Although the Medicare bill has passed the House of Representatives, a nationwide public opinion survey recently completed shows that American people by a large margin favor limiting a government program of health care for the elderly to those who need financial help, and prefer to pay for it from general revenue rather than increasing Social Security taxes.

Results of the survey, which was conducted by Opinion Research Corporation, Princeton, N. J., show that people favor Eldercare over Medicare by the overwhelming ratio of 74 to 14. The other 12 per cent did not express an opinion.

Eldercare is the plan proposed by the American Medical Association. Its principal provisions call for limiting federal help to old people who actually need it by paying all or part, depending on the extent of need, on the premium of a regular commercial health policy. If no need exists no help would be given. Next, coming out of general funds, the expense would apply to the entire national economy and not just to wage earners, who already have a big load supporting existing Social Security benefits.

Comparison of benefits reveals further that Eldercare offers better coverage. Even if the two plans were priced the same, it would be preferable by far from the patient's viewpoint. In spite of that, however, let's overlook the benefits for now and compare strictly on the basis of cost.

Specific cost figures are not available because supporters of neither program claim to have accurate estimates. But the over-all fact is crystal clear to anyone who thinks. A substantial percentage of old people are in good financial condition. They can and do pay their way in health insurance now, and they are well able to continue doing so. They would not need nor receive help under Eldercare. Another group has a fairly good income and is able to pay part of its health insurance, but needs help to get adequate coverage. And finally there's the group that can't buy any insurance, and would depend on the government for 100 per cent of the cost.

Again, definite figures are not available but a significant fact is clearly apparent. Each of the three elderly groups includes millions of persons; that is, millions who need no help, millions who need 50 per cent help, millions who need 100 per cent help. So, still dealing in generalities, it can be said that the Eldercare plan saves many millions on the first two groups. Medicare, on the other hand, applies to all the elderly, whether or not they need help. There can be no doubt which costs more.

Next, think about the method of paying. The less costly plan is charged against the big general revenue fund. The more costly plan is charged against the much smaller Social Security fund. Again, obviously, the difference is huge. But a still more significant point is the fact that the larger Medicare load is dumped entirely on wage earners, who, on an average, already have more trouble making ends meet than the old folks who are due to get benefits. As it looks from here, Medicare will create as much problem as it corrects—perhaps more.

The combination of those several factors inclines us to think that good judgement cannot permit the Senate to approve Medicare. But then we remember that the same facts were before the House, and it gave in, nevertheless, to Administration pressure. Predictions are that the Senate will do likewise. Medicare seems inevitable. Political considerations have priority over judgment.

For another impression of the Medicare plan, take a look from the angle of a youngster, say 20 years old. He faces 45 years of paying into the fund before he can collect any benefits. Meanwhile he carries another policy to take care of himself and family. He pays on two policies so that old folks, many of whom don't need it, can get one for free.

It's hard to see the justice in such a plan. Likewise it's (Continued on page 8)

Tigers Win; Beat Callisburg 11-2

That long awaited day arrived Monday for the Sacred Heart Tigers. They won their first baseball game of the season, licking the Callisburg Wildcats by a convincing count of 11-2.

It was a big sixth inning that gave Walter Wolf's boys their one sided count. Before that they made one each in the first and fourth and 2 in the fifth. The visitors made their first run at the top of the sixth then the Tigers went on a 7-run spree. Callisburg got its second run in the seventh.

Dale Hofbauer hurled to the sixth and retired 13 batters in a row before allowing two hits. Leon Endres took over then and held the Wildcats hitless the rest of the way. Hofbauer fanned 10, walked 1 and allowed 2 hits.

Hitters for Sacred Heart were Hofbauer a 3-run homer, Sammy Endres and Willie Wimmer, each two singles, Maurus Hacker and Steve Kralicke each one single.

On record of errors also, the local boys bested their guests, by a count of 2 and 6.

