VOLUME VIII

MUENSTER, TEXAS, COOKE COUNTY, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1944

NUMBER 44

A new alphabetical agency, OOMP, signifying Office of Materials and Facilities and not a characteristic of modern youth, has been instituted to study the feasibility of putting war time implements to agricultural use.

In return for a few hundred thousand dollars of tax money we can expect a series of extensive reports on all the civilian jobs army trucks and jeeps can do, how bull dozers and fresnoes can be utilized on county roads or how those huge GI trailers can be used on truck lines, and some more such stuff.

From a bureaucratic angle that's a wonderful thing. It will likewise be a godsend for prospective investors who haven't enough sense to figure out what kind of machines they want for their jobs. But the average citizen is more likely to think it's a lot of bunk. All the government needs to do for him is to put the equipment on sale. He'll decide whether it suits his needs—without benefit of OOMP ballyhoo.

One of the more pleasing aspects about the new bureau is the wonderful possibility it suggests for federal employment. If work as unessential as that constitutes a job there's practically no limit to the number of persons who can be placed on the public payroll. At that rate there'll be no need for anyone to worry about an unemployment problem after the war.

Only it doesn't work out quite as simply as that. Even the New Dealers, who apparently have no conception of where federal employment should be halted, admit there is a limit. In fact, they as well as their political opponents are now racking their brains for a plan to assure general employment after the war, but neither so far has anything definite to offer. All they do is elaborate on one another's boners and predict unparalleled prosperity if their own party is elected.

There is a solution to our unemployment worry but unfortunately neither party seems courageous enough to face it. Votes might be at stake. Honest to goodness sensible suggestions might prove a rebuke to certain elements and cause disastrous repercussions. Actually they're making a deplorable mistake. The American public, starving for a bit of statesmanship, would gladly support a down to earth plan to lead them out of their confusion.

Such a plan could be developed. It wouldn't be radical either, just an old fashioned as to be completely new again. In rough outline it would be something like this:

Since agriculture and industry are the foundations of prosperity, give them a chance by removing a few of their shackles. Reduce their tax burden by lopping off some of the exorbitant public expense. Give them greater freedom by eliminating some of the bureaucratic meddling. Give them justice by cracking down on labor racketeers. With those handicaps removed the primary creators of wealth will have an opportunity to expand and offer greater opportunities to working people. That's one thing the government can do.

At the same time the American public must be willing to make a few cooperative adjustments. Working men must acknowledge that an extra 10 dollars a week extorted from an employer and handed over to a union racketeer does their cause more harm than good. Farmers must acknowledge that easy money from Washington—plus exorbitant administrative expenses—is charged back to them in taxes. Millions of other citizens must acknowledge that other people have a first right to available jobs.

On the last point especially we need consideration and common sense as contrasted with the greed we have exercised during the past few decades. Millions of women and teen age kids who did not really need the money have been squeezing out people who otherwise might have been able to support themselves. If more youngsters completed their school courses and more women devoted their energies to home and civic improvement, economic conditions would be less alarming.

It's the old story of supply and demand, and we won't be able to get away from it no matter how we phrenate through official channels. Our supply of productive workers must be voluntarily limited to production's demand for them.

Of course this doesn't mean that every youth and woman should be clipped off our post war payrolls. Too many of them have to support themselves. And, fortunately, demand in that field is adequate to the supply. There are thousands of specialized jobs that can be more properly filled by women and youngsters.

OCT. 1ST DEADLINE FOR FOOD TOKENS

After October 1 no individual purchaser of food may use tokens at all to buy or to acquire processed foods, according to an official directive from the district OPA office.

Point values of all vegetables but tomatoes were removed Monday and the point value of canned fruits, and fruit and vegetable juices were raised. New charts of the latest point values are being distributed to retail food stores over the country.

