

Pelzel steps into position of Youth Minister

By Janet Felderhoff
Eager to begin her career as a youth minister, Jenny Lynn Pelzel comes to Muenster full of ideas and enthusiasm. She began her position as youth minister for Sacred Heart Parish on Monday, June 2.

Jenny Lynn graduated from Texas A&M this spring with a major in psychology. She grew up in Pilot Point and graduated from Pilot Point High School in 2004. Her dad is a farmer and her mother is a teacher. She has an older brother Terry who is an investment banker in Plano, a younger brother Jason who is a junior at A&M, and a younger sister Kristin who just graduated from high school.

While in high school, Jenny Lynn had a really good youth minister. Her original intention was to become a coach and teacher because she wanted to do something of service. "Being a youth minister was always in the back of my mind, but it was never my first plan," she remarked. "I figured with coaching I could move up and be in bigger places. With coaching, there were more options available I felt like." She said she started off at A&M as a Math major, but that didn't work out since she didn't like it very much.

"I decided that maybe that was God telling me that I was not supposed to be a coach or a Math teacher, you're supposed to be a youth minister," recalled Jenny Lynn. "That's when I turned to psychology. It ended up that I liked it a lot. I feel like that is where I'm supposed to be."

Since her senior year in college, Jenny Lynn has been looking for an opening as youth minister. She knew she wanted to be in the Fort Worth Diocese because she had done a lot in it and was very familiar with it. "Coming right out of college and just being thrown into a new place at a big parish would have been very scary for me," said Jenny Lynn. "I just wanted a small parish, a rural parish because that's where I was used to."

Recently she met with Kevin Prevou who is the coordinator of Youth Ministry for the Fort Worth Diocese. He told her about the job here in Muenster. "It just seemed perfect to me," she noted. "I had been here a couple of times, and I knew it was a very Catholic town and that it would be a great place for me to start out." She applied and was hired.

Another reason Jenny Lynn preferred to be in a small town, "I felt like I could really get to know people very well instead of just getting to know a ton of people just a little bit." She wants to get to know people in depth and to have an impact on their lives.

Jenny Lynn said that everyone has been very welcoming to her. Until she finds a house, she is staying at the Sisters' convent. "That's pretty cool," she said. "Not everyone can say they lived in a convent before."

What does the new youth minister have planned for the junior high and high school youth of the parish? "Definitely getting out and doing the Diocesan events like Camp Fort Worth and DCYC," she said enthusiastically. "Maybe going to a Steubenville conference. The conferences that are put on by other big events really spark the fire in youth. It always did for me. You get that retreat high from going on retreats and then you can bring that back and build on that. You get other people involved because they see your fire and they want that." She plans on going to as many of those events as possible.

Another of Jenny Lynn's goals is to focus on helping kids develop their relationship with God. "One of the things that I always struggled with was I was always doing stuff for God, but never really focused on my

Youth injured during prank

By Janet Felderhoff
A Muenster youth was injured during the early hours Sunday, June 8 when he and at least one other person were in the process of playing a prank.

According to Cooke County Sheriff Mike Compton, the incident occurred at a residence along FM 1630 north of Myra around 3 a.m. The property owner was not identified in the Sheriff's report because no charges have been filed at this time at the request of the victim's family. They didn't wish to press charges because the youth was doing something he shouldn't have been doing. Under the circumstances, Sheriff Compton said that the property owner had broken no laws.

The youths went to the rural residence to play a prank. The property owner had the ability to detect that someone was on his property. It was dark and he was scared. He shot a round in the dark. One pellet hit the Muenster youth who was about 50 yards away.

The Sheriff's Department was notified about 7 a.m. by Muenster Memorial Hospital when the victim went in for medical attention.

Sheriff Compton said that no further information could be released because of the possibility of the matter turning into an active investigation.

Commissioners Court divided on proposed County Internet Policy

By Janet Felderhoff
Commissioners Court has been in the process of developing an Internet Policy for use of the County's computers by its staff and employees. For the second time in about six months, a proposed policy came up for vote at a Commissioners Court meeting. It drew some divided opinions among members of the Court at the Commissioners June 9 meeting.

