Code of Conduct and Student-Parent Handbooks top Muenster ISD business

By Janie Hartman
With the fast approaching 2005-06 school year just a few weeks away, the Muenster ISD Board members viewed and discussed additions and changes to the Student Code of Conduct and the Student-Parent Handbook.

Curtis Eldridge, high school principal, presented the policies to the Board, noting that some changes are due to new state and federal laws. "The State has addressed bullying, harassment, and discipline, so the school has to do something about complaints. We are going with the core of it (Code of Conduct) so we can distribute it the first day of school."

Prohibited items include fireworks, razors, box cutters, chains, any type of gun (including look-alike weapons), pocket knives, mace or pepper spray, pornographic materials, tobacco, matches or a lighter, or laser pointer. Displaying, turning on, or using a cellular telephone on school property during the school day is also prohibited.

General conduct violations include: using profanity or making obscene gestures, fighting, engaging in bullying, harassment, and making a hit list, leaving school grounds without permission, indecent exposure, damaging property, and stealing.

Dress code rulings include: no trench coats, sunglasses, sagging pants, camouflage or military type gear, low cut tops, or short skirts or blouses that expose the midriff when the student's arms are raised. Also, no tight fit clothing, tank tops with straps less than three inches wide, clothing that reveals undergarments, earrings on boys, and no visible tattoos. Pants that are excessively frayed, drag the floor, or are excessively baggy are not allowed. Bell bottoms must not cover the shoes.

Hair codes will be enforced. "If unclean or ungroomed, we can do something," Eldridge warned. Changes are still being made to the rulebooks, which include prohibiting outside food at lunchtime, make-up work in classrooms, and graduation credits. For a full report, parents and students need to read and study the Handbook and Code of Conduct.

Written and verbal reports given included:
• Technology - "We're caught up computer-wise," noted Jeff Presnall, technology director. "Now every teacher has a multi media projector. The teachers enjoy them and the kids love them. They should improve the teaching techniques." Every MISD teacher will have at least two computers and a projector in each of their classrooms, along with access to three computer labs with a total of 60 student workstations.

"The District is down to less than 30 'old' computers," Presnall added. "Ninety percent of the oldest computers are on their 4th year." The report also included that the District's new anti-virus and anti-spam software is underway. Deep Freeze, a new updated protection and security software, is being installed in the labs. Also, laptop computers were purchased for the vocational and science departments, with color laser printers installed in both principals' offices.

• Athletic - The report noted that football and cross country workouts will begin Monday, Aug. 1. Coaches Monte Endres, Brad Budish, and Quentin Berend attended the San Angelo Football Clinic.

Coach Endres was present to report to the Board the cost of renting an Ice-Box from Bowie Ice ($68 to set up and $27 a month), and the price of bagged ice, at 70¢ a bag. The Board suggested buying a chest freezer and purchase the delivered ice. The discussion was tabled for more research.

• Elementary Principal - Two dates for upcoming events were announced. They are Orientation for Grades 3-6 on Saturday, Aug. 6, starting at 9 a.m. in the auditorium, and Howdy Night on Monday, Aug. 8 for Pre-K - 2nd grade at 6 p.m. in the auditorium. Current enrollment dropped slightly due to two families leaving Muenster, and the elementary is adding an art teacher, Paulette Manley.

• Junior High/High School Principal - In preparation for the 2005-06 school year, student class schedules are being integrated into the master schedule and teacher rosters are being developed. Currently there are 263 students enrolled, 82 in junior high and 181 in high school. Mr. Eldridge acknowledged that the Hornet Band Flag Core attended a Flag Camp at Howard Payne University and was awarded the Outstanding School Flag Line Award. Also, that a group of students attended the Area Five FFA retreat at Lake Texoma and the State FFA Convention in Lubbock.

Eldridge, after attending a principal's conference, noted possible fundraiser policy changes, including keeping a better record of money.

Manley submitted to the Board a report for the Equity Center, which included an editorial from the Fort Worth Star Telegram, "The best bill at this time" and a summary of information regarding recent legislation pertaining to Texas public education, and a 20 page breakdown of House bills that passed. Highlights included: lowering the property tax to $1.23 this year and $1.12 next year; increasing sales tax from $6.25% to 7.25%; expanding sales tax to include bottled water, computer programming, and motor vehicle repairs; increasing cigarette tax to $1 per pack; and closing franchise tax loopholes.

