When the American Red Cross blood drive comes to Muenster on January 31, the residents of Muenster and the surrounding area will have a chance to donate blood to benefit LaBecah Hess Miller, 23.

"We had citizens from all over Cooke County asking how they could help. This blood drive will give everyone a more tangible way to offer help to Hess Miller," said Marlene Endres, blood drive chairman. Since this community blood drive was already scheduled, all units donated above and beyond Muenster's goal of 75 units will help to offset some of the blood processing fees. Jenny Barmore, consultant with the Red Cross Blood Services explained that the American Red Cross does not charge for blood or blood products, however, as a non-profit organization the Red Cross does

Letters to the Editor-

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the editorial "The Family In Crisis" in Tuesday Jan. 17 Gainesville Register.

"The decline of marriage and the resultant rise of one parent families has been harmful to the well-being of millions of American children."

How true - how true! The article stated we must no longer condone out-of-wedlock births. What must be said is we will no longer pay for out-of-wedlock babies. This is the key to ending AFDC our greatest error in the present welfare system.

The CATO Institute in Washington, D.C. concludes that welfare, as is, breeds an endless cycle of fatherlessness, freeloading and illegitimacy. That since 1965 the United States has spen 35 tillion on social welfare, yet all we have achieved is more poverty and moral decay.

Today in our society an ever increasing number of grandparents are forced into a full time duty of rearing their grandchildren - some by deaths and some by divorce, but a large percentage by the product of out-of-wedlock single mother by choice - a product of our welfare system.

A strong family unit is the backbone of our nation. Yes, where there is love and religion in the home and where there is direction and discipline in the home the children learn to love, to live and moral values are the children will become successful law-abiding citizens.

In 1965 Daniel Patrick Moynihan, then an assistant to President Lyndon Johnson, wrote "The Negro Family; The Case for National Action," focused on the breakdown of the black family and the reasons why. For his efforts he was called "racist" trying to impose middle class values on the black family, but today most people realize the truth and accuracy in Moynihan's view of the situation. Has AFDC helped? No! In 1965, 25% of all black children were illegitimate; in 1991 that figure had risen to 68%. During the same time frame, white illegitimacy rose from 4% to 22%. It is currently estimated that only 6% of black children will live with their parents until the age of 18.

by Mayor Bill Miller
In last week's newspaper, Editor
David Fette asked for letters concerning the city's liability in the trailer house sewer leakage problem.

I can bring you up to date on the city's position of this problem. Since the onset of the sewer problem, I have communicated with the city's liability insurance company.

To this date, we have not received a written determination of the position that the city's liability insurance company will take in this matter. Verbally, the company representative explained to me that they have made an onsite investigation and interviewed several people. I don't know who the investigator talked with or what evidence was gathered.

After all the facts are gathered and studied, the city's insurance company will inform us of their determination.

If it is determined that the city is not liable for damages, the homeowners can then check with their dwelling insurance company.

Historically, dwelling insurance has paid for plumbing and sewer leaks unless the policy specifically states an exclusion.

Even though the city's liability insurance and the homeowners insurance companies may deny payment for the damages, the homeowners have an option of retaining a lawyer to have a court hearing for a final decision.

The city council has no authority to make the decision one way or another. The city has the liability insurance to take care of the damages if it is determined to be the city's fault.

There is also a law that prohibits the donation of municipal funds to private organizations or individuals, no matter how worthy the cause.

With this information in mind, individuals and organizations may want to make donations and do good works directly for these families.

Sen. Gramm issues challenge to Congress

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, issuing a challenge to members of the new 104th Congress, says he will draw the line on any attempt by the Clinton administration to raise taxes, increase spending and expand federal regulations.

"As we begin the 104th Congress, with all of its promise, I want Congress to be as zealous in trying to live up to the commitments we made as we were when we were out making those commitments seeking election to Congress, "Gramm said.

"In November, the American people demanded that Congress stop the taxing, spending and regulating machine which has been the hallmark of the Clinton administration. Our job is to do exactly that, and I want to say, on those issues, there will be no compromise," the senator said.

"We have got to begin spending the taxpayers' money the same way they would spend it: by setting high standards and saying 'no' to special interests. To make the Contract With America work, we're going to have to cut government spending. It's going to take leadership and courage, but the American people expect us to get it done. And I believe we are going to get it done, 'Gramm said.