"I'm opposed to the Internet Policy," stated Precinct #3 Commissioner Al Smith. He gave several reasons for his opposition to the policy as it is written, including that it speaks to the Information Technology (IT) Department (which the County doesn't have); the policy stands a good chance of being technically obsolete; and he would like to see individual department heads and other elected officials enforcing the policies that are already in place. Smith said he didn't know who would police the policy if it were approved.

"Until we are more technically proficient than I perceive that we are, I don't see that we are going to save any money with this policy or stop any action that the current officials are not already for stopping," Smith said. About 10 years ago it would have been a great policy, he said.

County Auditor Shelly Saunders explained that since the County computers have become networked, there has been a problem with employees listening to the radio on the computer, which uses a larger amount of space and slows down everybody else's productivity. "We have had an incident of an office where their employees were updating their My Space page and it crashed our computer and we had to buy a new computer," she added.

Saunders explained that there is a software available that will prohibit websites from being looked at by the majority of the people. Those attorneys and Sheriff's office employees who need access as part of their job will be able to access those sites. "There isn't one person who is going to sit and police and look at everybody's emails; nobody has time to do that," she commented. "It is to maintain the integrity of the Internet that we have now. Because we are networked, and if someone is downloading a free software and it gets a virus or a worm, then it affects everybody else. That's the purpose of this policy."

Smith said he would like to see department heads step up to their responsibility on the issue as opposed to the Court stating what they should be doing. Judge Freeman questioned the department heads authority to do anything without the Internet Policy in place. Commissioner Gary Hollowell noted that there were work performance issues if the employees were doing My Space pages during work hours.

Education on what the policy actually says is another issue that Commissioner Smith brought up. Who will do the education since there is not an IT person, and what is the arm of this policy he asked. He wondered if it were a back-door attempt to necessitate hiring an IT person. Judge Freeman said it was not, hiring an IT person had been on the table for two years.

"I'd like to see us ease through the budget cycle; let's see how we're going to fund this kind of policy, who's responsible for this policy, who's going to be the policing action behind it, or is there not going to be any policing action behind it?" asked Smith.

Precinct #2 Commissioner Steve Key said he had no problem with the policy. "I was surprised at the length of this one," he noted. "I've seen a lot of policies before that were a lot briefer."

Commissioner Smith made a motion that they disapprove the Internet Policy. Commissioner Hollowell made a second to the motion. The Internet Policy failed to pass. The vote to not approve it was three yes and two no. Judge Freeman and Precinct #4 Commissioner Virgil Hess voted no.

Cooke County Library Director Jennifer Johnson-Spence told the Court that the $3,600 she applied for from the Texas Library Association had been approved in the amount of $3,000. The grant was to replace books.

OBITUARIES

Marie Knauf 1921 - 2008

Mass of Christian Burial for Marie Bernadette Pels Knauf of Muenster was held at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, June 4 at Sacred Heart Church in Muenster with Fr. Ken Robinson celebrating the Mass. Burial was in Sacred Heart Cemetery under the direction of McCoy Funeral Home of Muenster. Marie died at 1:11 a.m. on Monday, June 2, 2008 in Muenster Memorial Hospital.

Born March 21, 1921 in Muenster, the sixth child of the nine children of Henry J. and Anna M. Lummel Pels, Marie grew up on the Pels farm northwest of Muenster. She attended Sacred Heart elementary and high schools and was a lifetime member of Sacred Heart Parish. She married Joseph M. Knauf on Aug. 28, 1940 in Sacred Heart Church. They lived on a farm located on what was called Wolf Ridge the first 12 years; four of their children being born there. They then moved to the Knauf farm northwest of Muenster where the younger son was born. Marie and Joseph farmed together for several years. She, along with caring for the family, assisted with much of the farm work. In 1978, they built a home in Muenster where they lived together for 20 years, and where she continued to live until 2003 when she entered the nursing home.

Marie was a homemaker, excellent cook, seamstress, and gardener. She canned much of the garden goods for family food. Marie spent a lot of time caring for Joseph and the children, and later the grand- and great-grandchildren, and even her puppies. Marie was a great lady and a friend to many. She spent her last five years as a resident of Saint Richards Villa.

Survivors include her daughters Eunice M. Wimmer and husband Tim of Lindsay, Annette Walterscheid of Muenster, and Eileen Schilling and husband Junior of Muenster; sons Leon Knauf and Milton Knauf, both of Muenster; 12 grandchildren and 25 great-grandchildren; sisters Clara Walterscheid and Agnella Martin, both of Muenster; sister-in-law Regina Pels of Muenster; and brother-in-law Ed Knauf of Muenster.