When viewing the monthly operating expenses, Leon Klement questioned several sizeable purchases made outside the District. "It would be nice if we could check with local businesses for price comparison before buying out of town," Klement said. "They (local merchants) pay a lot of the taxes." The meeting concluded after the final business of retire-rehire of Martha Koesler, Nancy Perryman, and Joni Sturm.

Heather Harrison wins Mystery Match contest

The 2nd Annual Muenster Enterprise Mystery Match contest and $175 in Muenster Marks was won by Heather Harrison. Heather's entry, along with seven other contestants, correctly found all 36 picture locations, matching them to the 36 local merchants who helped sponsor the contest. Her name was drawn over Barbie Barnhill, Caitlyn Bayer, Janice Bayer, Cootie

Harrison, Chad Henscheid, LeAnn Mollenkopf, and Calvin Wimmer.

Missing only one picture match were Hannah Bayer, Kelly Bob Bayer, Chandler Herr, and Theresa Walterscheid.

This year's contest was made a little more challenging by enlarging and cropping some of the articles pictured, instead of showing the complete item.

Lindsay ISD selects Dr. Jason Ceyanes as superintendent finalist

By Janet Felderhoff
In a unanimous decision during their July 18 meeting, the Lindsay ISD Board of Trustees voted to name Dr. Jason Ceyanes, Ph.D. as the finalist for the superintendent position. He was selected from a field of 45 applicants.

"I am excited about the skills and qualifications that Dr. Ceyanes will bring to LISD and look forward to working with him during the transition period," remarked Superintendent Jerry Metzler.

The naming of a finalist begins a 21-day period during which a contract can be negotiated. After the 21-day period, the Board can officially contract with Dr. Ceyanes and he can begin his duties.

Dr. Ceyanes currently serves at Montgomery ISD where he is the director of Special Projects for the district since 2002. He was also a biology teacher and coach at Dickinson High School and a physical science teacher and coach at Klein Forest High School. Ceyanes served as assistant principal at Magnolia Junior High and principal at Burton High School and Kingwood Middle School.

Ceyanes earned a BA degree in Biological Sciences from the University of Houston - Clear Lake in 1995, an MS in Educational Management from the University of Houston - Clear Lake in 1998, and a Ph.D. in Educational Administration from Texas A&M University in 2004.

Metzler completes his service as superintendent at the end of July. The Board named Larry Smith as Interim Superintendent starting Aug. 1 to fill the transition period from Metzler leaving until Dr. Ceyanes can officially sign a contract.

Superintendent finalist Ceyanes expressed gratitude to the Lindsay ISD School Board for naming him as the lone finalist and potentially giving him the opportunity to come and serve the Lindsay schools and community. "My wife and I are extremely excited about finding a place that we can call home," said Dr. Ceyanes. "We look forward to building long-term relationships as we work together with the Board and the community to provide every child the opportunity to excel in academics, athletics, and other extra curricular activities."

The Ceyanes family plans to move to Lindsay as quickly as possible after the LISD Board offers a final contract. Ceyanes noted, "My wife, Kimberly Kay Ceyanes, is a physician assistant who worked in pediatric neurosurgery at Herman Hospital in the Houston Medical Center prior to staying at home with our young children. She plans to go back to work part-time in the Lindsay area sometime in the future."

Their eligible children will attend school in Lindsay ISD. They have six children, four boys and two girls: J.R. (10 months), Judson (two years), Chloe (five years), Jace (six years), Joshua (11 years), and Sharayah (15 years). They are actively involved in church and YMCA activities. He enjoys reading, singing, and sports activities.

Man loses life in jeep accident

By Janet Felderhoff
According to a report from Sheriff W.E. Keating of the Montague County Sheriff's office, a jeep accident claimed the life of Louie Hood Duncan, 72 of Red Oak. The accident occurred on the evening of Thursday, July 14 on private property on Deer Creek Road off Hwy. 677 north of Saint Jo. Driving the jeep was Paul Becker, age 47 of Muenster. The vehicle overturned on the side of a large hill.

Duncan was crushed in the accident. Justice of the Peace Roger Russell pronounced him dead at the scene. Becker was treated at the scene and released.

The Montague Sheriff's office received notification of the accident at around 9 p.m. on the 14th. Responding were units from the Montague Sheriff's office, Department of Public Safety, Saint Jo Police, Saint Jo Fire and Rescue, and Nocona EMS.

