NO "HICK" FARMERS

A newspaperman friend who lives in New York City has sent a marked quote from a prominent "marketing consultant" in the big town. It's priceless.

"Evidently," says the marketing consultant, "the growing affluence and sophistication of farmers is hard to accept — and harder still to act upon. . . Most farm advertising is old-fashioned and strictly lower-echelon stuff. . ."

How right he is. For some reason the men who make up the advertisements for farm readers think they're talking to foreigners, or second generation immigrants who wandered into the hills from the boat and started kicking rocks out of the way so as to plant a few turnips. It seems to have escaped the ad-men that farmers are a special breed of capitalist in our society. In the words of one wise old farmer that we know, "If a man has enough money to set up farming these days, he has enough money to retire, and should."

Not only does it take a small fortune to buy the land, implements, and building improvements to start farming, it takes a continuing annual investment that would startle the ad-man's wife out of her wits, to think that the farmer is managing a gross income a digit or so bigger than her husband's salary. Of course, the marketing consultant may have over-stated a bit when he talked about affluence. We don't know many affluent farmers. But we do know a lot who are sophisticated — who can talk with authority about animal husbandry and genetics, the latest development in fertilizers, hybrid seeds, crop rotation, internal combustion motors, theories on irrigation, capital gains and estate taxes. If that suggests that farming has come to be a science for which a lot of special training and continuing study is required, then you've seen the point the ad-men have been missing.

And one thing about farmers, they don't hold with piling money into a bank account. Everything works on a farm, and that includes money. It gets invested in something that is producing — land, equipment, or something that saves time or labor. If the money isn't working, what good is it?

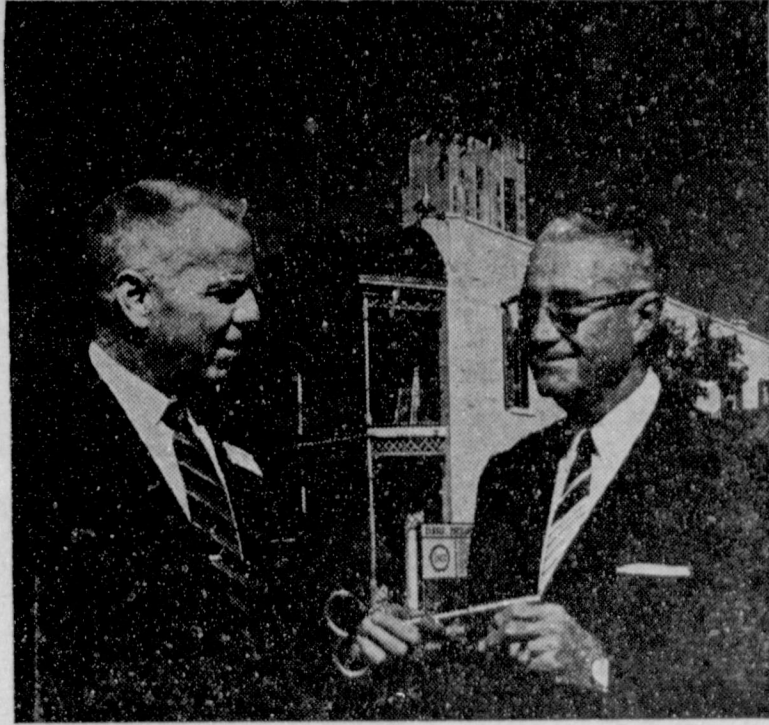

The ad-men have been talking down to their country cousins a long time. Maybe that fancy-talking marketing consultant will get the ad-men out into the countryside to talk with some of their readers.

FEWER FARMERS

The trend toward fewer and fewer people on the farm which means that ever fewer people are growing the food and fiber for an expanding nation is continuing. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, farm employment last January reached the lowest point since records have been kept. The total farm labor force for the week of January 21 to 27 was only 3,493,000 persons.

