School class bells close vacation time

Sacred Heart starts 109th year MISD opens in old building

by Janet Felderhoff
 "The Sacred Heart School family is looking forward to an exciting new school year of challenge and opportunity built upon the school's 109 year history of tradition and excellence," remarked Principal Jack Murdock. "We continue to have as our paramount goal the spiritual development of our children and spreading the Good News of Jesus."
 When parents, students, and staff gather on Monday, August 16 at 8 a.m. for the opening Mass, there will be several

 A new school year begins for Muenster ISD on Monday, August 16. Students and faculty of Muenster ISD will not be able to begin the 1999-2000 school year in the new building as once hoped. Predictions are that it will be completed in time for a move sometime in September. Muenster High Principal James Hopper remarked that since they aren't beginning the year in the new building that they would take their time about the move to be sure everything was ready.

Some changes are already in place for the elementary students. Pre-kindergarten classes for four year old students will be held on the Muenster campus this year. Previously classes were held at the Tender Loving Care Day Care Center. Equipment has been moved and the new classroom prepared by teacher Jill Reiter. Storage space was added to the room for the Pre-kindergarten children. This classroom opens to a fenced playground which contains age-appropriate equipment.

Dana Coleman was hired as the resource teacher. She graduated from the University of Dallas with a Bachelor of Arts degree. She is an English Major with Special Education certification. Coleman's teaching experience includes two years in Mesquite and two years in Garland.

For the first time Muenster will be offering a Life Skills class. Kim Cordell joins the staff to teach this class. She earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from Austin College with a double major in Business Administration and Economics. She also carries a community in a number of ways in past years. Mrs. Anderle has served as a member of the Muenster ISD board of directors.

Muenster native Amy Binder has been hired to teach math and computer courses in the middle and high schools. She graduated with honors from Texas Woman's University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Mathematics and a minor in Computer Science. Her professional training was done at Sanger Middle School and Denton High School. Listed among Mrs. Binder's hobbies are arts, crafts, gardening, and exercising.

Muenster seeks renewal of county support for library

by Janet Felderhoff
 Looking to a future filled with the added expenses created by a new library building, Muenster Mayor Henry Weinzapfel attended the August 9 meeting of Cooke County Commissioners Court to ask for their financial support. He noted that in the early '90s the County was assisting the Muenster Library with yearly support of about $6,000 which was matched by the City of Muenster. "Our library is very much a part of Cooke County," said the Mayor.

Weinzapfel noted that Muenster will soon begin building a half a million dollar library. It is being financed with contributions from friends of the library. "Along with the new library in a building like this we'll have more operating and maintenance costs to be responsible for than we have in the past," said Weinzapfel. He also pointed out that many community libraries in surrounding counties receive some support from their counties.

"Our goal, of course, is to provide the best possible service to the greatest number of people in the community and surrounding area," remarked Muenster Librarian Kay Broyles. "Currently two-thirds of our members - the people who have library cards at our library - are not Muenster tax payers. They live in the surrounding areas. They live in Rosston, Era, Myra, Forestburg. They're coming from all around. We even have Lindsay and Gainesville people."

Mrs. Broyles provided a list of counties around Cooke County that are providing funds to their community libraries. There are currently 185 city libraries in the state of Texas that are being funded by counties. City Manager Steve Broyles said that the two thirds who weren't city tax payers using the library amounted to about 800 people from around the county. Mrs. Broyles added that the Muenster residents were also Cooke County residents.

Cooke County Auditor Gloria Parrish gave some history from the time when the county contributed to the Muenster Library. The actual amount was $4,000 a year, she said. The contributions originally began when the county received revenue sharing money from the government. Yearly financial contributions continued from then until four or five years ago when then County Attorney Auggie Botto informed Commissioners Court that they weren't supposed to be using county funds in that way.

Mayor Weinzapfel asked the county to consider contributing $6,000 a year. He said that the City of Muenster contributes $12,000 and has budgeted $14,000 for next year.

Cooke County Judge Bill Harris told the Muenster Library delegation that the Court was currently dealing with the budget for the next fiscal year and if it could be done within the budget they would donate the funds. The matter was tabled until the budget planning was finished.

On Tuesday, the Preliminary Budget discussions were concluded. Commissioners voted to support the Muenster Public Library with an annual contribution of $4,000 as it had in the early '90s. This vote was unanimous.

Monday, Aug. 23 is the date selected for the public hearing on the County's proposed budget and proposed tax rate. It will take place following the County Commissioners regular meeting.

A new state law which takes effect Sept. 1 states that when mental patients are transferred they must be transferred by either a sheriff's deputy or a constable and that person must be a certified mental health officer. It also states that if the patient is a female, a female must accompany her on the transfer if the transporting officer is a male. About half of the patients transferred are females.

If an approved officer is not available to transport the patients, then an approved facility could be hired to do the transporting, said Judge Harris. Sheriff Mike Compton noted that there was not an officer on his staff who was certified by MHMR. "The mental health officer is a real good idea because he is trained more towards the patient's

Things continue to rise around Muenster as construction progresses at the Muenster State Bank. The over 100 degree temperatures drag on, with Wednesday being day 18, with little relief in sight. Conditions aren't expected to duplicate the heat wave of '98 which had 42 consecutive 100 degree days. Photo by Janie Hartman

Protective lenses prevent eye injury

The average 12 year old can throw a baseball 70 miles an hour. A racquetball can travel up to 140 miles an hour. Ordinary eye glasses - prescription or not - simply do not provide adequate protection against potential eye injuries.

An eye injury cannot only take you out of play, it can have a severe impact on your life. People of all ages are encouraged to wear safety equipment when playing certain sports to prevent eye injuries.

Ophthalmologists recommend wearing polycarbonate lenses with side shields, which are available in most sports stores.

Last year there were 100,000 sports related eye injuries according to the American Academy of Ophthalmology. Ninety percent of those injuries could have been prevented if the player had worn eye protection.

Enjoy Good Health MEDICINE

Participation in athletics is both an enjoyable pastime and a part of keeping physically and mentally fit. Parents and coaches should be reminded that success is measured not necessarily just by winning but by the enjoyment and the amount of effort put forth. The role of the coach should be to instruct and supervise and not to give medical treatment or advice. Athletes should not be encouraged to play with pain.

Prevention of Injuries

The most effective means of minimizing the complications of sports injuries is by prevention, after receiving a complete physical examination, the frequency and severity of many injuries may then be lessened by proper conditioning and preparation.

Conditioning

Proper conditioning means the development of strength, endurance, cardiovascular fitness, power, and flexibility. It also includes the development of proper body mechanics, form, and agility. Lower extremity injuries can generally be lessened by strengthening exercises for individuals with loose joints to protect against ligament damage and stretching exercises for individuals with tight joints to avoid muscular strains. Staying in shape during the off-season may involve running stairs and jogging.

Warming Up

Beginning any activity gradually will reduce the incidence of injury, especially injury to the muscle-tendon unit. Stretching is especially important to avoid strain. Flexibility is often diminished after a long period of inactivity, and stretching is particularly important when resuming a sport. Tissue stretches better when warm. Therefore stretching is best performed following slow jogging or walking for 5 minutes.

Cooling Off

Proper habits after rigorous exercise permit muscles to cool off adequately and to dissipate heat. After running, it is usually advised not to simply stand still or lie supine but to walk for 5 to 10 minutes and then rest in a sitting position.

Sports injuries that occur in school can have life long implications and incur many financial costs. Many can be avoided with proper prevention techniques and close supervision.
