Bluebeard!

For centuries, the mention of this name, with its memories of wrolesale murder, has sent chills scurrying up the back of law-abiding people.

And as Harry F. Powers, the pudgy, 45-year-old "West Virginia Bluebeard," faces prosecution for wholesale murders in his tiny garage near Clarksburg, other famous mass slayings are recalled.

The most famous of all murdere is Bluebeard himself, the monste of Charles Perrault's tale, publish ed in 1697, who slew his wives and hid their bodies in a locked room

As the tale goes, Bluebeard prohibited his newest wife from open ing a locked door during his absence; she disobeyed, dislovered the gruesome seret, and was rescued just as Bluebeard prepared to add her to his list of seven victims. Most famous of modern Blue beards, perhaps, was Henri Landri graciously mannered Frenchman

Landru made love to 300 women and lured 10 of them to his villa to kill them for their property. Landru was guillotined in Paris in 1924, even though none of the bodies of his victims were recovered.

Then there was "Bluebeard" Watson of California, who in 1920 was sentenced to life imprisonment. Married to a score of women, he confessed to slaying nine. Later, he claimed he had taken only one life.

Investigators could never understand what it was that attracted pertaining to all other sections was women to the "Bluebeard of Marseilles," arrested by French police. Bodies of three women were uncovered in 1928. He had easily induced them to accept officers of marriage and turn over their money to him.

America's famous "Women Bluebeard" was Belle Guinness, who lured men to her farmhouse near LaPorte, Ind., to take their funds through marriage and then kill them. Her crimes came to light when her farmhouse burned in 1908, and police found bodies of 13 men buried nearby Mrs. Guinness was never captured.

LAW OF AVERAGES HOLDS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The law of averages favors the Democrats rganizing the next House. Over a long period of years the death rate of Republican and Democratic members averages about the same. The annual number of deaths more than a dozen.

Of the eleven Representatives elected to the Seventy-second Con-gress who have died, seven were Democrats and four Republicans. The Democrats have filled all but two of the vacancies normally Democratic, while the Republicans still have four vacant. As a result of the Democratic victory in the seventh Missouri district yesterday, both the Republican and Democratic parties have 214 seats. The Farmer-Labor party has one.

If the law of averages prevails the death rate in the Republican membership may nip the advantage the administration party has main-tained since last November elections. Then the count was: Republicans 218; Democrats 216; Farmer-Labor 1.

With only two months before Congress convenes, it would be difficult for Republicans to fill additional vacancies.

The attention of the nation will be centered particularly on the first Ohio district. There the Democrats defeat the Republican candidate Maurice Chevalier! The smiling olas Longworth.