Food dealers, both retail and wholesale, may deposit blue tokens in ration bank accounts from Oct. 1 through Oct. 9, and may exchange them for certificates at the rationing office. However, on or after Oct. 10, no person may deposit tokens in any ration bank account or exchange them for certificates, coupons or stamps at the rationing office, it was stated.

Retailers and wholesalers may exchange tokens freely in amounts less than 250 before Oct. 10. The new point values will necessitate many dealers taking inventory of net points, and it is necessary that retailers have inventories as of the close of business Sept. 16, 1944, using point values effective Sept. 17, to be presented to the board.

Oil Field Notes

Kadane-Griffin Oil Company of Wichita Falls No. 1 S.P. Hopkins blew in as a gusher Friday night at about 11:30, shooting oil high above the derrick, and is said to be good for more than 400 barrels a day. Phillips Petroleum Co. No. 1 J.W. Weinzapfel in A Emanuel survey, north of production on Danglimay ranch southwest of the city is drilling below 2500 feet.

The first long distance telephone line in Texas was established between Galveston and Houston in 1883.

Lindsay Veteran Home After Fifty Bombing Raids

Sgt. Frederick Schmitz Won DFC And Air Medal In Action Over Germany

LINDSAY.—S. Sgt. Frederick Schmitz arrived last Thursday to spend a 21-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Schmitz and family. He has just returned from the European war theatre where he saw action with the air corps as a gunner. He successfully completed 30 flying missions as a body gunner aboard the "Silver Slipper", and wears a blouse decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal.

The Distinguished Flying Cross is the highest air award and is presented to those serving with the air corps who distinguish themselves by heroism or extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flight.

Sgt. Schmitz tells little of his activity abroad and tries to evade any question that might relate to action for which he was presented his decorations.

When he leaves here he will go to Miami, Florida, for a rest period, and says he hopes to be back in action before long.

SAFETY FEATURES FOR NEW A RATION GASOLINE BOOKS

The new "A" gasoline ration books now being issued to Cooke county motorists for use beginning September 22, have two new safety features, the Office of Price Administration has announced.

The coupons now have serial numbers useful in spotting stolen coupons. When issuing the new books the local rationing board records the serial numbers of the person to whom they are issued, and the new coupons are now printed on a special kind of safety paper which responds to a secret test known only to government identification experts. Although counterfeit coupons may look the same to the untrained eye, they will show up the minute this secret test is applied.

Along with these new precautions is the old safety feature, which is the endorsement by the motorist of his car license number and state of registration. If coupons are not properly endorsed they are invalid and may be revoked.

As long as it is necessary to ration gasoline, the OPA declares that it will not tolerate any suggestion of misuse or counterfeiting of the currency that assures each citizen a fair share.

The new coupons will be good for 4 gallons each.

NEW COUNTY HOME AGENT IS APPOINTED

Miss Mildred Chapman was appointed Monday by the commissioners court to succeed Mrs. Julia Kelley as Cooke county home demonstration agent, who has resigned the office effective October 1.

CLOTHES DRIVE FOR WAR RELIEF TO BE CONDUCTED HERE

One garment from each parishioner of Sacred Heart parish, is the goal set in the forthcoming clothes drive for war relief. Father Thomas and Father Richard stated Sunday in announcing the campaign.

Any garments, for men, women and children, including infants, are solicited in this campaign. They are to be deposited at the K of C hall or the parish hall, beginning next Sunday, and a special committee will then be named to sort the articles in groups and pack them for shipment.

This is a community-wide drive and is not confined to members of the parish. Anyone wishing to donate to this drive is urged to gather up wearing apparel, and if possible, to deposit it at the collection centers. Present plans are to make arrangements to have a pickup call at city homes for such persons that have no means of getting their garments to the collection depots, but they are urged not to wait for this but to take their contributions to either hall as early as possible next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hellman announce the birth of a son, James Marquette, at the local clinic Sunday morning. The baby was baptized in the afternoon by Father Thomas, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lehnertz as sponsors. Mrs. Hellman was Miss Pauline Otto before her marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Haverkamp and family have returned to this city to make their home after living in Valley View for the past year. They are occupying the former George Gehring house, south of Mrs. John Haverkamp's residence, which is being remodeled this week.