"We're going to let working people keep more of what they earn. We're going to provide incentives for people to invest and create jobs. We're going to go back and rewrite the crime bill to grab violent criminals by the throat. We're going to reform welfare. We're going to got work or going to go be people riding in the wagon to get out and help the rest of us pull," the senator said.

Rep. Ralph M. Hall (D-Texas) retained the same committees he had in the 103rd Congress as the Democratic committee caucuses met today to select subcommittee members.

Balcones Plan Illustrates Need for Environmental Moratorium

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Balcones Canyonlands Conserva-tion Plan is a case study of how environmental good intentions can go wrong.

The purpose of this plan is to provide more protected habitat for Texas' Golden-Cheeked Warbler. But it will provide that protection at the expense of certain Travis County property owners.

This plan proposes that owners of nearly 400 single-family lots in Travis County, lots which were subdivided before the area was designated a protected habitat, be allowed to apply for a permit to construct a single-family home — for a fee of $1,500. Developers are expected to pay even more — up to $5,000 an acre — to build property they own in certain areas of the warbler's designated habitat which hasn't been subdivided yet.

These permit fees are to be used to acquire nearly 10,000 additional acres of wildlife refuge to provide more habitat, to augment 21,000 acres now set aside for that purpose. And the plan was put forward despite the fact that Travis County residents have voted against spending any more money on refuges.

I consider this plan a flagrant violation of the Takings Clause of the U.S. Constitution. If any nongovernmental organization made such a proposal, it would be called extortion.

Constitution. If any nongovernmental organization made such a proposal, it would be called extortion.

I am just as disturbed at the way the plan was welcomed in Austin; Landowners and developers there have been so browbeaten by the Fish and Wildlife Service and the Department of the Interior that they were relieved to reach a resolution of the issue — any resolution of the issue, regardless of cost.

But we shouldn't overlook the fact that the Fish and Wildlife Service plan essentially suspends the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution regarding the taking of property.

For this reason I introduced a bill on January 11 to impose a moratorium on any additional designations of endangered species or critical habitat until Congress rethinks the entire act, which is up for reauthorization this year. I am not arguing against preserving the habitat of endangered species. There are, however, positive alternatives to accomplish this, such as offering tax incentives to encourage alternative protection initiatives or the designation of alternative habitats.

We should determine what species are worthy of designation and how rigorous their protection should be in a more pragmatic way. The manner in which the Department of the Interior is going about protecting many species now puts unjust limits on the use, market value and transferability of certain property.

If we want to protect the critical habitat of and manner of the property.

now puts unjust limits on the use, market value and transferability of certain property.

If we want to protect the critical habitat of endangered species, we all have to pay for it, not just certain, untucky property owners.

This debate is no longer about protecting our treasured natural resources from harm, it's about the federal government seizing control of Texans' land. We must put a stop to this, and we must point the Department of the Interior in a new direction.

Senator Tom Haywood, District 30 On the desk in my new Capitol office is a plaque I keep to remind me why I am here each day. It is inscribed with a famous statesman's familiar words, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for you country." To me, these words are the embodiment of what you've sent me to Austin to do. I'm not here for the greater glory of being a senator or to advance the cause of any special interest group or even to represent a political party. I'm here to ask on a day-to-day basis what I can do for Texas -- and more specifically, for you and your hometown. Now, I'm sure that you are thinking that you hear that same speech from every politician that comes along and that "politics as usual" will never change. But as many of the visitors to my office can attest, the character of the Texas Legislature has taken a turn for the better. Under the leadership of Lieutenant Governor Bob Bullock and Speaker of the House Pete Laney, we have begun a new era of state politics. My colleague, Senator David Sibley, expressed it best when he said that the focus now is to "get something done and testing bill, I've met with school superintendents and public school teachers on education concerns, examined proposed bills on term limits, and read over new tort reform legislation, which as you know is a priority for me this term. I've also attended meetings of two of the three committees I am on—Education, Economic Development, and the Natural Resources Subcommittee on Agriculture—and started to formulate ideas in those areas. But most importantly this week—and every week for the next four years—I've listened to your concerns and needs and viewpoints. I've been overwhelmed by the telephone calls and letters on issues large and small and was especially thrilled to have many of you visit my office the day of my swearing-in ceremony and in the days since. We may not always agree, but your opinion does count in this office. I hope you will let me know what you think and how you feel about the challenges facing our region this year and in the future. I made a big promise to represent you and your neighbors. Its up to you to help me keep that promise. Ask what I can do for you. Together we can make a difference for Texas. cooperate and compromise, to do whatever it takes to get the job done. I was fortunate to see firsthand that this new attitude toward governing "for the people" really does work. An emergency bill to temporarily halt the new Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) auto emissions testing was introduced recently by Senator John Whitmire, a Democrat from Houston. This bill, Senate Bill 19, will put a 90-day hold on testing in Texas and give our counterparts in Washington a chance to re-examine the program and its problems. All of the state senators, including myself, signed the bill as cosponsors, enabling the Senate to suspend the voting rules and act with the necessary swiftness on this issue. Sponsors of the bill were Democrats and Republicans alike, setting aside their own agendas to work for the best interests of the folks back home. I was proud to be a part of such action and hope it continues for the rest of the session. Looking ahead to those next few months, I've spent this first week focusing on what I believe will be major issues. In addition to sponsoring the auto emissions 2 WEEK EVENTS CALENDAR

