

Liberals of Congress squealed like pigs under a gate when the Nixon Administration proposed that they take some of the same medicine they served to seven Southern states a few years ago. The punitive regulations they prescribed for others to live by are too harsh to impose on their own constituents.

The hassle concerns the 1965 Voter Rights Act, which specifies that states which had polled less than 50 per cent of their potential votes in the previous general election must ban literacy tests for voting and will be subject to inspection of voting procedure by federal examiners. It just happened that this sneaky-worded law applied only to seven Southern states.

Now is the time when Congress must decide whether to let the law die or to change it or renew it. Administration officials proposed keeping the regulations but extending application to the whole country. And howls of anguish came from the liberals. They don't want to play by the rules they imposed on others. They don't want incompetent illiterates voting in their elections, and they don't want federal snoopers looking for their election shenanigans.

At this time it isn't known whether the administration proposal is serious or just a foxy scheme to have the 1965 act turned down. One can imagine that liberals may want to change the prescription if they too have to take the medicine.

In the opinion of this column the law has one good feature which ought to be extended to the whole country and one bad feature which ought to be eliminated. The regulation calling for federal investigation into voting irregularity should apply everywhere. By a monstrous perversion of justice and common sense we have a law to lower the boom on a Southern voting box that deprives an illiterate Negro of his vote but we can't do anything about the big city machines guilty of big time voting frauds. For instance the Chicago caper of the 1960 general election, and Texas irregularities of the same year. Lots of people think that election was stolen for the Democrats by election crooks. Liberals place themselves in a rather awkward position when they oppose a reform that is so urgently needed.

On the other hand the ban on literacy tests ought to be removed. Our country ought to get back to its old standard of restricting voting rights to people who know what they are doing. The liberals are particularly illogical in this respect. They make a great issue of the need for education so that people can take their rightful place in society, and then insist that education is not needed for voting.

The attitude of liberals on these issues exposes them to suspicion of shabby political principle. They approve voting supervision in the South where they think voting fraud would favor the opponents, but they oppose supervision where they expect voting fraud to favor themselves. They favor bans on literacy tests in areas where demagogues with a something-for-nothing appeal can control the voting of people too ignorant to do their own thinking, but they don't want illiterates to vote in their own areas.

Of course, it might be mentioned in passing that the 1965 Voting Rights act should be abolished, and never should have been passed in the first place. It is unconstitutional. The law of the land originally provided that the separate states set up their own voting regulations. Our liberal national legislators were equally out of line when they abolished the poll tax. That matter too was the concern of states and not the federal government.

Looking back now at some of our major problems and their obvious relation to liberalized voting regulations, one is inclined to think that founders of our government knew what they were doing when they restricted the voting right to thinking and financially responsible people. They knew that intelligent voting is essential to good government. They knew that public obligations should be voted on by the people who pay the taxes. Nowadays when loafers can live on welfare, when bearing illegitimate children becomes a way of life, when a guaranteed annual wage for perpetual idleness is seriously considered (Continued on Page 8)

Directory Wants Pictures of All Parish Families

Planning got under way this week for a directory of Sacred Heart Parish commemorating the 80th anniversary of its founding.

Catholic Daughters at their meeting Tuesday night adopted a method they will use in setting up a schedule for taking family photos. The intention is to have a picture of every family of the parish in the directory. There will also be group pictures of some committees and organizations and a complete printed list of all families of the parish whether or not they are pictured.

Picture taking will begin next Monday, July 21, in the K of C hall. The hours are 4 to 8 p.m. and pictures will be taken upstairs and downstairs, both of which are air conditioned.

A group of about 15 CDA members, headed by Mmes. Alvin Fuhrman and Martin Becker as co-chairmen, have started calling families and making appointments.

Each family is asked to make its picture as complete as possible. In case a member is away in the service or in school, convent or seminary it is suggested that a recent picture be brought along to incorporate with the family photo. More desirable is having the absent member come home and join in the picture if possible.

Several pictures will be taken of each family and the family will choose one of those for the directory. It will be in black and white. Also each family will have the opportunity to buy colored pictures. Sale of those pictures is the promoter's angle in this project, according to Father Placidus Eckart. Each family will receive its free directory. Additional copies and the pictures will be for sale.

Father Placidus referred to the directory as a huge project in its entirety, but still comparatively simple if each family will only dress up and report at the scheduled time. There are almost 700 families in the parish but each has a simple assignment. The pastor urges each family to make a special point of being represented as completely as possible.

Boys Meet Girls Friday Night in Softball Tussle

Neither romance or friendship will be involved when boys meet girls here Friday night. Both mean business as they compete for the community's grand championship in softball.

