

Commissioners appoint youthful Precinct four Justice of the Peace

By Janet Felderhoff
Cooke County Commissioners Court met Tuesday, June 16 to interview and appoint a new Justice of the Peace for Pct. 4. Five applicants sought the position vacated when then JP John Roane took the oath of office to serve as County Judge on May 29. The retirement of Bill Freeman as County Judge before the end of his term set the wheels in motion to open up these positions.

Jason Brinkley

The JP, Pct. 4 contenders were Jason Brinkley of Mountain Springs, Roger White of Valley View, Kenneth Fogus of Collinsville, Conrad "Chuck" Bahr of Valley View, and Lisa Harris of Valley View. All of these applicants were interviewed Tuesday.

Commissioners Court then met to select the new Justice of the Peace. According to County Judge Roane, Brinkley was the unanimous choice. He was sworn into office at 10 a.m. Wednesday, June 17. Brinkley, age 26, was born and raised in the Mountain Springs area. He noted that his mother's side of the family has been in that area for four or five generations. "I think the family has good ties to the County as a whole," said Brinkley. Brinkley graduated from Valley View High School in 2001, and attended Texas A&M University in College Station from 2001 to 2005. In 2005, he graduated with a Bachelor's degree in Political Science. He then attended law school at Oklahoma City University School of Law, earning his Juris Doctor in May 2008.

Since that time, he has opened up a small law practice with another attorney. They practice primarily in the Denton area, he said.

On his reasons for seeking the JP position, Brinkley said, "I think that a lot of it was that I had a strong family history of active involvement in Cooke County, and I just figured it was my turn to help give something back to the County. I think that this opportunity came up and I think that it would be a good one for me to help give a little bit to the community."

There are no drastic changes planned for the office.

Visit to former home evokes memories for Kitty King

By Janet Felderhoff
Marguerite "Kitty" King took a walk down memory lane on Thursday, June 11. She and a group of her friends were the guests of Claude and Nancy Walter who now own the farm on which Marguerite spent many of her younger years.

In 1996, the Walters purchased the farm from Marguerite. The farm, located about eight miles south of Muenster, originally belonged to Marguerite's grandmother Martha Squires Felty, better known as Aunt Mat. The grandmother raised her from age four to 12. Marguerite went to live with her grandmother after her mother Essie Felty died of tuberculosis when Marguerite was only four. Her grandmother died when Marguerite was 12, and she then returned to live with her father Melvin Felty. Marguerite was one of a set of twins born on Feb. 3, 1912. Her twin sister died shortly after birth.

Aunt Mat worked the farm alone caring for hogs and cattle and, for about eight years, her young granddaughter.

When the farm became the property of the Walters, the house was very run down. Being open, the cattle came and went making a great mess. "We were just going to raze it," noted Nancy. "It had a good foundation. Our kids wanted to restore it."

Thus began a project that extended four to five years. Walter family members worked at the restoration one weekend a month until it was completed in 1999.

Nancy said that she tried to decorate it as close as possible to the original style. She said Marguerite was a great help in that area. She could remember the patterns of the wallpaper that her grandmother used and helped Nancy select patterns that were similar. There are also old photo books and pictures on the wall that help play out some of Marguerite's family history.

The country home now has several purposes. At times, Claude and Nancy go there where they enjoy being in the country. At other times, family in Muenster for a visit might stay at the restored home. It has also been rented for short periods.

Marguerite relished the day spent at the old farmhouse with her friends. She shared many of her childhood memories stirred by the home and its contents.

By Janie Hartman
The Muenster ISD Board of Trustees had a late night at their monthly meeting on June 10, with a few action items approved.

The meeting began when the Board recognized past member Ronnie Felderhoff with a plaque for his contributions on the School Board.

The Board approved Jim Robertson as the attorney for the Muenster ISD delinquent tax collection, using Texas Kids First Insurance for student extra curricular activities for a price of $19,000, and approved the purchase of a SKAG lawn mower from Muenster Mowers at a price of $8,291.

The Board also accepted the resignation of Agriculture Science teacher Ron Abner and is on the lookout for an Industrial Arts teacher. No action was taken on a bus purchase/lease agreement or Update 86.