Modern U. S. agricultural techniques have completely reversed the historical relationship between man and the land. For thousands of years, the land demanded and received the labor of man to the limit of his ability if he wished to keep himself and his family from starving. Today this story is entirely different in the United States.

Man has learned with the help of science and industry to exact tribute from the land in the way of food and fiber on an ever-increasing scale. One farmer now feeds scores of people. Whether this freedom from enslavement to the land remains permanent will depend to a great extent upon our ability to recognize the factors that made emancipation possible. These factors include such things as the right of self-government, the right to own property, and all of the other freedoms we have enjoyed in the United States for nearly 200 years.

KEY TO A LANDMARK—Dr. Chas. F. Jones (left), president of Humble Oil & Refining Company, receives the ceremonial key to one of San Antonio's pioneer stores from Mayor W. W. McAllister, Sr. The weathered building, known to generations of Texans as the Schultze Stove and Hardware Company, is being restored and will become the Humble Pavilion containing a travel center, transportation exhibit, and theater at HemisFair '68, the first world's fair ever held in the Southwest.

POLITICAL GREED

The sinfulness of greed is schooled into every child in our land. Our nursery rhymes, our folklore, our collections of mythology, the Bible — all tell of the reprehensibility of greed. Any school child can name you half-a-dozen figures in history or mythology who were done in by greed.

But grown-up Americans reward greed. Political greed.

This strange trait is not new to adult Americans. Abraham Lincoln took note of it more than a century ago when he was campaigning against Senator Douglas. He told a Springfield, Illinois, audience: "They have seen in his round, jolly, fruitful face, post offices, land-offices, marshalships and cabinet appointments, chargeships and foreign missions, bursting and prouting out in wonderful exuberance, ready to be laid hold by their greedy hands."

Poor Senator Douglas wasn't really hep, however. Even if what Abe said was true, Douglas didn't have the formula for practical political greed. That didn't evolve until about 35 years ago when "tax and tax, spend and spend, elect and elect" came into popularity. Greedy politicians have been playing the political profit game ever since.

The richest and most productive country in the world has been reduced to a trembling insolvency by political greed. Our citizens passing through European cities when the gold rush struck last month couldn't get hotels or airlines to accept an American dollar. Here at home the cost of living is rising at a rate of 4 percent a year, and will accelerate; taxes are going to be increased to a level only short of confiscation; the value of pensions, annuities, retirement benefits and life insurance is declining each month. Interest rates are the highest in 100 years.

Who has gained from this incredible mismanagement? Two groups: first, the politicians who promised handouts, and took from some and gave to others, for their votes. Their greed was satisfied by being returned to office, again and again and again.

But the biggest winner of all, believe it or not, is the avowed enemy of this country, the Soviet Union. The so-called "two-tier" gold price negotiated a few days back, means that the Kremlin can move its accumulated gold stocks into the free gold market at fabulous profits with which to arm itself, expand its navy, its trade, its production — and its subversion.

Selfish, political greed is to blame.

Outdoor Lighting Is Discussed at Garden Club Meet

A discussion on outdoor lighting furnished the program at the May meeting of Muenster Civic League and Garden Club Monday night. Tulu Hickerson of Gainesville, home service adviser for Texas Power & Light Company, was guest speaker. She illustrated her talk with colored slides and answered questions from the floor.

Mrs. Henry Weinzapfel and Mr. C. M. Walterscheid were co-hostesses in the Weinzapfel home and served refreshments as the 17 members and five guests arrived.

Mrs. Pat Stelzer, president, presided for the business session. Members agreed to dispense with meetings during June and July and set their next meeting for August.

At that time members are asked to come to the meeting with ideas for the new yearbook and to participate in program planning for a new year.

An interesting feature at Monday's meeting was "Show and Tell," when members exhibited specimens from their yards and gardens.

The refreshment table had as a centerpiece a Hogarth's Curve in shades of olive and gold in a gold container. This color theme was accented in other floral arrangements in the home and in refreshments.