Klement, Eric Gray, Pam and David Fette who presented sacred songs, including "On Eagles' Wings," "The Lord Is My Shepherd," "Here I Am Lord," "You Are Near," "Wherever You Go," "The Ones I Love" and "Amazing Grace."

Father Frowin Schoech delivered the eulogy at Mass, telling that: "Maurice had a deep understanding of the mystery of the Cross as evidenced by the "Little Way" that he lived his life. These words, adapted from a biography of Saint Theresa of the Child Jesus, the famous Saint of our Church who lived in the later part of the 1800's, could certainly be applied to the life of Maurice Pagel.

He, like St. Theresa, did little things extraordinarily well. And because of these, he was a giant of a Man.

Maurice Randolph Pagel was because of these, he was a giant of a Man.

Maurice Randolph Pagel was born Oct. 4, 1921, in Muenster, Texas, the son of Jacob Henry Pagel Junior and Ceacelia (Trachta) Pagel.

After attending the local schools, he was inducted into the U.S. Army, June 15, 1941, serving in the 81st Infantry Division and honorably discharged in 1946.

On May 27, 1947 Maurice married Geneva Frances Gremminger. God blessed this union with 5 beautiful children: Dwayne James, Glenda Louise, Jacob Anthony, Marlene Ellen, and Sharlene Helen.

His lifelong work was the running of Pagel's Store which he bought from his father in 1956, having learned the business during his youth and as a young man.

When Geneva died in 1965, Maurice married Margaret Louise Owen and again the Lord blessed this marriage with three children: Judith Leigh, Troy Ray, and Christopher Michael.

Margaret and Maurice divorced in 1977 and she currently resides in Dallas.

Maurice closed the store in 1978.

in 1977 and she currently resides in Dallas.

Maurice closed the store in 1978. He next worked for Weber Aircraft in Gainesville for 3 years -- 1981-1984 when he was forced to retire due to eye problems that eventually led to blindness.

His final years were spent at St. Richard's Villa.

Perhaps what characterized his life more than any single factor was care and concern for the "Little People." As owner of Pagel's Store he was not only a businessman, but a kind and concerned citizen with a big heart. It was well known that he offered credit to many of his customers -- knowing that the likelihood of being paid was slight -- because he wanted to be sure that the children of the town were fed and clothed. And he did it without a lot of hoopla and fanfare.

Maurice was a patriotic citizen who cared for his country. He took part in two campaigns in the Pacific Theatre during World War II, earning 15 medals including two bronze stars for valor and 23 battle stars. He served without a lot of glory and fanfare, doing his duty in a proud and unassuming way.

And this is the way he led his entire life. He was concerned with the Religious, Social, and Civic dimensions of this community and often donated items from his store to assist local organizations with their good works. Again, without a lot of credit or public recognition.

He appreciated life in its many forms. He loved sports, fishing, cooking, especially his special homemade sausage, and was most proud of his children.

And Maurice knew the Cross. He lost his beloved wife Geneva to cancer in 1965 after 6 months of illness, saw fires ruin his store twice, knew the agony of a divorce, and toward the end of his life lived with blindness and deteriorating health without his legs. And through it all, Maurice stayed the course, kept his head held high, more concerned about the hurting of others than his own pain. He united his sufferings to those of Jesus on His Cross. I know because I could see that when I brought him the Lord at St. Richard's when he was bedridden.