Swimming Pool Will Open May 29

Muenster's municipal swimming pool will open on May 29 under supervision of Carl King. The date and appointment both were decided at this week's city council meeting.

To date no one has been named to help Mr. King. Other details of operation will be about the same as before. Admission charge will be 40 cents for adults and 20 cents for children. The pool will be open every day except Monday from 2 to 9 p.m. No one will be admitted after 8, and if no one happens to be there at the time the pool will close at 8.

Earl Fisher, Herbert Meurer, Urban Endres and Bobo Jaska were in Dallas Tuesday attending the Area Development Seminar sponsored by Texas Power and Light Co.

Council Revives Ordinance on Dogs

More rigid enforcement of the dog ordinance is due to begin soon. Members of the city council at their Tuesday night session responded to complaints of citizens and decided on more control.

Reports were that several children have been nipped by dogs in recent weeks and the inevitable question of possible infection came up in each case. The dogs as a rule had no license tags, so it is not known whether they are vaccinated for rabies.

Councilmen decided to remove the risk as far as possible by enforcing the dog ordinance more rigidly. All dogs not confined to the owner's premises must be licensed, which in turn requires that they have rabies shots. Unlicensed dogs on the loose are subject to capture.

To simplify capture the city also authorized purchase of a tranquilizer gun. Dogs that lead a wild chase will be calmed down.

Fix-Up Paint-Up Okayed by Council For Water Tank

Water storage tank No. 2 on north Main Street is about to receive a fix-up and paint-up job. The city council has okayed a contract for inside and outside work to cost $1695 and to be guaranteed for five years.

Work will consist of sand blasting and welding pits inside the tank and covering with three coats of a plastic base paint. The outside will be painted light blue, matching the tower storage tank.

The inside material to be used admittedly is less serviceable than the plastic lining now in the tower. A recent inspection there shows no blemish there after three years and reason to expect many more years of trouble free use. But that type of paint is much more expensive. To avoid a financial strain, the city compromised on the less durable job.

May 1 and 2 Set For Flower Show At Wichita Falls

May 1 and 2 have been set for the second annual flower show of six Wichita Falls garden clubs. The event is to be held in the newly remodeled and air-conditioned Clark Student Center on Midwest University Campus in Wichita Falls. It is a Florarama presenting "Spotlight on Wichita Falls" as a theme.

Entries are to be submitted by members of the sponsoring clubs which include the University Park, Western Hills, Fountain Park, Poupplar Gardeners, Rivercrest, and Dig and Delve Garden Clubs. Arrangements of cut flowers and growing plants will be exhibited to the public from 2:30 to 8:00 p.m., Saturday, May 1, and from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m., Sunday, May 2.

A very small admission charge is made for adults. Children under twelve are to be admitted with no charge.

Mrs. Hellman Back From Holy Land

A diary and souvenirs came back from abroad with Mrs. Rudy Hellman who spent three weeks on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land. The tour was by air but almost all other modes of travel were used on the trip. Car, boat, horse back, and camel back and walking took the tourists to places of interest.

At Beirut, Lebanon, Mrs. Hellman visited by phone with former Muensterite Lou Rena Wolf now Mrs. C. W. Hammond.

High spots of the trip included Baalbek and Damascus, Cairo, Luxor — Egypt's most fabulous city — Jerusalem, Petra, Nazareth, Athens, Corinth and others. There were stops in London and Paris.

Forty persons were in the group making the trip. Their guide carried a pedometer and all were amazed to learn, on the way back, that they had walked 61 miles though historic ruins and over deserts, through orange, grapefruit and banana groves, watermelon, tomato and potato fields, temples, shrines and churches. More details on Mrs. Hellman's trip will appear in a later issue of the Enterprise.

700 Expected at Annual Meeting Of Electric Co-op

About 700 member-customers of the Cooke County Electric Cooperative Association are expected to gather in Muenster next Monday night for the organization's 27th annual meeting.

The meeting will be held in Muenster High School auditorium, starting at 8 o'clock. Its purpose is to report on the previous year's operations, to consider any new business introduced by the members, and to elect three members of the board of directors.