Guests were Mrs. Hickerson Mrs. David Bright, Mrs. Alfredo Antonetti, Mrs. Joe Sicking and Mrs. H. H. Houtchens.

Members who hadn't seen the Weinzapfels' new home made a tour of the place.

The power of pictures is illustrated by the effectiveness of the seed catalogs.

At that time members are asked to come to the meeting with ideas for the new yearbook and to participate in program planning for a new year.

An interesting feature at Monday's meeting was "Show and Tell," when members exhibited specimens from their yards and gardens.

The refreshment table had as a centerpiece a Hogarth's Curve in shades of olive and gold in a gold container. This color theme was accented in other floral arrangements in the home and in refreshments.

Guests were Mrs. Hickerson Mrs. David Bright, Mrs. Alfredo Antonetti, Mrs. Joe Sicking and Mrs. H. H. Houtchens.

Members who hadn't seen the Weinzapfels' new home made a tour of the place.

The power of pictures is illustrated by the effectiveness of the seed catalogs.

Knitting Lessons Offered in June

Knitting classes are planned for Muenster women who are interested, Mrs. Henry Weinzapfel announced this week. She has secured the services of a knitter to give the instructions in six lessons at which time a sweater should be finished by those in the class.

There will be a charge for yarn and needles. A limited number of adults will be admitted to the class and those desiring to attend are asked to contact Mrs. Weinzapfel as soon as possible for further details.

Father: "Executive ability, my son, is the art of getting the credit for all the hard work somebody else does."

The problem of "Where's the hammer" and "I left it right here" has been solved for home handymen (and women) by Rubbermaid Inc. Their new "Tool Caddy" and "Small Parts Caddy" now provide convenient storage in minimum space.

The "Tool Caddy" holds hammer, pliers, screwdrivers and other tools in an upright position for instant use. The base is divided into compartments for storing nails, screws and small items. Available in retail stores for just under four dollars it is 11 1/4" in diameter and 12 1/4" high.

Both caddies have easy to hold handles and feature Rubbermaid's famous revolving base and trays. Carefully balanced for carrying, both take minimum space and can be used indoors or out. Both come in a two-tone grey finish.

few weeks before the death of the venerated Dr. Sun Yat-sen, the famed founder of the Republic of China. Mr. Gilbert had gone there specifically to interview Dr. Sun, an old friend of a quarter-century at least. And when he entered the hotel suite, he was taken aback to see Dr. Sun wearing what is now described as the Nehru jacket.

"What in the world are you wearing, Dr. Sun?" Rodney asked in some amazement. "You look like one of the bellhops in the lobby downstairs."