Preceding her in death were her husband Joseph M. Knauf on Dec. 15, 1998; sisters Sister Imelda Pels, O.S.B., Esther Weske, Leona Pels, and Theresa Muller; brothers Ed Pels and Henry Pels, Jr.; granddaughter Shellie Walterscheid Hoedebeck; and son-in-law Sonny Walterscheid.

Assisting Fr. Ken at the funeral Mass were altar servers, Benjamin Walterscheid, Austin Springer, and Grant Springer, all great-grandsons. The First Reading was given by granddaughter Lisa Stephens, and granddaughter Jolanda Fleitman gave the Second Reading. Prayers of the Faithful were read by Jennifer Hoedebeck, great-granddaughter. Offertory Gifts were brought up by great-grandchildren Sydney Hoedebeck, Jason Knabe, and Katherine Springer. Eucharistic ministers were Janet Voth, Carolyn Bayer, Dennis and Kathy Hess, and Viola Rohmer.

Music ministers were Christy Hesse, Diane Grewing, and Doug Yosten. Sacred songs included "On Eagles Wings," "Just a Closer Walk," "Do Not Let Your Hearts Be Troubled," "Ave Maria," and "Amazing Grace."

Remarks of remembrance were given by great-granddaughter Jessica Knabe, who said, in part, "Marie spent her early years attending Sacred Heart School and helping her father on the family farm. As her older siblings left home... Marie became her dad's 'right hand man,' helping with the plowing, sowing, and thrashing..."

"Marie held fast to her Catholic faith and had a special affinity for the Blessed Virgin Mary and the Miraculous Medal... spent her lifetime caring for others. Most important to her was her family and her beloved Joe whom she often helped on the farm... her grandchildren and great-grandchildren remember most fondly her generous spirit, frequent laughter, Thanksgiving dinners, and the certain offer of a baked good or an ice-cream cone. No one ever left Mamo's home hungry..."

"In July of 2003, she became a resident of St. Richards Villa where she was lovingly cared for... A great comfort to her during this time were the two baby dolls she held tightly in her arms. Occasionally, one of the dolls would become lost, so the St. Richards staff would put out an 'Amber Alert' to find Marie's baby..."

"We will miss you greatly, but know full well you now rest in the loving arms of our Lord..."

pallbearers were grandsons Brad Wimmer, Jeff Wimmer, T. J. Walterscheid, Jon Schilling, Michael Schilling, and Joel Schilling.

A Rosary/Vigil service led by Fr. Ken was held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday at the funeral home.

Fiber to the home installation in progress

After many months of boring through rock, trenching alleyways, and installing devices that will carry Nortex services to the home, Nortex Communications has begun turning up fiber in Muenster.

Alvin Fuhrman, president and CEO of Nortex, is one of the first customers to receive the technology in his home. "We are very excited to be able to provide services to our customers through fiber to the home," said Fuhrman. "We have used fiber for many years to connect to services outside our area, and now we can connect our customers through this technology."

Fuhrman also said that fiber to the home will position Nortex for future services. It will allow them to add additional channels, many in the High Definition format. They will be adding Video on Demand in a matter of weeks, a service which has been requested and is a great service for customers. With Video on Demand, a customer can watch a movie or program whenever they want. It is a very convenient service. "Our customers won't have to drive to the rental store to rent movies and with gas prices escalating, we feel our customers will really appreciate the service," Fuhrman commented.

Nortex customers will begin to experience sharper pic-

April oil and gas completions

In April 2008, operators reported 403 oil, 827 gas, 10 injection, and four other completions compared to 393 oil, 783 gas, 77 injection, and two other completions during April 2007.

Total well completions for 2008 year to date are 5,262 up from 4,939 recorded during the same period in 2007.

Operators reported 404 holes plugged and five dry holes in April 2008 compared to 411 holes plugged and five dry holes in April 2007.

tures on their TV sets when they are transitioned to the service. Fiber to the home also allows Nortex to offer higher speeds of Broadband.