Discussion items included the completion of the field house that was constructed in 2003. The building, plumbing, and drains are in place, but the wall, air conditioning, and lockers are not completed. Also discussed were drainage problems. The football field drain is silted in on the west side and needs to be cleaned out. Dangelmayr Construction will clean drains and build concrete drains with grate covers to facilitate future cleaning.

Reports given included:
• Elementary - an update of end of school activities and field trips was given. Also, the preliminary TAKS results for Spring was given, noting the 4th grade scored 100% in Reading, Math, and Writing.

The final six weeks honor roll report noted 69 (34%) of the students were on the "A" Honor Roll, and 96 (47%) were on the "A/B" Honor Roll. Only four students did not pass at least one class. There were 13 student conferences/office referrals. One of the 13 was referred more than once. Of the 21 detentions (conduct and homework issues), three attended more than once.

• Junior High/High School - Updated the Board on year end events. Teachers and staff finished the school year on May 30 with a dinner. Early TAKS results were given for grades 7 - 12. Summer school will end July 3, and the Student Handbook for 2009-10 is being rewritten to comply with the legislative mandates of this year's session.

• Athletic Director - Results from the State track meet were given. Also, sports award winners from the Spring Banquet were given.

• Technology Director - Repairs and improvements on computers, e-mails, and telephone lines were noted. Twenty-four tech assistance requests were completed last month. Parents have inquired about putting online payments and the tracking of their children's cafeteria lunches. Muenster ISD does have the capability and it has been successful in other schools.

"Growing up, my brothers and I never really had a babysitter, we had grandpa... I don't ever remember him telling us that he couldn't pick us up... EVER! In his later years, his health deteriorated and he couldn't fic. "I have a very helpful and experienced staff that will be excellent for the transition, and having Judge Roane just a phone call away will be great, too."

On the Commissioners Court's choice of an applicant, County Judge Roane remarked, "I think he will be a very good replacement for me. I think his law degree will be a great asset with the job."

Judge Roane said that he had met with Brinkley and is willing to do all he can to make it a smooth transition. "I told him I'm only a phone call away. I offered to go out with him the first couple of times he gets calls," explained Judge Roane.

"I hope that I can serve the County to the best of my ability," concluded Brinkley.

Felderhoff, Smith marry May 23 in Nevis

Vanessa Suzanne Felderhoff and Dennis Frank Smith, Sr. exchanged wedding vows at 5:23 in the afternoon on May 23, 2009. The double ring ceremony was held at Bananas on the island of Nevis in the West Indies. Magistrate Yasmine Clarke officiated at the ceremony.

Vanessa is the daughter of August and Loretta Felderhoff of Muenster, and the granddaughter of the late Henry and Dorine Droll and the late Hubert and Marie Felderhoff.

The bride attended Sacred Heart School in Muenster and received her high school diploma from the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Grand Coteau, Louisiana. She attended Saint Mary of the Woods College in Terre Haute, Indiana and received a Bachelor of Science degree from Texas A&M University. She is employed by Cable Systems Installations as an office manager.

The groom is the son of Eleanor Miller of Ionia, Michigan. He is a graduate of Portland High School in Portland, Michigan, and Indianapolis Lincoln Tech. Dennis is employed as a Field Supervisor by Cable System Installations.

Vanessa was given in marriage by her father August Felderhoff. The matron of honor was her sister Julia Behr of Muenster. The best man was the groom's son Dennis Frank Smith, Jr. The flower girl Olivia Felderhoff, bride's niece, wearing a sleeveless white organza gown accented with a pool organza sash, scattered white rose petals on the pathway leading to the lush tropical garden alcove where the ceremony was held. Jack Behr, bride's nephew carried the wedding rings tied on a white embroidered pillow. Their rings were the wedding rings of her late grandparents Dorine and Henry Droll.

The bride's Grecian style, floor length, white gown was a creation of soft satin with a silk overlay and featured a gently pleated bodice accented with a jeweled waist and criss-cross jeweled straps from shoulders to the jeweled back waist. A Cherish hair vine of sterling silver with flowers of light and dark sapphires and crystals was threaded through her hair. The bride's hand tied bouquet was made from white anthuriums, white cymbidium orchids, and white calla lilies. The matron of honor wore an Alfred Angelo creation of chiffon and satin with a high/low hemline in the aquamarine color "pool." Her hand tied bouquet was of green cymbidium orchids and white calla lilies. Both bouquets were tapered off with white and silver ribbon. The mothers' wristlet corsages and the magistrate's corsage were made from white dendrobium orchids. The groom, best man, and father of the bride had boutonnières of green and white cymbidium orchids.

