Chamber of Commerce welcomes Ralph Hall

The Muenster Chamber of Commerce welcomed United States Congressman Ralph Hall as their guest speaker at Saturday's annual banquet. Master of Ceremonies John Pagel opened the program and introduced Steve Cooper, who invoked the Lord's presence and gave thanks for the many blessings which the community and the Chamber enjoy.

An enjoyable dinner was served by Rohmer's Catering, followed by the official welcome by Muenster Mayor Bill Miller.

Chamber of Commerce President Stan Endres, who will again lead the organization in 1995, spoke briefly about business highlights of the year. Endres presented plaques in appreciation to retiring directors Gary Fisher, Jack Flusche and Bob Hermes.

Marlene Hess introduced the Honorable Ralph Hall, who represents this district in the U.S. Congress. He described Muenster as a unique city that he and his wife, Mary Ellen, recognized when they first campaigned here in 1960. He applauded the Chamber of Commerce for being a rallying point for the schools, churches, businesses, hospital and the entire community.

Hall told some humorous stories about conditions and activities in Washington, D.C. these days. He finished with a brief status report of current priorities in the capitol and drew quick applause when he spoke of the stricter measures advocated for illegal aliens, "American people need help before illegal aliens get it."

The evening closed with final remarks by John Pagel. Banquet activities were organized by Chamber Treasurer Jewel Otto.

Fischer's Market announces expansion

Last August John and Butch Fisher, owners of Fischer's Meat Market & Grocery in Muenster, bought The Ranch a property just north of their business with thoughts of expanding Fischer's. Jerry Wimmer and Dwayne Pagel had operated The Ranch as a night club for 19 years. Early last summer Adam Arendt remodeled The Ranch and operated it until its closing in December. This allowed Arendt to recoup some of his investment.

Also purchased by Fischer's was the Joe Lehnertz property which includes three vacant lots south of the Lehnertz house. A cement parking lot measuring 75 by 150 feet is planned for that area.

The former Ranch building is now being reconstructed to include doubling the size of the grocery and processing areas. New smoke houses, sausage kitchen, processing equipment freezer and cooler space will be added to the processing department. In the grocery area more dairy, produce, frozen foods and shelving will be added.

"We intend to save the west wall because of the historical significance," said Butch Fisher. The building's keystone is dated 1927. It served as a hotel in its early days. Other businesses operated there included a coffee house and barber shops.

The Fishers also hope to preserve the north wall. Plans are to remove the roof and interior walls and to enclose the vacant area behind the building. Fischer's present architectural design following a Bavarian theme will continue into the new structure.

The design of the addition includes a storage room on the northeast part of the building. Most of the large delivery trucks can be unloaded there with a fork lift. This will take care of the problem of trucks having to park on Second Street to unload. John said he didn't know who would be the happiest -- the people of Muenster, the employees or himself. This has been a real concern for a long time. "Muenster was designed in 1889 for horse and buggies, not for 18-wheelers," added John. "Most all of the local people have been very understanding, knowing that deliveries are made only in large trucks today."

John said that he was asked why at his age would the business make such a major investment. "At age 62 this was a thought -- not to go into major debt and to operate with the present facilities for the next few years," he said. "But what would that do for the employees? Some have over 20 years and want to remain here and continue their career. And what about the younger ones who don't want to leave town, but want to stay here and raise their families in a small town? And what would this do to Muenster? Butch believes that the town or a business is either growing or dying."

Fischer's payroll is well over a half million dollars at present, employing 27 full-time and 17 part-time employees. With expansion they should be able to employ even more people.

"We are going forward," said Butch. "We are bullish on Muenster and want to show it by investing and hopefully improving it."

Below is an architect's interpretation of the outside appearance of Fischer's Meat and Grocery after remodeling is completed.

Mary Bayer honored at Diocesan Banquet

The annual Catholic Education Banquet was held in Fort Worth on Saturday, Jan. 28. Mary Bayer was presented with a plaque from Bishop Joseph Delaney in recognition of her contribution to Sacred Heart School and to Catholic education.

