VOLUME VIII

MUENSTER, TEXAS, COOKE COUNTY, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1944

NUMBER 45

Somebody ought to be happy in Oklahoma City. The 20,000 pints of liquor they wrangled over so long have been dumped into the sewer. The law has been carried out to the letter. Drys have the satisfaction of knowing that at least so much of the vile stuff will never be consumed.

But there are lots of unhappy people too. Some who appreciate liquor, some who appreciate the money it represents. From the European front GIs wrote suggesting that all confiscated liquor be sent to the boys over there. Another fellow wanted to offer it as an inducement to blood donors — a pint of hooch for a pint of blood. Then there was the plan of giving it to hospitals to be used for medical purposes. And revenue conscious people wanted it put on sale in wet states, proceeds to go to the state treasury.

All good ideas, and perhaps one might have been heeded if a state law did not interfere. "Confiscated liquor must be destroyed," no matter how wasteful it might be. Until that law is changed the axe will have to fall on all liquor seizures — except what might be appropriated by the law enforcement officers and politicians.

It's amazing, and a little pathetic, that a law contrary to the wishes of so many and detrimental to the interests of all can remain on the statute books.

For that matter it's a little amazing that prohibition was ever imposed on the public. Based on the erroneous premise that liquor itself is an evil, the law is necessarily invalid and should never have been sanctioned by the supreme court. It would be just as reasonable to ban matches and automobiles on the pretext that they have caused people's deaths.

Instead of a complete ban on those items the law imposes restrictions against careless and malicious use such as reckless driving and arson. By the same logic why doesn't the law crack down on the excessive use of alcohol? Permit people to have it and drink it, but prosecute those who fail to keep under control.

This is a problem that deserves consideration in Cooke county as well as Oklahoma City.

Mailed by some allied leaders as the best news since the invasion is the report that Hitler has taken personal command of his fighting forces. Judging by the results of his previous attempt to run the show, that action ought to shorten the war considerably.

Already his system is apparent. German troops are holding with the same futile stubbornness that characterized their debacle at Stalingrad. They may last a few days longer, maybe a few weeks or months, but when they crack they'll have little left to carry on the night elsewhere.

While Hitler is butting his brains out against a stone wall other favorable indications are developing. His seizure of military leadership might be caused by increased friction with the general staff — a division that cannot but hasten the disaster. There seems to be a growing eagerness in Nazi troops to give up. Penetrations of the Reich are proving less unpleasant than expected. The desperation in official pleas to fight to the bitter end betrays a shattered morale.

The climax of German resistance is past. Despite frenzied propaganda German soldiers are learning the daily fate of thousands of their comrades, civilians are learning that the conquering invaders are less oppressive than their own rulers. Few have the will to carry on.

The attitude encountered on the first invasion of Germany presents an interesting contrast with that a few miles farther along the advance. At first villagers were sullen. They peered out their windows with a depressed, hopeless expression not having the slightest idea of what pillage and brutality they would have to endure. But they were agreeably surprised. Unlike the Nazi warriors, the allies molested no one. They were concerned only with enemy troops.

Word of their behavior must have preceded them. Later as they entered another town people remained in the street and a few advanced to speak to them. Some even expressed satisfaction at being rid of Nazi domination and nearing the end of their long ordeal. Not the enthusiastic demonstrations that greeted them in France, but a calm confidence that already indicated a freedom from fear.

Let us hope that nothing will happen to change the agreeable relationship. Word of it spreading over Germany is the most convincing argument possible that the allied aim is to restore a better life. It will not only shorten the conflict but also leave our men with fewer regrets.

Overseas Packages Need Good Wrapping And Early Mailing

A rugged journey is ahead of the gifts now being mailed to service men and women overseas, and in order that they will be in a condition to spread Christmas cheer, additional care must be taken in wrapping. Postmaster Arthur Endres has warned Muensterites.

At the same time he urges early shipping so that gifts will reach their destination in time. Comparatively few Christmas boxes have been sent from the local post-office today.