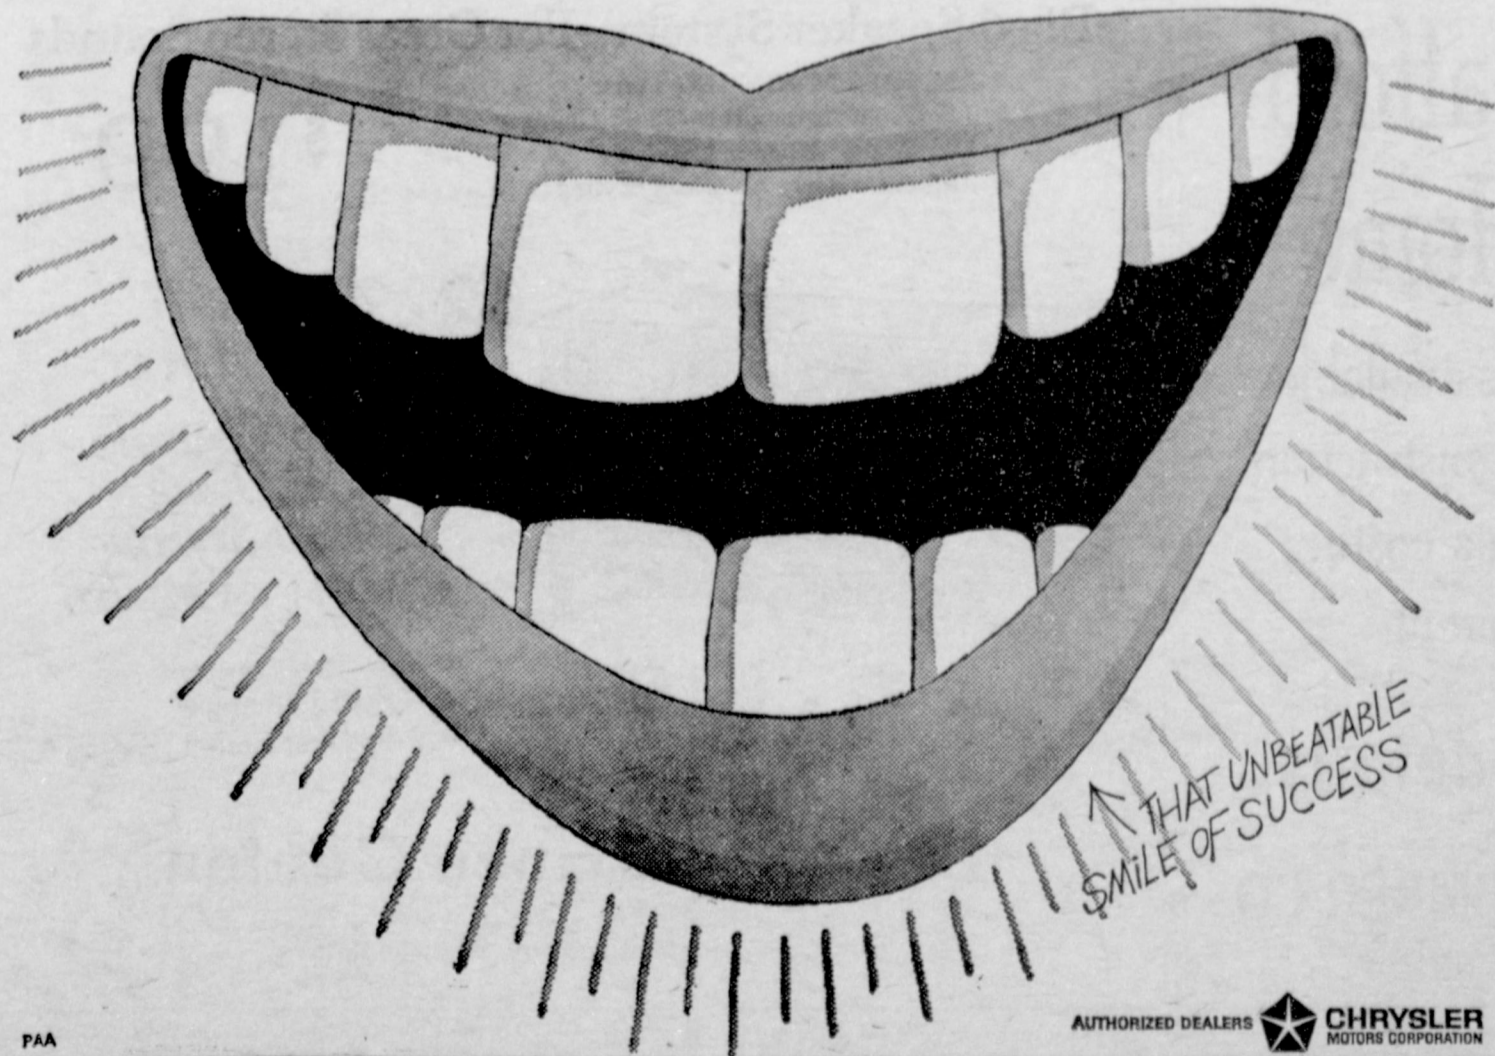

Dr. Sun immediately unlatched the fastener at the throat of the jacket and opened it. "But Rodney, observe. No shirt. It saves laundry."