Mary was selected as the Sacred Heart honoree of the year by the faculty. Mary represents the spirit of Sacred Heart School and is the "glue" that holds it together. As secretary, Mary spends long hours handling a multitude of details, taking care of student "ouches" and serving as the effective communications link for the entire school family.

Mary is a Sacred Heart alumna and her four children also graduated from Sacred Heart School. She serves the parish in a variety of roles from cleaning the church to serving as Eucharistic minister. Her warm smile and willing spirit are examples and inspiration for all of the Sacred Heart School family and earn her the respect and affection of everyone.

MARY BAYER

"The honor bestowed on Mary Saturday by the Bishop is well deserved recognition of her many and important contributions to Sacred Heart School and family," remarked Jack Murdock, Sacred Heart principal.

Judge Hesse sets Feb. 9 date for licenses

by Janet Felderhoff

Two individuals who have recently applied for liquor licenses in Muenster have apparently jostled a hornet's nest. When business owners on Main Street discovered that two new liquor licenses were being applied for and were to be used for businesses on Main Street, they put their heads together and set about a telephone and letter writing campaign.

At least 17 business owners had planned to write the TABC voicing their concerns. "I know of 13 that were definitely mailed," said Peggy Grewing of Crafty Olde German.

As a result a hearing which was scheduled for 1 p.m. on Monday, January 30 in Cooke County Judge Paul Hesse's office was postponed to allow an opportunity for those opposing the licensing an opportunity to attend. The public hearing will now take place on Thursday, Feb. 9 at 9 a.m. A representative of the TABC will be present during the hearing.

Concerns by business owners on or near Main Street included the safety of Muenster's children and youths; litter, especially that of an unhealthy nature; clientele of an unfavorable reputation who might be drawn into town; customers from out of town who would no longer come because they wouldn't feel safe or might be offended by some of the activity produced by those who drank too much.

"Muenster has always been a place where you could send your kids to the store and feel safe about it," remarked John Fisher, co-owner of Fischer's Meat & Grocery on Main Street. "With a bar on both sides of the street that could be a real concern for parents."

Fisher also expressed concern over the reputation that Muenster had acquired from The Ranch and feared that the new businesses might further promote or confirm that less desirable reputation. "If Muenster wants the image of a Christian town then they need to do something about the image, especially on Main Street," John said.

The matter will be discussed during Monday's regular city council meeting. Fisher said that people with an opinion should come and express it or not say anything later on. "This is their chance to make their opinion known," he added. "A town is what people want it to be."

Carol Murphy plans to open Carol's Place at 220 North Main. She is opening a restaurant which will include a bar. "I can see why people are concerned if they think a tavern is coming," remarked Ms. Murphy. "This is definitely not a tavern. I will be cooking in front of the people."

This isn't Carol's first business experience in Cooke County. She opened the Lucky Lady bar in Muenster about six months ago, but sold it within the month. It is now the Cowboy Lounge. For 13 months she owned and operated the Lucky Lady Motel in Gainesville.

"If people had something against me personally, they should have said something six months ago when I went into business in the old Center tavern," noted Carol Murphy. "I want to be an asset to the community. In no way do I want to tear up Muenster. I want to help it. I will become a respected part of the community if they'll let me."

Steven W. Perry of Gainesville bought out Floyd's Bar and was planning to open as Steve's Saloon. He was operating the bar under Floyd Bezner's liquor license until he could acquire his own. Mr. Bezner died Jan. 24. The bar is now closed until Perry can get his own license.

When asked about the new liquor license Perry said, "I appreciate the objectors' opinions on what is going on. I value their concerns, but I feel that they're hollow concerns. They don't know me or my plans for Floyd's. I feel like they are objecting to an outsider opening a possibly thriving business. If I were related to some of them, there possibly wouldn't be as many objections."