The boys laughed when the games were first proposed, but they are somewhat less cocky after being told that the game is softball, not baseball. The girls have been playing softball all season, the boys baseball. The general idea is that the handicap will about equalize prospects in the two battles of the sexes.

Games on the program are in the junior and senior divisions. All-stars from the three small girls teams will take on boys selected from the four pee wee boys teams. Likewise teams selected from the two older loops will meet each other.

Junior teams will play first, starting at 7 o'clock. The senior game will start at 8:30.

Two Calves Stolen

Business is what—when you don't have any—you go out!

City Water Use Sets New High

Business is fine lately for the water department of the City of Muenster. A combination of drought and heat has boosted local consumption to an all time high in the city's history.

Up to this year the record was 462,000 gallons metered on August 23 last year. That record was smashed in a big way on July 3 when the city's output reached the whopping figure of 531,000. It was the first time ever that the city used over a half million gallons in one day. That record in turn took a tumble on July 10 when the day's volume jumped to 556,000 gallons.

Meanwhile the 1968 top and the previous all time record of 462,000 gallons were beaten seven times since July 1. Readings in the thousands of gallons were 531 on the third, 476 on the 5th, 467 on the ninth, 556 on the 10th, 492 on the 11th, 481 on the 12th and 476 on the 14th. Only two readings, on the 1st and the 6th, were under 400,000 gallons.

Despite the big volumes the city does not anticipate a water shortage. Water Superintendent Joe Moster points out that the three city wells have a combined capacity of 400 gallons a minute, which figures to 576,000 gallons a day, 20,000 gallons more than the new peak of 556,000. While that production continues the city can store enough water during slack consumption hours to carry through the peak consumption hours.

Moster said that total storage capacity in two ground level reservoirs and the elevated tank is 350,000 gallons. At times during the day, particularly 5 to 10 p.m., water use is greater than the output of wells. Reservoir output exceeds input and the water level falls accordingly. Later, during the slack use period, input exceeds output and the level rises again.

The present rate of consumption requires continuous production by two water wells but allows occasional idle periods for the other.

Failure of one of those wells, however, could cause a shortage. With a 140 gallon per minute well out of use the city's volume would drop to about 375,000 gallons a day which is considerably below the current demand. Even then, however, there would be plenty for essential use. The city would face only an inconvenience, not a crisis.

Present heavy use of water is explained principally by the heat wave. Fifteen consecutive days over 100 degrees and no moisture causes intensive lawn watering all over town. That plus more lavish household use accounts for the huge volumes.

Comparison of peak figures through the years presents an interesting story of the city's growth. Moster's oldest figure is for the year 1940, when the biggest day was 30,000 gallons. In 1950 the peak was 140,000 gallons and by 1955 it reached 355,000 gallons. Until 1964 the peak remained under 400,000 and reached 462,000 in '68. And now a jump of almost 100,000 to 556,000.

Coincidence is the most likely explanation for that day's high volume, Moster said. Such factors as watering two football fields and back washing the swim pool along with extensive lawn watering and heavy domestic and industrial use add up to lots of total consumption. When those demands don't come together the day's consumption remains at a moderate level.

Mill and Growing
Teams Are Champs
Of Kids Baseball

Muenster Mill and Growing Brothers are the champs of this community's two little league loops as their respective seasons ended last Friday night and Monday night.

The Mill avoided a tie with Center for the honor by taking its final game after going down for its only loss in the previous game. That previous loss was to Center, which, like the Mill had a clean sweep over other league members but was a 2-1 loser in the three game series with the Mill.

Final standings of the senior league are Mill 8-1-0, Center 7-2-0, Electric Co-op 2-7-0, Endres Motor 1-8-0.

The Growing team was strong winner in the junior division of the league but missed a perfect record in the final game by a 9-9 tie with Wilde. Standings as the season closed are Growing 8-0-1, Bank 3-4-2, Wilde 2-5-2, Tuggle 2-6-1.

In games last Friday night Center bumped Endres 19-14 and Mill blasted Co-op 30-4. Both games had teams playing short handed as a number of the players were away on Scout camp. The Mill scored its 5-run limit in each of six innings.

Monday night's games in the junior loop were both hot. Wilde got a psychological in holding the champs, Growing, to a 9-9 tie. Tuggle outscored the bank 20-16.

 THE LIBRARY

By Bettie Luke
 Everybody is interested in the new medicines and Muenster Public Library has a good book, "Miracle Drugs and the New Age of Medicine," by Reinfield.

Since it is travel time another new book of interest is "The Alamo Chain of Missions" by Habig.

For teenagers there's a new book, "Building Your Life" by Landis.

The library has lost its National Geographic Magazine for the months of April, May and June 1969, and the librarian wishes someone would donate these copies to be bound. All issues each year since 1952 have been bound.