There are still plenty of regulation size shipping boxes on hand at the Enterprise office, and packing and wrapping service is available for a small additional charge.

The stage show is to be held in addition to the regular picture show which will feature "Attack — Battle for New Britain" 55 minutes of authentic army signal corps photos, along with a news reel and the serial "Haunted Harbor."

Cousin Goodman has appeared on the stage, radio and movies in every state of the union and is a song writer of national reputation, having such outstanding hits as "When It's Lamplight" Time in the Valley" and "The Harbor of Home" to his credit. THROUGH STEEL and TNT WITH X-RAY

Loaded shells are placed on revolving platform — pass through searching rays of high-power X-ray machine—defects register on film.

Developing room where "cassettes" of exposed film are placed in "hangerettes" for processing and developing.

Close-up of "viewing illuminator" which shows whether shell is good or bad.

Examination of X-ray picture of shell—showing important points to watch for.

It is getting so American workers can see through anything. At the Procter & Gamble Defense Corporation, Wolf Creek Ordnance Plant, at Milan, Tenn., they are looking through three inches of TNT and three inches of steel. They are looking for bubbles, bubbles which might cost the lives of American fighting men.

Army Ordnance has long recognized the problem of checking for crevices and foreign substance inside big shells. The process used for examining them heretofore involved sampling a batch and cutting these shells into sections. The sections were then examined for defects. It was not only slow but it was an inefficient process.

The problem was presented to General Electric X-ray Corporation Research men went into action and the result is the new million volt

X-ray machine that will detect a 1/4 bubble in the center of the TNT content in a 155 mm. shell. Moreover, it will locate any imperfection in the steel forging of the shell. The new process does not damage the explosive content of the shell either.

Because of the need for speed in the inspection of many shells, the builders of this unique machine have made it possible for a number of shells to be placed on a revolving belt or line and pass within range of the X-ray beams. It is the only case on record of X-ray pictures being made of moving objects.

This unusual care in checking for "cavitations" or bubbles is taken because imperfections of this sort on the battle-fronts might easily lead to explosions of the shell prematurely or failure to fire at a critical moment. Although a very small portion of the shells loaded fall to function properly, ordnance technicians and engineers feel that, so long as there is the danger that one shell might not explode properly, they should continue the endless research for better ways of producing ordnance material and improved methods of inspection.

If defects are found, they are classified as "rejects" and sent to another line where the TNT content is removed and saved and the shell cleaned up for use again.

The X-ray equipment will permit examination of 3,000 to 5,000 shells per day. This new X-ray procedure brings the examination of ammunition of this sort to its highest perfection to date. The Procter & Gamble Wolf Creek Ordnance Plant is the first to install one of these machines.

Building Program Gets Started At FMA Cheese Plant

A building program that includes the erection of a whey drying plant and a frozen food locker, was recently approved at a meeting of directors of the Farmers Marketing Association and work on the whey drying house is in progress.

Both structures are to be of brick, the former directly back of the cheese plant, the food locker back of and adjoining the FMA store. The latter building will not be started until sometime in the future, however, lack of help, being the principal reason for the delay at this time.

Recently the association purchased the former H.S. Wilde building and is using the unoccupied half as a storage room, while the west half is occupied by an oil well machinery and supply shop.

A small whey drying setup, in use at the cheese plant for several years, has become inadequate in size due to increased volume of business, necessitating the erection of larger facilities.

Oil Field Notes

Highlighting operations for western Cooke county is the discovery well by S.D. (Doug) Johnson et al. No. 1 Mrs. J.H. Gatewood 4 miles southeast of Muenster. This well topped the sand at 1572 feet and was bottomed at 1578 feet. When shut down after drilling plug fluid rose at the rate of 300 feet an hour to bring estimates from observers that ranged from 50 to 250 barrels a day. The well is now in process of completion and it will probably be several days before a Railroad Commission test can be made.

