by a well-groomed person.

Anyone can be well groomed. Developing habits of good grooming early in childhood helps establish habits which will boost morale and appearance throughout a lifetime. But, it's never too late to start.

An extension leaflet entitled, "Good Grooming—Here's How!" is written especially for young girls. Cleverly illustrated, it gives practical, easy-to-understand information on grooming from "head-to-toe."

Copies are available from your county home demonstration agent's office on the ground floor of the courthouse, telephone HO5-4931.

Tetanus Deaths Unnecessary, Says AMA Health Official

Despite the outpouring of new "wonder" drugs, man's ancient enemy, tetanus, has not yet succumbed to a cure. Even so, death from tetanus, or "lockjaw" as it is commonly called, is "almost entirely unnecessary," says Raymond L. White, M.D., Director of Environmental Medicine for the American Medical Association. "As a disease, tetanus is completely preventable," Dr. White noted. "The only reason it persists is that people fail to get immunized, or fail to maintain their immunity. Out of sheer neglect, three-fourths of the people don't have the protection they need."

"If it weren't for medicine's continual concern over the possibility of tetanus—if practically every time a physician saw a wound he didn't take precautions against tetanus—the disease would rank much higher among human killers."

Tetanus is caused by a deadly poison emitted by certain bacteria which contaminate certain types of wounds—especially puncture wounds, or wounds with imbedded dirt.

The bacteria itself cannot survive long enough in the open air to infect wounds. But its spores can.

Tetanus spores are usually produced by bacteria growing within the air-free intestinal tracts of mammals, including man, and reach the ground in animal manure. Within the intestines, bacteria cause no harm to their host, other than to serve as factories for the production of spores.

Once on the ground the spores, which are unaffected by air, and are borne great distances on the wind, can survive for as long as 11 years. Besides cultivated land, they are commonly found in household dust and the grime of city streets. Some have even been detected in hospital operating rooms—tracked in on street shoes.

Puncture wounds are a common cause of tetanus.

The spores in some sections of the country are nearly as common as dirt, and await only the right kind of wound to start their chain of infection.

Because of its peculiar nature, tetanus has never been a mass killer like some infectious diseases. It is, however, a vicious enemy, killing 60 per cent of those it strikes.

Development of immunity against tetanus, says Dr. White, requires a series of inoculations —three injections four weeks apart, followed within six to twelve months by a booster dose. To maintain this protection, additional booster shots are necessary every four years.

"Protection," he said, "should begin early in life—one to two months after birth—for the scrapes and falls of childhood offer tetanus many opportunities. "But adults need protection too. With the new emphasis on outdoor living, with accidents on the increase and with the spore of tetanus in the dust and dirt all about us, we can only look forward to an increase in this deadly disease unless we make better use of our good sense, get immunized and keep immunized."

war to do the job that should be done?

The situation in Panama is another to make us hang our heads in shame. There's another place where our country has been humiliated by smart ales and our administration has failed to stand up for national rights and honor. A political opportunist aided by communists insults-us in order to impress his people, and we make no effort to put him in his place. As the issue drags on we get propaganda from Washington saying let Panama have the canal. It's obsolete, it's a burden. We're better off without it. Besides we should be building a sea level canal capable of hauling modern ocean traffic, after which Panama would have practically nothing.

Those things may be true, but they ignore the first and most important issue: that Uncle Sam is permitting himself to be pushed around. The simple fact is that the Canal Zone and the canal belong to us. The strip of land was bought by us in 1903 and the cost of the big ditch was paid entirely by us. It's our property, and national honor demands that we defend it. Despite the claim that we could gain by giving in to Panama's absurd demands, we definitely should not allow the world to think that we submit to being pushed out. To keep our own self respect and to merit the world's respect we must show that we're the boss on our own property. To emphasize that fact we should inform the Panamanian upstarts that our present generous arrangement will become less attractive if we have to assert our right by force.

Actually, it's absurd that we take any static at all in view of what we do for Panama on the present deal. We give $1.93 million a year to help support its government and $52 million a year in payroll. On the other hand we get $87 million a year in gross revenue from the canal. When expenses are deducted our net is less than Panama gets. In short, we take a loss while Panama gets the gravy. And let's not forget that we have given the country $121 million in foreign aid. It's obvious that the Panama upstart is a fool to make demands. And we're fools if we fail to talk turkey to him.

And that isn't the half of it. Insults to our nation are becoming every day events in many other parts of the world. In Zanzibar, in Cyprus, in Indonesia, in Vietnam, in Asia, Africa and South America. And just lately France snubbed us by recognizing Red China. As one senator said a few days ago "We're backing up and our friends are backing away."

The situation is humiliating and frightening. It makes one wonder whether our country ever again will show its old self respect.