Along with sharper pictures and higher speed Internet service, Nortex will begin offering package plans for the service. Check the Muenster Enterprise, or watch for announcements coming to your home. Plans include a "LightSpeed" plan with speeds up to 8Mb x 2 Mb at a competitive rate.

The company began upgrading the system in 2003 with Lake Kiowa and continued with Collinsville, Lindsay, and finally Saint Jo in 2006. These communities were upgraded with the latest equipment to add additional channel capacity, digital, high definition, and high speed internet service through cable modems. Muenster and Valley View were the remaining systems to be upgraded.

An aging plant, competition, and the desire to provide the best services to the communities they serve were the determining factors in Nortex's decision to build fiber to the home in these two communities.

Fiber optics are replacing two existing networks; coaxial cable network, which delivers the cable television signal to the home, and copper that delivers voice services and digital subscriber line (DSL).

Fiber has been directional bored along the alley ways and to the home. An optical network terminal (ONT) has been connected outside the home and a battery power supply mounted inside the home.

A customer who elects not to allow fiber to be built to their home will no longer be able to receive any Nortex services.

Nortex serves the communities of Muenster, Valley View, Forestburg, Rosston, and Myra with telephone, long distance, and Internet service; Lake Kiowa, Collinsville, Lindsay, and Saint Jo with Internet service and Cable Television service.

and a computer damaged during the June 2007 flood. Commissioners Court accepted the grant money.

A County-wide fireworks ban came under consideration. Cooke County Emergency Management Coordinator Ray Fletcher noted that there is a provision which allows banning of specific types of fireworks in drought areas. Cooke County is not currently in such an area. Fletcher said that the last grass fires burned slowly with minimal spread, even with high winds, because there is still green grass to slow it down. He did not recommend a ban at this time.

Judge Freeman reminded commissioners that this was the last time that a ban could be put in place before the Fourth of July unless a state of disaster is declared. "I don't think the government should impose itself on the private sector unless there is an imminent threat to personal property or life," said Judge Freeman. No action was taken on the ban.

Service contracts were considered for the Justice Center generator. Maintenance Director Ricky Kerr said that they received proposals from two companies and each had a one time service cost and an annual service cost. TNT Electric, a local company, and Southern Plains from the Metroplex were the two with proposals.

It was agreed that regular maintenance of the generator was important since it involves the County's dispatch system, and the jail with a couple of hundred prisoners. TNT was selected because they felt its response time would be quicker.

At the June 23, meeting, Commissioner Hollowell requested that the Court discuss the County's animal control problem.

Clowns take reading seriously at Library

Want to learn what it takes to soar on the flying trapeze or just what goes into those cream pies that the clowns throw? Or maybe learn some fun facts about one of the more than 100 cities the mile-long circus train visits or how to teach your old dog a new trick? Then join Slappy and Monday, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Goodwill Ambassadors, for some serious fun on June 26, at 4:30 p.m. at Muenster Public Library, located at 418 N Elm.

They are no class clowns, but are certain to add amusement to a special 30-minute circus storytime, which will encourage children not only to read, but also to discover, dream, and learn! The library event is free and open to the public. For more information on the additional cities and libraries Slappy, Monday, and the other Goodwill Ambassadors plan to visit, go to www.ReadingwithRingling.com. Slappy and Monday will be in town to help kick-off "Reading with Ringling Bros.!"

The summer reading program is easy and fun for kids to participate. The best part is that kids can earn a free circus ticket by simply doing their library reading this summer! Children from ages 2-12 simply need to enroll with the librarian, who will give kids everything to start their summer reading. Kids will even receive cool bookmarks, clown noses, puzzles, and coloring sheets, too! Taylor Reed turns 2!

Taylor Ann Reed, daughter of Jon and Tiffany Reed, celebrated her second birthday on Saturday, April 19. She celebrated her birthday with a Mickey Mouse theme. The party was held upstairs at Doc's Restaurant in Muenster. Her actual birthday was on Thursday, April 17, and Taylor shared donuts at her Aunt Penny's house with the other children.

Taylor's celebration began with everyone eating sub sandwiches and chips catered by Doc's. Following, all ate cake, which was in the shape of Mickey Mouse's head. The cake was made by her Godmother and Aunt Penny Fisher. Taylor also enjoyed opening gifts with all her family and friends who attended.