Spish-splash, they were having a bath. Much needed rain drenched Muenster's streets Monday afternoon. Vehicles traveling Highway 82 in the right westbound lane east of Muenster gushed up a spray of rainwater as they hit water standing on the highway. Muenster's official rainfall total for Monday was 1.29 inches. Areas surrounding town reported amounts varying from a quarter of an inch up to four inches. Many of those areas had no significant amount of rain in recent weeks and the rain was a welcome relief. For July, Janette and Bob Hess report the following amounts that fell in town: 0.22, 0.13, 0.30, 0.15, 0.01, 0.03, 0.08, trace, and 1.29 for a total of 2.21. Janie Hartman photo accessing a firearm in your home. If even one accident or death can be prevented through Project ChildSafe, the program will have been worth the effort."

By partnering with Project ChildSafe, the Cooke County District Attorney's office is participating in a growing national effort to promote firearms safety education to all gun owners.

Firearms accidents in the home can result from an unauthorized individual, often a child, finding a loaded and unsecured firearm in the home. The risk of firearms - related unintentional injuries or deaths can be reduced when firearms owners are aware of and fully understand their responsibility to handle firearms safely and store them in a secure manner. The goal of Project ChildSafe is to inform and educate all firearms owners on key safety issues and to provide firearms safety kits that include a gun-locking device.

Project Safe Neighborhoods, a companion program, is a comprehensive, strategic approach to reducing gun violence in America. The present Administration, through the U.S. Department of Justice, is providing the resources necessary for Project Safe Neighborhoods to be successful in reducing gun violence in local communities and is funding a number of programs that target gun crime.

Stormer states "We have been working closely with the United States Attorney's office since January in pursuing weapons and drug offenses in Cooke County. The United States attorneys are particular about which cases they will take, but when they do take a case, the defendant is whisked out of the Cooke County jail to the federal penitentiary where he or she will do more time day for day than in the state system, and our local taxpayers are relieved of the financial burden of prosecuting and housing that criminal."

What school districts don't want you to know

By Donnis Baggett
Chair, TDNA/TPA
Legislative Advisory Committee

Texas school districts and legislators are working behind the scenes to make it harder for you to know how your tax dollars are being spent. They will be successful unless they hear that you don't want that to happen. And that would be a huge step backward for open government in the Lone Star State.

Both public school finance bills pending in the special legislative session, HB 2 and SB 2, contain provisions that would greatly limit the amount of information school districts are required to post in newspapers about such critical matters as bids, land sales, and even tax rate adoption hearings. They would allow districts to post minimum information in newspapers and direct them to the district's website for details.

The excuse being offered for this bad idea is that school districts can save tax money by pulling their legal notices from newspapers. That is not only penny wise and pound foolish, but it ignores the fact that most Texans still prefer their local newspaper as the source for soup-to-nuts notices of public meetings or hearings and contracts offered for competitive bidding.

The ill-conceived idea to drastically reduce public notice is buried deep in this 428-page bill. It was originally added on the House floor by Representative Brian McCall during the regular session. Both House and Senate bills died when the regular session ended without an agreement.

The Senate sponsor of the school finance bill, Senator Florence Shapiro, stripped off McCall's amendment during the regular session. According to Shapiro's office, she has now agreed to take the House position on this bill and keep the minimum notice provisions.

It will be a disservice to the people of Texas if Shapiro's CSSB 2 passes with language that reduces complete and detailed public notices in newspapers. If legislators assume that most Texans will run to their computer screens for an advance notice of an important meeting or the letting of a contract that will obligate them tax-wise for years to come, they're making a false assumption.

Numerous surveys have shown that many Texans - particularly the poor, rural residents and minorities - do not have internet access in their homes, and those who do aren't likely to go to the school district's Web site to search for detailed legal notices. A notice in a newspaper, on the other hand, is right there on the page - with all the details in black and white - as the reader browses through the hometown newspaper.

Newspapers, of course, charge money off legal notices. It costs money to buy the paper and ink for the pages on which they're printed, and to pay the newspaper employees and distributors (who, by the way, are also local taxpayers) to print and deliver those pages to the thousands of people who read the newspaper. In addition to their print editions, most newspapers also routinely include legal notices on their paper's Web site, which means that the legal notices are already available to citizens who might prefer to get their information electronically.