Second in point of interest in this vicinity is the Kadane Griffin No. 1 Hop Ranch which continues to hold the spotlight because no test has been made which brings considerable conjecture as to the number of barrels the well will actually produce.

Scott Brothers on the August Walterscheid are looking for the sand below 2600 feet in their No. 2 well which has failed to show on drill stem test as producer. The hole is being conditioned to make a slumber-lay survey. It will be recalled that Scott Brothers opened this sand area in the No. 1 Walterscheid, which upon being completed as a good producer resulted in drilling on the Phillips (Felder tract and the Kadane No. 1 Hopkins. This area is approximately 6 miles southwest of Muenster in what has come to be known as the South Muenster Field.

The Phillips Petroleum Company continues working on its No. 1 "Eppie" English and its Fielder No. 1. The "Eppie" is possibly the more important due to the fact that it is a wildcat and should its completion result in commercial production a large area will be opened to development. This well is approximately 9 miles southwest of Muenster.

A number of wildcat blocks are being assembled over the county which should result in drilling during the winter months. Field development, however, is progressing slowly, and although there are a number of locations staked in the areas above mentioned, operators are waiting for tests on the producers and ris with sufficient man power to maintain operations.

Phillips Petroleum Co. No. 1 J.M. Weinzapfel, north of production on Danglmayr ranch southwest of the city, is a dry hole, according to reports this week.

Humble No. 1 A. Felderhoff in lot 3, J. Barnette survey, one mile east of Muenster has been abandoned as a duster.

Misses Seeing Relative
A letter this week from Pfc. Alphonse Felderhoff advises that he is still in England and is well. He mentioned being quite disappointed, however, during the weekend on Sept. 9-10, when he was off on pass and went to visit his brother-in-law, Pfc. Aubrey Jennings, after discovering where he was stationed, only to learn, when he arrived there, that Pfc. Jennings had moved out seven hours before.

Is In France
Pvt. Adolph Knabe is now on duty somewhere in France, he has advised his wife here. Previously he was in Italy.

Hundreds Cheer Horse Show Held Here Sunday

Over 70 Contestants Vie For Cash And Ribbon Awards In Seven Classes

The applause of more than a thousand interested spectators, mingled with the yippee-ki-aye of cowboys and cowgirls, amid the aroma of saddle leather and horse flesh, from the colorful entry of contestants to the rainbow-hued smoke screen curtain for the grand finale, made the horse show held here Sunday afternoon one of the outstanding affairs of many a season.

More than 70 contestants vied for awards in the seven classes while several dozen flashily dressed boys and girls competed in the contests to determine the best dressed cowboy and cowgirl.

A play by play report was given over a loud speaker system at which J.W. Fisher and Ben Seyler took turns at announcing and in-between musical selections were presented by Miss Mildred Walterscheid who rendered a group of western numbers on the accordion, giving her own vocal interpretations. Messrs. Workman and Skinner of Nocona served as judges, while R.L. McNeley was general chairman of the program.

Cash awards and ribbons were presented to winners. The classes, winners, and the names of the entries follow, listed in the order of their appearance, as first second and third place victors:

Colts — H.D. Fields, Saint Jo, Tuffy; Ben Sicking, Bubbles; Tony Trubenbach, Babe.

Paint Horses — Alois Trubenbach, Daisy; H.D. Howell, Saint Jo, Timmy; Leslie Caddell, Krum, Dusty.

Reining Class — Virgil Lawson, Saint Jo, Rusty; Leo Voth, Triggler; Jack Cheaney, Gainesville, Blue Boy.

Pleasure Class — Mrs. T. S. Myrick, Bonnie Lassie; Ben Sicking, Sorrell; H.D. Fields, Dolly.

Gaited Class — Mrs. Charlie Tarantola, riding Dr. T.S. Myrick's "Red"; Alfred Bayer on Bertie; and J.P. Flusche on Dan.

Palmino Class — Earl Ward, Siveils Bend, Yellow Dude; R. D. Morris, Bulcher, Yellow Tarzan; Ben Sicking, Nelle.