Steven Perry said that he has already started to remodel the building. His plans include work on the inside and outside. He said he hopes to achieve a quiet atmosphere that will appeal to those in the 30 to 50 age group.

Many people have objected to teens under 18 being seen in the establishment. Perry said that this indeed had happened at least one evening recently when he had 100 to 150 people in the place and not enough help to keep an eye on everything.

"I have a strict policy not allowing anyone under 18 in," Perry said. "As of 8 p.m. every night I ask everyone under 21 to leave. That's when things pick up and I don't want to worry about keeping an eye on them. In the future I plan to have more help so the problem of minors being present doesn't occur again." It is legal for those between the ages of 18 and 21 to be in bars without their parent or guardian present. They can not legally be served alcohol. Children under 18 can only be in a bar under the supervision of a parent or guardian.

Ms. Murphy also stated that she has a policy that minors not be in her business after 8 p.m. unless accompanied by a parent.

Perry added that he appreciated people voicing their opinions in advance before he remodeled and opened under a new name. "I know what will be accepted and what to do to get along with other businesses in Muenster," he concluded.

Perry hopes to open his business by Feb. 20 if all goes well and Murphy hopes to open as soon as she has her license or as soon as the business is ready.

Civic Outlook

by Mayor Bill Miller
 The Chamber of Commerce held their annual banquet last Saturday evening and it was a most enjoyable event.
 It takes pride in your home town and the utmost respect for its citizens to be effective as an organizational volunteer.
 Muenster citizens can be proud of its Chamber of Commerce and all of the work they accomplish in the spirit of team work.
 By working with the citizens and with other organizations, the chamber has had a successful Germanfest year after year.
 Congressman Ralph Hall appeared and gave a conservative-slanted speech after dinner. After the banquet, the people stood in line to shake his hand for his conservative policies.
 In the near future, there may be another change at City Hall. City Administrator Chris Yosten has written a letter of resignation to the city effective March 1, 1995. He has decided to go to work as a carpenter with his brother.

 Chris has done a great job working for the city and we are grateful for all the time and effort he put forth. As mayor, I did not have to worry about his honesty or the correct decisions being made. He was good in his job and his integrity is appreciated.
 I want Chris to stay on the job and will talk to him about what changes would be necessary to keep him.
 If there is no way to change his mind, what I will look for in the next city administrator is someone who is as honest and as conservative with the tax money as Chris is.

NEW LAW: CONGRESS MUST PRACTICE WHAT IT PREACHES

America's fourth president, James Madison, wrote that "Congress can make no law which will not have its full operation on themselves and their friends, as well as on the great mass of society. This has always been deemed one of the strongest bonds by which human policy can connect the rulers and the people together."
 Despite these words by one of the country's greatest leaders, somewhere along the way Congress began acting as if it was above the law. But the revolution that took place in the November elections apparently reminded lawmakers that the general public is wary of an institution that imposes rules and regulations on Main Street firms and individuals while exempting itself.
 Hopefully, that practice will change now that lawmakers have come to the common-sense conclusion that members of Congress should be covered by the same laws and regulations affecting all other Americans.

Congress recently passed the Congressional Accountability Act and President Clinton signed it into law. For the first time, congressional employees will have the right to sue in federal court over complaints arising from 11 different labor, safety and worker-rights laws, as well as have their cases tried before juries.

This is good news for small-business owners who have been telling Congress for years that many of the laws it passes are anti-business. As far back as 1988, a survey conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, the nation's largest advocacy group for small business, showed that a majority of NFIB members did not want Congress to be exempt from labor laws.

Besides recognizing the arrogance of exempting themselves from the laws they enact, the new law requiring Congress to cover itself may give lawmakers a sense of the collateral damage they inflict when passing sweeping laws to "fix" society's problems.