Albert Swirczynski, stationed at Camp Howze. The group spent the weekend here with relatives. Other guests for the dinner were Messrs. and Meses. Joe Swirczynski and family and Leonard Yosten and son.

S. Sgt. Robert W. Herr Dies From Injuries Sustained At Camp

Funeral Rites With Full Military Honors Held Here Wednesday

Injuries sustained in the line of duty at Camp Hood on September 10 claimed the life of S. Sgt. Robert W. Herr, 25, on Thursday, the 14th. Death came at 11:30 p.m. at McCloskey General Hospital, Temple, where he was taken following the accident, for an operation.

The body of Sgt. Herr was brought to Muenster Sunday morning, accompanied by Sgt. C. L. Sarenzen, as escort, and lay in state at the home of his father, Fred Herr, until funeral services Monday morning. The Rosary was recited at the Herr home Sunday evening, led by Rev. Thomas Burger, pastor, who also offered the Requiem High Mass at funeral services in Sacred Heart church Monday morning at 9:30, a large gathering attending. Father Thomas also delivered an eloquent address and conducted services at the grave.

Full military honors were accorded by personnel from Camp Howze, and eight of the soldiers served as casket bearers. After the flag had been removed from the casket it was handed to the deceased's father, three volleys were fired and then a bugler, at the head of the new-made mound, sounded "Taps", the soldier's farewell. Interment was in Sacred Heart cemetery in the special plot reserved for those who give their lives for their country.

Five cousins of Sgt. Herr served as acolytes at the services: Melvin Herr, Bernard and Gene Luke, Donald and Hugh Endres.

Survivors beside the father are three sisters: Miss Catherine Herr, Muenster; Mrs. Eddie Jakubec, Dallas; and Mrs. Clarence Albers, Bryan; and two brothers, Albert Herr, Amarillo, and Pvt. Wilfred Herr, with the army in France.

Sgt. Herr was born in Muenster on May 19, 1919, and attended Sacred Heart school. He spent his entire lifetime, until his entry in the army, in this city. He enlisted in the service in September, 1940, trained at Fort Warren, Wyoming, and Portland, Oregon, going overseas in July, 1941 with an infantry division and spent 33 months at Dutch Harbor, Amchitka, Attu and other islands of the Aleutians group, where he went through 13 bombings and almost as many shelling by the Japanese.

Furloughed in April, this year, he returned to Muenster, his first return home in nearly four years, to spend 20 days, after which he reported at Camp White, Oregon, and was sent to Camp Hood as an instructor at the Infantry Recruit Training Center.

The injuries which caused his death were sustained while his company was on bivouac. Details called for crossing a river and as Sgt. Herr entered the water, he apparently slipped, striking his head on a projecting rock. His injuries consisted of two fractured vertebrae and other spinal and head injuries, causing instant paralysis from the neck downward.

He was immediately taken to the station hospital at Camp Hood, but his condition was so serious, he was moved, two hours later, to McCloskey hospital where an operation was performed.

Members of his family were called at once and remained with him to the end. Following the operation, improvement was noted, and the paralysis partially relieved, but complications set in and he was placed in an oxygen tent on Wednesday, however all efforts to save his life were useless. He was unconscious the greater part of Thursday.

Sgt. Herr wore a number of decorations including that representing a pre-Pearl Harbor enlistment, Asiatic-Pacific campaign ribbon and a good conduct medal.

