VOLUME XXXV

MUENSTER, COOKE COUNTY, TEXAS 76252 JULY 2, 1971

NUMBER 32

Political forecasters have been saying that the big issue in the 1972 presidential election will be the Vietnam war. In fact some have gone so far in the simplification as to say that Nixon can't lose if he ends the war and he can't win if he fails to end it.

But a completely different view is presented by Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly, a prominent Republican conservative who claims that Nixon doesn't have a chance, period. She doesn't even refer to the war, but bases her opinion on a survey reaching 2,423 grass roots Republicans, which, she says, is twice as large as the usual Harris and Gallup polls.

Her survey showed that 32 per cent of the people who said they voted for Nixon in 1968 would not vote for him again, even if the alternatives are voting for Muskie or Wallace or staying at home. 25 per cent of the 1968 Nixon voters said they made a mistake. And 37 per cent said that the Nixon record is one they would have expected from Humphrey.

The poll also showed that the GOP members would expect Nixon to carry only 13 states with 83 electoral votes, whereas 270 electoral votes are needed to win.

Such disenchantment with Nixon might be regarded as a sign that the public wants more liberalism. But no, according to Mrs. Schlafly. The top choice for the next election is Governor Reagan of California, who is often referred to as the number one conservative, and the next choice is Vice-President Agnew. Mrs. Schlafly thinks that Nixon should read the signs and bow out of the '72 race, giving his party a chance to win with Reagan.

Well, it's a well known fact that polls are not infallible. It is possible that this one was taken among ultra-conservatives who reflect their deep disappointment in a lack of confidence in Nixon's next race. Maybe his chances aren't really that gloomy. On the other hand it is also true that many polls are quite dependable and this survey could be a reliable sign that Nixon is in trouble if he runs again.

To put it mildly, one might say that Nixon the president has been considerably more liberal than Nixon the candidate. He has done a number of things which were definitely out of harmony with his campaign speeches.

For one thing, he promised to bring order out of the integration chaos simply by allowing children to attend schools of their choice. But in office he changed over to the radical HEW view and allowed busing to achieve a balance of races. He knows as well as we that this forced integration is opposed by both races and is the core of most racial troubles. He could have indicated his preference for freedom of choice. Even now, after an adverse supreme court decision, he could encourage legislation to correct the error.

The president has said a great deal about inflation but he hasn't really made a significant effort to stop it. His budget called for the same old deficit spending and the national debt continued to soar upward. He said nothing about outrageous demands for wage raises whereas he should have been first to tell the people what greed is doing to the country. He promised to clean up the welfare mess and proposed a plan which will increase the rolls and double the cost.

Knowing very well that the unions opposed him in '68 and that he therefore owed his election to conservatives, Nixon went along with the union bosses in two efforts to force compulsory unionism on American workers — on postal employees and farm laborers.

Nixon also seems to have deserted former principles in extending the friendly hand to Red China. Now he favors diplomatic recognition and admission to the UN — in spite of the fact that Chinese Reds are as insulting and abusive as ever to us, in spite of the fact that some Americans of the Korean war are still captives there, in spite of the fact that most of the dope polluting this country today comes from Red China, in spite of the fact that Red China supports our enemy in Vietnam, in spite of the fact that Red China is an international outlaw.

Annual Red Cross Swim Classes To Start Monday

The annual free Red Cross swimming classes for this community will be held during the coming two weeks at the Muenster swimming pool. Plans for them were made Monday when Mrs. Polly Lewis of the Gainesville Red Cross chapter met with a number of adults and youths who are qualified as Red Cross instructors and helpers.

Registration will be held at the pool Monday morning. In the process children will be assigned to their particular classes and will be told their days and hours of instruction. Pupils are reminded to report in their swim suits, ready for the water. Many of them will be expected to take a short test so that instructors can determine how to assign them. This applies to beginners and intermediates, who will have five 1-hour classes during the course.

Another classification is the students in junior and senior life saving. They will have 2-hour classes every day for two weeks.