Headliner on the program is an address by J. R. Cobb of Austin, general manager of Texas Electric Cooperatives, Inc., a statewide association of rural electric co-ops, of which the local organization is a member.

A special feature will be the introduction of Margaret Pybas and Birt Simpson, winners of Cooke and Montague counties respectively in a speech contest entitled "Government in Action" sponsored by the Electric Co-op. Both will receive expense paid trips to Washington D.C.

For many members the principal attraction is the annual drawing for attendance prizes. Every member present will participate in the drawing for about 30 electric appliances with a combined value of about $700.

Registration for the meeting will be held from 7 to 8 o'clock and entertainment during that hour will be provided by Jack Hogan and his Lone Star Playboys. President Jack Crowover will open the business session at 8.

Invocation will be given by Father Alcuin Kubis of Muenster's Sacred Heart Church and the city's welcome will be extended by Mayor Earl Fisher. Secretary Doye Doty will present proof that all members have been notified as required by the organization's by-laws and will also read minutes of last year's general meeting.

A report on 1964 business will be reviewed by Manager Mike Sloan. A detailed statement on the operation was contained in a booklet sent to all members with the official notice of meeting.

Directors are to be elected for the three board positions now held by Jack Crowover, Robert T. Lewis Jr., and Pete Skinner. All were nominated for re-election by the nominating committee. In case members wish to make other nominations they may do so at the meeting.

Refreshments will be served after adjournment.

Nobody Objects to City Annexation

Annexation of 17.64 acres southeast of town to the City of Muenster completed its first step uneventfully Tuesday night. Nobody reported to the public hearing which was set by the city council to hear any objections to the proposed addition.

Next procedure is for the owner, Urban Endres, and city officials to complete the papers making the area a part of Muenster.

The area to be added is intended for development as residential building sites after water and sewer services become available, and it must become a part of the city before those services can be installed.

Another addition to the city is a 50 x 272 foot strip for extension of Pine Street in southeast Muenster. The land was given by Nick Yosten, Herbie Yosten and Tommy Hesse for dedication as a street. Pine is one block east of the city limit and when improved will extend within 1 block of the highway from the south city boundary.

SHORT CHANGED

The people are going to wake up some day to how they are being short-changed by Social Security. A young person, starting work at age 20, works and pays Social Security taxes for 45 years, and at age 65 gets a pension of $127 per month. A rural mail carrier can work 30 years and retire on about $250 per month pension. He can then take another job with no limit on how much money he can earn. But the worker who retires under Social Security is restricted as to earnings. If he earns more than $100 a month, he loses Social Security payments on a graduated scale and the more he earns, the more he loses, until finally he loses all his Social Security payments as long as he works. Social Security has proved to be a windfall for old people, however. The current retirees are in most instances receiving more money in a year than they ever paid into the S. S. Fund. But the young people are paying thru the nose to make it possible for old people to enjoy S. S. payments for which they never paid. The only way for a young man to beat the system is to have a family of several children and to become totally and permanently disabled, or to die. Then Social Security will take care of the family.

WHERE THE BEST DOCTORS ARE

Taken by itself, there was no particular significance to the journey of two American brain surgeons to Belgium the other day to operate on two patients who were unable to travel. It was a commendable act of humanity, but this didn't make it especially unusual.

It is of interest rather as part of a larger picture. The two surgeons had developed an instrument and a technique which weren't available in Europe. If the patients were to benefit from the development, the doctors would have to go to Belgium or, as more often happens, the patients would have to come to America.

This happens so often that we never hear of it unless the case is unusual or the patient is a celebrity. But the roster of celebrities alone who come to his country for treatment is in impressive one. Kings and Communists, presidents and prime ministers, dictators come from all corners of the world to receive treatment here.