And while it's doubtful that this law will ever mean that individual members of Congress will fear the threat of fines and penalties imposed after an unannounced inspection by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration or the Environmental Protection Agency, perhaps the symbolic threat of such action will at least give lawmakers a sense of what it must be like to run a small business.

OSHA is a perfect example of an agency that started out with good intentions but has ended up terrorizing small-business owners. While small firms live in fear of being fined or required to make costly changes to comply with the burdensome regulations OSHA slaps on them, Congress was exempt from making similar modifications in the House and Senate office buildings.

Along with OSHA, the other laws that will now be applied to Congress are: the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Civil Rights Act, the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Federal Labor Management Relations Act, the Rehabilitation Act, the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act, the Employee Polygraph Protection Act, the Family and Medical Leave Act, and the Veterans Re-employment Act.

The Congressional Accountability Act is but one of the legislative measures passed under the new leadership's banner of "institutional reforms." But the most significant reform may be the apparent record number of freshman lawmakers who are small-business owners. Let's hope the "real world" experience of these freshmen, along with the symbolic threat of "congressional coverage," will mark the turning point in the efforts to stem the tide of government growth.

Jack Faris is President of the National Federation of Independent Business, representing over 600,000 small-business men and women.

Contact Social Security if you're retiring in 1995

"If you're thinking about retiring in 1995, now is a good time for you to contact Social Security to see which month is best for you to claim benefits," according to David Sandlin, Social Security Asst. Dist. Mgr. for Sherman.

"In some cases, the month you choose for retirement could mean additional benefits for you and your family. Under current rules, many people can receive the most benefits possible with an application that's effective in January. And, depending on your earnings and benefit amount, it may be possible for you to collect Social Security benefits while continuing to work," Mr. Sandlin stated.

For more information about when you should apply for Social Security benefits, or to arrange for an appointment to talk with a Social Security representative, call 1-800-772-1213. The lines are busiest early in the week and early in the month, so it's best to call at other times.

Support the hospital, join the MMH Auxiliary

The Muenster Hospital Auxiliary is currently sponsoring their annual membership drive. Your leadership and support would be a great help to our organization. In the past, we have tried to assist our hospital to become an even better medical facility to care for our families and friends. Your leadership, support and participation are essential to the hospital's success.

The purpose for the Auxiliary is threefold: 1) to promote and advance the welfare of the Muenster Memorial Hospital through service to the hospital and its patients; 2) promote public awareness of the many benefits offered to the community by MMH (we offer informative health and wellness programs throughout the year to the general public and 3) FUNDRAISING.

The Hospital administration is continually striving to keep abreast of today's technology and with the financial assistance of the Auxiliary, their goals can more easily be achieved. Without your support the goals we achieved would not have been possible.

Throughout the Auxiliary's recent fundraising efforts, we were able to donate $40,000 to the hospital to assist purchasing state-of-the-art equipment. A few activities this past year involved Bake Sales, Germanfest Gate, Pool Raffle and Cookbook Sales.

Annual dues are $6.00 per person and letters of membership have been mailed to the community. Persons submitting the annual $6.00 dues fee may participate as an active or inactive member. Some members choose to attend regular monthly meetings, scheduled for the 4th Thursday of the month. Others choose to pay their dues as a show of support for the hospital, yet remain as inactive members. Membership is NOT limited to women. We welcome MEN and COUPLES to join the auxiliary at a mere $6.00 per person annually.

Whether participating as an active or inactive member, your membership is always welcome and appreciated. It's an inexpensive method of showing your support for the local hospital and its staff.

Birmingham, Alabama, with its huge iron and steel mills, has long been referred to as the "Pittsburgh of the South" and one is inclined to believe that the South's iron and steel industry was born there.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. In 1820, a small forge was built on land about 30 miles southwest of Birmingham, where there was a plentiful supply of iron ore, limestone and sandstone, all needed for the production of iron and construction of furnaces.

In 1835, the property was obtained by a man, Minian Tannehill, whose name stuck to the place, later and is still known as Tannehill Furnaces. Iron was a side line to Tannehill whose main interest was the growing of cotton.