Eligibility for the free swimming lessons remains the same as before. Children must have completed one year of school and they must have an application form signed by a parent, indicating permission to participate, and by a doctor indicating physical fitness. Adults are welcome in the course, and they too need a doctor's signature.

Blank forms for the registration are available at the two local doctors' offices and at the Enterprise.

Temperature and Time Reported on New Bank Sign

A big, handsome and elaborate sign at the southeast corner of the bank almost completes an expansion and improvement project started about a year ago.

Herbert Meurer, president, said Wednesday that the final addition is a pair of brick planter boxes to be built at either side of the front entrance.

The sign, which is being installed this week, is topped by a big panel with "Muenster State Bank" in black on a white background. Below that is a panel which will show the prevailing temperature and time. It is electrically controlled by a huge array of automatic equipment on the second floor at the back of the bank. Below that panel is still another for signs illuminated from behind, with special messages to be selected by the bank.

The sign with the original installation says "Another New Service for you and the community," referring to the time and temperature readings.

Changes previously completed in the bank enlargement and remodeling include a drive in window, an addition at the back doubling the building's floor space, re-arrangement of the bookkeeper and teller areas and re-location of offices for the officers, new fixtures, furnishings, carpeting and draperies and new safety deposit boxes.

Two Local Artists Win Blue Ribbons In Bowie Art Show

Two Muenster artists, Mrs. Arthur Hennigan and Mrs. Louis Sicking, each received a blue ribbon on their oil paintings exhibited at the Jim Bowie Days Art Show in Bowie Saturday.

Both paintings are original landscapes. Mrs. Sicking and Mrs. Hennigan are students of Alexander Lutkenhaus.

Bake Sale Saturday

Sacred Heart High Drill Team will sponsor a benefit bake sale Saturday, July 3, with homemade breads and pastries available from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Fisher's, Hofbauer's and Pagel's stores.

City Gets $6334 For Sales Tax in First Quarter, 1971

The City of Muenster has received a check from the State Treasurer for $6,334.38, which is the amount realized in its 1 per cent sales tax for the first quarter of 1971.

The check is the smallest received since the tax was applied to alcoholic drinks a year and a half ago, indicating a slight drop in business activity. Next to smallest was $6,475 for the first quarter of 1970. Other amounts were $7,680 for the last quarter of '69, $7,217 for the second quarter of '70, $6,896 for the third quarter of '70 and $6,854 for the last quarter of '70.

A statement with the treasurer's remittance explained that the gross tax collected for the city was $6,428.83 and the state's 2 per cent collection fee amounted to $128.58. Also $316.59 was held back to cover possible discrepancy, and $350.72, the amount held back the previous quarter, was added.

A statewide report shows that more than 400 cities collected $35.5 million on the 1 per cent tax during the first quarter, also a drop from previous collections. Those figures were $39.6 million for the last quarter of 1970 and $36.5 million for the third quarter of '70. During the quarter ending March 31 the state retained $719,756 as its 2 per cent service fee.

With the beginning of this month the sales tax applicable in Muenster increases from 4.25 per cent to 5 per cent. The city's rate is unchanged at 1 per cent and the state's was upped from 3.25 to 4 in the recent legislative session.

Grazing, Haying of Set-Aside Acres Okayed by ASCS

A. R. Robbins III, county executive director, Cooke County ASCS, announced last week that producers who are participating in the annual farm programs may graze and hay their designated set-aside acres free of charge until September 30.

No application for this haying and grazing need be made as has been previously announced through individual farm newsletters. However, those producers reletting this acreage to others must still file a request.

No crop can be harvested from this acreage after September 30.

Jaycee July 4 Picnic For City Park Project

Muenster Jaycees are getting ready this week for an old fashioned picnic, loaded with fun for youngsters and oldsters, as a benefit event for the city park pavilion.

Charles Bayer, chairman, says it will start at noon, will offer the community's biggest variety ever in concessions and contests, and will end with a fireworks show starting at 10 o'clock.