Wednesday, Jan. 18, was an important day for Maurice as that was the day the Lord called a halt to his sufferings, and to his earthly journey, for on that day the Lord took him to Himself to the dwelling place that He had been preparing for him. The Lord did come and He did take Maurice home with Him.

Now together they await our own return to the true Home that God has prepared for each of us.

Maurice now has his Peace. The Little Man is now a Giant with his Lord, And we can confidently pray and know that our prayer is and will be answered: Eternal Rest Grant Upon Him O Lord, Let Perpetual Light Shine Upon Him, May He Rest in Peace. Amen."

Cross-country hitch to appear in area

Country's Reminisce Hitch, the first six-horse aitch ever to complete a coast-to-coast walk across the United States, will soon be stopping over in this area.

The hitch will be at the Gainesville Area Chamber of Commerce on Saturday, Jan. 28, from 2 to 5 p.m.

During the stopover, the horses likely won't be unloaded, but they can be viewed in their stalls. And driver David Helmuth and his wife Vikki will answer questions and chat with the visitors about the horses and the cross-country journey, which took over 16 months and ended on August 12.

In all, the horses - covering about 10 miles a day (except Sunday, which was a rest day for both the horses and crew) - walked more than 3,400 miles during the Maine to California trek. The hitch and crew stopped at senior centers all along the route, as part of its mission to bring attention to seniors during the 50th anniversary year of the country's first senior center.

Nearly 50,000 people, most of them senior citizens, had the opportunity to ride in the custom-designed wagon pulled by the hitch, emblazoned with "We're Pulling for Seniors!" In a number of cases, one of the huge Belgians was taken right inside senior centers and nursing homes when residents were unable to come outdoors to see the hitch.

No. 1 Hitch in America

unable to come outdoors to see the hitch.

No. 1 Hitch in America
The champion Belgians, weighing over a ton each, were named the "No. 1 Six-Horse Hitch in America" shortly before they left Kennebunkport, Maine on April 13, 1993. Helmuth trotted the six horses through the Atlantic surf there to officially make it an "ocean to ocean" junket.

The original intent was to walk along the pre-set route in one continuous journey to San Diego, California, But, while Helmuth and his crew hoped to reach the Great Plains and work their way south before winter set in, the cold, wet weather that plagued much of the Midwest in the summer of 1993 put the hitch considerably behind schedule.

As a result, by the time the team lined the hitch route each day. This finally necessitated switching to a contingency plan.

A "Golden Horseshoe", a la the "Golden Spike", was implanted in the pavement of the town square in Centerville, Iowa to mark the team's progress up to that point. Then the horses were trucked to the end of the route at San Diego, where they immediately began walking back to Centerville.

Helmuth and the other six crew members overcame several hazards along the way. Both the crew and the horses were awakened by the tremors of the California earthquake last winter ... survived a brief but hair-raising runaway in New Mexico when a dog chased a pet rabbit under the team during a local parade ... were struck by 85-mph tornado-like winds while camping one night in Kansas ... and narrowly dodged several striking rattlesnakes in Colorado.

The team inched its way across Artizona and New Mexico during the height of winter, then followed spring north through Texas, an established organic deficit or medical condition that usually results in developmental delay. This program serves infants from birth to three years of age.

Project KIND's purpose is to help parents understand the developmental stages, physical changes and emotional needs of their children and thus strengthen the parent child relationship and to provide direct intervention to the child and family to meet the child's developmental needs.

Each of Project KIND's offices needs one volunteer for two hours per week. Work times may be flexible. The volunteer would help professionals with class preparation, accompany them on field trips and group outings, help parents support each other by connecting parents of similarly diagnosed children, care for siblings of children being assessed by the E.C.I. professionals, and other duties.

The volunteer will need to be at least sixteen years of age, have an interest in children and want to share his/her talents with others. Volunteering is a great way to get job training and experience for the future. Many prospective employers ask about volunteer work and community involvement of a potential employee. Volunteer activities could help when applying for a job.

To be considered for the volunteer position, contact your local Project KIND office in Denison; Linda Horton, 903-463-5691; Gainesville; Valerie Henscheid, 817-665-1464; Bonham, Jennifer Nelson, 903-786-2902.

Other activities included a visit with Representative Ric Williamson and a special evening at one of the inaugural balls.

Happy Birthday, Jessika Hartman!

THANK YOU!

THANK YOU!