In 1855, a Pennsylvania ironmaster, Moses Stroup, using blocks of sandstone, each weighing around 300 pounds, built a large furnace in the form of a pyramid, to a height of over 30 feet.

After the outbreak of the Civil War, the Confederacy spent $50,000, constructing a double furnace that, along with the original, turned out some 20 tons of pig iron daily, which was used to make cannon balls, gun barrels, cannon and other items used in the waging of war.

It was quite an operation and most of the manpower was supplied by some 500 slaves.

The plant stayed in operation until the final months of the war in 1865, when Union soldiers burned and destroyed everything but the furnaces themselves.

In 1952, the University of Alabama received the land for the purpose of historic preservation and, in 1969, it was named Tannehill Historic State Park, and each year is host to many thousands of visitors who came there to enjoy the park and to see how life was lived in Alabama in the 1800s.

The state has moved in a number of buildings of historic significance and rebuilt the old water-powered gristmill and cotton gin.

The gristmill is in daily operation and turns out very good quality corn meal, most of which is purchased by the many visitors.

In Tannehill Historical State Park, one can spend pleasant hours enjoying the scenery, a very good restaurant, see an old church, a school house such as was used then and can learn a bit of history along the way, without really trying.

Tannehill is now listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

Pesticide applicators alerted to requirements

The Texas Department of Agriculture recently outlined requirements for applicators using restricted and limited pesticides. Applicators need to be aware that:

- The temporary certified applicators' category has been eliminated. To keep buying and using restricted and limited pesticides, you must now obtain a private applicator license.
- Commercial and noncommercial licenses will expire Feb. 28. Renewal requires five hours of continuing education units (CEUs) each calendar year. Commercial applicators must have a current insurance certificate. If you want to add a new application category to your license, contact the Texas Agricultural Extension Service's Agricultural Chemicals Office, 409/845-3849.

- Licensed private applicators must obtain 15 hours of CEUs within five years of the date a license was issued. Requirements can be met within a year after expiration, but a late fee will be assessed.
- Applicators certified before Jan. 10, 1989, have until Dec. 31, 1995, to renew certificates. They must obtain 15 CEUs or take a TAES training course, pass a TDA test and purchase a license.

Livestock and Farm Show set for March 9-10

The 1995 Cooke County Junior Livestock Show has been announced for March 9 and 10 and the Livestock Sale March 11. During these three days, Cooke County 4-H and FFA members will be showing sheep, beef cattle, dairy goats, meat goats, dairy cattle, swine, poultry and rabbits in market and breeding class.

Each youth will receive a ribbon for showing with trophies going to class, breed and showmanship winners. This year, in each species, the grand and reserve champions will receive an engraved belt buckle.

Also, this year a community-public relations committee was formed, with chairman Herkie Biffle, to coordinate a farm show in conjunction with the Livestock Show. Farming implements, trucks, cellular phones, hay trailers, feed samples, 4-wheelers, animal health sales and antique tractors are some displays at the show.

The public is welcome to view all displays and support the youth in their livestock projects.

THE 99th ANNUAL FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK SHOW and Rodeo continues in full swing this week. The two-day rodeos are packed with fun and exciting cowboy (and girl) action. Janie Hartman Photo

County Agent's Report

Pasture and Cropland Soil Sampling Week Feb. 6-10

Fertilizer costs can represent over one-half of the early pre-harvest cost of some pasture and hay crops. In many crops, this cost can be as high as one-third of the total economic input. Many producers tend to decrease or eliminate fertilizer in tight economic times, but elimination of fertilizer can be a very expensive decision.