The concessions will include sandwiches, cold drinks, candies, fish pond, popcorn, sno cone, novelty store, and fire truck rides. In addition, there will be horseshoe tournaments starting at 1 o'clock and bike and trike decorating contests starting at 2. That event will be in separate divisions for trikes and bikes with prizes in each for the prettiest, the funniest, the most original and most patriotic. The eight winners will be permitted to select their prizes from an assortment of toys. Boys and girls of all ages.

William J. Hess Is Honored by Lawton Knights Columbus

William J. (Bill) Hess of Lawton, Okla., formerly of Muenster, has been selected Knight of the Year for 1970 by Lawton Knights of Columbus Council 1287. He received the certificate award at the Founders Day banquet.

At the June business meeting of the council he was elected grand knight for the coming year. He served as chancellor the past year.

He was also elected as faithful pilot of the General Tinker Assembly Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus.

His council will be represented in the National Golf Tournament at Riverside Country Club in Dallas. This is the third annual Knights of Columbus Golf Tournament. The first was held in St. Louis, Mo., in 1969. Last year it was held in Kansas City, Kansas. Two members including Mr. Hess participated in St. Louis and he will be one of four members of the team representing the Lawton Council in this year's event. Lawton Council has a membership of 330.

He served as deputy grand knight of the Ardmore, Okla., council in 1959 before moving to Lawton. His wife is the former Joyce Rice and they have two sons and three daughters.

are eligible to enter, and there will be no entry fee.

On the hour from 3 to 7 there will be a variety of races with novelty prizes for children of the 5th through 8th grades. Entry fees will be 10 cents each. The events are a potato on spoon race at 3 p.m.; potato between knees race at 4; 1 leg race at 5; mother-daughter 3-leg race at 6, and father-son sack relay at 7.

Kids with a big watermelon appetite will line up at 4:30 for a watermelon eating contest.

Booked for 9 is a special bingo game to decide who will get the huge stuffed toy, a bull, that has been on display around town this week.

The fireworks show, originally scheduled for 11 p.m., has been moved ahead to 10 o'clock so that kiddies will not have to stay up so late.

The Jaycees' pavilion project is a continuation of the park improvement program which the organization has been working at for several years, and for which the local chapter received nation wide recognition at the 1969 convention. Projects to date include clearing brush and small trees, filling a gully, planting carpet grass, building a fence, tennis courts and picnic tables, and repairing and adding to playground equipment. The newest addition is a set of eight lights for the two tennis courts.

Three Florida Men Captured After Attempted Theft

A timid thief changed his mind about raiding the cash register when he was surprised by an alert service station attendant.

It happened at Carl Walterscheid's Arco Station Wednesday night. A car drove up and one of its occupants asked Kenny Hesse to check under the hood. While doing so Hesse looked up and saw one of the men taking money out of the cash register. He screamed at the man who dropped the money and rushed to the car and roared away. Hesse noted that it had a Florida license.

The sheriff's office was notified immediately and about 15 minutes later the car with three occupants was caught between Saint Jo and Nocona. Cooke County deputies returned the trio to Gainesville and put them in the county jail.

Contract Awarded For Texas' 1500th Flood Control Dam

The 1,500th upstream flood prevention dam to be built in Texas was contracted for construction this week, reports State Conservationist Clyde W. Graham of the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

East Fork Construction Company of Seagoville was low bidder for the contract.

The dam is Site No. 13 in the Hickory Creek watershed near Denton. The Hickory Creek project will provide flood prevention and recreation for the City of Denton while protecting cropland, roads, bridges and other property in the watershed. The dam will be the sixth in a series of 16 to be built in the watershed.

The project, including conservation land treatment in the watershed, is expected to keep 58,000 tons of sediment out of Garza-Little Elm Reservoir each year when completed. Garza-Little Elm serves as a water supply for Denton, Dallas and other cities in North Texas.

"The 1,500th dam marks another milestone in the watershed approach to resource management in Texas," Graham said. "Upstream watershed projects have vast environmental benefits; they not only cut flood damages but they also reduce erosion and sediment damage. And sediment is still our state's biggest pollutant. It fills lakes, streams and harbors; it kills fish and ruins their spawning grounds."