We hitched our wagon to a star ... that is we hoped to check out 10,000 books during the three-month summer reading program ... so come and read with us.

Keep It Beautiful

If America hired people for the job, it would take the largest sort of army to keep our country free of litter.

But there's no need to hire anyone. It's a job we can do for ourselves. All of us. Every family that spreads a picnic lunch. Every boatman who cruises the lakes and waterways. Every motorist who uses our roads and highways.

It is the pleasure of the U. S. Brewers Association each year to give its fullest support to the Keep America Beautiful Campaign. Remember: Every Litter Bit Hurts. This is our land. Let's treat it right.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

Good Pasture Management is the most important part of a grass development program on improved pastures, says Arlin Naegeli of the Soil Conservation Service at Muenster. After a grass is established there are many different factors which influence production. Some of these are moisture, fertility, weeds and proper grazing height, Naegeli says. Grasses should never be overgrazed. By overgrazing grass its manufacturing plant is slowed down. All plants make their own food by taking raw materials in through the roots and converting it to plant food in the leaves. If most of the leaves are grazed off, the plant has to dip into its food reserve stored in the root system to make new growth. While this is taking place the plant grows very little or even stops completely. By leaving enough leaf surface at all times the plant can continue to grow without using the stored food in the root system. This stored food is used in the spring to begin plant growth. Grazing heights differ depending on the grass but a 6-inch height on Coastal bermuda and 4 inches on common bermuda is considered the proper heights. Pasture management will in addition to supplying the plant needs, conserve moisture and prevent erosion.

The Upper Elm-Red Soil and Water Conservation District is located in some of the best native grass ranges anywhere around, states Arlin Naegeli of the Soil Conservation Service at Muenster. Like native grasses everywhere they must be taken care of if they are to be maintained and improved, Naegeli continues.

Regular periods of rest during the growing season are essential to any grass management program. Without rest and by continuous close grazing the best grass plants such as Big Bluestem, Little Bluestem, Indiangrass and Switchgrass will soon be gone from the rangeland. When these better plants are gone less productive and less desirable plants take over. Deferments allow the better grasses to become strong, healthy plants which are capable of producing more pounds of beef per acre.

This along with proper use of these grasses gives a rancher some protection against short droughts and an excellent place for wintering his livestock.

The sun is about 389 times as far away from the earth as the moon.

4-H'ers See How It's Done on the Farm in Illinois

Four Cooke County 4-H clubbers are back from Illinois where they spent two weeks as exchange members in Decatur, Macon County, and learned about farm life in that part of the country.

The four are Peggy Endres of Sacred Heart Club, Jimmy Gaston and Cathy Sellers of Callisburg and John Paclik of Gainesville.

Peggy stayed with the James Sheets family who live on a 160-acre grain and livestock farm. Cathy stayed with the Carl Browns who farm 770 acres of black land which is cultivated and planted with soybeans, corn, wheat and oats.

Jimmy stayed with the Wilbur Edgecombs and John stayed with the Robert Daggetts who raise corn and soybeans on 320 acres near Decatur.

The four returned home last Wednesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Edgecomb who took back to Illinois 4-H exchange members who had visited in Cooke County for two weeks.

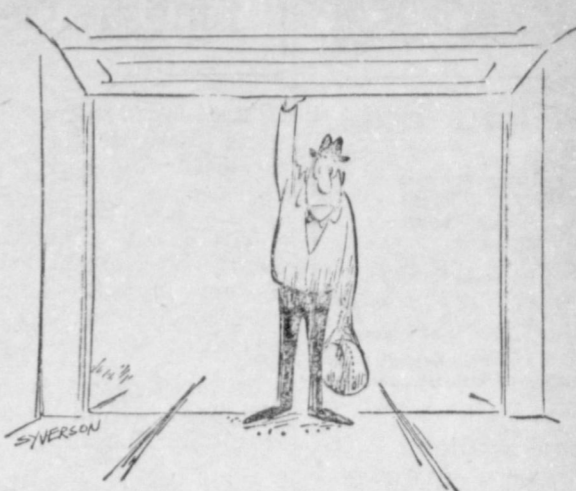

The Cooke County quartet enjoyed a tour of the University of Illinois, the head office of Extension Service there, visited an Amish Village where the people still drive horse and buggies and wear old fashioned skirts and bonnets. The men still wear long beards and do much of their work as it was done in pioneer days.

One night they attended the Marroa Community 4-H Club meeting and answered questions about Texas. Before returning home they toured Springfield, Salem and St. Louis.

Miss Endres spent one weekend in Olney, Ill., with her aunt Mrs. Charles Everette and children.