And that inevitably comes to mind when one of those Nehru jacket-clad fashion plates appears on TV these days, or gets his picture in the paper attending the latest congregation of space-grabbers. There, for all the world to see, is a guy who didn't have a clean shirt to wear, and grabbed the monstrosity imported into China from the USSR half-a-century ago and which has finally found its way to the fashion marts of big-town, USA.

For a guy who has no shirt, or is too lazy to wash his neck, the high-collared Nehru jacket may make some sense. Or if he has a very sore throat and wants to wear a hidden poultice of goose-grease and turpentine, then a Nehru jacket might do fine. Maybe there are other reasons for wearing one, but none occur at the moment. —U.S. Press Assn.

180,000 People Of Texas Assisted By FHA Program

"Rural community progress in Texas has been spurred by the development of 436 modern water systems, sewer systems, and recreation centers through the Farmers Home Administration," Cooke and Montague County Supervisor John D. Cunningham said today.

Mr. Cunningham reported on benefits brought to the state under Rural Community Facilities programs that have been enlarged under President Johnson's efforts to improve living conditions in rural areas.

Water Supply problems have been solved for more than 180,000 people in rural Texas through 418 water systems made possible by FHA loans and grants totaling more than $54 million. The new system serve both rural towns and countryside where the people have had to exist on uncertain and, sometimes, unsafe water supplies.

Mr. Cunningham reported that three rural communities in the state also have new or improved waste disposal systems through FHA loans and grants approved the past two years. At present, there are 48 waste disposal projects underway in Texas from application stage to those under construction.

"We are beginning to make progress toward the President's goal of clear constant water for all of rural America," Mr. Cunningham said. "Towns benefited by the program are able to improve living standards and accommodate new business and industry when playing fields, golf, boating, and other forms of outdoor recreation.

Mr. Cunningham said the Agency also made grants to 60 counties of the state for comprehensive planning of the future development of water and waste disposal services in rural areas.

In a rural store an Arkansas farmer remarked one day, "I guess it's time to go over to Perch Lake to see if the ground's warm enough to plant cotton."

One of the idlers listening to him piped up: "I wuz over to Perch Lake last week and there was only a lot of women fishin'. What can you tell from that about plantin' time."

"Were those women sittin' on buckets" asked the farmer with sudden interest.

"Well, yes, they wuz," said the listener reflectively.

"That's the sign," replied the cotton farmer. "When those women quit troublin' to bring buckets to sit on and just plunk themselves down on the bank, the ground's warm enough to plant!"

Banquet and Prom Are Gala Events At Lindsay High

Class night features were combined in the program at the junior-senior banquet at Lindsay High School. It was held in the gym Wednesday where the Saturday before the annual junior-senior prom took place. The setting was an Oriental theme this year.

The banquet program began with invocation by Father John Walbe. Hank Arendt followed with welcome and Mary Jane Beyer responded. Mark Fuhrmann listed tributes and Danny Eberhart paid tribute to athletes. Sheila Arendt recited the senior class poem, Jane Stoffels gave the class prophecy, Ruth Moster paraded the seniors, Brian Bezner read the last will and testament and Carolyn Block gave the closing address.

Graduates of the 1968 class are Sheila Arendt, Gary Beyer, Mary Jane Beyer, Sharon Beyer, Brian Bezner, Danny Eberhart, Barbara Fuhrmann, Mark Fuhrmann, Ralph Hermes, Billy Moster, Charlotte Sandmann, Don Schad, Dorothy Schmidkofer, Joanie Zimmerman. Barbara Fuhrmann is valedictorian and Mary Jane Beyer is salutatorian.

Decor included a bamboo archway over a bridge spanning a river that flowed the width of the gym, past a volcano which was "erupting." Palm trees in folwer gardens, oriental masks, coconuts and parrots added to the theme. The volcano was a conversation starter. With red lighting and fans it almost touched the ceiling. The juniors spent many hours building it. A shrine to the Blessed Virgin also held a vantage spot. The Circe played for dancing.