Grand Champion of the Show — Earl Ward's Palmino, Yellow Dude; Alois Trubenbach's Paint Daisy, and H.D. Fields' colt, Tuffy.

Between the contests a number of stunts and trick riding exhibitions were presented by Mrs. Gerry Murrell of Gainesville who out Sun D, a high schooled and liberty horse, through an interesting routine. Mrs. Murrell and her horse have appeared in the Gainesville Community Circus Cecil Sim's colt, Cindy, performed in a commendable manner.

H.D. Howell of Saint Jo gave a trick performance with his horse Timmy, and Earl Walterscheid did some trick riding on Dixie.

Miss Mildred Walterscheid, Muenster, and Leslie Caddell of Krum, took first prizes for the best dressed cowgirl and cowboy.

J.M. Weinzapfel was responsible for the final smoke screen curtain, and the show was made possible through the cooperation and by cash donations of local businessmen and merchants.

The crowd was one of the largest ever to gather in the local ball park, some fifteen hundred persons being present. The show began at 2 o'clock and was concluded two and half hours later.

This was the second show of its kind to be held here and due to its success and enthusiastic acceptance by horse fanciers, plans are in the making for another round-up in the near future.

HESSE INFANT HAS OPERATION REMOVING RIGHT EYE AT DALLAS

Robert, 5-month-old infant Joe Hesse, is making a normal recovery after having his right eyeball removed in an operation performed at Dallas Thursday. The baby was taken to the hospital by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Henschel, who are caring for him since his mother's death, and they were accompanied by Leo Henschel and Miss Theresa Hesse.

The child's eye became infected about a month ago, and he lost the sight of the eye shortly afterwards. Since then complications set in and the sight of the left eye was threatened, making the removal necessary.

After spending a day at the Dallas hospital the child was returned home and since then is said to be improving rapidly and gaining in weight.

Another year of opportunity is knocking at the door of each one of us. If you have not realized that fact yet, now that almost three weeks of school have passed, it is not too late to begin today.

Two hard weeks of school are over, and everyone is still eager to keep up to his or her standard. Or, did you set your goal? If your goal was not the best, then your school year is apt to be a failure and you will have only one to blame, YOURSELF.

Make this a year of advancement spiritually and mentally. All the materials are your disposal. You have only to use them.

Class Meeting Is Held

The Junior-Senior club held its first meeting, Thursday, September 21, in the Junior-Senior room. The purpose of this meeting was to elect officers for the present school year. The following were elected: Henry Yosten, president; Mildred Wiesman, vice-president; Jewel Marie Hoffman, secretary-treasurer.

The only business transacted at this meeting was the election of the Mosiacs editors. Helen Ruth Otto and Laura Lee Wilde were chosen.

There being no further business the meeting adjourned.

Volley Ball Teams are Organized

The girls' volley ball teams swung into full action after the election of the coach and captains of the teams.

At the athletic meeting on September 13, Mary Evelyn Seyler was elected coach. Mildred Wiesman, Emily Fette, Jewel Marie Hoffman, Anna Grace Wimmer, Dolores Henscheid and Evelyn Vogel were chosen as the captains of the six teams.

We are anxiously looking forward to some very good games with our neighboring schools.

Three of our boys seem to be "Perpetual Motor Minded" at present. Sometime in the near future you might see Henry Yosten, Ruben Sturm, and Earl Koelzer in the headlines — classed with great scientists. We wonder if there could be such a thing as "Perpetual Study Minded" at least as long as we are in the classroom.

We Wonder Why:

The Freshmen class had singing during their study period. Could it be that they love singing so very much, or could there have been another reason? Ask them.

Helen Walterscheid likes potato bugs. Good friends, eh?

A banana was brought to the chemistry teacher by one of her sophomore scientists? Was it to take the place of the APPLE for the teacher or could it be that a banana is a substitute for sleep? Sacred Heart High students are seen carrying so many text-books to and from school. Is it because of the war and everyone MUST work.