Graham said watershed lakes also provide recreation areas while creating new fish and wildlife habitat.

There are three active watersheds in this area. They include Elm Creek, Clear Creek and Denton Creek.

Muenster Electric Formal Opening To Show New Home and New Lines

A new building and a business expansion will be introduced to the community next week Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the formal opening of Muenster Electric's new home a mile and a half east of town.

After spending three years in an old building on Walnut Street, Earl Walterscheid put up a modern brick and metal building on Highway 82 near the Cooke County Electric Co-op building, which is still under construction.

In the previous location he specialized in new and used motors and wiring contracting. Now he has added the Motorola line of TVs, radios and stereos; the Gibson line of air conditioners, refrigerators, freezers, dishwashers, ranges, washers and dryers; the Toastmaster line of small appliances and Hunter and Federal electric heating systems.

Walterscheid expects to have a good selection of all those lines on display for his opening.

He'll also show his handsome

48 Traffic Deaths In July 4 Weekend Estimated by DPS

AUSTIN — Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, today estimated that traffic accidents over the long July 4th holiday weekend will claim 48 lives in the Lone Star State.

In addition, Speir said it appears that between 6 p.m. Friday, July 2 and midnight Monday, July 5 — the official holiday weekend — these same collisions could result in hundreds, perhaps a thousand or more injuries, and a monetary loss running into the millions of dollars.

The DPS director, in a special appeal, said, "We urge Texans to reduce the toll by obeying the laws of safety, driving defensively, avoiding fatigue while driving, and, above all, by not driving while drinking. The ultimate solution to lessening the toll obviously lies in the hands of each driver."

Speir said as many DPS patrolmen would be on duty as possible, including some from uniformed services other than the Highway Patrol. He noted that many local law enforcement agencies will place similar special emphasis during the holiday period.

The Department of Public Safety will also conduct its "Operation Motorcade" program during the holiday which, in cooperation with local police agencies and the news media of Texas, attempts to focus public attention on accident hazards through the rapid compilation and release of information on fatal traffic mishaps during the period.

"We are hopeful," Speir said, "that all street and highway users will make the slogan 'Drive Friendly' a reality during the July 4th weekend."

Mark Twain was a notorious user of profanity, to the great embarrassment of his wife, who decided to cure him of the habit. She decided to use oaths as the method.

At the breakfast table one morning while Twain was engrossed in his paper she started to use profanity. He finally looked up and said to her, "Darling, you've got the words but not the music."

Three Cheers for the Fourth

America is the only leader the free world has. Our freedom did not come easy. Thousands of our founding fathers fought and died for it. Countless thousands more died for the Union in the Civil War. Other hundreds of thousands of our finest men died in defense of freedom in World War I and World War II. People who sit back smugly and say nothing was accomplished by these wars, or that we could have had freedom without fighting for it, are out of touch with reality and are bereft of a sense of history.

Eleven years ago, on July 4, 1961, Hawaii became the 50th star in our flag. The first star was added to the original 13 on December 7, 1787, when Delaware became the 14th State admitted to the Union.

The flag itself was designed not by Betsy Ross as legend would have it, but by Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Lynch and Benjamin Harrison, who were appointed by the Continental Congress to come up with some ideas.

On June 14, 1777, Congress decided the flag should have 13 stripes, with 13 stars in the field of blue. The stars are five-pointed to represent the star of Bethlehem. The white, said the Continental Congress, stands for purity and innocence; the red stands for hardiness and valor; the blue represents justice, vigilance and perseverance. The colors were first used by the colonies in 1737.

The flag and the pledge of allegiance eloquently express the fact that we are one nation under God, that we are a republic guaranteeing liberty and justice to everyone.

We must preserve our patriotism and our independence in a hostile world, if the free world itself is to keep its freedom. If we do keep our freedom, it will gradually spread behind the Iron Curtains of the non-free world.

The Purpose of Independence

As Independence Day 1971 approaches, it is well to recall that the Fourth of July means more than shooting off a few fireworks. It marks the point nearly two centuries ago when the United States began to shape its destiny as an independent nation.