A special Soil Testing Initiative will be conducted in Cooke County for pasture and crop producers from Feb. 6 until Feb. 10. Dr. Larry Unruh, Extension Soils Chemist, is offering county producers a special soil analysis service during this week long period. Producers must take their soil samples and deliver them to the County Extension Office or one of the cooperating fertilizer dealers in Cooke County by Feb. 10 at 5 p.m. Fee for this service will include $5 for the routine analysis (pH, NO₃-, P, K, Ca, Mg, Na, S, & Salinity), or the routine analysis plus micronutrients (Zn, Fe, Cu, Mn) for $7. This is a 50 percent savings to those producers who participate during the week long soil fertility incentive.

Those fertilizer dealers participating include Tony's Seed and Fertilizer at Gainesville, Tony's Seed and Fertilizer at Muenster, Red River Farm Co-Op at Gainesville, W.B. Hudspeth, Inc. at Era, and Sicking Brothers Fertilizer at Myra.

Producers can pick up a soil sample information form and soil sample sacks at any of the fertilizer dealer locations or the County Extension Office. Your payment for the sample must be in check form and must accompany the soil sample. Checks should be made out to Soil Testing. Do not send cash.

Producers should take a single composite sample from each uniform area of 10 to 40 acres in a field. One sample can represent up to 40 acres. A procedure for taking soil samples is listed on the soil sample information form.

With the increased need for proper fertility along with the cost of fertilization, producers need to regularly soil test their pastures and fields. Information gained from soil testing will help both producers and fertilizer dealers in better meeting your pasture and field crop needs.

When taking soil samples, observe these simple precautions.

- 1) Avoid sampling spots in the field such as small gullies, slight field depressions, terrace waterways and unusual spots.
- 2) When sampling fertilized fields, avoid sampling directly in fertilized band.
- 3) Do not use old vegetable cans, tobacco cans, match boxes, etc. to submit samples.
- 4) Do not use heat to dry samples.
- 5) Be sure to keep a record for yourself as to the area represented by each sample.
- 6) Be sure sample numbers on the boxes correspond with sample numbers on the information sheet.

Ag Brief

US net farm income is forecast at $33 to $43 billion in 1995, down from an expected $45 billion in 1994 and potentially the lowest since the late 1980s, says USDA. The income drop is expected to hit livestock producers the hardest because of abundant supplies of red meat. - Knight-Ridder Financial News.

Bermudagrass management in pastures

by Craig Rosenbaum, County Extension Agent

Bermudagrass is one of the most important warm season grasses grown in the United States and has proved to be one of the most hardy pasture grasses for Cooke County. Bermudagrass was first introduced into the U.S. in the mid 1750's. However, it wasn't until the release of Coastal Bermuda in 1943 by Dr. Glenn Burton at Tifton, Georgia, that this grass became a widely grown pasture species. According to Dr. Burton, properly managed the hybrid Bermudagrasses are more dependable, tolerate grazing better, and produce more grazing and hay per acre at a lower cost than any forage he has known. They contain more dry matter when cut (25-30 percent), cure faster than other forages and do not lose their leaves as legumes might when raked to cure rained on hay. Dr. Burton also has shown the hybrid Bermudagrasses are more drought tolerant and can produce more grazing and hay in dry periods than other adapted forages.

moisten the seedbed before planting. Use fresh sprigs. Keep sprigs moist and cool after digging and plant them as soon as possible. Exposure of sprigs to sun and wind after digging can reduce livability. Planting should be done when moisture is good in the spring and best done with a commercial Bermudagrass sprigger. Fertilize according to soil test. Remember, the first year should be allowed for good establishment and therefore, grazing should be done only on a short duration basis.

We have established some Bermudagrass Variety Trials in the county on the Fuhrmann Brothers Farm north of Lindsay. One of the purposes of this establishment was to look at various Bermuda cultivars to see how they would tolerate the cold north Texas winters. This winter has been very mild and we will probably need to look at these varieties for three years or so to test their cold tolerance.

When establishing Bermudas several considerations should be made. Strive for a smooth, firm yet granular weed-free seedbed. This means plowing early enough to allow time for rains to settle and