K. Patel graduates from UNT's TAMS

Kinal Kim Patel graduated from the Texas Academy of Mathematics and Science (TAMS) at the University of North Texas in May. She is the daughter of Sudha Patel of Muenster and the late Vasant Patel.

The Academy, created by the Texas Legislature in 1987, is an early college admissions program at UNT that gives talented students a chance to complete their first two years of college while earning a high school diploma. TAMS students live in a UNT residence hall and take regular UNT classes taught by full-time faculty. They earn about 60 hours of college credit. After graduation, they transfer to other universities or stay at UNT to finish their bachelor's degrees.

Patel attended Muenster High School before entering the academy in August 2006. As a TAMS student, she was an executive with the Academy Ambassadors and a member of Helping Other People Everywhere, a community service organization. She conducted biochemistry research with a UNT professor. Patel was named to the President's List for having a perfect grade point average and to the Dean's List.

An honors graduate of TAMS, she plans to attend Southern Methodist University to finish her Bachelor's degree, majoring in Business.

Her mother, sister Dolly Patel and her husband Hiren and daughter Ati of San Antonio, uncles and aunts from all around Texas, and an uncle and aunt from India attended the graduation. Also attending were Rebecca Grewing, Alison Teafattiller, Cassie Hale, and Hillary Swirczynski, friends from Muenster.

On Saturday, May 10 a celebration was held in Kim's honor at the Valley View Inn. Local friends and relatives attended. Gopal Caterers of Dallas prepared the vegetables and a cousin, Kevin Patel, prepared the non vegetarian food.

NCTC presents Cinderella

A fairy godmother, a pumpkin, a prince, a slipper, and of course, those wicked step-sisters. They're all part of the enchanting and timeless tale of Cinderella, told through the masterful music and lyrics of Rodgers and Hammerstein.

Opening June 20 and brought to the stage by the North Central Texas College Drama Department, this special musical production is sure to be a treat for audiences of all ages. Tickets are now on sale.

Six performances are scheduled on the main stage of the NCTC's First State Bank Center for the Performing Arts (FSBCPA). Dates are June 20, 21, 26, 27, and 28 at 7:30 p.m., with a 2:30 p.m. matinee set for June 29.

"It's a delightful show with a great cast, wonderful costumes and scenery, and of course, the classic musical score, so we expect ticket sales to be brisk," said Thom Talbott, director. "I urge everybody to call for reservations right away."

Tickets are $10 for adults, $7 for high school age or younger, and free for NCTC students with an I.D. All seats are reserved. Call the FSBCPA box office at 940-668-3355 for reservations. Hours are Monday-Thursday from noon to 5 p.m. and Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"When it was later adapted for the stage, Cinderella became an instant success and has captivated audiences ever since," Talbott said. "Our production will feature plenty of magical special effects, courtesy of our technical director Dan Doss who thrilled audiences with his work on 'Beauty and the Beast', 'Peter Pan', and most recently, 'James and the Giant Peach'."

Shane Studdard of the NCTC music faculty is serving as musical director for the show; NCTC student Kendall Butler, who staged the dances for the recent NCTC Singers presentation of "Hairspray," is the choreographer; and another NCTC student, Maxie Bilyeu, is in charge of costumes.

"The unforgettable score includes the timeless hits 'Impossible', 'In My Own Little Corner', 'Do I Love You Because You're Beautiful?' and so many others," said Studdard, also known as a popular performer in such roles as Captain Hook in "Peter Pan" and Lumiere in "Beauty and the Beast".

SHCS class gives flower bed new look

As a final science activity and community service project, Sacred Heart Second Graders reworked the overgrown flower bed on the west side of the Sisters' Chapel. The children personally dug up the bed with shovels and other tools, sifted out rocks, and mixed in compost and organic fertilizers. Then they planted red and white wave petunias, herbs, and a rose bush. Finally, the class completed the job by spreading a thin layer of cedar mulch.

Supplies were donated by the class with the help of several area businesses. Muenster Garden Center discounted the compost. Keep Muenster Beautiful donated a portion of the petunias, and Katie's Nursery and Produce of Gainesville donated the herbs for the "touch and smell" section of the garden.

Increasing prices a growing concern

Over the past year, we've incurred the wrath of more than one company by reporting on the growing costs associated with shooting. More specifically, the rapidly rising cost of ammo. Costs of metals used in bullets have risen to the point that some ammunition has doubled in price over the last 12 months. Strangely enough, China and its modernization has gotten the majority of the blame in that situation.