Possessed of a pleasing personality and jovial nature, Sgt. Herr had scores of friends in this city and neighboring communities, as was evidenced by the large crowd that gathered to pay him final tribute. In addition to the large number from Lindsay the following out of town relatives and friends were present: Cpl. and Mrs. Clarence Albers and son of Bryan; Albert Herr, Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Jakubec and son, Dallas; Mrs. John Swirczynski, Oklahoma City; Mrs. Kate Kelley and family, Gainesville; Roy Hutcherson, Saint Jo; Mr. and Mrs. John Corcoran, Gainesville, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Henderson, Whitesboro.

All local business houses closed during the services.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR GALA HORSE SHOW SUNDAY AFTERNOON

With several dozen entries in the seven designated classes, the horse show Sunday is destined to be a gala and interesting affair, according to R.L. McNeelley, general chairman.

It is to begin at 2 o'clock in the local ball park and there will be no admission charge. Everybody is invited to attend.

Attractive awards will be given for first, second and third place winners in the various divisions and there will be contests, with prizes, to determine the flashiest dressed cowboy and cowgirl, and the most typical cowhand.

A play by play report of the events will be given over a loud speaker system, riders and their horses will be introduced, and fancy riding and trick performances will be given for the enjoyment of the spectators, it is announced.

The show is made possible through cooperation of local businessmen and merchants by their contributions. An out of county judge has been engaged to serve for the event.

This show is the second of its kind to be held by local horse fanciers. The first was presented on June 4, and the show Sunday is to be much bigger and better in every way.

The divisions are: colts, paint horses, reining horses, pleasure horses, gaited horses, Palmino class, and the prettiest horse of the show.

In the event it rains, the show will be held the following Sunday.

Funeral services were held here last Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock for Sharon Ann Endres, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Endres of Fort Worth. Pastor Father Thomas officiated at the brief rites at Sacred Heart church and at the interment in the local cemetery.

The infant was born Wednesday morning in a Fort Worth hospital and died the following morning.

Fred Herr and Family

With Capt. F.J. Moss, McCloskey's affable and capable public relations officer, the writer of this column visited the hospital and spent hours chatting with the boys about their parts in the fighting. And don't get the idea that these returned, wounded veterans are spending time in the hospital griping or feeling sorry for themselves. There's not a cry in a carload!

As a matter of fact, there probably is no more cheerful group of men in Uncle Sam's army. With fingers off, feet and arms off, and other terrible wounds, the lads in McCloskey face the future with a smile and a wise-crack and the painful present with a type of courage that is an inspiration to everyone who visits them.

There are two facts that you will discover if you visit this great army establishment, where wounded men are given new health and new hope. The first is the cheerful courage of the men themselves. The second is the consideration and skill of the officers and men who administer to them.

As we walked through the long wards, Capt. Moss waved and quipped at the boys, calling almost every lad by name. And the patients quipped back, their smiles showing plainly the friendship and confidence that exists between the wounded veterans and the officers and men of the hospital staff.

We talked with many of the patients. Corporal Leland Grohman of San Antonio told of heavy fighting in Italy, but forgot his own troubles to praise the home-folks who sent USO-Camp Shows across to entertain the boys.

We met Sgt. Charlie Rummell of Waco, who spent months in a Nazi prison camp after losing his legs from machine gun wounds. Charlie talked about the National War Fund, too, telling how sports equipment, books and other anti-boredom materials sent over by War Prisoners Aid help the captured men fight off "barbed wire sickness."

And Lt. Marjorie Gray of Killen, who served through 77 days under constant shell fire at Anzio, before being sent home to recuperate at McCloskey. The petite nurse told of the black day when the Germans bombed the hospital, killing scores of patients, doctors and nurses and wounding many more. She was close by when Lt. Helen McCullough, another nurse of the Baylor Hospital Unit, was seriously wounded. Lt. McCullough, who wears the Purple Heart, was released from McCloskey Hospital last week, well again.

Here's a note to mothers, wives and sweethearts of the wounded lads at McCloskey - a note that may ease their worries about the boys:

Don't worry about them! They are being cared for better than any soldiers ever were cared for before. They are cheerful, happy and confident of the future.