This year, as we commemorate independence, many are asking whether we are worthy of the freedom we have enjoyed all these years, thanks to the fortitude and purposefulness of our forefathers. To them, independence meant building a strong nation where individual freedom, under law, the right of property and other basic liberties, could thrive and grow. They applied their independence to these purposes with fruitful results. If the nation is now drifting and divided, there can be but one reason. The premises upon which independence was won have been weakened. Some are ashamed of the strength of our nation. Others question its laws, its economic system and the institutions under which it has become strong. They use the independence granted to them nearly 200 years ago to turn the nation away from the principles on which it was founded and upon which it depends for its continued existence.

Those who are grateful for the opportunities and freedom this country has given them stand up and be counted on Independence Day this year.

Choosing the Laws to Obey

Federal laws that permit the Government to classify some documents as secret are laws like all others. It is not permissible for citizens or companies to pick and choose what law they will obey.

We can think of a number of classified documents we would like to read and publish, not the least being those concerning the assassination of President Kennedy. Many others could produce sensational newspaper editions. It might even be argued that this is the best interests of the American public, and incidentally of the newspaper that scores the biggest scoops by violations of the law.

If one person or group of persons is to be permitted to steal and publicize secret documents, then the whole body of classified materials is open to the most successful thief and to the biggest briber. This would make a mockery of government by due process of law.

It is not by accident that the secret documents made public recently concern the origins of the Vietnam war, rather than the assassination of a President; or Soviet infiltration of the United Nations; or Operation Keel-haul, by which some hundreds of thousands of Russians who wanted to be on our side were forced to return to the Soviet Union after World War II.

It is interesting that the recent publication of documents without authorization represents one more effort to make the United States get out of Vietnam in a rout.

In Praise of Money

Money has been called the root of all evil, but John D. D. Sheridan, the Irish writer, figures out it also accomplishes much good. The man who says he is not fond of money must be either a saint or a liar. He is most probably the latter, for much of the work done by saints takes a lot of money.

You cannot build housing for the homeless with hope alone, and even missionaries must have sun helmets and airplane tickets. You have to put something in your basket before you go to feed the hungry, and if you are to bind wounds you must have bandages.

People sometimes say that "money is not everything," forgetting that nothing is everything, neither wealth nor beauty nor intelligence nor character nor good health. The old song, "The best things in life are free" is just a song, and it is becoming harder and harder to sing for your supper.

Money speaks for you in far-way places. A farm in Colorado can buy what you need in London, provided you convert some of the crop into money.

There is nothing shameful in being fond of money, if you keep your values in line. If you are fond of helping people with your money, instead of just wanting it for power, more money and more power to you!

Brush with Chaos

New Yorkers very likely know better than anyone else what it is like to live without essential services and necessities. One of their recent brushes with chaos came in the form of a strike of 1,600 truck drivers and warehouse workers who handle about 85 percent of the metropolitan area's gasoline supply. Service stations throughout the city were forced to post out-of-gas signs. The police department, hospitals and ambulances were faced with an emergency situation. Gasoline is another of those necessities that everyone seems to presume will always be available in abundant supply come what may.

A few hundred strikers demonstrated more effectively than all the statistics and arguments in the world exactly what energy means to an energy-based society such as that of Twentieth Century America. Let this flow of energy dwindle or cease, even momentarily, and civilization would collapse in a shapeless mass of unwashed, starving humanity.

DRIVE FRIENDLY—Gov. Preston Smith is joined by two other state officials in urging drivers to DRIVE FRIENDLY during the summer when traffic is heaviest. On the left is A. Ross Rommel, the state's traffic safety administrator, and on the right is Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Department of Public Safety. The Governor said the state is doing everything possible to cut down on traffic accidents. "But, we need the full support of the driver himself," the Governor said.

Aswan High Dam One of History's Great Disasters

One of the greatest man-made disasters in history could turn out to be Aswan hydro-electric and irrigation dam in Egypt. Such is the obvious conclusion that must be drawn from an article in Life magazine on a project that was designed to be a world renowned monument to the ingenuity of man and totalitarian government.