Now, as the fuel situation continues to grow worse, it's apparent to everyone that the costs associated with anything delivered by vehicle - unless it's floated downriver via flatboat or hauled via wagon train - is rising. If you think that's an exaggeration, take a look at the produce section of your local grocery. If you want to see the same impact on the shooting sports, look at the cost on what used to be the "cheap" shotgun and rifle shells.

Yesterday, I spoke with a friend attending a similar session in another sport. According to his statistical information, shooting isn't the only sport looking at a bleak future. Any recreational activity requiring travel or "expensables" (targets and ammunition in shooting) is feeling the pinch. In fact, the golf industry is seeking ways to bring local residents to areas normally dominated by tourists. The tourists, it seems, are staying home in droves. That hurts everyone associated with the tourist - from the bellman to the owner of the five-star restaurant up the street.

In short, it's ugly out there. Unfortunately, "out there" is pretty much synonymous with "everywhere".

For sporting clay shooters, the bite is certainly increasing. Nationwide, prices for shotgun shells have risen - in some locations as much as $4 per box for the heretofore "cheap" shells. Reloading components are more expensive, and every aspect of the sport is looking at cost hikes that are attributed to "fuel adjustment charges".

Earlier this year, I thought there might be a little profiteering going on. Today, however, I'm more convinced that everyone - and I mean everyone - is getting hit in the pocketbook by rising energy costs. And I'm not going to hammer the gas companies either. The same price increases that hammer us pound on their people (yes, they are still people) too.

As we look to hold the existing shooting participants in the sport, we're looking at a potential double-whammy: rising costs keeping new prospects from giving shooting a try, and increased costs forcing out the participants who have seen their disposable income shrink to the point that shooting is simply out of the discretionary spending budget. When families are turning to "staycations" rather than "vacations" it's apparent they feel the bite.

At this point, shooting clubs are reporting they are really feeling the bite - especially when they discover that a 12 month supply of clay targets (we're told by purchasers) has more than doubled since they last replenished their supplies over a year ago. Some sporting clay clubs are passing the increases on to members. In response, some members are allowing memberships to lapse.

Across the discussion boards in the industry, there are a variety of responses to the price increases. Some clubs are passing on the costs. They say they are losing members. Others say they're still operating, but would "entertain offers" for their machines. Some smaller private clubs are saying they simply can't handle the cost increases and are going to close.

Hopefully, the situation won't get this grim for the rifle and pistol clubs. There, fortunately, the direct costs of many elements fall to the individual members. And if you're like me, you're getting more creative about how you maintain your level of participation.

The situation, however, isn't all gloom-and-doom.

The good news is that many people who are our neighbors but used to dash off to the lake, the mountains, or the beach every weekend are now spending more time at home.

That means they're potentially susceptible to the attraction of a sport that doesn't necessitate lots of travel - or guzzle down a couple of hundred bucks of fuel for a day on the lake.

Additionally, as "shooting" can also include everything from airsoft to archery, it's a good time to get people introduced to the shooting sports that don't require so many expendables.

Two more sentenced in cattle thefts

Earl Colbert Jr. and Lethal Wiseman Jr. have been sentenced for their involvement in a cattle theft case in Hardeman County. The third suspect, Dale Ritchie, pleaded guilty earlier this year.

Colbert, who has a prior conviction for aggravated assault, received 10 years to be served in the state penitentiary after pleading guilty to third-degree theft and second-degree organized crime.

Wiseman received a six-year sentence and was ordered to pay $15,000 in restitution upfront. He will be eligible for shock probation after 90 days served in the state penitentiary.

The theft ring involved 73 head of cattle valued at about $32,000. TSCRA Special Rangers Scott Williamson and Ben Eggleston were able to recover 13 head of cattle and account for the remaining 60.

An anonymous informant provided valuable tips to Williamson and Eggleston last fall and all three suspects were arrested the following day.

The informant, an Oklahoma auction market employee, became the first to receive a reward through Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association's Operation Cow Thief, a program introduced last year to reward those who offer information leading to the arrest and/or grand jury indictment of individuals for theft of livestock or related property.