They are getting the best medical and surgical attention that

MOSAICS

of Sacred Heart High

"Hello!" to all the readers of the "Mosaics." We are happy to be back with you again and we hope that you will enjoy with us our school days of 1944 - 1945 through this little column. Our news will be short this time but we assure you that it will grow with the coming weeks and months.

We again wish to thank the editors of the paper for the opportunity of publishing our weekly column and also those through whose encouragement this column is possible.

Monday, September 11, brought us back to dear old Sacred Heart High School. We began our school year with the Mass of the Holy Ghost for guidance throughout the coming year.

After Mass we reported to our respective classrooms for registration. Sixty-nine students answered the roll call on the opening day and since then two new faces have appeared making our enrollment at present seventy-one students, the largest enrollment in the history of the school. The Freshmen class boasts twenty-five little "Freshies", the largest in the school. The Sophomore class has twenty members, the Junior class seventeen, and the dignified Senior class nine members. As our readers will readily understand we have a filled school, yet there always seems to be room for one more.

We have been introduced to and have become acquainted with all of our classes and our teachers. The latter include Father Thomas, for religion, Father Richard for church history, Sister Geraldine, Sister Michael, and Sister Jerome.

For this time we will not say more but next week we will tell you just what we are doing.

PRESERVING PEARS

In some sections of the state, pear trees are loaded with fruit. These will be used to fill many canning budgets that might be a little shy on fruit.

You'll find pears will have a better flavor and will be finer in texture if you'll harvest them when they're mature but still green. Then let them ripen in a cool, dark, well-ventilated place. A cellar is good, or a ventilated pantry, according to Mrs. Julia E. Kelley, County Home Demonstration Agent.

She says Keiffer pears usually have the best quality when they ripen two to three weeks at a cool temperature preferably around 65 degrees. Once ripened, they must be used promptly, or discoloration will begin.

There are many tasty ways to preserve pears. You might make pear butter or pear honey, or can some baked pears. For the latter, Mrs. Kelly recommends the small, sweet, early pears found in some localities.

The Keiffer pear is a variety commonly used for preserves because it holds its shape and has a good flavor. It's important to allow the fruit to reach the firm-ripe stage for best results. One popular variation is ginger pear preserves.

You can obtain recipes for all of these preservation methods from your local county home demonstration agent. Also in the group you'll find pickled pears, and pear relish. If you have sufficient sugar available you might try candied pears which are excellent for fruit cake. One final recipe that is widely accepted is for summer mince-meat.

MOOS OF THE MOMENT

BY UNCLE BOB

of the Kraft Dairy Farm Service

War Food Administration officials figure that the maximum number of milk cows for which there will be feed and other facilities should be reached by the end of this year. At the same time, a lot of heifers calving in 1942 and 1943 will be coming into production.

This situation may make it possible for the dairy farmer to change the make-up of his herd so that he can keep the same number of cows and produce more milk than his present herd is giving, or cut down the number of cows and still keep milk volume to this year's level.

The extension services and experimental stations have proved conclusively that high producing cows use feed and labor to better advantage than do low producers. If you can get rid of a low producer and replace it with a well-bred heifer, you may cut your cost of production and at the same time supply more milk for the war food program.

One of the studies on this subject which I ran across recently was from the University of Idaho. The figures showed that, at the time of the test, a cow producing 150 lbs. of fat had a feed cost of 30.6c per pound. The cost of getting a pound of fat from a cow giving 450 pounds of fat was 16.6c.

Putting it another way, the Idaho figures showed that the low producer brought in $1.59 for every dollar's worth of feed consumed, while the high producer returned $2.80 for every feed dollar. Point Five of the 8-Point Dairy Program is "keep as many cows as feed and labor permit". It is vitally important that milk production be held at the best possible level in future months. But it is equally important that feed be used most efficiently.