The story was written by free-lance journalist Claire Sterling on the occasion of the inauguration of the High Dam which is bigger than any dam of its kind ever built. It is equipped to generate 10 billion kilowatts of power. It hobbles the mighty Nile river that spans half of Africa from the equator to the Mediterranean and took 11 years to construct at a cost of nearly a billion dollars. It was supposed to have paid for itself in two years, double Egypt's national income in 10, industrialize the country and water an immense empty desert for a hungry, crowded people. Instead, the dam is leading to an environmental catastrophe.

Mrs. Sterling writes that, "After just six years, the aquatic food chain has been broken in the eastern Mediterranean along a continental shelf 12 miles wide and 600 miles long." Evaporation and seepage is taking the water that was intended for irrigation. It was to have filled to its required level in 1970. Instead, one scientist now thinks it may take 200 years. All but two of the High Dam's twelve modern power generating turbines are idle. The silt that was depended upon to renew the Nile Valley periodically is being trapped in the old river bed. A death-dealing parasite carried by water snails flourishes in the backed up waters of the dam. One of every ten deaths in Egypt is now caused by this parasite. Salinity threatens to turn the Nile Valley into a desert.

Somewhere in the story of Egypt's Aswan High Dam, there is a moral for Americans who habitually turn to government to solve their problems.

A hard-working Austin lawyer entered an Austin restaurant, and since he was too exhausted to read the menu, asked the waiter to bring him a good meal.

He was served an excellent dinner and gave the waiter a generous tip. When the man was leaving, the waiter said, "Thank you, sir, and if you have any friends who can't read either, you just send them to me."

Lawmakers Adopt New Requirements On Immunization

Texas students must begin an immunization program by Jan. 1, 1972, under legislation just signed into law, says the Texas Department of Health.

Students will be allowed to enter schools during the summer and fall terms with provision that their immunizations against at least one of six diseases will be started by Jan. 1 and completed as soon as medically possible.

Required immunization for grade school level youngsters includes diphtheria, tetanus, poliomyelitis, measles, rubella and smallpox. Measles immunization is not required if there is a history of measles illness.

Exceptions may be granted on religious grounds or to those who may be harmed by immunization (on written certification by a physician). However, exemptions would not be permitted in a time of emergency or epidemic, the Health Department adds.

Meat Inspection Program in Texas Endorsed by USDA

The Texas meat inspection program, operated by the Texas State Department of Health, is less than two years old, but has been appraised as equal to federal inspection procedures and given full endorsement by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The State Health Department in 1969 opened a school at Yoakum to train meat inspectors, a move required by a new Texas Meat and Poultry Act. Faced with the choice of letting the federal government take over all inspection or providing adequate state inspection, the Texas Legislature decided in favor of state controls. The federal government still inspects all red meat and poultry processed for interstate (across state lines) shipments.

The amount of red meat and poultry inspected is staggering. In 1970, more than 306 million pounds of red meat — beef and pork — came under the critical eyes of State Health inspectors. In addition, 63 1/2 million pounds of poultry was inspected.

State meat inspectors are now keeping close tabs on all meat processed at the 646 slaughterhouse and processing plants now under state inspection. Meat animals are carefully checked before slaughter, and through every stage of the packing process.

The objective of the Texas meat inspection program is to insure better meat products for all Texans. Inspection is essential to make certain that only wholesome meat and meat products reach the tables of consumers. The program will also upgrade the meat industry and encourage it to provide better products.

Texas meat inspectors have been placed throughout the state, from Amarillo to Brownsville and from El Paso to Texarkana. Every packing plant in the state has a carefully trained inspector on duty at all times.

The symbol of the Texas meat inspector program is a purple Texas-shaped stamp. If you begin to notice the Texas stamp on the beef or poultry you buy at the supermarket, you know that meat is safe and wholesome. It has been inspected and certified by inspectors trained by the Texas State Department of Health.

Weed Control — The use of chemicals (2,4-D) for weed control has been greatly hindered this year by dry weather and windy days. However, this has not kept the weeds from growing. Generally most weeds will begin active growth a few days after a good rain. They are much easier to kill during this active growth period than they are during an extended dry period when plant growth slows down.