We mention all this because it illustrates what we have said so often. If you want mass medicine, where doctors spend so much time prescribing aspirin and tranquilizer pills that there is neither the opportunity nor the incentive to develop special skills; if you want quantity rather than quality; if you want the people to think they are getting medical progress when in fact they are being denied it, then a socialistic state system like Britain's will do the job.

Its "success" is demonstrated by the difficulty of persuading young Englishmen to go into medicine and by the stream of doctors leaving England to practice in Canada, Australia, or the United States.

But real medical progress comes only when the medical profession is free to regulate its own life, when the rules are flexible, and when individual skill is encouraged. The medicare bill now pending is a step in the direction Britain has gone, and will inevitably lead to more steps in that direction. Congress still has time to reject a plan which will jeopardize the quality of service available to kings, Communists, presidents, prime ministers, and the American people.

WE BUTTER COMMUNISTS' BREAD

Many Americans do not eat as much butter as they would like to eat because it costs a little more. But how do you like the idea of paying taxes to provide butter for Communist East Germany? Does that make your margarine taste better?

Last August, the Commerce Department issued an export license to allow the shipment to the East German Reds — the ones who have the Berlin Wall — of American butter valued at $860,000.

American exporters plan to sell 2,204,600 pounds of butter at a price of .39.009 cents a pound.

The reason American exporters can get butter to sell at that price is that you, as a taxpayer, pay a subsidy of 24.5 cents a pound.

If you multiply 24.5 cents per pound by the 2,204,600 pounds of American butter being sold to the Communists in East Germany, you will find that the cost to American taxpayers is $540,127.

Can't you think of something better to do with half a million of your dollars than to subsidize butter for Communists?

Zing into spring! Chevrolet Impala

Chevrolet Impala Super Sport Coupe—one of two bucket-seated beauties for '65.

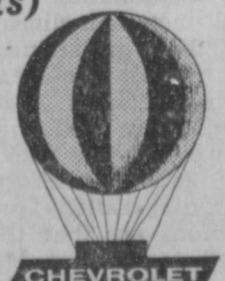

People who buy other big expensive-looking cars get one thing you won't (big expensive-looking payments)

It looks like a big car. And is—by almost any standard you want to apply.

Width? Nobody builds a car as much as one inch wider. Length? It grew three inches this year. Roominess? Every closed model's got three inches more shoulder room, front and rear, and more leg and foot room up front too. Luxury? Nice little touches like the look of mellow walnut across the Impala's instrument panel. And big touches. Like the fineness of the same Body by Fisher workmanship that makes some of America's most expensive cars look so expensive. How about the ride? Chevrolet engineers took the Jet-smooth one and smoothed it out even more this year. Also made it more stable by widening the wheel stance. Price? That's where Chevrolets fall way short of the other big expensive-looking cars. But we wouldn't have it any other way. Would you?

One last question: How soon can you make a good spring buy on a Chevrolet? One last answer: Just as soon as you can get down to your Chevrolet dealer's.

DAYTON, N. J. — A briefcase-size voting device, that weighs approximately six pounds and is expected to reduce waiting time at polling places, is now being marketed by International Business Machines Corporation.

Called the IBM Votomatic, the device uses punched card ballots and is priced at $185 per unit. The Votomatic's low cost means that enough units can be placed in each polling place to cut down the waiting time of voters.

Of more than 4,000 voters surveyed by county and state officials in Oregon and California after having used units of this type in last November's elections, 96 percent said they preferred them over hand-marked ballots.

The IBM Votomatic system works like this: The voter slips a specially designed punched card into the device so that the card positions itself precisely underneath a printed ballot, which can be several pages in length. The voter registers his choices by using a pen-like stylus to punch holes in the card, which can contain up to 240 voting positions. The punching positions are immediately opposite the ballot page and are indicated by arrows from the candidate's name or the "yes" or "no" choices in a referendum.

When the polls close, the punched card ballots can be entered directly into general purpose data processing equipment for high-speed counting and printing of election returns. Computer tabulation of the punched card ballots averages less than a half cent per vote.