The generous outpouring of love, support, and acts of kindness have been overwhelming and so very much appreciated. One tends to get caught in their own revolving door of life, and then suddenly, a crisis brings it to an abrupt halt and forces one to re-evaluate their once secure routine.

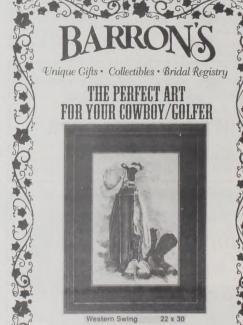

I feel so fortunate to know and live among such generous, heartwarming people. There are so many I need and want to thank for their unselfish giving during my and my family's crisis.

I thank the Lord daily for life, family, friends and health. I all too often took these for granted in the past.

I want to thank Clenn Cler and Gene Sicking for their quick response and assistance immediately after the accident; the Myra Volunteer Fire Dept. for their help, assistance and support; The numerous passersby who stopped to render aid; The Cooke County EMT and the Muenster Hospital staff for their competent and personal attention during the ER and inpatient stay; to the numerous visitors, well wishers and concerned acquaintances for their support to me and my family.

I especially want to thank my family for their love, support and strength and for being there when I needed them the most. I have renewed sense that I am a very fortunate person.

Walterscheid graduates from Navy basic training

Navy Fireman Recruit Brandan M. Walterscheid, son of Gary W. and Brenda G. Walterscheid of Muenster, Texas, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Orlando, Fla.

During the eight-weck program, Walterscheid completed a variety of training which included classroom study, practical hands-on instruction, and an emphasis on physical fitness. In particular, Walterscheid learned naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival, and a variety of safety skills required for working around ships and aircraft.

Walterscheid and other recruits also received instruction on the Navy's core values - honor, courage and commitment; and what the words mean in guiding personal and professional conduct. Walterscheid joins 55,000 men and women who will enter the Navy this year from all over the country.

Brandan was a R.C.P.O. (recruit chief petty officer) Company, CO54. They finished first overall in basic trainings categories.

On Oct. 16, 1961, Bro, Joseph Zoettl, the last remaining member of the German Benedictine monks who established St. Bernards Abbey in Cullman, Alabama, passed away at 83, as quietly as he had lived.

Bro, Joseph came to America from Landshut, Bavaria and spent the rest of his life living and working at the Abbey. He was a frail man, weighing less than 100 pounds.

working at the Abbey. He was a frail man, weighing less than 100 pounds.

One year after coming to Cullman, he suffered a tragic accident while a large bell was being hoisted into the Abbey tower. His back was permanently wrenched out of shape and he suffered almost constant pain. Yet, he spent the rest of his life performing many menial tasks that were necessary to maintain the Abbey, such as serving in the kitchen and in the furnace room of the power plant.

All of his spare time was spent working at his hobby, in a four-acre former rock quarry, building miniature cities and buildings of religious significance.

As the years passed, word of his beautiful creations got around and soon visitors began to arrive to view the beauty of his toil and, at the time of his death, it is estimated over 65,000 visitors per year came from all over the world to enjoy the little monk's works of art.

As more and more people became aware of Bro. Joseph's hobby and became interested, different materials were sent from many foreign countries as well as from different states in this country. Tile was donated by a Birmingham concern, beads, shells, rocks and cement also were given by many interested people.

He designed his models from newspaper photos and pictures on penny postcards. Architects and artists could hardly believe this; nevertheless, it was true.

Bro. Joseph, a modest man, took little or no credit for his work and sometimes, while working in the gardens in overalls and being asked who was responsible for all that beauty, simply said, "This was built by one of the Abbey monks in his spare time," but would fail to say he was that monk.

In 1972, Alleen and I and Leon and Sandy Fuhrmann, while visiting some of Aileen's relatives in Cullman and Birmingham, spent a few hours in this place enjoying the "Ave Maria Grotto" as it is called.

The miniature buildings are beautifully surrounded by many shrubs and flowers and are very impressive. We thoroughly enjoyed our time there and would recommend a visit to it by anyone who might be interested in seeing over 30 years of Bro. Joseph's work.