Back at home Thursday night, Gainesville 4-H Club hosted a skating party for which the eight exchange members were honored guests and Saturday night there was a farewell party for the Illinois group. Families of the exchange members and Mr. and Mrs. Edgecomb attended.

The Illinois 4-H members were Laurie Sheets, Carla Brown, Dale Edgecomb and Bob Daggett. They stayed with the Alfred Bayer and Alois Rohmer families here, the J. E. Pybas family at Sivells Bend and the David R. Smith family at Gainesville.

They'll produce more.

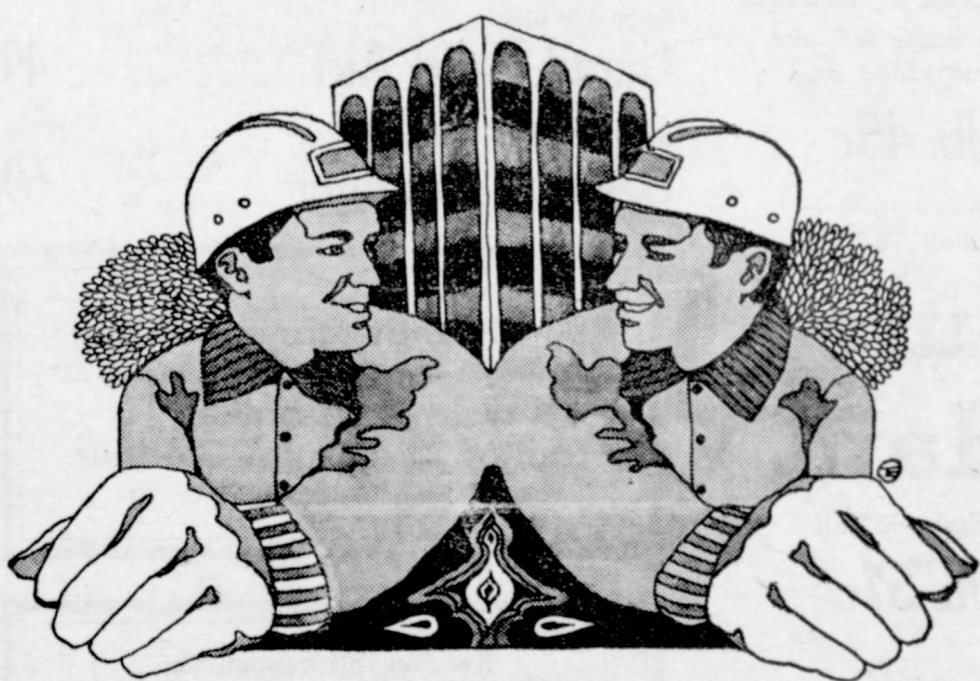

Scientific tests prove it's true. When cows are kept cool during hot weather, they produce more butterfat and more milk. Hens perform better, stay healthier, when they live in a comfortable, springtime environment.

It's easy to keep livestock and poultry production at top levels by adding electric cooling to your farm buildings. Whether you need evaporative cooling or refrigerated air units, low-cost electricity makes operation economical and efficient. Call your TP&L Rural Service Advisor for all the details.

Once upon a time there were two contractors. One built a beautiful building but with so-so air conditioning.

Everyone working there either shivered or sweated all through the year. Soon the owner was left all alone... just he and his mortgage.

The second contractor built a beautiful building too that was beautiful through and through. He had a Carrier Dependable install Carrier air conditioning...

Brownies and Lollypops Take Softball Titles

The Lollypops and the Brownies are champs of the two girls softball loops here.

A pair of wins in the final two games including the all important title game with the Doodlebugs, put the Lollypops at the top with a season score of 6-1-2. The other two season records were 4-3-1 for the Doodlebugs and 1-6-1 for the Rainbows. In the last two games Lollypops beat the Rainbows 10-3 and the Doodlebugs 19-16.

The Brownies had it made before their final games, so they remain at the top in spite of last week's loss and tie. Daisies made a nice improvement on their season record by beating the Brownies 20-14 and tying them 19-19 in the last two games. The final standings are Brownies 5-2-1, Zippies 3-4-1, Daisies 2-4-2.

Lindsay CYC Has Full Agenda at Monthly Meeting

Members of Lindsay CYC faced a full agenda at their July meeting Wednesday night.

Clara Hess, treasurer, presided and members elected Cathy Arendt president to serve the unexpired term—until January 1—of Sharon Beyer who resigned.

Members planned a benefit dance and set the date for July 26. The Circe will play Father John Walbe, spiritual director, and Mrs. Andy Arendt, adult leader met with the youth.

The club presented Father John a cash gift as a farewell present. He will leave Lindsay to become pastor of St. Mary's Parish in Fort Worth. Father Damian will be pastor of St. Peter's. The transfers are effective Aug. 6.