Ushers were James Felderhoff of Muenster, brother of the bride, and Gary Droll of Kingsland, Texas, uncle of the bride.

After the ceremony, the wedding party and guests proceeded to The Hermitage Plantation for the reception. For the exclusive use of the wedding party, the foyer and dining area of the hotel were decorated with arrangements of tropical blooms including palm fronds, ferns, heliconias, bird of paradise, and anthuriums.

For the wedding reception, the table arrangements were in shades of green and white. The table for the bride and groom had a garland of fern, white begonias, stephanotis, and cymbidium orchids and was embellished with the bouquets of the bride and matron of honor. This setting was further enhanced with a large white arrangement of green bells of Ireland, white dendrobium orchids, white roses, and white calla lilies set on a pedestal behind the bride and groom's table. Each individual table arrangement had a crystal vase with arrangements of calla lilies, orchids, and anthuriums placed in a center of pool netting, tea lights, and orchids. All bouquets and arrangements were accented with stemmed crystals.

The elaborately decorated cake table had a garland of pool netting, with white tea lights, green cymbidium, off-white cymbidium orchids, white stephanotis, and bows of pool netting. The hurricane candles at the back of the cake table were also decorated with pool netting, orchids, and stephanotis. The cake table contained both a bride's and groom's cake. The bride's four tiered wedding cake had alternating round and octagonal layers. The top and third tiers were a traditional white cake flavored with raspberry syrup and layered with vanilla butter cream. The bottom and second tiers were chocolate sponge cake layered with a sour cream and chocolate filling. All tiers were coated and decorated with white butter cream. Each tier and the top of the cake were accented with groupings of white dendrobium and green cymbidium orchids. The cake was made by Caroline (Mrs. Patrick) Hellman of Nevis, Utah.

The groom was surprised with a Jack Daniel's cake topped with replicas of each of the couple's pickup trucks under an umbrella of palm fronds.

The bride and groom were greeted with mimosa toasts by the best man and matron of honor. They wished them health, happiness, and a long and loving life together. The bride and groom toasted each other and the guests with sapphire blue Waterford crystal champagne flutes which the bride had purchased on a previous trip to Ireland.

The Hermitage provided a traditional West Indian Feast for all to enjoy. It began with a soup "Fisherman's Pot," and a buffet of roast suckling pig (made over an open fire on the grounds that day), pan seared mahi-mahi with Creole sauce, chicken bouillabaisse, curried mutton, and beef brisket braised in red wine. The buffet table also contained the following: Nevis stuffed pumpkin, Gingerland cabbage slaw, plantain, marinated red beets with crumbled feta, Caribbean fried rice, tannia fritters, Johnny cake, and a salad of tomato, black olive, basil, and Nevis mixed greens with passion fruit and ginger vinaigrette. The beverage was a specialty Hermitage rum punch.

As a surprise, Dennis and Vanessa were presented with a memorial decorated bowl, a product of the island and signed by the potter, containing cards of wishes and blessings sent by those who were not able to attend. The guests enjoyed dancing to music selected especially by the bride and groom.

The bride and groom remained on the island for their honeymoon enjoying snorkeling, horseback riding, scuba diving, and climbing Mt. Nevis before returning to their jobs in Beaver, Utah.

Other activities for the guests during the week included a welcome, pool-side bar-b-que provided by The Hermitage. On Friday evening, the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner at Montpelier Plantation. The five course tasting meal was held inside a sugar mill on the plantation property. The manager of the hotel gave the guests a short history of the sugar industry on the island and described some of the original artifacts remaining. The groom's son hosted a lunch for the male guests on Saturday consisting of fresh fish and lobster. A special gift given to the guests by Vanessa and Dennis to commemorate the visit, was a book titled Nevis which was signed by the author.