Carbon monoxide poses unseen, odorless threat Stahl said persons exposed to the gas often do not recognize these symptoms as carbon monoxide poisoning and fall asleep not realizing the danger of death to themselves or their family members. Persons who notice some of these symptoms and are near or using a fuel-burning appliance or equipment should immediately go outside to get fresh air, he advised. All fuel-burning appliances should be checked by a qualified person for properly adjusted flames and proper ventilation in the area of each appliance, he added. People at high risk of carbon monoxide poisoning are infants, pregnant women, the elderly and persons with a history of chronic heart or lung problems. Even with emergency treatment of serious poisonings, several hours or days may be required for a victim to regain normal oxygen levels in the blood.

Getting Rid of Dry Winter Skin
It's one of the facts of winter life: dry, scaly, itchy skin that doesn't seem to get better, no matter how much moisturizer you use. The solution to the problem isn't more moisturizer, it's using the right one properly solution to the problem isn't more moisturizer, it's using all properly.

"Moisturizers don't work right if you just slather them on," says Dr. Amit Pandya, assistant professor of dermatology at The University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas. "For best results, use them right after a shower while the skin is still moist."

To prevent dry winter skin, Pandya recommends shorter showers with lukewarm water and a pH-neutral soap as well as a moisturizer. Pat your skin dry, then put on the moisturizer. And the thicker the moisturizer, the better, Pandya says. If you experience a lot of itching or a rash, or if the skin on your hands and feet cracks, splits or becomes infected due to

According to health officials, there is more than fire where there is smoke. There also is carbon monoxide, an odorless, invisible and poisonous - gas.

Wherever there are coals or flames without ample ventilation, the gas can reach levels lethal to humans.

Mnerever there are class of sames without ample ventilation, the gas can reach levels lethal to humans.

Every year, dozens of Texans die from carbon monoxide poisoning, and many more become ill. The Texas Department of Health's (TDII) Vital Statistics Bureau recorded 51 such deaths in 1993.

Dr. David Smith, Commissioner of Health, said, "It's tragic that the number of such poisonings rises in periods of extreme cold, when some people sacrifice fresh air for warmth. We urge all Texans to beware of this danger."

Quade Stahl, in the TDH Occupational Health program, explained that carbon monoxide is a by-product of incomplete combustion. "A flickering or low-burning yellow flame gives off much more of the gas than a hot blue flame," he said. Vehicle exhausts, unvented or faulty gas and kerosene appliances, smoldering or poorly vented fireplaces and slow-burning fuels, such as charcoal, release large amounts of carbon monoxide into the air. Outdoors, the gas mixes with the air and is diluted to a safe level; but indoors, without good ventilation, it can reach poisonous concentrations.

Stahl said that persons at home often are in greater danger of carbon monoxide poisoning than those in large work spaces, since small, insulated quarters trap and concentrate the gas. A major source of the gas is from burners of gas appliances that are improperly adjusted or poorly vented, he added.

To save energy costs, newer homes are sealed tighter than older homes and may pose greater risks, Stahl warned.

adjusted or poorly vented, he added.

To save energy costs, newer homes are sealed tighter than older homes and may pose greater risks, Stahl warned.

"Many people have had the early effects of carbon monoxide poisoning without knowing the cause. Anyone who has awakened with a headache or dizziness after sleeping in a closed room with an unvented heater may have had a mild case of carbon monoxide poisoning, he said. Chemically, carbon monoxide replaces the oxygen in the bloodstream. Lack of oxygen causes headache, dizziness, weakness, sleepiness, nausea and vomiting, which can progress to coma, convulsions and death.

Sanders Jewelry seeks unusual "love stories"

Some helpful hints for visiting the sick

So Aunt Madge had her gallbladder removed, and you're off to the hospital bringing tidings of comfort and joy. Along for the ride are Auntie's favorite goodies-a two-pound box of candy, fragrant yellow roses to liven her room, your precious 4-year-old with the runny nose, and two hours worth of gossip from Cousin Sally's birthday bash.

Before turning the corner, put on the brakes and heed some sage advice from Lynda Collins, manager of Social Services at The Methodist Hospital in Houston.

"Some patients are too sick to visit with anyone or just don't feel up to it, and they may not tell you so," says Collins, "so you need to be sensitive to the patient's needs." On the other hand, some patients may need visitors to keep them going, Collins adds.

Hospitals aren't home, and people are there to recuperate from an injury or illness and receive special attention from nurses and doctors.

"Always call ahead and check to see if the patient is up to seeing a visitor," says Collins. "If you don't, you may be imposing on someone who really doesn't feel well."

"Food or flowers may not be appropriate for some patients," says Collins. "Some patients are on a restricted diet and can't have sweets. Some have weakened immune systems, so they're not allowed to have plants or flowers."