To provide information or to donate to TSCRA's Operation Cow Thief, call 888/830-2333. Informants may remain anonymous. TSCRA has 28 special rangers stationed strategically throughout Texas and Oklahoma who have in-depth knowledge of the cattle industry and are trained in all facets of law enforcement. All are commissioned as Special Rangers by the Texas Department of Public Safety and/or the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation.

Fly control

The warm months of the year are upon us, so is fly season for livestock owners. Horn flies are a problem for all classes of livestock, and minimizing the fly population can help provide relief to people and animals alike.

Each year, horn flies cause millions in economic loss to the beef industry alone. They cause irritation, excess motion, annoyance, and blood loss. Depending on the type of livestock, various methods of control are available, like sprays, dusts, ear tags, backrubs, boluses, baits, feed additives, and releasing beneficial insects.

Many livestock owners take advantage of ear tags that are impregnated with an insecticide to control horn flies. This method of control is often misused and can result in future problems.

Insecticidal ear tags contain an ingredient that over time is reduced in its effectiveness, so they should be removed once they are no longer effective. Typically, insecticidal tags can last a couple of months, but should always be removed at the end of the season. If these tags are not removed, they will continue to release their ingredient at a lower, less effective dose, and fly populations could develop resistance to that particular ingredient. It is recommended to read the label closely and remove the tags at the appropriate time to prevent flies building immunity.

There are three classes of pour on insecticides to control horn flies. These include pyrethroids, organophosphates, and recently added spinosad. It is important to rotate usage of insecticides between the various classes to minimize flies building resistance to these insecticides. Remember these insecticides are in products sprayed in stables and cattle lots; they are in pour on insecticides; and they are in ear tags and various other products. The key point is to be aware of what the active ingredient is, and then to rotate to another, prior to having the current one becoming ineffective. It is even possible to further diversify fly treatments with the timely application of certain deworming products.

Insect growth regulators are available through some feeds or minerals. They will prevent flies from maturing in manure from livestock that have ingested treated feeds. These work best when usage is begun early in the season and livestock are located far enough away from neighboring livestock to minimize the importation of flies.

Less commonly used are parasitic wasps, which feed on the fly larvae and prevent it from developing to the adult stage. These beneficial insects are available from several sources and do help control fly populations.

Combating horn flies is an exhaustive process. Success takes planning. The best control is achieved by using several control methods and rotating usage between products with different modes of action within those methods.

Spider mites

Spider mites are a pest to many types of plants and have been attacking various vegetable and ornamental plants this year. They are not insects; they are closely related to spiders, daddy long-legs, and ticks. Unlike insects, which have six legs and three body parts, spider mites have eight legs and a one-part body. They also lack wings, antennae, and compound eyes. Individual spider mites are almost microscopic, yet when they occur in large numbers, they can cause serious damage. Dozens of species attack shade trees, shrubs, vegetables and other plants.

While there are many species of spider mites, the type we are having problems with now have eggs that hatch in March or April. They begin life as larvae which resemble the adults. Development time from egg to adult varies from five to 21 days depending on the species of mite and the weather. Many generations occur each year. Under optimal conditions, populations can build up very rapidly.

Spider mites have a pair of needle-like structures called stylets, which are used to rupture leaf cells. A feeding spider mite pushes its mouth into the torn tissue and draws up cell sap. Small patches of cells are killed, resulting in a stippling or fine flecking on the upper surface of leaves, giving the leaves a "sand-blasted" appearance. On heavily infested plants, the foliage will become bronzed, bleached, yellow, or gray. Untreated, such plants lose vigor, become progressively thinner, and may eventually die.

Spider mite damage to foliage is similar on all host plants: fine stippling which progresses to an overall bronzing of the leaves. Eggshells and cast skins are usually visible on the underside of damaged leaves when viewed with a hand lens. Mites can be observed by shaking infested leaves over a white piece of paper. The mites are about the size of the period at the end of this sentence.

Certain lady beetles, thrips, and predaceous mites provide some degree of natural control for spider mite populations, but usually only after mite infestations have become destructive. Natural enemies help keep mites at

COUNTY AGENT'S REPORT

WAYNE BECKER
CEA - AG/NR

Know the dangers when traveling the highway with farm equipment

The need to move farm equipment over the road should be self evident, given that roads in the county are named Farm Market Road and then a number! The fact is that these roads are being more heavily traveled by motorists who have less and less understanding of farm equipment and the slow speed and large space required by it. Keeping this in mind and acting accordingly can help motorists and producers stay safe as they travel from location to location.