Guests attending were Gus and Loretta Felderhoff, parents of the bride, James Felderhoff, brother of the bride, and Julie Behr, sister of the bride, and her husband Steve and son Jack, all of Muenster; Gus Felderhoff, brother of the bride, his wife Britt and daughter Olivia of Scottsdale, Arizona; Gary Droll, uncle of the bride of Kingsland. Groom's guests included Eleanor Miller, mother of the groom, of Ionia, Michigan, Casey and Crystal (daughter of the groom) Randolph, of Shreveport, Louisiana, Dennis Smith, Jr., son of the groom and guest Meagan Bono of East Lansing, Michigan, brothers of the groom-Dave Smith and guest Lisa Cole, of Portland, Michigan, and Doug Smith and guest Deborah Eichenberg of Big Rapids, Michigan, and sister of the groom Mrs. Linda Helmer of Leesburg, Florida. A special guest was friend Bronte Gonsalves. She also honored the couple by hosting a Sunday brunch for them at her home.

Muenster ISD students collect coins to find a cure

Students at Muenster High School helped save lives by participating in the Pennies for Patients campaign benefiting The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. For three weeks, students brought in spare change to save the lives of people touched by blood cancers, such as leukemia, which strikes more children and young adults under the age of 20 than any other type of cancer.

In 2007-08, over $19 million was raised by schools throughout the country which participated in School & Youth Programs like Pennies for Patients. A record-breaking 650 schools in the North Texas area participated last year, raising over $750,000. This year, the North Texas Chapter hopes to exceed that goal with the help of Muenster High School, and many others collecting change for this service-learning program endorsed by the Texas Association of Student Councils. Funds raised through these schools support the Society's mission to cure leukemia, lymphoma, Hodgkin's disease, and myeloma, and improve the quality of life of patients and their families. This year, the goal is set at $600,000 and Muenster High School is helping the North Texas Chapter reach that goal.

To reward the students, the highest fundraising classroom in the school received a lunch at Rohmer's Restaurant courtesy of the Society. Nancy Perryman's class was the winning team as they raised over $700, with Martha Koesler's class running a very close second. The whole high school was treated to a hamburger luncheon, and the junior high was treated to donuts and juice for their contribution. The total contribution to the society was $2,030.60.

For more information on the Pennies for Patients campaign, please contact Steve Abrey, campaign manager at 972-354-8335 or 800-800-6702 at ext. 8335.

Oops: On Nov. 17, a Wheeler County game warden filed on a Fairfield man for over bag limit on whitetail bucks. The case resulted from the game warden finding deer remains dumped on the side of a country road, in a box. The box just happened to have a sales tag with names attached to it.

Game warden field notes

Probably not part of the curriculum: A Uvalde County game warden received a call from an off-duty San Antonio police officer who found a deer carcass with the head removed on a neighboring ranch where he was hunting. During the course of his investigation, the game warden interviewed a subject who was living and working on the ranch where the deer carcass was found.

The subject admitted to killing the 8-point buck deer and getting rid of the carcass after removing the head because he did not need any more deer meat. The subject is a student at the local junior college majoring in Wildlife Science. Class A Waste of Game, harvest log and tagging violations were filed.

The game warden also managed to file on a subject for driving in a protected freshwater area (driving in the river) on the Frio River.

Monitor and manage cattle heat stress

Heat stress can greatly impact cattle producers through decreased milk production and subsequent calf growth, decreased reproductive performance in cows and bulls, and decreased stocker and feeder performance. It has been estimated that the Midwest have cost the cattle industry over $75 million in the past 10 years. As summer approaches, make preparations to reduce the risk of heat stress in your cattle.

The ideal temperature range for beef cattle is between 41° F and 77° F. When temperatures exceed this, cattle are at risk of heat stress. Many environmental factors affect the potential for heat stress, including relative humidity, wind speed, solar radiation, ground cover, access to water, diet, shade, and nighttime temperatures. In addition, individual animal characteristics can contribute to heat stress. These include hide color, breed, health, adaptation, hair coat length, and disposition. When a combination of these factors and ambient temperature cause an animal's heat load to exceed its ability to dissipate that heat, heat stress occurs.