Feed and labor are the limiting factors in dairy production, the University of California says, and such feed and labor must be used to best advantage. I suggest a talk with your county agent, for advice on your herd, whether you can and should cull on a basis of replacing a low producer with a well-bred heifer.

Two cows looked over a drought stricken pasture. "This is a time to put a bride on your appetite," said one. "No, this is a time to put a bit in your mouth," said the other.

Once before, in this column, I mentioned the fact that cows, the same as people, work best in pleasant surroundings. You do a better job when you've had a good rest in a good bed. Cows, too, need proper bedding. Bedding for cows serves several purposes—keeping the cow clean and thus helping in the sanitation program and making it easier to clean out the barn. Farmers' Bulletin No. 1470 from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., gives some sound ideas on proper bedding. It is free.

It suggests wheat or oat straw or corn stover as good bedding material, with shredded or cut corn stover first in liquid holding capacity and greatest in fertilizer value. Straw, however, is probably the easiest to get in your area. Soy bean straw is being used in a lot of places.

The USDA says about four pounds of wheat straw per day gives a suitable bed and keeps the cow clean, but eight pounds does a better job of absorbing liquid.

The Minnesota Extension Service, in Extension Folder 105, cautions not to handle bedding in the barn for several hours before milking time, because it raises dust. This leaflet has some good pointers on other subjects too. You can get it by writing the Extension Service, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minn.*

Doing a job right, such as producing clean milk, is pretty much a matter of establishing good habits. When a day-to-day job is set up the right way, it becomes a habit which is easy to follow. The Producers' Edition of the Kraftman, for September, has a detailed discussion of good habits in handling milk and cleaning and storing utensils. A copy will be sent you free if you'll drop a note to Uncle Bob, Kraft Cheese Company, 500 Peshtigo Court, Chicago, Ill.

Some months ago we mentioned a University of Missouri Extension bulletin on how to build your own stock tank heater. This seems a good time to bring up the subject again, since before long you'll have to figure out some way to take the chill off water your cows drink, if they are to be kept in top production.

Missouri says a cow's production can be increased from 25% to 100% by giving her water the temperature of which is 50 to 60 degrees, instead of icy water. Cold water causes a reduction in milk flow, reduces the cow's water intake and causes it to eat more grain, in order to warm up again.

The bulletin shows how to build a heater out of a milk can, simply and easily and at very slight cost in money or labor. If you do not have one, I suggest you write the Extension Service, Columbia, Missouri, and get a copy of Circular 484.*

In a nutshell, our problem is to make the number of jobs and workers come out even in spite of the fact that there are more workers than jobs. Apparently it won't be possible to create enough additional jobs, so there's only one solution left. Reduce the number of workers. And if this is to be avoided the reduction must be voluntary.

For the good of the country, economists and statesmen had better start selling that idea to the public.

sometimes deliberately go without breakfast in order to keep from increasing their weight. This is both foolish and dangerous. They deprive themselves of body building material when they fail to eat nourishing food. Faulty nutrition with its health hazards often results. In the young child this means that resistance to disease is lowered and the process of developing and maintaining health definitely are handicapped.

Whether young, middle aged, or older, a good health practice is to break your fast with a good breakfast. The day's first meal is an important one. Parents cannot escape the obligation to see that their children are fed properly at the day's beginning.

Your Health

Austin, Texas. — "Breakfast should supply everyone, young and old alike with from one-fourth to one-third of the day's food needs," says Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health officer. "In order for a growing child to get this much of his day's requirements, he needs a hot substantial breakfast consisting of cereals or whole grain bread, fruit or fruit juices, egg or meat and a milk drink."

Dr. Cox, discussing the dietary needs of school children says further, "In many homes the time of least resistance is followed. The children when offered food at breakfast time may reply that they are not hungry, they do not have time, or in some instances will even say that breakfast makes them sick. Older children, especially girls of high school age,