Remember, moving farm equipment on public roads can be a dangerous business. Operators need to drive defensively and remain alert every second they are on the road!

A major reason for farm machinery accidents on public roads is the difference in speed between cars and tractors. Motorists approach the slow moving farm equipment so quickly that they only have a few seconds to identify the hazard and react appropriately.

That's why it is so important for farm equipment to be highly visible and properly identified as moving much slower than regular traffic. The identification is provided by the slow moving vehicle (SMV) sign. This sign is triangular with blunt corners and is orange or yellow in the center and has a red or dark orange border. It should be centered on the rear of the tractor or trailing equipment, between 60 cm and 1.8 meters above the road surface and clearly visible from a distance of 150 meters. SMV signs must be kept clean. Faded or damaged signs should be replaced.

Tractors must be equipped with lights if operated on public roads at night, or under conditions of reduced visibility. Highway travel requires headlights, red taillights, and reflectors. Flashing amber lights provide day and night warning to traffic approaching from either direction. Turn signals provide added highway safety. The more highly visible the equipment is - the better.

Whether you are a motorist or an agricultural producer, remember that you are sharing the road with people who have different agendas. Always use caution and drive defensively.

U.S. beef imports expected to fall

U.S. beef imports are expected to be 2.93 billion pounds in 2008, a 4% decline from 2007.

Both foreign and domestic factors will play a role in the lower import numbers. Domestic cow slaughter is expected to remain relatively high in 2008, meaning high domestic supplies of processing beef and lowered demand for foreign beef. A weak U.S. dollar and opportunities for traditional foreign suppliers in other global markets, particularly Europe, Russian, and China, has made exporting beef to the U.S. less attractive.

U.S. beef exports are expected to be 1.515 billion pounds in 2008, a 6% increase from 2007. Despite the weak dollar, countries that rapidly expanded beef imports from the United States last year, such as Japan and Canada, have not continued to expand at the same rate so far this year. According to the USDA's Export Sales Reports, exports have remained strong in the first quarter for Mexico and historically smaller markets, in particular Vietnam.

low levels when conditions are unfavorable for the mites. Most insecticides are not effective on mites and some result in increased mite damage by killing their natural enemies.

In order to control mites, dormant oil applications will work during the winter or early spring. During the summer or growing season use a miticide, such as kelthane or insecticidal soap - but do not use carbaryl or malathion. Always read the label before applying any pesticide.

TDA market recap

For the week ending June 7, feeder cattle prices at Texas auctions were mostly steady to $4 per hundred-weight higher. However, some locations were as much as $5 lower late in the week, when sharply higher grain prices pressured the market. Fed cattle prices were lower.

Corn and grain sorghum cash markets ended the week sharply higher because of ongoing concerns about weather in the Midwest, higher oil prices, and a weaker U.S. dollar. Wheat prices were also higher.

As for futures markets, feeder cattle, finished cattle, and lumber closed the week lower, while cotton, wheat, and corn were higher.

Most of the state experienced high temperatures, strong winds, and little rainfall during the week. Topsoil moisture is rating short to very short in most areas. Wheat harvest was active and now stands at 34% complete, well ahead of the 15% average by this date. The crop is rating in mostly fair to poor condition.

The state's cotton crop is now 86% planted with the emerged acreage rated in good to fair condition. The corn crop is also progressing at a near normal pace with 99% of the acreage emerged and 46% tasseled. Pastures ratings are mostly good to fair condition.

Mexico lifts import tariffs from all nations

In January 2008, remaining NAFTA tariffs on products exported from the U.S. to Mexico, which is always one of the top two importers of U.S. sorghum, were completely phased out. Mexican president Felipe Calderon announced that Mexico will eliminate tariffs on staple food imports from all countries in order to ease high food prices in the country.

The measure applies to sorghum, wheat, rice, corn, and other products. While the elimination of tariffs on grain from countries other than the U.S. could affect sorghum commerce between the U.S. and Mexico, the weak U.S. dollar makes it unlikely that other South American countries can supply Mexico as high quality a product at a better price than U.S. farmers.