Identifying heat stress
When heat stressed, cattle exhibit many physical and behavioral changes. Heat-stressed animals will have increased body temperatures, increased water consumption, decreased feed consumption, and decreased weight gains. These changes may be subtle and difficult to recognize or impractical to measure. Fortunately, there are many signs of heat stress that are easy to recognize. The most obvious are cattle congregating in shady areas or standing in ponds, and decreased grazing activity. You may also notice cattle panting. According to the USDA's Agricultural Research Service, more than 90 breaths per minute is an indication of heat stress, and a respiration rate over 110 indicates a dangerous heat stress level.

Tools are available to help producers identify conditions that are potentially dangerous for cattle. The Livestock Weather Hazard Guide provides guidelines that indicate the potential of heat stress at different temperatures and relative humidity.

Another way to monitor heat stress conditions in your area is the Heat Stress Forecast. The USDA has developed a Web site that reports heat stress forecasts for the central United States. These forecasts provide a more accurate prediction because they account for wind speed and solar radiation in addition to temperature and humidity. This Web site can be found at: www.ars.usda.gov/Main/docs.htm?docid=17130.

A man of words and not deeds is like a field full of weeds.

Managing heat stress

Provide fresh, clean water to cattle at all times. Water intake increases during times of heat stress, so make sure that piped water can refill tanks fast enough to keep up with cattle demand. If ponds are the only source of water, monitor water quality throughout hot, dry periods. Be sure that cattle have adequate shade. If shade is limited, heat stress can be compounded by animals crowding together.

If possible, avoid working and transporting cattle during periods of heat stress. If cattle must be worked or rotated to a new pasture, do it as early as possible in the morning.

Heat stress can also affect the reproductive performance of cows and bulls, so plan your breeding season to avoid the hottest months. Keep in mind that heat stress can impact semen quality for up to eight weeks.

Be prepared by planning now for heat stress. As hot weather approaches, monitor the Heat Stress Forecast or use your local conditions with the Livestock Weather Hazard Guide to determine the potential for heat stress in your cattle.

County Agent report

Watering the lawn
With the hottest and usually the driest time of the year upon us, watering the lawn is a chore that many of us will be undertaking more frequently in the coming weeks. It is a fact that the majority of water use in the North Texas area during summer months goes to watering the lawn. Eighty percent of the water used in Cooke County comes from underground aquifers, a source that will not recharge in our lifetime.

Therefore, careful evaluation of water usage could save you money, ensure a water supply for future generations, and even help you maintain a healthier lawn. Generally we are either over-watering or under-watering. The classic case of one that under-waters is a person who doesn't realize the time needed to adequately water an area; instead they apply light, daily sprinklings. This practice is actually harmful to the plant. Frequent light applications wet the soil to a depth of less than one inch. Most plant roots go much deeper; therefore the watering does not alleviate drought stress completely.

In contrast, there are those who water so often and heavily that they drown plants. Symptoms of too much water are the same as for too little.

Leaves turn brown at the tips and edges, then brown all over and drop from the plant. These symptoms should be the same, since they result from insufficient water in the plant tissue. Too much water in a soil causes oxygen deficiency, resulting in damage to the root system. When a soil remains soggy, little oxygen is present in the soil, causing roots to die.

Ideally, a lawn should be watered just before it begins to wilt. Most grasses take on a dull purplish cast and leaf blades begin to fold or roll. Grass under drought stress also shows evidence of tracks after someone walks across the lawn. These are the first signs of wilt. With careful observation and experience, one can determine the correct number of days between waterings. Common bermuda grass lawns can go five to seven days or longer between waterings without loss of quality.

Early morning is considered the best time to water. The wind is usually calm and the temperature is low so less water is lost to evaporation.

The worst time to water is late evening because the lawn stays wet all night, making it more susceptible to disease.

When watering a lawn, wet the soil to a depth of four to six inches. Soil type affects the amount of water needed to wet soil to the desired depth. It takes about 1/2 inch of water to achieve the desired wetting depth if the soil is high in sand, and about 3/4 inch of water if the soil is a loam. For soils high in clay, an inch of water is usually necessary to wet the soil to the desired depth.

If run-off occurs prior to the water soaking to at least a four inch depth, it may be necessary to turn the water off, wait 1/2 hour for the water to soak in, and then resume watering. Remember, you will be able to water less frequently, use less water overall, and minimize the possibility of disease from gaining a foothold if you follow these simple steps.