The bottom line is this: If detailed legal notices aren't in your local newspaper, chances are very good that you'll never see all the nitty-gritty on how your school district is planning to spend your money - or how it plans to raise your taxes.

If you care about open government and about how your money is spent, please call your senator and representative as soon as possible. Urge them to remove language from SB 2 and HB 2 that cuts back on public notice and gives school districts permission to hide their complete legal notices on their Web site instead of posting them in the light of day - in the hometown newspaper.

Stop spending the surplus

By Ed Feulner, president
The Heritage Society

It's long past time for Congress to return the budget surplus to taxpayers. Wait a minute. Surplus? For years now, we've heard about "deficits as far as the eye can see." But the feds are still running one important surplus, which Congress continues to squander. It's the Social Security surplus.

The Social Security trust fund started running a surplus back in 1983, when lawmakers decided to "save" the retirement program by boosting taxes. The extra money collected would supposedly pile up in the Social Security trust fund. Lawmakers assured us this money would keep the program solvent for decades to come. But the sad reality is that there's no money in this trust fund. Congress spends the surplus on other projects (an indoor rain forest in Iowa, a heated bus stop in Alaska... you get the picture) and gives Social Security an IOU. Eventually that IOU will have to be repaid with tax money collected from our children and grandchildren.

Sen. Jim DeMint, R-S.C., and Rep. Jim McCrery, R-La., recently drafted legislation to stop Congress from dipping into the Social Security trust. Their plan would use all Social Security taxes that aren't spent to pay current benefits to fund individual retirement accounts that workers would own and control.

In its first year, this plan would reserve about $80 billion in excess Social Security tax revenues to pay future benefits. The surplus would be converted into negotiable government bonds and credited to personal accounts controlled by workers -- real assets similar to an IRA or a 401(k). Not only does this approach assure workers that their retirement taxes will be spent on their retirement, it allows them to watch their retirement fund grow over the years.

Critics say we can't afford to do this, because it would make today's deficit much larger. But this isn't true. The actual levels of government spending and government borrowing would remain the same. What would change is how they're reported. Instead of raiding the trust fund and hiding tens of billions' worth of general fund borrowing, lawmakers would have to admit just how much of our money they're actually spending.

This seems only fair. Remember Sarbanes-Oxley? Congress passed that law in 2002 to demand that American businesses use open accounting practices. Meanwhile, lawmakers have been content to continue engaging in their own accounting sleight-of-hand.

Well, the DeMint-McCrery plan would be a big step toward making lawmakers play by the same accounting rules they impose on businesses and American families. That's better for everybody in the long run.

This proposal also makes a lot of sense for the individual taxpayer. The Social Security Administration estimates that, over the next 12 years, taxpayers who choose to start an investment account (they would be voluntary under the DeMint plan) would pile up, on average, about $5,500 each. That's not enough to retire on, but it's a start. And because these accounts would be invested in Treasury bonds, that money would continue to grow, earning interest long after new contributions stop in 2017.

Plus, taxpayers will be glad to know that the money the government is taking from them in Social Security taxes (FICA on your paycheck stub) is actually going to fund their own retirement, not some new government program.

The DeMint proposal is a good start -- but it's just that. Congress needs to provide still more truth in advertising and admit that unless it summons the political will to overhaul Social Security, there's no way the system will be able to pay all the benefits it has promised to deliver.

Bringing benefits in line with resources won't be painless. Congress will have to at least consider pushing back the age at which people may start collecting full Social Security benefits. And lawmakers should take a good look at indexing benefits, so that the safety net program directs more support to the neediest retirees, and proportionately less to the wealthiest.

These and other potential reforms will be controversial. But everyone can agree that Social Security taxes ought to be used to fund Social Security benefits. The DeMint plan makes sense, because it's a big step in that direction.

Senate Death Tax vote imminent

There is a good possibility that the U.S. Senate will vote on full and permanent repeal of the Death Tax by the end of July. The House passed the measure in April by a vote of 272-162. However, in previous years, full repeal has passed the House only to be shut down by the Senate.

If there was ever a time for individual cattle producers to push their senators for full and permanent repeal, this is it. Tell your senators that Death Taxes are one of the leading causes of the destruction of multi-generation family cattle businesses. In an asset-rich and cash-poor business like ranching, the appraised value of rural land is extremely inflated when compared to its agricultural value.