If it continues windy and dry then serious consideration should be given to mowing. A thick stand of weeds will use a lot more water than grass. In a dry year it is very important that weeds be removed so all the moisture will go to the grass.

Fertilization — Have you figured where and how to get some winter hay without paying two prices for it? One good way is to raise your own. Most landowners have a small patch of grass or waterways which can be rested and fertilized so as to produce a lot of hay. As a rule of thumb on a good stand of grass each 30 pounds of nitrogen added will produce a ton of hay per acre. This 30 pounds of nitrogen can be bought for $3.00 or less. This is mighty cheap hay.

Using the above rule we see that 10 acres of good bermuda, fertilized with 300 pounds of ammonia nitrate (100 pounds of N.) will produce about 30 tons of high quality hay at a cost of $90 or $3 per ton. It may cost you another $15 per ton ($450) for baling and hauling. This is $540 for 30 tons of hay or $18 per ton. What kind of hay can you buy for that price?

Natural Pollution An Old Curse

Pollution is generally thought of as a man-made curse. It is not. In its many natural forms, it has threatened mankind for countless centuries. It is the source of typhoid and of amoebic dysentery. It poisons food with Salmonella. Mice and rats are deadly polluters. They serve as hosts for fleas and disease organisms which can cause human suffering and death. Most food removed from the market by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration is seized because it is contaminated with filth, including animal hairs and droppings.

Other pollutants are airborne and stem from a variety of vegetation such as the pollen of ragweed and goldenrod. Our homes and surroundings are afflicted with natural pollutants we rarely consider. These include silverfish, clothes moths and carpet beetles. More serious are the parasitic insects such as fleas, ticks, bedbugs, and lice which feed on the blood of our pets and spread disease to humans. And then there are the many pollutants — scale insects, chafers, aphids, spider mites, and caterpillars — that destroy desirable plants and foliage. Mosquitoes and other natural pollutants move in and make recreational areas unfit for any use.

Fortunately for mankind, many of these natural pollutants are controllable and have been controllable for a long time — by pesticides which, ironically and illogically, conservation purists are working to outlaw. As we pursue costly efforts to curb man-made pollution, it makes little sense to attack the measures by which natural pollution has been largely controlled to the benefit of our comfort, health and life itself.

Strong New Bill On Drinker-Driver To Save 500 Lives

AUSTIN—The Texas Legislature's passage of a strong bill aimed at the abusive drinker-driver can save the lives of more than 500 Texans in the next two years," according to J. U. Parker, President of the Texas Safety Association.

Parker, a Houston safety consultant, made the prediction today in a release from the Austin headquarters of the statewide safety organization.

As a part of the Governor's Traffic Safety Program, the legislature passed and sent to the Governor May 25, a bill establishing 0.10 percent blood-alcohol concentration as a presumption of being under the influence of intoxicating liquor while driving a motor vehicle.

"This measure will probably save more Texas lives in years to come than any other single piece of legislation enacted by the legislature this session if it is properly enforced throughout the state," Parker stated.

The TSA president said that more than half of the fatalities last year in Texas highway crashes involved abusive drinkers, even though this group makes up only about 7 percent of the driving public.

"Texas has taken a great step forward in controlling its number one highway menace with the passage of this measure. The legislature, Governor Smith, and the people of Texas are to be commended for their vigorous efforts in securing this life-saving action," said Parker.

"High praise also needs to be paid to the news media of Texas for the part it played in informing Texans of the need for such legislation. The efforts of newspapers, radio and television stations, and magazines throughout the state provided factual information about the problem of the abusive drinker-driver," Parker commented.

Parker also commended the legislature for passage of a bill that made changes in the Texas Traffic Code which brings the state more nearly into compliance with the Uniform Traffic Code. The bill was signed into law by Governor Smith April 27.