Cedar fever attacks part of Texas winter

According to allergy specialists, Texas is not unique in its number of natural irritants for allergy sufferers. However, the fact that people in other states suffer from itch eyes, runny noses, sneezing, headaches, general fatigue and other symptoms hardly improves an allergic Texan's outlook.

For many Texans

For many Texans, one of the most miserable seasons of the year has arrived with the first onset of cold weather. At about the time of the first frost, "cedar fever" will descend with the wind-blown pollen that course it.

the first frost, croun terror descend with the wind-blown pollen that causes it.

Cedar fever is an allergic reaction to pollen of the male mountain cedar. The mountain cedar, which is actually two species of juniper, is indigenous statewide, but is especially concentrated in Central Texas. In a typical year, these wild shrubs release pollen from mid-November to mid-March.

Dennis Perrotta, chief of the Texas Department of Health (TDH) Bureau of Epidemiology, said that cedar fever is second only to ragweed allergy in the number of Texans it affects. "The severity of cedar allergy may be greater in individuals than is ragweed allergy," he said. "Even people able to resist other allergies may suffer from cedar fever. Also, the severity of their reactions may vary from year to year."

For people with numerous allergies, cedar fever may compound earlier reactions to ragweed and fall elm pollen in November, and be further aggravated by oak, elm, pecan and other pollens in March. In addition, humidity at any time can increase the number of mold spores - another allergen - in the air.

"People in the midst of a pollen allergy attack may wonder about its seriousness. If there is any consolation for them, it is that while reactions are uncomfortable, they are temporary. Relatively mild cases may be controlled with over-the-counter antihistamines," Perrotta added, however, that anyone with severe or persistent Perrotta added, however, that anyone with severe or persistent symptoms should consult a physician. He said that prolonged irritation of the sinuses or throat can predispose a person to infections, or may be signs of another illness. Also, anyone with a history of recurrent respiratory disease may need to seek treatment by an allergy specialist.

USDA crop insurance required, deadline near

by Tim O. Gilbert,
County Executive Director
If you intend to participate in the wheat or feed grain programs, Conservation Reserve Program or Farmers Home Administration loan programs, you will be required to have crop insurance on the following crops: wheat, oats, barley, com, grain sorghum and soybeans.
The insurance costs nothing;
however, there is an administrative fee of $50 per crop per county not to exceed $200 per producer per county, with a maximum of $600 per producer for all counties. Each producer on the farm will be required to have insurance on his share of the crop. This means that landlords earning a share will have to sign an application and pay the fee. Example: If you have 1000 acres of wheat planted on 10 farms in Cooke County, the fee is $50.
Minimal level of coverage offered which will qualify for USDA Programs is 50% of approved yield and 60% of expected market price. There seems to be some inequities on yields and on land owned and cash rented at this time. We hope that in time this will be worked out. I strongly urge you to start keeping accurate production records of all your crops.

We will handle the crop insurance signup by appointment. Please call to make an appointment. Give this signup your immediate attention, especially if you have hard-to-get-hold-of or out-of-town landlords. All signatures on applications and all administrative fees must be in this office by the following deadlines:

The search is under way for the rural hero for 1994, according to Ben Bullard, president of the Texas Farm & Ranch Safety Council, which presents the annual rural heroism award.

The 1994 recipient will be announced March 21, 1995, at the 56th annual Texas/Southwestern Safety Conference and Exposition to be held at the Austin Convention Center in Austin.

Deadline for submitting 1994 entries will be Feb. 17, 1995, Bullard said. Send all nominations to the Texas Farm & Ranch Safety Council, Box 2689, Waco, Texas 76702-2689.

To qualify for the honor, a candidate must have performed an heroic act of human-lifesaving within Texas during 1994. Preferably, it should be related to farming and ranching, Bullard said. The 1993 winners were James Mashburn and Donnie Thompson.

Because of low prices for fed cattle, feeders lost large amounts of money from about September 1993 through the fall of 1994, Brink said.

Those losses caused low prices for feeder cattle, which cut the incomes of cow/calf producers and, by the end of 1994, 30 to 40 percent of cow/calf producers will be losing Challenging times are ahead for the cattle industry the next few years, with the most serious problems to be faced by cow/calf producers, says Cattle-Fax's Tom Brink, according to Knight-Ridder Financial News.