Many families are forced to sell off land, parts of the operation, or the entire ranch to pay off tax liabilities. Contact your senators by calling the U.S. Capitol Switchboard at (202) 224-3121 or look up their e-mail address at www.senate.gov.

Texas Farm Bureau president calls for constitutional amendment to protect property rights

The state's largest general farm organization is calling for the Senate to join the Texas House in passing a constitutional amendment allowing Texas citizens to vote to limit local governments' use of eminent domain for private property for economic development.

Texas Farm Bureau President Kenneth Dierschke said that without protections in the state constitution, a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision could "set the stage for an assault on private property rights."

"No private property is safe," he said. "Texans should decide this issue at the ballot box."

Dierschke praised the Texas House for passing a constitutional amendment dealing with the issue. Following the U.S. Supreme Court's recent ruling in the Kelo versus New London case, private property advocate groups, including the Texas Farm Bureau, asked Gov. Rick Perry to add the issue to the current special session call.

"We appreciate the leadership of Gov. Perry in this very important issue," Dierschke said. "With time running short before the special session ends, it is imperative the House and Senate find consensus."

HJR 19, by Rep. Frank Corte (R-San Antonio), would allow citizens to vote to limit eminent domain in the form of a constitutional amendment. Corte's resolution passed the House on a 132-0 vote.

Senate Bill 62, sponsored by Senator Kyle Janek (R-Houston), would limit, by statute, government from using eminent domain to benefit private developers. Texas Farm Bureau prefers the House approach, which places protection of private property in the state constitution.

Dierschke warned that cities and other local governmental entities are determined to expand tax base, and pursue economic development, at the expense of private landowners and homeowners.

"We prefer a constitutional amendment to deal with this issue because it would be tinker-proof, and would ensure that private property rights, a cornerstone of our society, are not further diluted," Dierschke said.

RECEPTION

The Sacred Heart Community Center was the site of the reception for dinner and dancing. The meal was catered by Rohmer's Restaurant. Tables were covered with white tablecloths, chocolate and mocha ribbons along with flower topiaries of reds, yellow, and orange roses and brown bears adorned each table.

The cake table held three cakes of chocolate and mocha, with chocolate dipped strawberries atop each cake. A brown bears Bride and Groom completed the cake table decorations. A photo table with many family pictures was in view. The snack table featured a variety of chocolate items.

Emily Roberson, friend of the Roetzel family, registered guests. Cake slicers and servers were Linda Becker, Monica LaBrasseur, Kristin LaBrasseur, Karen Flusche, and Alison Miller, all of Muenster, and all family or family friends of Patrick. The Community Center meeting room was the site of the rehearsal dinner at 6 p.m. May 20, and was hosted by the groom's parents assisted by Gloria Culpepper.

White tablecloths with red and cream tulle and small cream roses decorated the tables. A Spanish theme prevailed. After the dinner, the group moved to the church for the rehearsal.

Hunters reminded about mandatory education

Hunter education is more than a legal requirement in Texas - statistics show it saves lives. People getting ready for fall hunting are reminded of two things: those who purchased hunter education deferrals last year will need hunter education this year, and there are hundreds of courses scheduled across Texas where they can fulfill that requirement.

More than 10,000 people purchased $10 Texas hunter education deferrals in the 2004-05 license period - the first year the deferral was offered. The deferral allows a person 17 years old or older to defer hunter education completion for as long as one year. During this time they can hunt if they are accompanied by a person licensed to hunt in Texas who is at least age 17 and has passed hunter education or is exempt by age. "Accompanied" is defined as "within normal voice control."

The intent of the deferral is to encourage people to try hunting and recruit new hunters by pairing them with hunting mentors. A deferral may only be obtained once and is only valid until the end of the current license year. A person who has been convicted or has received deferred adjudication for violation of the mandatory hunter education requirement is prohibited from applying for a deferral. Deferral participants who take a hunter education course by Aug. 31 each year receive a $5 discount.

Every hunter (including out-of-state hunters) born on or after Sept. 2, 1971, must successfully complete a Hunter Education Training Course to hunt in Texas. Minimum certification age is 12 years old and cost is $10.

There are some exceptions for youngsters. Youth younger than 12 can hunt but must be accompanied by a person licensed to hunt in Texas who has completed a hunter ed course, or is exempt by age. Youth ages 12-16 can hunt on their own if they have completed hunter education, but adult supervision is recommended.