Chemical Elements Are Essential to Body's Functions

Years ago scientists and nutritionists discovered that the addition of iodine to common table salt dramatically curtailed the occurrence of goiter in this country. But iodine is only one of many trace elements considered vital to the human diet, according to nutritionists at the Texas State Department of Health.

Iodine is an essential component of the thyroid-gland hormone that regulates the rate at which our tissues breathe. Without it, the tissues use less oxygen, the body slows down, and eventually so does the mind. A limited deficiency of iodine can result in a swelling of the neck known as simple goiter, which practically disappeared when table salt was iodized many years ago.

A number of other elements are also vital, but only in very small amounts. These essential microelements include copper, iodine, manganese, zinc, chromium, fluorine, molybdenum, and selenium. Thousands of chemical reactions occur in each cell of our body, with enzymes acting as catalysts to bring specific molecules into the right position to react at the appropriate moment. Some of these enzymes contain vitamins as part of their own molecules, and many do not function except in the presence of the right trace mineral. Without such activators (and each enzyme requires a particular activator), no reaction takes place.

Typical of the activators is copper, essential to the manufacture of blood cells. Although it is as vital as iron, the body requires less than one-tenth as much.

Lack of zinc is believed responsible for the dwarfism observed in some isolated areas in the Middle East. Besides being necessary for growth, zinc plays a role in the development of sex organs, the manufacture of blood cells, the healing of wounds and burns, and in the utilization of the hormone insulin.

Another essential trace mineral is manganese, which monitors the buildup and breakdown of protein and of nucleic acid, the basic carrier of heredity. It is also important to the development of bones and tendons.

Too little chromium may be one of the factors responsible for high cholesterol and a decrease in sugar utilization in elderly people. Selenium is involved in the respiration of cells. And fluoride is believed necessary for good teeth.

Eating a wide variety of foods can usually supply the needed amounts of these vital minerals.

"Accent on Health" is a weekly service of the Public Health Education Division of the Texas State Department of Health.

A new automatic bale wagon being used by farmers allows one man to pick up tons of hay bales each day without leaving the seat of his tractor. And, the operator can place the entire load of bales where he wants them with the flick of a hydraulic lever.

law with a long record of aggression and mass murder.

Referring back to such apparent changes of policy, one can easily understand why conservative Republicans feel that Nixon has let them down, and they would be much happier with someone like Reagan as their next standard bearer. After all, they feel that conservatives won the last election and were entitled to a president who thought their way.

But the thought of a conservative like Reagan or Agnew as the GOP candidate brings back memories of 1964 when Goldwater was crucified by the nation's most biased and unscrupulous campaign. One wonders what the liberal-controlled press, TV and radio would do to another conservative.

Well, What Do You Know? fun, games and knowledge

by MARTHA GLAUBER SHAPP, Editor, The New Book of Knowledge

What do you know about bullfighting?

Bullfighting, which has been called Spain's national sport, is not really a contest between a man and a bull. It is a contest between a man and himself. The audience goes to the ring, or plaza de toros, to see a man conquer his own fear of the horns and take as many chances with the bull as possible.

Bullfighting has existed in one form or another for more than 2,000 years. One reason that Spain has been the leading place for it is that the fighting bull—the toro de lidia or toro bravo—first lived there.

All people who fight bulls are called toreros. The matadors are the stars of the show. Each one has two picadors and three banderilleros to help him. It is old-fashioned and incorrect to call bullfighters toreadors. ("The toreador" of Bizet's opera Carmen is actually a matador.)

Do you know what impeachment is?

Impeachment is a legal action brought against a government official accused of misconduct or criminal offenses. In the United States the House of Representatives brings charges for impeachment by a majority vote. Then the Senate becomes a court and tries the accused official. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court presides if the president is impeached. If the Senate, by a two-thirds majority vote, finds the impeached person guilty, he is removed from office.

What do you know about illustration?

Illustration is the art of telling a story with pictures. An illustrator is an artist who translates words into pictures that can be instantly understood. Illustrations have many purposes—to explain scientific facts, to describe new products in advertisements, to picture events in a story, to portray the main idea in a poem. When an illustration is successful, characters come to life and ideas are made clear.