Speaking recently at the Kansas Livestock Association's convention, Brink said cattle feeders will lose an estimated $45-50 per head this year for an equity loss of about $1.2 billion - one of the worst years in the business.

Little change noted in average retail beef price

Average retail beef prices showed little change during the past month, the National Cattlemen's Association said today. Reporting on its monthly 19-city survey of super markets, NCA noted that the average price of six cuts of beef on Dec. 3 was $3.08 noted that the average price of six cuts of beef on Dec. 3 was $3.08 per pound, compared to $3.09 on Nov. 10. Prices continued to average below year earlier levels, and prices again were down from levels prevailing earlier this year. Total production of beef and other meats has remained large. The large meat supply has kept cattle and wholesale beef prices from rising very much, if at all. Retailers have continued their extensive advertising of beef at special prices, and the result has been average retail prices that are favorable for consumers.

The six-cut average on Dec. 8 was up from a month earlier in nine cities, down in eight and unchanged

Average prices in the monthly survey (second Thursday of each month) vary from month to month and among cities partly because of variations in merchandising approaches and in the amount of price featuring at the time of the survey. Seasonal supply and demand trends also are significant. Differences in wage, transportation and other costs are among other reasons for the variations in prices among cities.

SELECTION OF A GRASS VARIETY

Some considerations in establish-adapted to Hybred Bermudagrasses that have a strong rhizome development.

Climatic factors are very important in grass selection also. We have many Bluestem varieties and Bermuda varieties on the market. However, some of these varieties will not stand the extreme cold tolerance that we have in our North Texas winters so, varietal selection is very important.

Another consideration is the use of the grass. Some people tend to graze close and heavy. In this instance your Bermudas can probably stand a little more pressure than the bunch type Bluestem or Kleingrasses. The Bermudas also produce a good turf that can be grazed close for long periods of time.

One other consideration is your particular management system. In this case, some grasses perform well under adequate fertilization but will not produce when fertilization but will not produce when fertilization but will not produce when fertilization but will die out as in the case of Indiangrass or Johnsongrass. Your future grass management is a key consideration in selecting a grass variety.

Many times we fail to get a good trend of grass we have to poorly not a grass warety.

A&M System and TDA forge unique partnership

Perry said his agency has enjoyed a long-standing successful relationship with the System, the Extension Service and Experiment Station.

"We've enjoyed good working relationships with the System and its representative entities in the past, but agriculture and rural Texas are at an important crossroads," Perry said "Having an official liaison between us will allow all aspects of agriculture, whether it be research, marketing or regulation, to be fully integrated and cooperative."

"I applaud Dr. Thompson and the A&M System for recognizing the importance of agriculture and rural Texas as we move toward a new era in this state," Perry said.

Katie Dickie, a four-year TDA employee, will staff the joint project. Dickie will work closely with Thompson and Dr. Ed Hiler, Vice Chancellor for Agriculture, and Life Sciences and Dean of Texas A&M's School of Agriculture, on ag programs and initiatives.

The A&M System oversees the Texas Forest Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Feed and Fertilizer Control Service, and Texas Animal Damage Control Service, in addition to the agricultural programs at each of the System schools.

Helping You Is What We Do Best. John Bartush, Agent 052 1100 E. Division est Center Muenster, Texas

Dr. Barry B. Thompson, Texas A&M University System Chancellor, and Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry have outlined a partnership to enhance the synergy between the A&M System and the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The first-of-its-kind arrangement will encourage cooperation and communication between the A&M System and TDA, which together, are responsible for controlling and overseeing all marketing, economic, education and outreach aspects of the state's agriculture industry, as well as most of its regulatory and research initiatives.

"Texas A&M and its sister schools have a long and outstanding tradition in agriculture and helping Texans. With possible changes in government support for agriculture, it is imperative that the A&M System work closely with all state agencies with the intent to develop our agricultural resources," Thompson said "There is a great need for a strong link between the System and the Texas Department of Agriculture and no better time to forge that link than now."

Making Banking Better For You!

First National Bank

The stability of your business could very well be determined by the kind of rela-tionship you have with a bank. That's quite an ambitious statement for a bank to make, but it happens to be the truth.

With today's economic conditions it is essential for a business to take advantage of every opportunity to put its cash flow to work. Set-asides must be developed for those times when sales slump. A good banking relationship is as important to the success of a business as it is to have customers walking in the front doze.