There are three ways to take hunter education: traditional classroom instruction, home study and skills trail testing, and an online course with skills trail testing. Home study and online course participants must come to a testing site to complete their training.

"There are 240 classroom courses scheduled across the state between now and next January, but it's good to complete the course early," said Terry Erwin, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department hunter education coordinator. "Experience shows some people wait until the last minute, and these courses are subject to change as they fill up daily. There are also 106 home study courses currently offered."

A complete listing of hunter education courses is on the TPWD Web site.

Since 1972, more than 685,000 Texans have completed the hunter education course, which is mandatory in 50 states and 10 Canadian provinces. Hunter education became a legal requirement in 1988. Partly as a result of hunter education, Texas hunting accident rates have steadily decreased from a high of more than 12 accidents per 100,000 hunters in 1966 to below five accidents per 100,000 hunters in recent years.

"Texas is always looking for responsible individuals who would like to give something back by becoming a hunter education instructor," Erwin said.

Volunteer instructors must be at least 21 years old, have taken the hunter education course, filled out an application, and been through a game warden interview and an instructor course. Anyone interested can contact TPWD at (800) 792-1112, Ext. 4999 or see the TPWD Web site.

Ken Cook's Underwater Tactics

Catching Bass On Riprap

Go out to any lake or reservoir in the United States and I'm sure you will encounter riprap. Simply put, riprap is large chunks of broken stone placed to prevent erosion or to form a protective foundation for bridges, dams, and riverbanks. Some bodies of water hold miles of this fish holding habitat and many anglers are intimidated by the vastness of the riprap. Solutions to fishing these types of areas are on the minds of many but the answer is relatively simple.

The key to fishing riprap is to find out what's there besides just rock. In order to save time, I first try to narrow down the area to fish by consulting a map. I'll look at the map for deep-water drop offs and nearby channel swings. Then I'll motor down the edge, carefully watching my Bottom Line fish finder for these features and any unseen piles of brush or rocks, slight alterations in the submerged riprap or anything that will give me a place to start. The cone angle of the transducer is critical to finding what lurks under the sunken rocks. Too wide of a cone angle won't provide enough detail, and too narrow a cone angle scans too little of an area.

The higher the resolution, the clearer the picture will be on your unit's screen. The operating frequency of my transducer is 200KHZ, which is great for shallower water. In addition, I get 3200 watts of Peak-to-Peak power that sends a strong signal and allows the unit to receive a strong echo.

When it comes to selecting bait, I have learned from experience that during the summer months white noisy buzz baits work great in low light conditions, real early or late, and maybe even on cloudy days. Since these conditions rarely last long, I will often slow down and fish soft plastics. The best tip is to try and match the bait to what the bass are eating. When I catch a fish, I'll look down its throat hoping to see the tail of a shad or the feelers of a crawfish.

By letting my fish finder do most of the work, I can significantly narrow my attack on riprap and fish productive water instead of just casting and hoping. Any angler can get the same advantage by selecting a fish finder with the type of specifications listed above. Then all you have left is the matter of presenting the proper bait and setting the hook. What can be easier than that?

GAME WARDEN REPORTS

Cheaters Never Win Smith County game warden finally received disposition on a violator who cheated in a Christian Bass Anglers tournament on Lake Tyler last summer. The violator caught five largemouth bass from an exclusive private lake in Palestine. He kept them alive in an aerated live well system at his residence. The night before the tournament, he planted the five fish in a basket in the lake. He won the tournament with a 31-pound stringer and the big bass pot. The nearest contestant was 15 pounds away from the leader. The violator was convicted of tournament fraud and releasing fish from private waters into public waters. He received a $400 fine with three years probation, is unable to fish in public waters while on probation, forfeited his winnings, received 50 hours of community service, and must attend a Life Skills class.

Recklessness

A Brown County game warden investigated a boating accident where the operator of a motorboat was turning in large circles at half-throttle, and his friend on a PWC was jumping his wake. The PWC hit a wave, throwing the passenger off and then striking the motorboat. The operator of the PWC was airlifted to Shannon Hospital in San Angelo for internal bleeding and a cracked pelvis.

Aransas Wildlife Refuge is the winter home of North America's only remaining flock of whooping cranes.