Does This Apply To You:

Hours of study oft remind us. We can make our lives sublime; And by asking silly questions Take up all the teachers time.

IMPORTANCE OF FALL AND WINTER PASTURE

Most farmers who keep any livestock at all realize that good fall and winter pasture is highly desirable. In the first place pasture is the cheapest feed you can give livestock. This is especially true now with labor scarce and high. It costs a lot of money now-a-days to harvest crops, haul them in, grind them and feed them to livestock. When on pasture, the livestock do the harvesting, grinding and hauling.

Good, tender, green pasture furnishes the majority of the water, protein, minerals and vitamins needed by livestock. This is why livestock do better on pasture than they do on dry feeds.

It is going to be most important this coming fall and winter to have an adequate supply of good pasture. It looks now like we will have a greater shortage of protein feeds than we had last winter. We have less acres of cotton this year than last and the present prospects are we will make less cotton per acre. We have less acres in peanuts in Texas. It is reported that there are less acres of soybeans in the United States than last year. It is true that we have some less livestock and therefore some less demand for protein feeds. However, according to our best information we will have less protein feed per animal unit next winter than we had last winter. This is true provided we feed the same amount of protein feeds per animal unit that we fed last year.

We know we can not produce livestock products economically without an adequate supply of protein feeds to meet the animals' needs. We certainly need to use every means possible to produce economically. All feeds are high. Labor is high and scarce. Livestock producers must make a profit in order to stay in business.

An adequate supply of fall and winter pasture on every farm in Texas would solve the protein and labor problem and therefore the economical production problem. In order to have an adequate supply of fall and winter pasture three things are necessary. One - plant sufficient acreage, two - plant correctly and three - favorable weather. We cannot do anything about the weather. We can do something about the planting.

The time for planting and the kind of seed bed has a lot to do with the success of the pasture. Small grain (wheat, oats, barley, rye speltz) planted at the right time on the right kind of seed bed will stand more adverse weather conditions than when planted otherwise.

Grain planted in Sept. and grazed sufficiently to keep the growth down will stand more cold than will grain planted later, whether grazed or not and will stand more cold than grain planted in Sept. that is not grazed.

If the weather permits, the grain should be planted the first half of Sept. in the northern one-half of the state and the last half of Sept. in the southern one-half of the state. If the weather does not permit planting at the above time, then plant as soon thereafter as possible. Very often good grazing can be had when the grain is planted two weeks later in each of the above cases.

Small grain should be planted on a firm seed bed. Planted on a firm seed bed, the grain makes faster early growth and therefore more pasture. Do not plant on a deep loose seed bed such as you would have on land that has been recently flat broke. You only need about three inches of loose dirt to cover the seed good. Corn and cotton stalk land makes a fine seed bed provided the land is free from grass and weeds. The corn or cottonstalks will not interfere.

On good land one acre of small grain pasture per cow or animal unit should give adequate pasture. The poorer the soil the more acreage will be needed.

With adequate pasture, little or no cottonseed meal or other protein feed will be needed. If every farmer in Texas had adequate pasture this fall and winter, we should probably have a surplus of protein feed instead of a shortage.

It is hard to tell whether the rings on the nose of some of our friends are caused by wearing glasses or drinking from fruit jars.

If nature is so wonderful why doesn't she make the mosquito a vegetarian.

The first electric power plant in Texas was erected in Galveston in the early eighties.

Today about 45,000 Texas farms are supplied with electric light and power, as compared with 8,250 in 1930.

Texas is the largest natural gas producing state in the Union, and it is also the largest consumer.

Geologists believe that Texas has 65 per cent of all gas reserves in the United States.

What Is Your "Pet Hate"

Next to Hitler and Tojo, the thing that we hate most is sorry, inferior foods. We hate to see some husbands buy off-brands, supposed to be "just-as-good" and then be disappointed at meal time, and perhaps blame the patient wife for being a poor cook.
